Scotland Yard Smashes Black-Market Ring In Gold Bullion, Jewelry

Charge 6 BOAC Loaders Take $7,750 In Gold. Loot Passengers' Baggage; Other Arrests Expected Soon, Police Say

LONDON, Nov. 3—(CP)—A black-market ring dealing in gold bullion, jewelry and nylons was believed broken today following several swift overnight raids by Scotland Yard in which seven men were arrested. Scotland Yard officers said investigations are still continuing in the case involving the disappearance of gold bullion worth thousands of pounds from London airport over a long period and thefts of jewelry and other valuables from the baggage of airline passengers. Other arrests are expected soon.

The seven were arrested in raids on London airport and neighboring public houses Wednesday night. They appeared in Uxbridge police court this morning. Six described as loaders employed by British Overseas Airways Corporation, were charged with stealing a box of gold worth £2,500 ($7,750). The seventh, described as a club stewart, was charged with unlawfully receiving gold which was the property of B.O.A.C.

Several of the men were also charged with complicity in the thefts involving nylon stockings, jewelry, perfume, cigarets and other valuables. All were remanded on bail until Nov. 21.

The amount of bullion and other valuables missing is not yet known.

Police were tight-mouthed about investigations. But a Scotland Yard spokesman, asked if he believed the arrests had broken a huge black-market ring replied: "It is a start."

Angry Council Demands Magistrate Go

GEORGETOWN, Nov. 3 (CP)—A special session of council Wednesday night decided to ask the Attorney-General of Ontario to replace Kenneth M. Langdon as police magistrate of this town, 25 miles west of Toronto.

The meeting was called to discuss an apology tendered by Magistrate Langdon to Benjamin Rachlin, Acton merchant, after Rachlin had been jailed overnight on charges laid by the Provincial Police of speeding and obstructing a constable. The magistrate dismissed the charges and apologized to Rachlin for any humiliation or ridicule he might have experienced.

At the meeting Councillor Arthur Herbert said: "We might as well have Boy Scouts on duty in this town if the police department fails to have the backing of the magistrate."

Another councillor, Cecil Davidson, said the Ontario Provincial Police detachment at Georgetown refuses to chalk any more cars for parking violation evidence. The O.P.P. here confirmed this statement, saying the decision to suspend marking temporarily came about after the accused was acquited by Magistrate Langdon Wednesday.

Acting Mayor J. P. Armstrong said the council is behind the O.P.P. detachments 100 per cent.

CIO Considers World Affairs

CLEVELAND Nov. 3 (AP) — The CIO turned to its mounting domestic and world-wide political chores today wrapped in the newly acquired robes of a right-wing federation.

The roll of the political action committee in the 1950 United States elections was due for plenty of attention before convention adjourned because of the CIO's expressed chagrin at the failure of Congress this session to repeal the Taft-Hartley Labor Act.

President Truman pledged repeal, but Congress rebelled.

In international politics, the CIO is joining with the AFL and labor federations abroad in creating a new world labor congress, rivalling the Soviet-dominated World Federation of Trade Unions.

Two major left-wing-led unions —the United Electrical Workers and Farm Equipment Workers— were bounced out by convention action Wednesday.

Safe-Crackers Get $2,600 At Post Office

TORONTO, Nov. 3 (CP)—Safe-crackers blasted a heavy post office safe with nitro-glycerine Wednesday night in suburban Willowdale, and stole nearly $2,600 in postage and unemployment insurance stamps and cash.

North York, Provincial, RCMP and special post office police are investigating the robbery, discovered by T. McMullen when he stopped to deliver the Willowdale mail.

Of the loot, Postmaster Charles Corcoran said only $100 was in cash. The stamps were negotiable.

Blast 'Goes Wrong'

BERLIN, Nov. 3 (Reuters) —Windows and doors were blown out for a distance of 300 yards and roofs were wrecked over a 400-yard radius in the middle of the British sector of Berlin today when a demolition explosion by the British Royal Engineers "went wrong." The Royal Engineers were blowing up a concrete structure 30 feet high and 40 feet wide, which was built during the war as an emergency German army telephone exchange.

$250,000 Fire Razes Minto Skating Club

OTTAWA, Nov. 3—(CP)—The famed Minto Skating Club, training ground of many of Canada's most famous skaters was destroyed by a $250,000 fire early today.

The club's 1949-50 season was to have been officially opened today.

The cause of the fire was not known. Fire Chief Gray Burnett said it might have been caused by a defect in the heating unit.

The fire broke out around 3.30 a.m. EST. William Ayres, the club caretaker, who lives on the top floor of the building with his wife and four children, said there was no sign of the fire when he went to bed around 2.45 a.m. Mrs. Ayres was aroused by the smell of smoke.

"If we hadn't awakened right then we would never have gotten out alive," Mr. Ayres said. "We were very lucky because another minute or so would probably have meant death for the six of us."

The rink, which has housed the Minto Club since 1920, was the scene of the North American figure skating championships in 1947 when Ottawa's Barbara Ann Scott defended the North American title she first won in 1945.

Officials said all the records of the Canadian Figure Skating Association were lost in the fire.

Also destroyed were 30 valuable trophies, won by club skaters.

Charles H. Cummings, secretary treasurer of the figure skating association, said neither the records nor the trophies could be replaced.

In addition, most of the club's 500 members had their equipment stored in the building. Mr. Cummings estimated the equipment of each member was worth nearly $100.

STOCKHOLM Nov. 3—(AP)—The Swedish Academy decided today to shelve this year's Nobel Prize for literature because it was hopelessly deadlocked over four top candidates, including Winston Churchill and Italian philosopher Benedetto Croce.

The tug-of-war on the prize decision was reported to have been greater than any time during the half-century in which the 18-member academy has been making the award.

The decision was taken at a brief session this afternoon. It was announced that, as no candidate had been able to obtain the absolute majority necessary, the award will be withheld until 1950.

Ease Ban On Planes As Tito Aid Measure

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3 (AP)—Britain and the United States have eased their ban on the sale of commercial planes and aviation equipment to Yugoslavia. The first shipments—limited quantities of gasoline and lubricants, were cleared by the State Department today. Diplomatic officials, reporting the Anglo-American move just before the fuel and lubricants sale was announced, said it marks the latest steps by the west to bolster Marshal Tito.

107-Year-Old Negress Plans Birthday Flight

STRATFORD, Nov. 3—(CP)—Mrs. Jemima Bowie plans to take advantage of the generosity of George A. Redden, of Alvinston, to go on flight in a Trans-Canada Airlines plane. The 107-year-old Negress, one of the oldest women in Canada, hopes to make the flight next week if she is feeling well.

This week she has not been too well as damp rainy weather has been hard on her rheumatism, but she hopes she soon will be feeling fit again. Mrs. Bowie's birthday wish was to ride in an airplane and all plans have been made for such a ride whenever Mrs. Bowie feels able to make the trip.

Mrs. G. Earll, niece with whom she makes her home, stated today that Mrs. Bowie would likely make the trip next week. She will accompany Mrs. Bowie.

Cold Weather In Mothballs But West Distrusts It

By The Canadian Press.

The winter woolies are back in mothballs today on the western prairies, but oft-duped residents are wary of the weather's whimsy.

Wednesday old man winter did an abrupt about face, lifting his icy hand from Alberta and Saskatchewan points, and beating a hasty retreat in the face of warm air.

The reason is a high pressure area in British Columbia, holding back cool air from the north and allowing warm Pacific air to flow over central Alberta and Saskatchewan.

The weatherman says the west will enjoy Indian summer for the next few days.

So far at least seven record temperatures for Nov. 2 have been established, some of them in areas where weather statistics reach back to 1903.

Highs were established at Edmonton (71 degrees), Calgary (68) Saskatoon (63), Vancouver (62), Victoria (66), Prince Rupert (68), and Abbotsford, B. C (69).

Previous highs, with dates bracketed, were: Edmonton 68.5 (1890) Calgary 62 (1930), Saskatoon 55 (1930), Vancouver 60 (1941), Victoria 63 (1901), Prince Rupert 66 (1917), and Abbotsford 65 (1941).

Mild weather and sunshine on Wednesday brought voters out in droves to civic elections at Regina and Edmonton.

100 Million Cut Made In UK Orders

Canadians Will Feel Bacon, Egg Slash Along With Softwood

OTTAWA, Nov. 3 (CP) —The United Kingdom has told Canada that she lacks dollars to buy Canadian eggs, bacon and newsprint next year, informed sources said Wednesday. Dollar-short Britain also has indicated that she will buy less softwoods and other lumber from this country, and will seek lower prices for cheese. The United Kingdom proposals are expected to be discussed today by the cabinet, and may be followed by trips overseas by either Trade Minister Howe or Agriculture Minister Gardiner.

The sources estimated that Britain's decision on Canadian eggs, bacon and newsprint may cost Canada about $60,000,000 in export trade in 1950. Price readjustments requested may bring the total loss in trade to $100,000,000.

Egg exporters may be hit the hardest since Britain provided the largest export market for Canadian eggs. The 1949 Anglo-Canadian egg contract called for the shipment of approximately 46,000,000 dozens in fresh frozen and processed form at a price of $21,000,000.

Bacon does not appear to be a problem. Canada contracted to ship 160,000,000 pounds this year at $36 a hundredweight, but indications are that shipments will fall short by about 100,000,000 pounds.

However, Agriculture Department officials have forecast increases in Canadian hog production and the prospects have been that Canada could ship between 80,000,000 and 100,000,000 pounds next year if Britain would agree to such a contract.

It was estimated that the bacon loss may total between $25,000,000 and $35,000,000 if Britain holds to her decision not to buy Canadian bacon.

Newsprint sales have been small amounting to about $8,000,000 this year, and with the world demand for this commodity still at a high level Canadian exporters may have little trouble disposing of this amount in other areas.

The sharp cutback forecast for Canadian softwood exports to the U. K. may drive 1950 sales from $33,000,000 to $24,000,000.

Cheese Problem

Britain has told Canada she would like to continue to buy 50,000,000 pounds of Canadian cheese next year but the price will have to be lower than the 30 cents a pound Britain paid last year. A price of about 25 cents a pound has been suggested.

Copper King Dies Suddenly

PORT WASHINGTON, N, Y., Nov. 3 (AP)—Solomon R. Guggenheim senior member of America's great mining family, died here early today at his Long Island estate. He was 88.

The multi-millionaire copper king was active in the family business until three weeks ago, when his health suddenly began to fail.

His wife, Irene, was with him when he died. His eldest daughter, Countess Castle Stewart, was reported flying home from Britain.

Guggenheim was the senior member of the firm of Guggenheim Brothers and was the last survivor of the seven sons of Meyer Guggenheim, who started the family in the mining business in North and South America.

In 1937 he formed the Solomon R. Guggenheim Foundation to encourage and popularize art — especially in its modern form of non-objective painting.

As head of the family firm, Guggenheim was a director of a number of metals corporations, including Kennecott Copper, Braden Copper, Pacific Tin, and the Nevada Northern Railway Company. He also was one of the major stockholders in the huge Anaconda Copper Mining Company.

AN EVENTFUL MEETING where the future of the UE-CIO in Peterborough may well be decided has been called for tonight at the Brock St. Arena. Although the CCL has not yet expelled the UE this is only considered a matter of time. Considered the key right-wing leader in the UE today is John G. Morton, LEFT, president of the Peterborough local. C. S. Jackson, RIGHT, is the Canadian president, accused by his opponents of being a Communist.

Two UE Camps Battle To Gain Control

By DAVE WHITE

The knock-'em-down-drag-'em-out battle between left and right wings in Local 524 UE-CIO will replace the wrestling show at the Brock Street Summer Gardens tonight. But this time the price of admission will be a UE union card, and there will be no spectators—only participants.

Main bout will be between C S. Jackson, Canadian president of the UE, and John G. Morton, president of Local 524. And the prize will be the allegiance of the Local's membership.

Recognized as the leading left-wing union in the United States, the UE was tossed out of the CIO Wednesday afternoon by an overwhelming vote at the convention in Cleveland. Similar action is expected in Canada with the CCL performing the duties of bouncer.

Form New Union

To the 3,200 CGE unionists in Peterborough the most interesting development on Thursday, apart from the actual expulsion of the UE, was the announcement of the forming of a new right-wing electrical union. The announcement was made by James B. Carey, first UE president, who has persistently fought the left-wing leadership in the Union.

Should the CCL expel the UE and the membership of the latter wish to retail affiliation one of two courses would be open to them. Form a new union or affiliate with a CCL union in good standing.

Most observers think the former course would be taken by

Labor's Bold Crisis Plan Said Doomed To Failure

LONDON, Nov. 3—(CP)—A bold new "crisis" plan for organized labor appeared today to be doomed to failure. Indications were that a number of powerful unions have turned down a national policy of suspending wage claims as long as Britain's economic crisis lasts. The suggestion that all unions should get together on what would have been a really binding wage-freeze came from a special economic committee of the Trades Union Congress, representing 8,000,000 workers.

Ever since devaluation of the pound was announced last Sept. 18, the special committee has been hard at work trying to formulate a clear-cut national policy for the T.U.C.'s affiliated unions.

Finally, it came up with the suggestion that all wage claims be abandoned voluntarily in return for certain concessions, such as increased pensions and changes in family allowances designed to prevent real hardships to breadwinners shut off from wage increases.

Has One Hitch

But the plan had one hitch. Any general wage freeze would necessarily bear heavily upon some 2,000,000 workers now covered by sliding-scale wage contracts. These workers receive automatic increases every time the cost-of-living index goes up.

The T.U.C.'s general council Wednesday met representatives of workers covered by sliding-scale contracts. It was understood that representatives refused to accept any policy which would mean forgoing automatic wage increases consequent upon the rise in living costs.

In an effort to work out some compromise the T.U.C.'s special committee will meet again next Monday. Its report is due to be submitted to the general council next Wednesday, and indications now are that it will be much less definite in character than the committee had originally hoped.

RookieConstable Held In Shooting

TORONTO, Nov. 3—(CP)—A rookie on the suburban Leaside police force, identified only as Constable Mitchell, is being held following a shooting accident in a suburban York Township taxi office in which Vernon Sturgeon, 21, was critically injured. Police said the exact charge to be laid against the constable has not yet been decided.

The rookie officer was said to have been showing Sturgeon his equipment. He was holding the revolver in his hand when it went off, police said.

Sturgeon, son of the owner of the taxi firm, is reported near death in a Toronto hospital.

Intervene In Strike?

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3 (AP)—Reports that the United States government may soon step into the coal strike were revived today with word that Indiana operators have refused separate peace talks with John L. Lewis. On highly-placed U.S. official, closely watching the steel-coal strike crisis, said: "We can't let Lewis go much beyond this week-end."

Surplus Worrying Farmers—Hannam

Real Basis For Security Said International Plan Of Feeding World

TORONTO, Nov. 3 (CP)—H. H. Hannam, president of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, said today he was convinced the "next great step forward in human history" will be that of the world feeding itself by means of an orderly, organized, international plan.

"I believe that's the real basis for both peace and security," said Mr. Hannam in an address prepared for delivery before the Empire Club of Canada.

Mr. Hannam outlined the steps leading to formation of the Federation and its growth to an organization that now includes all branches of agriculture and all provinces. It has an affiliated membership of some 400,000 — more than 60 per cent of the Dominion's farmer population.

On Business Basis

'Our Canadian farmers want to put agriculture on a business basis," said Mr. Hannam.

Mr. Hannam said that although present food production surpassed that before the Second World War, an increased world population had lowered production per capita below the pre-war mark.

He warned that Canada's farmers "remember all too vividly the tragic experiences of the past with its unwanted surpluses, and have grave fears, that without due safeguards, expanding production may bring only a repetition of past disasters

"Since producers see some surpluses already piling up and danger of more serious ones in the near future what should be done?

Many countries, the U.S., Canada, also European countries, now are seriously concerned about where they will find a market for their surpluses above domestic requirements.

"Our Canadian federation put a proposal for moving embarrassing surpluses into consumption before the International Federation of Agricultural Producers at Guelph and it was unanimously endorsed. It proposed the setting up of an international agency and fund to take surpluses, arrange for their sale to needy people at special prices, and have the loss shared between the fund and the supplying country."

Mr. Hannam said the proposal had been endorsed by the United Nations food and agriculture organization.

Damage Light As Second Woman Hurt

Mother And Children Jump Out Window To Escape Flames

TORONTO, Nov. 3—(CP)—One woman was killed, another is in hospital and a fireman was overcome when fire swept through a bedroom in an east-end duplex today. In a second blaze, a mother and three children jumped, or were thrown to safety when their home was engulfed by flames.

Violet Caulfield, 35, died from suffocation in her bedroom. Her mother, Mrs. Catherine Caulfield, 70, was found unconscious on the hall floor when firemen arrived.

Firemen were forced to don masks because of the dense smoke which filled the duplex. Fireman Russell Beasley was revived with an inhalator when he was overcome.

Firemen worked 40 minutes with an inhalator on the unconscious body of Mrs. Caulfield before she was taken to the hospital. She was immediately placed under an oxygen tent.

Smoking In Bed

The fire department said that while there was much smoke, from the burning mattress and the varnished hardwood floor, that damage was comparatively light.

Fire Chief Ashley said that 'smoking in bed was the cause of the fire, I'd say."

Miss Caulfield was asphyxiated in her bed, firemen said. They told of finding her "literally wrapped up in blankets."

Fractures Back

Mrs. Violet Penny suffered a possible fractured back in the second-storey jump. Her three children, Sharron, 11, Lexie, seven, and Maurice, nine, suffered only minor burns.

The building had recently been converted into a number of small apartments. Twelve of the 14 persons who live there were at home when the fire broke out.

Bud Anderson, 21, who lives in the rear of the building, was first to notice the blaze. When Sharron was too frightened to leap from the second-storey window

Release Lewicki To Marlboros

STRATFORD, Nov. 3—(CP)—Danny Lewicki, central figure in a year-long dispute with Toronto Maple Leafs over the controversial National Hockey League C form, has been released to Toronto Marlboros, a Leaf amateur farm club, it was announced here today.

Lewicki, suspended last month by the NHL and the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association from organized hockey because he refused to sign a professional contract with the Leafs, will line up with the junior Marlboros club.

Announcement of the transfer from the Stratford club to Marlboros was made by J. H. Wyatt, president of the Stratford team. He said arrangements were completed Wednesday in a conference in Toronto with Conny Smythe, managing director of the Leafs, Coach Hap Day of the Leafs and Pinkey Lewis, Stratford coach.

Customers Get Tipsy But Clerks Survive

TOKYO, Nov. 3 (AP) — The Mitsukoshi Department Store — one of Tokyo's largest—made lots of new friends today.

It was free taste day at the liquor counter. Products of 14 Japanese distilleries were introduced. There to meet them were thousands of Japanese lined three deep. Clerks were lined three deep behind the counters, too.

The accepted rule was one for the customer and one for the clerk. Apparently the clerks won for they were still three deep behind the counter when the last tipsy customer left.

Tomorrow the counter will sell liquor—that is if the clerks make it down in time to open up.

Must Raise Imports Acheson Says

Calls On US Reverse Trade Policy To Close Big Gap

State Secretary Dean Acheson called on the United States Wednesday night to reverse its 30-year-old foreign trade policy and become an "important-minded" country in order to close a $6,000,000,000 trade gap.

In a speech to the National Foreign Trade Council, Acheson proclaimed a campaign to reduce tariffs, simplify customs, "modernize" other laws and otherwise expand the opportunities for foreign producers to sell their goods in the United States.

Acheson's appeal followed closely that of Donald Gordon, in New York. Mr. Gordon urged the United States to drop its tariff barriers and allow substantially more imports. In this way only, he warned, would the world regain economic stability.

Acheson told the National Foreign Trade Council that he sees nothing "favorable" in a trade balance by which the United States last year sold $13,000,000,000 worth of goods to the rest of the world and bought only $7,000,000,000 in return.

Serious Problem

He declared that the $6,000,000,000 gap creates a serious problem for the U. S. in its efforts to establish economic stability among the countries of the western hemisphere and western Europe.

President Truman sent the meeting a message saying that the United States as a creditor nation is trying to correct the unbalance in trade.

Acheson, in effect, demanded that the United States reverse its 30-year-old trade policies under which it has consistently sold more abroad than it has bought. He said he wants the U. S. to begin to allow other countries to pay for what they buy here instead of having the American taxpayer foot the bill in the form of huge loans and gifts.

To achieve this objective he outlined a program based on negotiating new tariff cuts with other countries. At the same time he conceded that his proposal will run up against stiff opposition as a result of prospective competition with U. S. products.

Death of 3 Nickel Workers Ruled Accidental By Jury

PORT COLBORNE, Nov. 3—(CP)—The death of three workers at the International Nickel Company refinery here, where seven other workers were taken ill, was ascribed to nickel carbonyl poisoning at an inquest Wednesday night. The coroner's jury, which found the deaths purely accidental, was told by Dr. R. B. Sutherland of the Ontario Health Department that medical history records only 10 such cases, including the three here. Six others occurred in Britain and one in the United States.

W. J. Cook, assistant superintendent of the refinery, said that investigation had centred around the bins in which the reduced nickel is loaded and packed in drums after coming from the mond reducers.

The company official outlined the steps by which the heavy breathing, dizziness, nausea and apparent chest colds contracted by some employees over a few days had been correlated.

Precautions Effective

Robert Merritt, provincial health department metallurgist, said he was satisfied that precautions since taken by the company are 100 per cent effective.

The three who died in hospital with symptoms of pneumonia were Frank Guillou, Frank Getin and John Toth. These men, and the other affected, were employed in the leaching, calcining and sintering department.

Mr. Cook said that it was believed the gas in some way escaped from a small concentration in a water-sealed bell below the reducers. Following the illnesses, exhaust fans were installed, masks were provided for the men and an automatic warning signal was installed on the bell. If the water seal around the bell drops the warning signal sounds, and if the signal is not heeded the reducers shut off automatically.

Another precaution is a steam chest to heat the reduced nickel, freeing any dissolved nickel carbonyl, with fans to carry the freed gas away.

The inquest was presided over by Coroner Dr. E. A. MacKenzie with Crown Attorney T. F. Forrestall questioning the witnesses.

Cardinal Dies At Vatican

ROME, Nov. 3—(AP)—Francesco Cardinal Marmaggi, one of the [illegible] died Wednesday of a heart attack. He was 73.

Cardinal Marmaggi, elevated to the Sacred College in 1935, was prefect of the congregation of the Council. He directed the application and enforcement of decrees of the Council of Trent and other church laws.

His death reduces the membership of the College of Cardinals to 54. The full membership is 70.

Pope Pius, Vatican sources said, sent his personal benediction by Giovanni Battista Montini of the Vatican Secretariat of State, after the heart attack.

Oil Millionaire Fined $20,000

DENVER, Nov. 3—(AP)—Henry M. Blackmer, bent-shouldered oil millionaire, Wednesday paid $20,000 in fines to close his income-tax-evasion accounts with the United States government. He was spared a jail sentence because of fading health. He is 80 years old.

Justice Orie L. Phillips pronounced the sentence in Federal district court in this belated postscript to the Teapot Dome scandal of the 1920s.

Blackmer had pleaded guilty Sept. 26 to four counts of evading tax payments. This was shortly after he came back to the United States from his home in Paris. He fled in 1924 rather than testify in the Teapot Dome inquiry.

Just 20 years ago Tuesday the late Albert B. Fall, secretary of the interior in the Harding cabinet, was sent to prison for taking a $100,000 bribe in the case, which involved oil leases in the Wyoming fields.

Obituary

SAMUEL DEYELL

Samuel Deyell, 80, of Omemee died on Wednesday in Lindsay following a short illness. He was born in Smith Township, son of the late Samuel Deyell and Sarah Burgess, and before moving to Omemee three years ago, lived in Smith Township where he farmed successfully for a lifetime. His wife, the former Margaret Etta Flack, predeceased him four years ago.

He leaves two daughters, Mrs. Roy White (Isobel) of Belleville and Mrs. Len McMann (Myrtle) of Huntsville, and a son, Ellsworth Deyell of Orillia. Mr. Deyell was a former member of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church.

Funeral service will be held on Saturday at 2 p.m. at the Nisbett Funeral Home. The Rev. V. E. R. Zufelt of Omemee United Church will officiate and burial will be at Little Lake Cemetery.

REV. SISTER M. PETRONILLA

A member of the Sisterhood of St. Joseph for 40 years, Rev. Sister M. Petronilla (Whittaker) died Wednesday at St. Joseph's Hospital after a short illness.

She was born in Montreal, daughter of the late Francis Whittaker and his wife I. Gallagher. Her work in the Community of St. Joseph had been chiefly in Peterborough and Lindsay.

Two of her sisters are in the religious life. They are Rev. Sister Mary Felicitas of Port Arthur and Sister M. Anselm of St. Vincent's Orphanage, Peterborough. She also leaves one brother William Whittaker of Montreal, and two sisters, Mrs. R. Altimas and Mrs. M. Phelan of Montreal.

The funeral mass will be Saturday at 8:30 a.m. at the chapel of Mount St. Joseph. Burial will be at St. Peter's Cemetery.

Senate Passes Bill To End Council Appeals

OTTAWA, Nov. 3—(CP)—The Supreme Court of Canada will be a busier place after it assumes status as a final court of appeal.

This apparently will be in the near future. The Senate Wednesday passed a bill to abolish appeals to the judicial committee [illegible] Technically, it now needs only Royal assent and publication in the Canada Gazette to become effective.

The legislation makes the Supreme Court, housed in the capital's newest and finest office building, the last word in justice as well as accommodation. The peak in Canadian justice no longer will be in London, but in Ottawa, and Canadian litigation no longer will have to cross the Atlantic.

Nobody knows how much more work the Supreme Court will be asked to handle. However, the government has announced its own estimate by providing—in the bill just passed—for appointment of two new judges, bringing the total to nine.

Under the legislation, three of the judges must come from Quebec.

Doesn't Alter Quorum

The bill does not alter the quorum of five judges needed to hear a case. Under the new setup some of the justices may work on their judgment while others are hearing cases. The court thus will have more flexibility.

The court will need it, because, with appeals to the Privy Council eliminated, it will hear a number of cases for which it had no previous jurisdiction. And because it will be cheaper to appeal to Ottawa than to London, there will be more appeals.

Least-known of the changes embodied in the new act are the supreme court's additional duties which revolve around powers to grant leave to appeal. These powers are greatly extended and, necessarily, cover cases which previously could be appealed only to the privy council.

Basically, the surge of additional cases will stem from these new powers:

Previously, the court could grant leave of appeal only if the case in question already had gone to the highest court in the province. This ruled out a number of cases which because of their nature are never allowed to reach the highest provincial court. Now the Supreme Court can hear appeals from any court, provided the appeal went as far as it could go in the province.

Under the system previously in force, the Supreme Court could hear appeals only from a "final judgment"—one which cleans up the case rather than just deciding a side issue. Now it will be able to hear "side-issue" appeals, such as counter-suits on jurisdictional matters.

Have Third Class

Previously, the above two classes of cases could be appealable to the Privy Council. But a third class of cases, now appealable to the Supreme Court, previously could be appealed to neither the Supreme Court nor the Privy Council.

This class involves a group, obscure to the layman, including appeals from prosecutions under provincial statutes. Also falling under this class are appeals from summary conviction cases under Federal statutes where the question is on a point of law or jurisdiction.

In the Senate the bill moved through second reading—approval in principle— after Senator Salter Hayden (L, Ontario) concluded the debate. He urged its passage as a mark of Canada's nationhood.

Senator Hayden said that if Canada had sufficient confidence in the idea of abolishing appeals, it should have confidence that the Supreme Court of the future would exercise tolerance, understanding and wisdom.

Canada was claiming nationhood and asserting herself internationally as a nation. She must either abandon this idea or present herself as capable of managing her own affairs.

the membership should this eventuality arise. And tonight the CGE union members will have to make a choice.

Circulate Petition

On Wednesday afternoon a petition was passed around at the CGE plant by the right-wing leadership in the local, calling on workers to urge the leadership "to do everything possible to maintain this Local within the CIO." About 140 signatures were obtained.

It is not expected that the expulsion of the UE from the CCL will be announced by tonight as too many of the executive members of that labor body are at distant locations, either in the United States or Canada.

The right wing in a leaflet issued to union members today states that "certain people" will attempt to confine the discussion solely to whether strike power shall reside in the hands of the individual local or be given over to the joint conference board.

That will not be No. 1 item on the agenda of the right wingers. The immediate future of the Union is their first concern.

A heated and bitter debate is expected between Morton and Jackson.

Right Wing Centre

Result of tonight's meeting will be watched in labor circles all over Canada as Peterborough is considered the right-wing centre of revolt against UE's allegedly pro-Communist line.

C. S. Jackson told the Examiner today that 500 stewards at the CGE plant at Schenectady and others at a Westinghouse plant in East Pittsburgh had approved the UE's attitude regarding the CIO. Prior to being expelled the UE had withheld payment of its per capita tax to the CIO and top officials had walked out.

Both these plants approved this move at a Tuesday night meeting.

Davenport and Royce Ave. workers Wednesday night endorsed the recommendation of the Joint Conference Board for the centralization of strike authority in the UE-GE Conference Board and not in individual locals, Jackson said. This was the procedure in other years he said.

He also drew attention to the new settlement at the Electro Metallurgical Co. plant at Welland where the minimum job rate for sweepers is now $1.22, and the work week reduced from 42 to 40 hours. The Canadian president singled this out as an example of settlements obtained under the UE.

Although there have been no threats of rough-house, an extra guard of Peterborough police will be on hand to keep a wary eye on proceedings.

CIO Considers

10 Others Coming Up

That left 10 others to face the equally severe inspection of the 51-man executive board, scheduled to meet Saturday.

Expulsion of the UE drew a bitterly-worded statement from Albert Fitzgerald, the union's president. In New York, he called the move "Walter Reuther's Revolution."

Reuther heads the United Automobile Workers Union and was chairman of the resolutions [illegible] ed the UE be expelled.

"They (right-wing leaders)," said Fitzgerald, "want to hide the fact that their policy of chasing after handouts from politicians has dragged the CIO down from 6,000,000 to about 3,000,000 members.

"Unless their own members catch up with them, Mr. Murray (CIO President Philip Murray) and Mr. Reuther, in their Red-baiting race for control of the CIO, will manage to tear the CIO to pieces.

Taking Their Time

Murray indicated all the left-wing unions would not be booted out right away. Most likely to follow the UE and FE out of the 11-year-old federation were these "weaker" unions.

Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers, about $43,000 behind in its per capita payments to the CIO; Food, Tobacco and Agricultural Workers; United Public Workers; and Office and Professional Workers.

Plans already are under way to move in fast and grab off the membership of left-wing-led unions which have their charters revoked.

UE, with up to 450,000 members, was a good example.

The loud cheers which greeted the UE expulsion vote had hardly died out before James B. Carey, secretary-treasurer of the CIO and former president of the UE, announced formation of a new right-wing union in the electric, radio and machinery field.

A convention to set up the union, under Carey's guidance if not actual leadership, will be held in Philadelphia Nov. 28.

The cheese problem is aggravated by the fact that the government now has in storage about 13,000,000 pounds of the product, purchased under price-support action. The hope is that this surplus may be sold in the United States, but there is no certainty.

Brightest corner in the Anglo-Canadian trade picture is provided by non-ferrous metals. Indications are that Britain will continue to take the same amount of copper, lead, zinc and other metals that she purchased this year, making for total sales of about $140,000,000.

It also was indicated that Canada may experience some difficulty in selling manufactured products to the British market next year, and this also may bring down the total trade between the two countries.

Sales to Britain this year are expected to total about $690,000,000. Should Canada accept the British proposals for next year, it would probably bring 1950 sales to about $590,000,000.

May Be Guessing

LONDON, Nov. 3 (CP)—Lord Calverley, Labor member of the House of Lords, said Wednesday that Britain's next general election will be held July 6, 1950—and then refused to amplify the statement or deny that he was just guessing. Prime Minister Attlee's office refused to confirm or deny it, saying only that Lord Calverley's statement in the Lords is being investigated.

Key Issues Advance On Toronto Exchange

TORONTO, Nov. 3—(CP)—Prices continued yesterday's advance in the forenoon on the Toronto Stock Exchange today.

Some early realizing sales tended to hold the market in check but key issues slowly marked up small advances.

Industrials were fractionally higher at a new peak for the year and golds and western oils added slowly. Base Metals resumed their interrupted climb with leaders of Tuesday's advance forging upwards.

Advances ranged from fractions to about a point in industrials. Abitibi continued higher in a stronger paper list and Dominion Bridge was up a point at a new high at 40¼ in steels. Canadian Vickers added $4 at $85. Refining oils brightened and Bell Telephone sagged ⅞ at 40½ in brisk dealings following news that the company's request for increased rates would not be heard by the Board of Transport Commissioners until March.

Noranda, Hudson Bay and Quemont were up fractions in base metals. Kerr Addison featured senior golds, adding ⅜ at 19⅛ and junior producers showed gains ranging up to 10 cents.

To Give Cash Prizes

A movie theatre competition with cash prizes which have amounted to one and a half million dollars dispersed throughout Canada during the past eight years, will be presented in Peterborough. The sponsors, who have entered into a year's contract with the Capitol theatre, will present an amateur audience participation program every Friday night to be known as Foto Nite Amateur Show. George Oullahan, who has organized the shows throughout the Dominion, will be master of ceremonies at the opening show Nov. 11.

Ed. John McCarthy Buried In Douro

Funeral services for Edward John McCarthy, 87, of Douro, were held Wednesday morning from the Duffus Funeral Home.

Requiem mass said by Rev. J. J. McCarthy was held in St. Joseph's Church, Douro. Three grandchildren, Jack and Wayne McCarthy and Bernard Dwyer, as well as Raymond Ayotte helped during the service.

Father McCarthy also conducted the graveside prayers in St Joseph's Cemetery, Douro. Pallbearers were: Daniel and Edward Moloney, Carl Hill, Joseph Sullivan William McCarthy and Frank Heffernan.

Injured Veteran Gets $15,000

WELLAND, Nov. 3—Leo Sabourin, Toronto war veteran, living in Stanley Barracks, will be looking for a new apartment.

Granted a judgment of $15,000 by a Supreme Court jury Wednesday for injuries he suffered in a motorcycle-truck collision at Merritton on May 21, 1949, Sabourin commented "Now I'll be able to find a decent place to live."

Sabourin was a passenger on a motorcycle which crashed into a [illegible] Merritton. The motorcycle was driven by William Chockan, Ontario St., Toronto, who was granted $12,000.

The jury found the accident was caused by the negligence of the truck driver, who drove while under the influence of liquor in a manner which created a hazard.

New Minister At Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 3. —(ENS).—Rev. A. E. Tombes of Simcoe, accepted a call, extended to him by the congregation of St. Paul's Presbyterian church, Wednesday night, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Rev. J. O. Ralston in August.

Mr. Tombes returned to Canada last summer after serving 10 years as a missionary in India. He is married and has three children.

Women's Guild Visits 8 Homes In A Month

MILLBROOK, Nov. 3 (ENS) — Women's Guild of St. Thomas' Anglican Church met at the rectory on Tuesday evening.

Mrs. C. M. MacLean was in the chair and conducted the opening prayers. The minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. H. A. Turner, and Mrs. T. A. Campbell announced there was a balance in the bank.

The visiting committee comprising Miss Kent, Mrs. Sloan, Miss Fair and Mrs. Sheppard, reported eight calls made to parish homes since the last meeting. A vote of thanks was moved to Mrs. MacLean for her efficient service to the Guild as acting president during the past year.

Plans were completed for the tea and sale of home-made candy, baking, sewing and other handmade articles to be held in the waitingroom Saturday.

The rector, Rev. C. M. MacLean conducted the nomination of officers for the coming year. The election is to take place on the first Tuesday of December in Mrs. H. A. Turner's home. Hostesses for that meeting are to be Mrs. Lowery and Mrs. Sheppard.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. Wm. Hutchinson and Mrs. Marsden.

Barbara Ann Skates With Cracked Rib

CALGARY, Nov. 3.—(CP). — Barbara Ann Scott, displayed "the show-must-go-on" determination Wednesday night when the Ottawa skater performed to a near-capacity arena in spite of a cracked rib and torn muscles.

Dr. E. P. Scarlett, her physician, said if she were a Calgary girl she'd have been put to bed. Rest, plenty of heat applications and adhesive tape are expected to keep the 21-year-old former world champion figure skater going in the touring ice show in which she stars.

Skunk Attends School

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 3.—(ENS).—When the teacher and pupils arrived at the English Line School one morning recently they found a new pupil waiting to be enrolled.

It was a skunk that had entered through the wood chute during the night and had already digested its first geography lesson by chewing up several maps.

Few Answers On Immigrants

OTTAWA, Nov. 3.—(CP).—C. W. Hodgson (PC-Victoria, Ont.) didn't get much information when he asked for particulars on the 261,260 immigrants entering Canada during the last three years.

Resources Minister Gibson, in a tabled reply in the Commons, said his department could not answer Mr. Hodgson's questions as to the religious affiliations of the immigrants. The department had no statistics on this matter.

The department also had no statistics on the number of displaced persons bearing contagious diseases on arrival at Canadian ports, and at North Bay.

However, the department d' keep records on racial origin and of the 261,260 immigrants brought in during the last three years, the department did know that 14,416 were Hebrews.

GOOD MACHINE CARE— NO VISUAL CARE

in practically every industry, you will find painstaking watchfulness and care to make sure that every machine and tool is in the best possible condition for production. It has been demonstrated that poor tools cannot turn out good work. Rejections for imperfection are so expensive that management will not tolerate machines or tools that are not in perfect condition. A wrongly sharpened round-drill will produce an oval hole. A lathe misaligned cannot produce a perfect cylinder. But the man who operates the lathe or the drill press—what about him? Can he maintain close and comprehending vision on his work, hour after hour. Can he see perfectly at a distance but see foggily near to? If we are justified in spending good money for the maintenance of good machines and tools at their highest efficiency, why are we not also justified in maintaining the visual capacity of the workmen at their greatest possible achievement? If one makes sense, surely the other is even more sensible.

Modern optometry is doing wonders for inspectors, tool makers, machinists and other important industrial workers—a matter of record, not of mere claim.

Transportation Tie-Up

HOUSTON, Tex., Nov. 3 (AP) —Houston's 1,100 CIO Bus Drivers and Mechanics went on strike early today in support of a wage increase. The strike brought about the city's most serious transportation tie-up in history. Some 175,000 residents are estimated to take a total of 300,000 bus rides daily. The CIO Transport Workers Union demanded a 30-cent hourly wage increase. The current average wage is $1.17 hourly.

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 3, 1949

Across the continent, in both Canada and the United States, unions and their leaders are setting their faces sternly against Communists, and Communist-inspired members and organizers who have wormed their ways into unionism. Fully conscious now of the dictatorial threat of the radical left-wingers to trade-unionism, and painfully aware of their tactics, the democratic forces in the unions—and despite the undermining of the left-wingers, they are still the vast majority—are finding their ranks of the Communists and Communist sympathizers. The latest ousting occurred yesterday in Cleveland when the C.I.O. expelled the U.E. (United Electrical Workers). This has an immediate impact on Peterborough.

The largest union in Peterborough is U.E. The largest local is No. 524, composed of C.G.E. workers. The leadership of this local is so-called right-wing; it is certainly right of the left-wing national leadership of U.E. Mr. John Morton is Pesident of Local 524. Mr. C. S. Jackson is President of District 5, which includes all Canadian U.E. locals. Mr. Morton leans strongly to Labour's right; Mr. Jackson and other District leaders under him lean strongly to the left. That is the local and national situation. Nationally another complication arises. U.E. is affiliated with the Canadian Congress of Labour which is blood-brother to the C.C.F. The C.I.O. has expelled the U.E. What will the C.C.L. do?

U.E.'s Canadian leaders have long been suspended from the C.C.L. Executive Council. Last month President A. R. Mosher and Secretary Pat Conroy of the C.C.L. jointly stated that "the time has come in the labour movement . . . for Communist groups to be forced into an isolated position . . . There are within the ranks of our Congress a few unions under Communist leadership. Recently the Congress, by a decision of its Executive Council found it necessary to take definite action against some of those unions . . . The Congress has taken, and will continue to take definite action to combat the Communist menace". The C.C.L. may be expected either to expel the U.E., take action against the Canadian leaders, or to require the union members to take action themselves to "clean house."

The question which members of Peterborough's Local 524 must decide is this. Are they, predominately right-wing under Mr. Morton, going to remain in the union which is under left-wing national and international direction, or are they as a body going to organize themselves so that they can remain with the C.C.L. and the C.I.O.? The matter is of great urgency to them, and to their fellow citizens in the city. The action they take will also have a strong influence on unionists elsewhere in the Province and the country.

Britain Goes Out To Sell

The British Board of Trade, equivalent to our Department of Trade and Commerce, has taken an important step to assist United Kingdom exporters to secure and hold markets in Canada and the United States. In effect it has offered to underwrite part of the additional cost of selling and distributing merchandize on this continent. The British have been slow to realize that the North American market is a very difficult one, where competition is very sharp and the buyers very exacting about price, quality and design. They have also been slow to realize that it costs more to sell goods here than in the United Kingdom or Europe. They now fully realize both conditions, and estimate that about sixty per cent of their retail price must be spent in what is called 'promotion.'

The U.K. Government knows that the British factories and exporters have a far easier market at home, and can find bigger profits there, in Europe, and within the sterling area. The new measure will guarantee the exporters against loss of profits in the North American market. Now that they have an excellent profit motive as well as a patriotic duty to sell across the Atlantic, they should make the wholesale effort which they have not yet done.

Mr. Paul Hoffman, E.C.A. (Marshall Aid) administrator at Washington some time ago told British industrialists that by capturing only one per cent. of the United State retail market Britain could permanently solve her dollar shortage problems. British exporters have now been set on the dollar-path, and if they really pursue it and the American manufacturers do not force their government to limit the importation of British goods (to protect American industry), Britain should be able to earn a good many more dollars for her Treasury.

A high Ontario moral tone had inevitably to be injected into the question of making amateur, professional and other forms of commercial sport legal on Toronto Sundays. Toronto voters are being asked to register their opinions on it at the civic elections. We remarked the other day that this was Toronto's business and not an outside concern. The Ottawa Journal wholly disagrees with us and in the tones it uses so well says that "Toronto's business in this respect is Ontario's business, because what we are seeing is a subtle effort to drive a wedge into our traditional Sunday observance, to open it up for exploitation, and that certainly concerns every family, every individual, in this province."

The Journal is of course not chiefly worried about Ottawa visitors to Toronto of a Sunday being exposed to commercial sport. Ottawa families have only to go across the bridge into Hull for their ball games and movies on Sunday afternoons. That hundreds of them do cross the bridge into the Quebec Sunday must grieve the enthusiasts for the Ontario Sunday. The Journal is concerned lest a wanton Toronto Spirit should infect the whole province. If the Toronto voters approve sports in Toronto, the next step would be petitions to the Legislature and Parliament to make them legal, the Journal reasons. And if the law were changed—how grandly the case is enlarged—"the change would apply to all Ontario and perhaps to all Canada".

The logic is interesting but the facts in another Ontario matter which also relates to provincial customs and morals do not support the argument. Peterborough has beverage rooms and a liquor store, but other places in the district, exercising a local option, have neither. The Journal's friend Mr. George Drew, when Premier, provided cocktail bar legislation for Ontario. Ottawa has the bars, but Peterborough has not, nor does it consider its civic life threatened because Ottawa and Toronto have them. If Toronto were to have ball games on Sunday afternoons there is no reason to believe that Ottawa would have them thrust upon it—unless, of course, Ottawa people want them so as to avoid the weekly trek across the bridge.

As we have already remarked, big cities and small cities differ in their needs and manners. Toronto is a very big city and cannot be expected forever to keep the customs and morals of a Peterborough or even an Ottawa. Conversely, the smaller places need not be expected to ape metropolitan centres.

Parliament Eyes Atomic Energy

The atomic bomb is still an imminent destroyer, for U.N. and the world whose council it is have not found any unanimously acceptable way to control or limit the uses and abuses of atomic energy. Canada has a very heavy stake in the business, for even if it does not make atomic bombs it provides the raw materials which go into them. Mr. Howe has recently reassured the United States that Canada will continue its shipments of these materials. Canada's huge atomic energy production plants are studying chiefly the means of applying the energy to industrial and other peacetime uses.

Canada has set up its own internal control of all radioactive material and research, the Atomic Energy Control Board, established in 1946. It is this Board which administers the Chalk River plant, shrouded in mystery, hidden in the fog of secrecy, and spender of millions of dollars. Parliament believes that the time has now come when it, the voice and instrument of the citizens, should have some direct oversight of Canada's atomic energy enterprises. A special parliamentary committee was established this week, to consist of eight Liberals, three Conservatives, one independent, one C.C.F.'er, and one Social Crediter. It is the first time that Parliament has attempted to find out what is going on in Canada in this costly, world-significant work.

Although members of the Committee cannot be expected to understand the scientific details and processes, as Mr. Howe warned, they should be able to discover what the work concerns, how the money is being spent, where the produce is going, and in a political way to determine if Canada is being well served by its experts. It is most unwise to leave such highly important matters to experts.

Soap Boxes Of Hyde Park

By CYRIL DUNN

FROM the change which affects almost every living thing in the English open air at this time of year, the Speakers in Hyde Park are not excluded.

It could scarcely be said that darkness at seven makes them any bolder; as a class they have no diffidence to lose. Nor does it help the hecklers to have the nights drawn in. Most of them are as anxious to be seen as they.

[illegible] time, the whole of this institution on the fringe of the Park is infected by something like the spirit which once made a success of Saturnalia. And one of the consequences is that at Marble Arch on Saturday nights nobody talks sense for long, least of all those who come here moved by a desperate anxiety to persuade.

There are pools of sweet reasoning out on the flanks, where there is least light and the wind blows most cold across the park. At the Bayswater end, the Communists are allowed to make their points about the Revolutionary Situation in something like good order. And towards Knightsbridge the Catholics get an almost rational hearing for their Evidence. Even here the Voice breaks in with fatal inconsequence. "Is the Pope a Christian?" Where-upon the old man on the front row, knowing the form, murmurs with wicked relish: "'Ere we go. Off to the Oly War."

But in the main swirl and shout, in that confusing twilight between Metropolis and the trees, a kind of urban Pan seems to have taken charge.

PERHAPS some Speakers come to the Park on Saturday nights determined to climb up on their step-ladder platforms and sway the mob with reasoned argument. But there isn't much hope for them. From back rooms and basements off the Edgware Road, others have come with their bonnets full of bees, likely at any moment to break through the crowd, point bony fingers at the sky and shout for a while about atoms and God. And with them, egging them on and calling them upon old acquaintance "Aunt Mary" and "Good Old Aggie," are impish youths, for whom this is the one big night of self-expression in (it may be supposed) a sadly frustrated week.

OF course, some of the Speakers talk nonsense on purpose. There is the Hyde Park Brains Trust, who wears a monocle. From some subdued colloquy with the forward elements of his audience, he raises himself and his voice, and with a fluent, inclusive gesture, declaims "Well, now. I am arsked. . . 'Ow do we get the bubble in a spirit level?'" Next to him is the man in the chauffeur's peaked cap, the owlish glasses and the heavy moustache, whose speech keeps returning to a series of refrains, known to all, and chanted in happy unison whenever they appear His line is a mock evangelism moving by smooth transition into an autobiography as scandalous as Candide's. He is not mocked by his hecklers; the performance is his own and the heckling is a part of it.

On Saturday nights, this is where the Londoners come who bought gingerbread at Tyburn and oranges from Nell Gwynn, and were groundlings at the Globe. This is Bartholomew's Fair Revived. Even the Coloured Worker, pouring the friendliest scorn on the white man ("He goes to my country with a cork hat and an empty suitcase. . ."), gets an audience for himself, one fancies, rather than his Cause. Who was chosen by United Nations to settle things between Arab and Jew? His hands are fingerless and, with a blunt gesture of startling violence, he pushes back his sleeve, shouts "A Negro!" and thrusts at us the colour of his forearm. We stare up at him, entranced waiting for more.

RELIGION is bound to crop up. But on Saturday nights a surprising amount of the clamour is caused by evangelists of the Prepare-to-meet-thy-God persuasion. The preachers spurn any form of pulpit. They simply stand in a pool of light and begin to shout. With oratorical actions of great sweep and ferocity, enlarged by a bound volume of what they always call "The Word," the summon the soul with the ringing cliches of the Gospel Hall. The odd thing is that most of them are girls, small, vehement and neatly dressed, yelling their offers of Eternal Life in thin, strained voices. Each suits the passion of her words with the same practised gesture—and each is hunted from lamp-post to lamp-post by the ribald pack of hecklers.

On the printed board at the Park gates, after the section limiting the behaviour of any animal other than a horse, there are rules for Park Speakers. It is commonly supposed that at Marble Arch freedom of speech is absolute, and those who catch no more than passing phrase (". . .the biggest liars, swindlers and yes-men. . . ."; "Every stone in Downing-street is drenched in blood of Irish babies. . .") will conclude that it is so in practice. But there are prohibitions, and one of them is that Speakers shall use "no gestures. . . .of a blasphemous. . . . nature."

PERHAPS this ruling does not apply to the hecklers who, when the young evangelist cries "Repent!" chant responsively "And pay the rent," who call upon Allah when she calls upon God and who, all else failing, drown her shrill testimony in long bursts of appreciative laughter. But it is evident that the hecklers' performance is amiable and meaningless. And one is also tempted to believe that these pleaders come prepared for Deaf Ears and gain in exaltation from believing themselves despised and rejected.

There are the New Religions, too. Two young men with deep-set eyes and enormous apostolic beards speak for the New and Latter House of Israel and extol the obscure virtues of something they call the Flying Roll. They wear raincoats, cloth caps and no collars: the beards make the first two items incongruous and the last unnecessary, except to those who look sideways at prophets. They are searching for "the Remnant of Israel" and a sceptical questioner who quite plainly belongs to another tribe of the same House does not seem to be helping them much.

THE fiercest argument comes not round formal Speakers but in the chance encounter between two souls in a perfect state of disagreement. This keeps happening. Two strangers meet and begin to argue. A crowd collects, straining its mute heads forward, not to miss a word. Has the spirit got blood in its veins? Has it any veins? Is Stalin using the atom to cause earthquakes outside Russia? For hours on end an old lady, bareheaded, with wisps falling over her forehead, fronts a huge and seedy Falstaff and with him ranges a whole universe of disagreement, while the public packs round, holding its breath to listen. If conversation is a lost art, it seems to be sadly missed.

AND so is the art of melodiously bearing a part. Towards the pavement's edge where the roaming Guardsmen and hatless girls develop a social life of sorts, the Singers take their stand. Some, like the Hyde Park Spiritual Singers, do it with formality. A man of the clerkly sort conducts them from a rostrum with great feeling and a rolled copy of "The Star." People just walk up and fall at once into an easy harmony, take their proper parts and sing across to one another—"Hallelujah!"— "What a Saviour!" Just far enough away to avoid discord another group stands in brooding silence, as if it were waiting for a bus. Nobody speaks to anybody else. And then suddenly a woman starts singing something alien and sad and everyone joins in—in Welsh. Here is a pithead in the Rhondda, a bethel in the mountains. And on the edge of it stands a Welsh Guardsman, his young face blank with homesickness.

Letters To The Editor

THE POPPY FUND

Sir: This Saturday, November 5th, is Poppy Day. All day poppies will be available from children, who will loyally stand at street corners soliciting citizen's support. Why do they do this? Is it just another effort to collect from the public? Is it just another tag day? Not at all. These earnest workers are volunteers, like thousands of others all over the world. They ask you to take a poppy. Its colour reminds us of those who gave their lives that freedom might not perish upon the earth. Every day we enjoy this freedom which they so dearly bought. Then take a poppy, wear it reverently, remembering how much we owe to their sacrifice.

But why the collection? Do we give five cents to pay for the poppy? No, we give what we think we can afford, whether it be five or ten cents as a children; for fifty, a dollar or more as an adult, not to pay for the popples, but to build up a fund that will all be used to help the sick and needy for veterans and their families. It is a yearly token payment in acknowledgement of a debt of which the poppy is a symbol—the price of the freedom we enjoy.

Be generous, none of it will be wasted. All will be appreciated.

PADRE.

START WORK AT SIX IN THIS WONDERFUL WORLD

Sir: I have noticed several letters in your paper regarding Daylight Saving Time. Personally I do not care whether they have Daylight Saving Time or Standard Time, as I do not notice any difference in either one after a few days has past. Daylight Saving Time was alright during war time to arouse every one up and doing to win a just cause as we know had we lost this last war it would have been just too bad for us as an English speaking race or a little farther all English speaking nations. I like to read and I like to view nature in general and we must admit that this universe which nature, God, has created and rules is a very wonderful world of worlds and truly it is a wonderful privilege to sojourn here, be it ever so short.

Yet to know that we are a part of all this that we see around us is even a greater thought or I might say a very wonderful melodrama. We have spring when everything shoots forth after the winter rest. We have summer which brings production and supplies for the future. We have autumn touched off with nature's paint brush, beautiful beyond the reproduction of any craftsman, when we reap all this production. And we have winter when things are asleep and resting clothed in a blanket of sparkling whiteness, purity everywhere, nature, God, amazingly perfect. We have our sun which shines on our planet, earth, which gives us a standard time as we travel along. Also moon and all those wonderful stars, where some may be worlds like our own and where we may possibly be transferred some time hence, who knows, but it is all very wonderful.

And is it not too bad that poor little insignificant man has made such a mess of everything, regard Daylight Saving Time as it is called, instead of hand spiking the clocks back and forth to my idea it would be much better to leave the time as nature, God, intended it to be. How easy it would be for the factories or cities to start work at six instead of seven or seven instead of eight. Dinner at eleven instead of twelve etc., with the day's work done at four instead of five and not inconvenience a multitude for the sake of a few.

For my part I think one or the other should be adopted and I would like to see a vote taken on the question.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your valuable space.

STARGAZER.

Marmora.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And God said, Let us make man in our image, after our likeness: and let them have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth.

So God created man in his own image, in the image of God created he him; male and female created he them. . . .

And God saw everything that he had made, and, behold, it was very good. (Gen. 1: 26, 27, 31.)

But there went up a mist from the earth, and watered the whole face of the ground. And the Lord God formed man of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and man became a living soul.

And the Lord God planted a garden eastward in Eden; and there he put the man whom he had formed. And out of the ground made the Lord God to grow every tree that is pleasant to the sight, and good for food; the tree of life also in the midst of the garden, and the tree of knowledge of good and evil.

And the Lord God commanded the man, saying, Of every tree of the garden thou mayest freely eat: but of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil, thou shalt not eat of it: for in the day that thou eatest thereof thou shalt surely die. (Gen. 2: 6-9, 16, 17.)

Whoso walketh uprightly shall be saved: but he that is perverse in his ways shall fall at once. (Prov. 28: 18.)

Start Inquiry On Reds In BBC

LONDON, Nov. 3.—(Reuters).—The British Broadcasting Corporation recently accused of being "Communist infested," is under investigation by a government committee which next week will hear evidence claiming to show that "red propaganda" is beamed from London.

The committee is headed by Lord Beverdige, Liberal economist and father of the "cradle-to-the-grave" social security plan It will hear anti-Communist testimony from Lord Craigavon, head of the unofficial Listeners' Association, as part of its examination of the BBC's request for renewal of the BBC charter for another 10 years.

Lord Craigavon, 43-year-old former naval volunteer reserve officer, is expected to repeat before the committee charges he first made recently at a meeting of the British Radio and Television Retailers' Association.

The Listeners' Association claims to represent the listening public of Britain.

Referring to a correspondence of the matter with the BBC Lord Craigavon said that Lord Simon of Wythenshaw, BBC chairman, had admitted Communists were employed by the Corporation.

Last Rites Are Paid Mrs. J. H. Kimberley

Funeral service for the late Mrs. Joseph H. Kimberley, 74, of 488 Bolivar St., was held on Monday at the Nisbett Funeral Home. The Rev. Dr. D. Bruce Gordon, of Trinity United Church, assisted by Rev. H. G. Douglas, of Knox United Church, officiated. Pall-bearers were Bert Austin, Harold Rehill M. Elliott, J. H. Vallery, James Juby and Albert Doris. Burial was at Little Lake Cemetery.

Mrs. Kimberley died last Friday at her home and had lived in this city for the past 36 years, coming here from Smiths Falls. She was born in Harper, Ont., Elizabeth Christine, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Warren. Her husband, Joseph H. Kimberley, predeceased her in 1938.

A member of Trinity United Church, she was former president of the "Service for Others" Bible Class and a group leader of the Women's Missionary Society. She was also a member of Rebekah Lodge for 38 years.

Housing Discount Bank Urged At Convention

TORONTO, Nov. 3 (CP) — A proposal that the government set up a "housing discount bank" to discount or buy second mortgages from builders or investors at their face value was presented to the Ontario Property Owners Association convention Wednesday by Harold B. Itter of Vancouver.

"Our private lending institutions can be expected to continue to loan their money on a basis of 60 per cent of appraised value," he said. "The builder or investor then could accept from the home owner a second mortgage which this public housing discount bank would buy. This mortgage would yield perhaps one per cent higher interest rate than the first mortgage."

Dan O'Brien Dies Hobo But Not A Bum Friends Supply Flowers, Violin For Service

NEW YORK, Nov. 3—(AP)—Flowers will nod and a violin will sing today at the funeral of Dan O'Brien who died a hobo but not a bum.

The 91-year-old O'Brien was a man of simple tastes. He had little use for work and called himself King of the Hoboes.

When he died last Saturday, it looked as if he would end up in a pauper's grave in a Potter's Field.

But his friends got a call Wednesday from Morris Morgenstern. He did not identify himself, but pledges expenses for a decent burial for O'Brien.

"O'Brien was a saintly man," Morgenstern said. "Much of his philosophy is very real. People should ease up a bit more."

He hung up and the phone rang again. It was Sammy Fuchs, owner of a bowery cabaret.

"We cannot let Dan go to a Potter's Field," Fuchs said. "I will contribute the limousines, the floral pieces and hire a violinist for the service."

So old Dan, dead but not forgotten, will go in style today from a Bellevue hospital chapel to a decent grave.

Obituary

MISS MINNIE ARGUE.

Miss Minnie Argue of Lakefield died Thursday in the Civic Hospital after a short illness. Miss Argue was born 73 years ago in Manvers Township the daughter of the late Thomas Argue and Sarah Paton. For the past 12 years she has been a resident of Lakefield. She is survived by one sister, Mrs. E. Irwine of Peterborough.

Funeral will be held Saturday at 2 p.m. from the Belleghem Funeral Home on Hunter St. to the Fallis Cemetery in Manvers Township. The Rev. F. W. Craik of St. James' United Church will officiate at the service.

HIGH DEATH RATE

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC PERDUE, Sports Editor.

How old must one be to be too old? An interesting poser which raises the point: Too old for what? Well, in this case, for active participation in sports. To be more specific, girls' basketball. Edith McIlhagga—formerly Edith Lynch—feels that at 39 she is not too old to play basketball this season, but her coach differs. Other loop officials agree that she shouldn't play this season, especially as she has had a few operations not so long back. But Edy, who has been playing the cage game for 25 years—she used to play softball, too—doesn't like [illegible] drop out of sports. We can see her point (and sympathize with it), but perhaps the officials are right. She admits that they could be right.

* * * * * *

this former star for her long service in the game. A quarter of a century is a longish time in any sport. There are few noted athletes—Dit Clapper is one—who played well at the age of 40, but they are the exceptions. A little quarter-century trophy, mayhap, or a job in connection with girls' basketball might be a fitting tribute to Edith in this case if league officials see fit. She still feels quite capable of playing a good game, and was on the intermediate champion Collis' club last winter, but we're inclined to agree with the coach and officials this year when they advise her to forget playing. The years catch up with us, and the neighborhood of 40 is not a safe one in active and strenuous athletics.

Belleville And PCVS

Senior COSSA playdowns open in the Oval here Saturday aft at 2.15 when Belleville Collegiate tackles PCVS in the first of the home-and-home semi-finals. Second one will be here, too, a week later. Belleville won the Bay of Quinte district, whilst Peterborough cleaned up on the laekshore area. The winner of this series has the COSSA final on its home ground this autumn, whilst the Central Ontario junior victor must play away in the COSSA windup. Coach Bev Goulding will be without the injured Al Northcott here Saturday and several other PCI-ers are on the limp, though they may participate. Coach Alex Londry's PCVS juniors meet Oshawa in Port Hope the end of the week in a district sudden-death final.

Stouffville Clippers clash with the local Legionnaires in an OHA senior "B" exhibition at 8.30 tomorrow night in Civic Arena. Pretty well picked from Toronto suburbs, the Stouffville squad are fairly young, husky and fast—and reported stronger than last season. They were potent enough then as an intermediate "A" entry, along with Markham, in this group. Looks like they might be grouped with the local clubs this puck semester, the OHA having classed them as of senior "B" category. The senior "B" champs of last winter, the Legionnaires, will get a stiff and speedy test, no doubt, when these teams tangle here on the morrow.

Made It A Tight Fit

Started out like a breeze for Legion last e'en in the arena, but the Midland Flyers finally spotted the target and made it a mighty close fit for the Ellis outfit, which won 8-7. Plenty of keen action the last half with Goalie Ross Nicholls busy as a dime store clerk Christmas week as he kept brushing off his doorstep—cluttered up with enemy snipers. A typical early-season game with the timing off on passes but plenty of hustle on both sides and excitement high most of the route. Rochetta and Greenlaw led the local scoring parade, with Stewart and Parnell also effective. Burns bounced 'em hard at the blue line, and they all toiled throughout. Morrison stood out for the losers.

After six months of batting the balls over the webbing, Quaker tennis club champs were finally declared. Mrs. Maurice Charlton and Doug McPherson cleaned up most of the laurels. Doug won the men's singles, teamed up with Bun Kingdon for the men's doubles, and with C. McHugh for the mixed doubles. Mrs. Charlton captured ladies singles and worked with Isabel Whitehouse to take the ladies doubles. The consolation ladies doubles went to A. Graham and P. Moyles, whilst J. Smedmore and R. Beaudreau walked up on the lakeshore area. The winner of this series has the tennis players, George Scott, presented the prizes to conclude a fine racquet season.

FORMIDABLE THREESOME — Coach Fred (General) Grant, flanked by two of his Saskatchewan Roughriders, represents the one obstacle to the march of Calgary Stampeders to Toronto's Varsity Stadium and another shot at the Dominion football title they won last year. The Regina-operated Riders handed Stampeders their only defeat of the Western Interprovincial Union season in their last meeting and the hungry Saskatchewan entry is out to pull a big upset in the home-and-home playoff series. Shown with Grant are fullback Sammy Pierce, right, and tackle Mike Cassidy, both members of the WIFU all-star team.

Legionnaires Edge Midland In Speedy Puck Exhibition

Spotting Legion a 4-1 lead in the first period, Midland Flyers zoomed back to outscore the local pickists 6-4 in the second and hold their own in a sizzling and scoreless third heat as it ended 8-7 for Legionnaires last night at Civic Arena. A fair-sized crowd saw a lively exhibition fray, close and clean on good ice. Legion drew three of the four penalties. Joe Rochetta and Toodie Greenlaw led the home snipers, each being in on three. Bob Parnell and Reg Stewart were in on a pair apiece, other markers and assists being scattered around. While the hockey was scrambly in spots, a fast clip was maintained by both sides and both goalies had to jump to save close ones. Ross Nicholls was plenty busy in the third as Midland pressed.

Led The Way

Morrison showed the way in a good effort for the Flyers, tallying twice and helping on a couple of more. Henderson, Ambeau and Wheeler—the latter a solid defenceman—also looked good for the youthful visitors. J. Leduc had to retire halfway through with a badly cut lip. The rival defencemen stepped into oncoming forwards whenever they got a target.

Crowley and Greenlaw gave Legion an early 2-0 lead, Morrison then notching one for the visitors. Montgomery and Rochetta added two more the first chapter. Armstrong scored to open the second, with Stewart getting it right back. O'Heron closed the gap a bit and then Hill and later Parnell (after Morrison scored) got solo beauties for Legion. Greenlaw added another, with Midland then tearing in to get three without a comeback, Dugan, Dunkleman and L. Leduc being the marksmen. Toward the end of the scoreless third canta, the Flyers came very close to hitting the hemp several times but Nicholls blocked them out.

The summary:

Midland: Goal, Brodeur; defence, Wheeler and Dunkleman; centre, Morrison; wings, O'Heron and Ambeau; alternates, Armstrong, Deschamp, Henderson, L. Leduc, J. Leduc, Dugan and Hook.

Legion: Goal, Nicholls; defence, Godfrey and Burns; centre, Rochetta; wings, Crowley and Coombs; alternates, Greenlaw, Parnell, Stewart, P. Mortimer, Hill, Fryia, Vitarelli, Montgomery and D. Mortimer.

Prince Of Wales, Central In Scoreless Draw

Two smart soccer school teams, Prince of Wales and Central, played an extra 20-minute overtime period Wednesday afternoon in an endeavour to declare a winner to play in the final against Confederation. There was no scoring. Both custodians, D. Coit, Prince of Wales, and D. Noble, Central, were brilliant between the sticks.

Combination plays featured the early stages, with Prince of Wales completing their plays to perfection but Bulmer and Rowe, Central, nullified them within the shooting area. Westenders halfback line of Spiers, Pagett and Whitney placed the ball into goal repeatedly with Downer grazing the cross-bar with rocket drives. Delahey replied with an individual effort to be checked by Bowes in the act of shooting. The second period saw clever combination by the forwards, also intercepting tactics of the half-back lines. Rowley and Gardner broke through twice in a row to test Coit, goalie, who made spectacular saves, while Noble of Central had to concede two flagkicks after saving terrific drives from Evans and Downer. Brooks cleared upfield to Delahey who made a beeline for goal to test Coit with a smashing drive.

Overtime of 10 minutes each way opened up with the custodians being the barrier to success as the forwards showed close-passing plays. Rowley, Central, brought Coit to his knees with a low grounder. Quickly Evans gathered momentum to penetrate the defence with Noble saving his shots. In the last minuntes of play Central bombarded the Prince of Wales goal to gain a succession of flag kicks, Coit again being spectacular in goal as he saved three times from Central's forwards.

Central—D. Noble, goal; H. Bulmer and R. Rowe, full backs; C. Bertrand, S. Brooks and J. Murrie, half backs; B. Delahey, D. Patterson, L. Mongraw, J. Rowley and B. Gardner, forwards. Subs: J. Heffernan, R. Gray, C. Craymer, D. Bye.

Prince of Wales—D. Coit, goal; H. Bowes and J. Heron, full backs; B. Spiers, G. Pagett and C. Whitney, half backs; W. Downer, L. Barrie, P. Evans, B. Faiers and K. Lowell, forwards. Subs: D. Livingstone, H. Pullybank and W. Dummitt.

Referee—Mr. Paterson and Mr. Druery.

Two Players Dominate Quaker Tennis

Doug MacPherson and Maurice Charlton proved outstanding tennis players in the Quaker Oats Club championship tournament just concluded. Doug won three titles and Maurice two to wind up six months of play on the Quaker courts. A hundred members took part the past season.

MacPherson won the men's singles, the men's doubles along with Bun Kingdon, and the mixed doubles with C. McHugh. Mrs. Charlton took the ladies' singles and the ladies' doubles along with Isabel Whitehouse. Doug played some of the best tennis of his fairly lengthy career, while M. Charlton is a compacative newcomer who improved a great deal this year.

In the ladies' singles semi-final, M. Charlton won from J. Elmsley 6-0, 6-0, while R. McKee defeated I. Whitehouse 7-5, 6-3. In the final, M. Charlton won from R. McKee, 6-3, 6-3. The semi-final of the ladies' doubles saw M. Charlton and I. Whitehouse defeat R. McKee and C. McHugh 6-1, 6-1. as J. Vass and J. Elmsley beat J. Smedmore and Y. Currie 9-7, 6-1. The final went to I. Whitehouse and M. Charlton over J. Vass and J. Elmsley 6-1, 6-2.

MacPherson beat Kingdon 6-3 5-7, 6-2, as W. Elmsley won from R. Charlton 6-3, 4-6, 6-3 in men's singles semi-finals, MacPherson then beating Elmsley 6-1, 6-2 in the final. Kingdon and MacPherson won from G. Scott and A. Rutter 6-2, 6-2, as R. Charlton and W. Elmsley beat R. Martin and R. Johnston 6-0, 6-2 in men's doubles semi-finals. The final went to MacPherson and Kingdon over Elmsley and Charlton 6-3, 3-6 6-4.

In mixed doubles, R. O'Connor and Al Conlin won one semi-final from M. Charlton and R. Charlton 6-3, 7-9, 6-3, with C. McHugh and D. MacPherson taking the other from R. McKee and B. Kingdon 1-6, 6-2, 6-3.

C. McHugh and Macpherson captured the final from R. O'Connor and Conlin 3-6, 6-4, 6-2. In mixed doubles consolation, J. Smedmore and R. Beaudreau won, the ladies' consolation going to A. Graham and P. Moyles. George Scott dean of local tennis players, presented the prizes.

Schedule for the week of Nov. 7
Glens No. 10 vs. Legion No. 5
St. George's No. 2 vs. Legion No. 7
Big Ben's No. 1 vs. Legion No. 6
L.O.L. No. 8 vs. S.O.E. No. 3
Quakers' No. 4 vs. Treas.'s No. 9

The Sons visited with the Glens and the first game was a dandy but the Paper Dolls really got their scissors and cut the Sons down to their size in the second; scores were 10-8 and 5-22. The Quakers really puffed the Old Soldiers under in the first but almost ran out of wheat in the second by scores of 16-7 and 7-17.

The Treasurers attacked the Bakers with their hose-lines but the dough became too heavy for them to take away any; scores 8-11, 9-15.

Legion No. 5 met St. George's No. 2 and the first was a rip-snorter with the Posties just failing by 9-10 but sure cancelling in the other 17-7.

The Big Ben's tried to use their springs on King Billie in the first game but left a loop lose and out popped the Orange 6-12; in the second the tension was applied by the Bens to the tune of 12-0 in the sixth frame when the spring started to weaken, finally broke and the Orange again popped out 15-13.

Don't forget to sell your draw tickets as everyone sold from now is to our advantage.

St. George's, S.O.E., L.O.L. and Treasurers are the latest teams to pay their entry fee.

Skiing Fans Prepare Club

Preparations for the coming ski season at Bethany have the members of the Peterborough Ski Club working nearly every weekend. Last weekend 35 journeyed to Bethany to put up ropes, build additions to the chalet and paint the buildings.

The smaller tow ropes was hung Sunday with the larger one to be put up this weekend. While some members put up the small tow rope, others laid straw (five loads) in the cut on the large tow track. The members feel that the straw will provide a good base when the snow becomes thin on the tow track. The track along the tow rope was bulldozed in places in the spring.

An addition to the chalet, a sundeck, is well under way. The Club members hope to place tables and chairs on the deck to provide an outside leisure lounge. The chalet's roof is receiving a coating of bright red paint. Other buildings being painted red and green are the woodshed, the tow house and the gate house.

Members of the club will meet at Bethany again this weekend.

Millers Flatten Omaha

By The Associated Press.

The high-scoring Minneapolis Millers firing an average of five goals a game into United States Hockey League nets, are alone in first place today. The Millers flattened Omaha 6-1 Wednesday night. Minneapolis has won five games, tied one and lost one so far this season. A point behind the Millers are St. Paul Saints, who were held to a 3-3 tie at Tulsa. The Saints have won four, tied two and lost one.

Panthers Take Four Straight League Games

Gord Burns' Panthers have clawed the opposition in four straight games to lead the YMCA House League Basketball. Lead by blond Neil Thompson, a PCVS cager, the Panthers have won the four games handily, Elders J. Jeppeson and M. Anderson along with Burns also scoring their share of points.

Winning three out of four games the Wolverines, captained by Al Stewart, last year with the Outboard Mariners, are holding second place in the league. Ted "Nipper" Payne is the backbone of the team with his steady play.

Doug McPherson's Leopards are sitting in third position with two wins and two losses. Jimmy Thorburn with his backhanders is their leading man.

Wildcats, Tigers and Lions are down at the bottom of the league as the first half of the schedule ends in a week's time.

Remember When—

By The Canadian Press

Baseball's "Georgia Peach," Ty Cobb, resigned as player-manager of Detroit Tigers 23 years ago today. Cobb started with the American league club in 1905 and cracked out a double in his first appearance at the plate. He became baseball's greatest player, ending his career with Philadelphia Athletics in 1928. His batting average for 25 years was .368; he played in3,033 minor and major league games.

Dutchmen Whip Owen Sound In 3-1 Triumph

WATERLOO, Nov. 3 (CP) — Kitchener - Waterloo Flying Dutchmen defeated Owen Sound Mercurys 3-1 in an Ontario Senior Hockey Association game on Wednesday night and broke the Mercs' five-game winning streak.

Mercs are second with 10 points one behind Toronto Marlboros, and the Dutchmen, with seven, are in third spot in the four-team loop. Hamilton Tigers trail the terms in the first period, but the Dutchmen outshot Owen Sound 10-6.

The Dutchmen dominated play in the second period when Butch Martin, Dutchmen defenceman, rammed home a screened shot on a passout from Bobby Bauer and Ted Grasser. The Mercurys roared back quickly to knot the score, with big Bill Allum duplicating Martin's feat by slamming Pat McReavy's pass behind Bev Bentley.

Ted Grasser combined with Art Hurst on the first play of the final period to put the Dutchmen ahead against 2-1. Hurst repaid the compliment by converting Grasser's pass at the seven-minute mark to sink the clincher.

Cleveland Barons Edge Pittsburgh Hornets

By The Canadian Press.

The league-leading Cleveland Barons continued their winning ways in the western division of the American Hockey League on Wednesday night with a 4-3 victory over Pittsburgh Hornets.

Cleveland now has a four point lead over the runner-up Indianapolis Capitals who snapped a second place tie with St. Louis Flyers by beating Cincinnati Mohawks 3-1. The Flyers were idle last night.

Meanwhile Buffalo Bisons strengthened their lead atop the league's eastern section by outscoring Providence Reds 6-3. The Reds are in second position, three points behind Buffalo.

Hershey Bears and Springfield Indians battled to a 4-4 tie in the only other contest Wednesday night.

Les Douglas, Ray Ceresino, Ken Schultz and Bill Williams each picked up one goal for Cleveland. Peanuts O'Flaherty tallied twice for the losers and Billy Benson once.

Murdo Mackay paced the Bisons to their victory with a two goal effort while Gordie Pennell, Floyd Curry, Les Hickey and Ab Demarco notched singles. Eddie Kullman was the big gun for Providence with a pair of markers and Johnny Chad sank the other one.

Hawks Crush Montreal 4-1 Have Two Players Arrested

By HARRY ECCLES,
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

The Montreal Canadiens not only lost 4-1 to Chicago Black Hawks last night, but they saw two of their players carted away to the police station.

A Chicago fan whose scalp was nicked for 10 stitches by a swinging hockey stick laid assault charges and Ken Reardon and Leo Gravelle were escorted to the hoosegow. They were charged with assault with a dadly weapon (a hockey stick.)

But the fan, George Grbich said when the excitement was over that he wasn't mad at anybody and would not press charges. The two players had already been released on bail and caught the Montreal train with the rest of the team.

The Chicago uproar was one of three games which revised the National Hockey League standing. Toronto Maple Leafs were held to a 3-3 tie by New York Rangers and Detroit Red Wings beat Boston Bruins 5-3.

First Place Tie

That puts Toronto and Detroit in a first place tie, two points ahead of Montreal. Chicago is fourth, New York fifth and Boston—for the first time in many moons—is at the bottom. Only five points separate top from bottom.

At Chicago the Hawks were leading Canadiens 2-1 in the second period and the Stadium where fans were riding the Montreal defence hard. Grbich claimed that Reardon whacked him with his stick. Reardon said "somebdy grabbed me by the nape of my sweater as I skated by and instinctively I swung my stick. I thought it had busted against the screen and I was the most surprised person in the world when I turned around and saw I'd bloodied somebody."

Need Better Protection

"There should be better protection along the rinkside for players from fans," said Canadiens' coach Dick Irvin.

In the rumpus Reay was given a misconduct penalty. Referee Bill Chadwick wasn't available for comment, but Irvin said "I guess he penalized Reay because he saw what he did and didn't see anything that went before."

At Montreal, president Clarence Campbell of the NHL, said he had "no comment" to make until he received a report from referee Bill Chadwick on the incident. The two players will appear in police court for hearing Nov. 14.

Gus Bodnar, Roy Conacher, Bert Olmstead and Metro Prystai scored the Chicago goals. Grant Warwick getting the only Montreal score.

Rough Leaf Game

There was plenty of high sticking and bumping at Toronto and 11 penalties were called by referee George Gravel.

Leafs led 1-0 in the first period and 3-2 at the end of the second. Pentti Lund tied the game for the Rangers midway in the final period. Other New York goal getters were Edgar Laprade and Don Raleigh. Ray Timgren, Ted Kennedy and Max Bentley scored the Toronto goals, Bentley's a picture effort with a clean corner shot after he had sparked a three-man rush on the New York net.

At Detroit the Red Wings' captain, veteran Sid Abel, scored three goals himself in the victory over Boston. George Gee and Marty Pavelich got the others. Boston's goal-scorers were Paul Ronty, Dave Creighton and John Peirson.

Rookie goalie Jack Gelineau of Boston had better support from his team-mates than he's been getting lately. He had 26 saves while Harry Lumley in the Detroit goal stopped 32.

Hockey's Big Seven

By The Canadian Press.

Chicago's Metro Prystai and Doug Bentley are atop the National Hockey League scoring ladder today, each with 11 points —Phystai with six goals and five assists, Bentley with three and eight. One point behind was Paul Ronty of Boston Bruins, while Fleming Mackell and Sid Smith, both of Toronto Maple Leafs, and Roy Conacher, Chicago, split three-place honors with nine points apiece. Another point behind, in fourth place, were Ted Lindsay and Sid Abel, Detroit, and Bert Olmstead and Bill Mosienko, Chicago.

Trenton Boxer Bows To James J. Parker

HAMILTON, Nov. 3 (CP) — James J. Parker, Hamilton boxer, took less than two minutes to prove he had too much for Joe McCabe, of Trenton, in the main bout of a fight card Wednesday night. Parker knocked out the Trenton fighter at 1:55 of the first round after sending him down for a nine count earlier in the round.

In the semi-final event, Jerry Ellis of Trenton, lost a five-round decision to Russ Barko, of Hamilton and in a preliminary bout, Billy Corbett, of Toronto, pounded out a five-round decision over Glenn Dafoe, of Oshawa.

Comstock's Plan To Build Duplex Store

Decision of the business firm of A. Comstock and Sons to erect a duplex store building on their George St. property, adjoining their main premises, will occupy the last vacant block of land in the central square bounded by Charlotte, King, George and Water Streets.

The contract for this work has been let to Walter Mortlock, and construction is beginning at once. The location is immediately south of the main Comstock building. It has a 47-foot frontage on George St. In its depth it will encroach upon part of the warehouse at the rear of the lot.

Jack Comstock did not deny a recent rumor that the R. Simpson Company intend to move their mail order office from Charlotte St. to the new store.

Remain On Charlotte St.

And therein apparently is a refuting answer to rumors that ... & P. were interested in a ... on the east side of ... George ... to extend the Charlotte St. ...

Mathematicians Take Over For Football Outfits

By The Canadian Press.

The class will now come to order for a brief examination of the Intercollegiate Football picture. Things could get tangled up so badly that the football fans will have to stand aside and let the mathematics professors probe for a solution.

The immediate facts are these: (1) Western Mustangs, Union leaders are at home Saturday to the fourth-place Queen's Golden Gaels; (2) McGill Redmen and Varsity Blues, locked in a second place tie, play in Toronto.

On the face of it, that all looks simple but it's not because the shadow of the intercollegiate rule which calls for a playoff between first and second place teams at the end of the season when the second-placers have beaten the first-placers.

That calls for a second look. The Mustangs, with a 3-1 record, wind up their season the following Saturday at Montreal against McGill; the Blues go to Kingston to finish off against the Gaels. The Redmen and the Blues each have won two and lost two, Queen's has a 1-3 showing.

May Wind Up In Tie

The way the teams are going there is a strong possibility of Varsity and McGill winding up in a second-place tie. It is also possible that McGill won't come up with the victory it needs over Western to qualify for a playoff. In such a case, the league rules say, McGill and Varsity would play a sudden-death game. If Varsity wins, it would play Western for the title. But if McGill should win, there'd be no championship playoff.

late football teams shudder at the ultimate possibility—a four-way tie. That could happen if Queen's wins its remaining two games, if Varsity beats McGill and McGill beats Western. It would put all four clubs back where they started when the schedule opened Oct. 8.

Warren Stevens, director of athletics at the University of Toronto, offers a guess that in such an event four teams would play off Nov. 19 and the two winners would meet Nov. 26 for the championship, the same day as the east-west game in Toronto.

Of course, the immediate problem is the two games this Saturday.

From London Wednesday night came word that six of the Mustang's regulars may have to sit out the game with Queen's. The injured are snapback George Wearring, middle wing Reg Ort, halfback Bob McFarlane and outside wings Ross Beck, Harry Wade and Bob Turnbull. Coach Johnny Metras, moaning mightily termediate Colts if necessary.

There has been little such talk from coach Frank Tindall of Queen's, whose Gaels found their scoring punch last Saturday for a 15-0 triumph over McGill. He won't have two ace backfielders Al Lenard and Ross McKelvey. But they were out of action last week too.

Postpone Game

LINDSAY, Nov. 3 — Second game of the OBA intermediate "C" finals will be played at Little Britain, this afternoon. A mix-up in communicating with the Milton team forced the postponement of the game for one day. Only part of the Milton team arrived for the Wednesday game and some stayed overnight here for today's tilt. Milton holds a one-game lead in the best of seven series as a result of their 6-3 win Saturday at home. L'Britain will probably come back again with portsider Bill Harper who fanned 13 in losing effort in the opener.

SURROUNDED—Harry Lumley is surounded by opposing players and teammates as the Detroit goalie turns aside a scoring attempt by Bill Mosienko, 8, nearest camera. The Red Wings thwarted the Blackhawks' quest for their first victory of the young season by winning 3-1, at the Chicago Stadium.

Riders And Als Continue Feudin'

By VIC MORRIS, JR.

MONTREAL, Nov. 3 (CP). — Rough Riders and Alouettes today continued their long-distance feudin' as no settlement was in sight for playoff dates for the Big Four Football League championship.

Wednesday night, executive heads of both Ottawa and Montreal teams continued their verbal barrage over a Montreal proposal that one game of the two-game, total-point series be played at Montreal under floodlights, November 9.

Although the verbal battle remains to be settled, it has caused a controversy that has fans from both cities anxiously awaiting the final outcome — something that should not do any harm at the box office if the teams can settle their differences.

Alouettes, who finished second in the regular Big Four schedule, rested their case Wednesday on concessions they claim have already been made to the Rough Riders.

President Leo Dandurand of the Als said if there are any defaulters of the playoff series, the Rough Riders have already convicted themselves.

But at Ottawa, President Eddie Emerson of the Riders snapped back with the flat statement that Ottawa will play November 9 and 12—both daylight games—and no other dates.

League President Dr. J. J. O'Connor warned from Toronto that if the dispute is not settled by Friday night, "it is probable the executive will step in."

2 PCVS Teams Enter Playdowns

Peterborough's Collegiate football teams plunge into action this Saturday afternoon as the Seniors enter the COSSA semi-finals and the Juniors the Lakeshore District championship play.

Bev Goulding's boys, who won the Lakeshore Senior honors last Saturday in Oshawa play the Belleville Collegiate seniors at 2.15 p.m. at the Oval. The Belleville squad took the Bay of Quinte title.

The winner of this series will play on November 19 in the sudden-death game with the winner of the other two COSSA districts. The championship game will be played in Belleville or Peterborough depending upon who wins the series starting Saturday.

With Northcott out with a broken ankle, Coach Goulding has placed Sergeant at quarterback. There will be no quarter alternate. Galoska, a newcomer to the school late last year, will be doing the kicking.

Coach Alex Londry's boys, the juniors, playoff with Oshawa Collegiate juniors in a sudden-death affair Saturday afternoon at the Trinity College field in Port Hope. Winner of this game will be Lakeshore junior champions and will have earned the right to enter COSSA playdowns against the Bay of Quinte champions.

Here And There In Sports . . .

By The Canadian Press

Disclosure Wednesday that at least four of nine starters in a horse race at New York's Rockingham Park had been "sponged" prompted members of the Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association to plan a reward for the capture and conviction of the tamperers. The angry members of the association were only one of six groups which declared themselves in on the hunt for those who inserted sponges in the horses' noses in the seventh race a week ago Monday. The deed was discovered October 30 by Trainer Lyle Phillips, who discovered a blood-stained sponge in a feed bin. Dr. Harold M. Lewis, track veterinarian, examined other horses and discovered sponges had been inserted in the noses of at least four horses.

The Michigan Boxing Commission Wednesday asked Kid Gavilan to come to Detroit Saturday and answer questions about the October 21 fight he lost by a split decision to Detroit's Lester Felton. Commission Chairman Floyd Stevens said in a telegram to Gavilan's New York headquarters: "Inasmuch as the... decision ....has been criticized and the charges of gambling and fixing have been blamed for this decision, it is imperative that you.... appear."

President Clarence Campbell of the National Hockey League was instructed at Montreal Wednesday by the Springfield Club of the American Hockey League to lift the suspension of Donald McLaughlin. McLaughlin, playing with Halifax St. Marys of the Maritime League, was actually suspended by the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, since he is an aamteur, on request of the NHL.

The suspension resulted from alleged failure of McLaughlin to live up to an agreement he signed with the professional club. At

Name Casey Stengel Of Yankees Manager Of Year

By JOE REICHLER.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3 (AP) — Casey Stengel, who hit the jackpot in his first year with New York Yankees after nine unsuccessful seasons as a National League pilot, is the major league's "manager of the year."

The grizzled veteran, who overcame many obstacles to lead the Yankees to an American League pennant and a world championship last season, was the overwhelming choice of the baseball writing fraternity which voted in the Associated Press poll.

Stengel nearly spread-eagled the field, grabbing 101 of the 116 votes cast. Only four other pilots received recognition with Detroit's Red Rolfe and Philadelphia's Phillies' Ed Sawyer tied this way: Eddie Shore manages Indians. Marty Barry coaches St. Marys. The two played together for Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League for six seasons. They had a friendly chat by telephone Wednesday.

Gold Lode, veteran campaigner from the Vernon G. Cardy Stable of Val David, Que., scored a double triumph Wednesday at the United States National Horse Show at New York. The Cardy color bearer pranced in sprightly manner around the Madison Square Garden ring to win blue ribbons in both the open hunter and thoroughbred hunter lightweight events.

At Ayr, Scotland, Hull Volants Wednesday night dropped the second straight game on their European tour, losing 4-3 to the Ayr Raiders of the Scottish Hockey League. The Quebec club was blanked 2-0 in the opener of their tour on Monday night.

Joe McCarthy, Boston Red Sox skipper, who was nosed out for the pennant two straight years on the final day, received a scant two votes. Jack Onslow, freshman pilot of Chicago White Sox, got the remaining vote.

gamesnops

Stengel came to the Yankees after five years in the minors. It was his boast that he didn't levy a fine on any of his players, and there wasn't a single squabble between players and manager all year.

It is not too far-fetched to credit Casey with infusing some of the fight, hustle and spirit that Sox team in the closing days of one of the most torrid seasons in American League history.

No. 1 Anti-Trust Buster To Resign Law Soon To Plug Loop Holes

OTTAWA, Nov. 3 (CP)—Amid reports that Canada's No. 1 trust-buster is resigning, the Commons Wednesday learned legislation will be introduced shortly to plug the loop holes in the country's trust-busting laws.

Justice Minister Garson gave notice of amendments to the combines investigation act shortly after it was learned on reliable authority that F. A. McGregor, Combines Investigation Commissioner, has resigned.

Mr. Garson stepped into the debate on the 1949-50 budget to reply to charges by R. R. Knight (CCF-Saskatoon City) that price fixing combines are being allowed to operate in Canada, carrying on their "nefarious trade under the benevolent eye of this government."

Reviewing the government's unsuccessful case against an alleged dental combine, Mr. Garson indicated that amendments to the Combines Investigation Act are being made to plug the loop hole uncovered by the judgment.

The weakness in the law was that it was left to the Crown to prove that any incriminating letters seized from accused companies and entered as evidence in a combines trial were sent with the knowledge of the board of directors of those companies.

"If this judgment is permitted to stand and if in cases of this sort it is necessary as part of the Crown's case that we should prove that the acts which were referred to in documents seized in that way have been authorized by the board of directors in a formal manner, we think it will be almost impossible to administer the Combines Act," Mr. Garson said.

It is understood one of the amendments will put the onus on the accused to prove that he had no knowledge of any such letters.

Resignation of Mr. McGregor will become effective Jan. 1.

Mr. McGregor has been the key figure in anti-monopoly investigations of dental supply, optical, bread and flour-milling firms.

There was speculation that he resigned to underline his protest against the way the government acted on his reports.

Expect Resignation

Formal announcement of Mr. McGregor's resignation was expected in the Commons today.

Mr. McGregor himself has declined to deny or confirm the report. He said Justice Minister Garson would have to make any statement.

In the Commons, CCF members tossed queries and criticisms at Mr. Garson. M. J. Coldwell, party leader, asked if the McGregor report on the flour milling industry will be tabled. Angus MacInnis (CCF-Vancouver East) asked if Mr. McGregor had resigned.

Mr. Garson said he would make a statement today.

Mr. McGregor's staff started an enquiry into flour firm operations two years ago. His findings have been before the government for [illegible] baking chains were reported involved.

Latest investigation undertaken by his department was into alleged price-fixing by bakeries in British Columbia, Alberta and Saskatchewan. Legal action is pending on this case.

Mr. Corman was not satisfied, he said, with Mr. Garson's suggestion that general increase in prices of fuel oil was the result of smaller companies following the lead of larger ones.

Mr. Garson said it was not through lack of diligence either on the part of the government or on the combines investigation commission that the case against the dental companies had been unsuccessful.

Blames Judgment

Because of the judgment in the dental case, the government did not take regular court action against optical companies.

It was discovered, however, that patents held by the optical companies were the basis enabling them to fix prices on optical goods. The government took action to have the patents declared invalid.

Two of the patents have since been declared invalid, and two others have been "dedicated to the public, the patentees having abandoned their defence." A fifth has expired and judgment on two others is pending.

Mr. Garson said it is his impression that all "illegal activities" in the optical-goods field have "completely ceased."

The cause of the farmers was taken up by several members in the budget debate.

Wilfrid Lacroix (L, Quebec-Montmorency) urged the government to ease the income tax burden on farmers.

He asked that farmers be allowed to make an income tax deduction for what they would have to pay in wages if they did not have their own children working for them and that persons experienced in agriculture be appointed to collect income tax from farmers.

Robert Fair (SC Battle River) said prairie farmers lost $384,935,460 on wheat sold to the United Kingdom during the first three years of the wheat contract.

Asks For Post Office

Tariffs, on textiles were defended by G. S. White (PC, Peterborough-Hastings). He said he agrees with statements made by Dr. W. G. Blair (PC, Lanark) that "it is not in the national interest for the textile industry to be forced to close its doors, and to force the thousands of workers in this country out on the street to look for work wherever they can find it."

Mr. White also urged a new post office building for his home town of Madoc. The present building was there before he was born, almost 52 years ago.

The building was too small; it had only one wicket; there were not enough post office boxes. The amount of business warranted a new building.

Madoc, about 50 miles northeast of Peterborough, has a population of about 1 500.

E. Rowan Wins Speaking Contest

BETHANY, Nov. 3 (ENS). — Eleasor Rowan, Grade 7 pupil, was awarded first prize in the public speaking contest of Bethany School pupils held in the Town Hall on Monday. Her topic was My Favorite Book. She will now compete in the county finals to be held in Bowmanville on Friday. Allan Bigelow, Grade 8 pupil, was placed second, choosing as his topic Carriage Shop to Cloverleaf; and Gayle Bristow, in the 6th Grade, speaking on Softball, was awarded third prize. Other contestants were [illegible] ama Canal; Barrie Smith, Ontario Summer Estates; Jack Neals, The Hundred Years' Story of Massey-Harris; Levi McGill, The Bethany Ski Hills; Joan Bristow, The Story of Shirley Temple; Grace Bigelow, Jack Miner; Joan Morton and her brother Lavergne Morton, each chose the same topic, Irrigation on Our Farm.

Judges were the Rev. T. S. Gault, the Rev. W. R. Crandall, and Miss M. Pitchford.

Party Follows

The annual school Hallowe'en party followed with prizes for costumes awarded to Melbourne Morton and Margaret Aikens for the best dressed couple; Creighton Carr and Ronald Pomeroy, best comic couple; Mrs. Verne Mulligan, best dressed lady; Harry Ryley, best dressed man; Ray Challice, best comic lady; Evelyn Mantle, best comic man.

Costume prizes to school pupils were awarded to Diane Bigelow, best girl's comic; Brenda Rowan, best dressed girl; Charlie McGill, best boy's comic; and Donald Smelt, best dressed boy.

Music for dancing was supplied by Miss Evelyn Mantle, Miss Betty Waddell and Levi and Morley McGill, supplemented by the school record player. Parents and friends attended and the teachers, Lawrence Millson and Miss Marilyn Cavano were largely responsible for the evening's success.

MAJOR-GENERAL D. C. SPRY, CBE, DSO, chief executive commissioner of the Boy Scouts Associaition in Canada arrived in Montreal this week with Mrs. Spry from Fort William in the course of a Dominion-wide tour to report on the 12th biennial meeting of the International Scout Bureau which he attended in Europe last summer. He will visit Quebec City before continuing to the Maritimes and Newfoundland. B. W. Roberts, OBE, Quebec Provincial Command president, left, and R. C. Stevenson, OBE, chairman of the Dominion executive committee, right, greeted the couple.

Omemee YPG Visits Millbrook Hallowe'en

MILLBROOK, Nov. 3—(ENS)—Thirty members of Omemee Interdenominational Young People's Group were guests of the Millbrook group Monday in St. Andrew's Sunday schoolrooms. The regular business meeting was followed by a Hallowe'en party. The visitors, who were welcomed by Rev. T. G. Husser, led the devotional period and pictures were shown on the screen by Rev. V. E. R. Zufelt of Omemee.

Keith MacGregor, Bennett Handley and George Smith were appointed hockey committee.

Fancy dress was worn for the party and awards for the best dressed girl and boy went to Omemee for a gypsy and a pirate. Miss Dogue and Miss Anna Fair, of Millbrook, in hard times costumes, were judged the best dressed couple.

Judges were Rev. V. E. R. Zufelt, Rev. T. G. Husser and Keith MacGregor.

Keith MacGregor, recreation convener, organized games. Refreshments were served to the 65 young people of the combined groups.

Seven Years For Rape

PICTON, Nov. 3—(CP)—A Supreme Court jury Wednesday found Clarence Huff, 28, guilty of a charge of rape and he was sentenced by Mr. Justice R. W. Treleaven to seven years in penitentiary. The charge followed an attack on a Hallowell township girl who was forced off her bicycle near Bloomfield.

Criticize Doctors Smoking On Duty

TORONTO, Nov. 3 (CP)—Criticism of doctors smoking on hospital duty and of limited hospital fire drills was expressed at a closed meeting of the Ontario Hospital Association convention Wednesday.

Dr. W Douglas Piercey of Ottawa, newly appointed president, said that a delegate from Chicago, E. W. Jones, claimed that there should be at least four hospital fire drills a year for the sake of safety. Dr. Piercey added that hospitals in Ontario have two fire drills a year, some of them three.

As to smoking "doctors are fire-conscious and certainly cause no danger," said Dr. Piercey. Nurses are not allowed to smoke on duty.

Report Rush On To Record Weird New Hit

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 3 (AP) — Hawl Hawl

Clippety-clop. Clippety-clop.

You may expect to have your ears assaulted by these noises for the next few weeks. They are part of "Mule Train." a weird new song pouring fourth incessantly from juke boxes and radios like a chant to a pack of mules than a song, hit the music trade like a cyclone. It has the record industry pressing night and day to meet the demand and beat the opposition.

Among the bigtime artists, Frankie Laine seems to have hit the market first. Vaughn Monroe, who thought he had the song tied up because it's in his picture, hurried it onto wax, followed by Gordon Macrae. Bing Crosby quickly recorded it and his disc was being played on the air two hours later. Burl Ives and Gene Autry are the latest to get on the bandwagon.

All this fuss over a song that was written 4½ years ago.

It came about when three Hollywood songwriters went on a spree to Las Vegas. They were turning home after a week-end over a hot crap table.

As they drove through the borax country of Death Valley they got to thinking about the fabulous mule teams that worked the desert mines. By the time they reached town the song was pretty well worked out.

It was waxed with a singer named Buzz Butler—and forgotten.

Forgotten until a few weeks ago, when the song writers met again in Hollywood. They became enthused, polished up the lyrics and put it on the market.

The three tunesmiths are now clippety-clopping toward a tidy fortune.

Feb. 15 Deadline File Opposition

OTTAWA, Nov. 3 (CP)—The Board of Transport Commissioners gave Ontario and Quebec municipalities until Feb. 15 to file formal opposition to a move by Bell Telephone Company of Canada to increase its rates.

The company on Oct. 14 applied for increases in Ontario and Quebec wihch would average about 20.6 per cent. Under board rules, any protest to this application must be filed within 20 days.

However, counsel for Quebec Montreal, Toronto, Ottawa, Hamilton, London and St. Catharines at a meeting of the board today, urged an extension of four months. They claimed this length of time was needed to obtain experts and prepare a full case of opposition.

A. J. Polson represented Hamilton, London and St. Catharines.

John R. Cartwright of Toronto, representing the company, started to oppose the extension, but Mr. Justice M. B. Archibald, chairman of the board, said the board's schedule was such that it would not be possible to start hearings on the application before the middle of next March.

Mr. Cartwright said this much delay would be "disastrous" to the company and to the public and said he would seek an interim increase. The company's finances were such that some immediate increase was needed. If the hearings were not held until March, there was little likelihood of an increase until next fall.

This I Remember

Millions knew Franklin D. Roosevelt as a great president . . . but only his wife knew him also as a husband and father! She remembers his genial smile that hid so much . . . how little he was influenced by the opinion of others. She remembers his impressions of Royalty, Churchill, Stalin and Madame Chiang. And she tells it all in "This I Remember", an EXTRA 8-page rotogravure section in The Standard starting this week.

235 Colombians Election Victims

BOGOTA, Colombia, Nov. 3 — (AP). — Some 235 Colombians have been killed in the last 24 hours in a mounting wave of pre-election violence, the newspaper El Liberal said Wednesday.

Both Liberal and Conservative newspapers carried reports of the clashes in the interior as violence increased with the approach of the presidential election, set for November 27.

El Liberal said that in three towns in the Valle Department, about 150 persons were killed and 30 wounded when Conservative bandits attacked the region, burning homes and looting stores.

El Tiempo said that in a clash between police and bandits in El Vergel, five police and eight bandits were killed.

COURAGEOUS SCOUT—Scout Don Lee 18, who has had no legs since he was nine months old, beams with pride as his foster mother pins an Eagle Scout badge on his chest. The Salt Lake Sity youth, who lost both legs in an accident 17 years ago, completed all the tough physical requirements for the badge, including a 14-mile hike. Don is saving his money for the trip to the next Scout jamboree at Valley Forge, Pa.

Greek Sailors Stay On Perch

BALTIMORE, Nov. 3 AP) — Three Greek sailors, defying rain chilly temperatures and the United States government, remained perched Wednesday on a yardarm 50 feet above deck of a freighter in port here.

Shipmates said the United States Immigration Service wants to deport the three seamen and a fourth who has disappeared, because they are members of the Greek Maritime Union, outlawed by the Greek government in 1947 as Communist-dominated.

The trio clambered aloft at 2 o'clock Tuesday morning and [illegible] wishes of the immigration service.

The immigration service said it was up to agents of the freighter Aristocratis to get the men down

Meanwhile, sympathetic crew members provided them with food, clothing and a bottle of whisky. They said the lads on the yardarm fear they'll be sent to prison if they go back to Greece.

John P. Ryan, district enforcement officer of the immigration service, said the men were to be deported because an inspector had decided they were not bona fide seamen and their real purpose was to jump ship and enter the United States illegally.

COMPARATIVELY LITTLE

Shaving Kits Tip For Police

BRAMPTON, Nov. 3 (CP) — A package of shaving kits, trailed by the RCMP from Vancouver to Port Credit, resulted in the conviction of Steve Moran, 28, of Port Credit on a charge of possession of narcotics.

Pleading guilty, Moran was sentenced to one year definite and six months indefinite. A fine of $300 or one year consecutive was also imposed.

A charge of receiving against his mother, Mrs. Mary Welk, was withdrawn.

RCMP officials said it was believed Moran was a member of a ring supplying Toronto addicts with dope flown in from the west coast.

Constable James A. MacAuley of the RCMP told how Mounties opened a parcel addressed to Mrs. Welk, when it was placed in Vancouver post office. They left five of the original 250 capsules of morphine in the kit, replacing the rest with sugar of milk.

Posing as workmen, four officers kept the Welk house in Port Credit under observation and saw the parcel delivered. Later they saw Moran hide the drug-filled bottle in shrubs outside the house.

Expect Russ Guns Trained Anew On Baruch A-Control

By NORMAN ALTSTEDTER

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., Nov. 3—(CP)—In the tense United Nations debate on atomic energy slated to start this week, Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky is bound to speak harshly of Bernard M. Baruch, United States elder statesman. Russian delegates to the United Nations have belabored Baruch continually ever since he presented the original American plan for international control of atomic energy in 1946.

Since that time the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission has worked on the plan, adding and deleting from it. The amended plan was approved last year by the United Nations General Assembly over violent Russian objections.

Russia insists the majority-approved plan is still the "Baruch" plan and continues to label it thus, contending that if brought into effect if would give the Unite. States domination of the world's atomic energy industry.

Gen A. G. L. McNaughton of Canada has ticked off the changes brought by the U.N. Commission on the original American plan.

Detailed Account

Recognized as a leader of the western powers in atomic talks, McNaughton gave a detailed account of the major changes during the recent secret talks of the big five powers and Canada which sought unsuccessfully to find a basis of agreement of international control.

The summary report of the 10 closed meeting will form a centre-piece of the atomic debate.

McNaughton, in the summary report, noted five major differences between the majority plan approved by the Assembly and that presented by Baruch, now on the sidelines:

1. Under the Baruch proposals ownership of all uranium and thorium would have gone to an international authority which would have taken over all mining even where the uranium of thorium was only a part of the ore content.

The majority plan demands only that the uranium and thorium be handed over to the International authority after it was separated from whatever other valuable minerals found in the ores.

Limit Authority

2. The Baruch plan han contemplated broad and general powers which might have enabled a U.N. body to enter areas not necessary for effective control The majority plan would limit duties of an international authority with the basic treaty setting up in advance a system of quotas to allocate materials and facilities of countries.

3. The majority plan provides for protection against possible abuses of power by an international agency which had not been contemplated in the Baruch proposal.

4. The Baruch proposals said nothing specific about stockpiling of dangerous atomic materials. The majority plan provides that production of nuclear fuels be restricted to the quantities required for plants actually entering into production, thus preventing any dangerous stockpiling.

5. The emphasis in the Baruch proposal on prevention of use of atomic weapons had shifted in the majority plan to setting up an effective system of providing adequate warning when an atomic attack could be expected

McNaughton said it was recognized that in the event of a long war between powers having atomic facilities there could be no certainty of preventing eventual use of atomic weapons.

Fire Under Control

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 3 (AP) — After burning 17,000 acres and destroying at least 10 residences in Los Angeles and Ventura counties, a menacing brush fire was brought under control Wednesday by hundreds of federal, state and county workers and volunteers. The fire started Monday night near Santa Susan Pass, 35 miles northwest of Los Angeles.

Canadian Writer Finds National Spirit Growing

By CHARLES BRUCE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO—(CP)—Hugh MacLennan, the Canadian novelist, sees the common denominator in Canadian character as something forged in response to the challenge of defeat.

Canada became a nation, he writes, through the co-operation of the original French inhabitants, the United Empire Loyalists, and the Highland Scots—all of whom "became Canadians because the nations or factions to which they belonged had suffered defeat in war," all of whom had suffered treachery or indifference at the hands of these to whom they had given their loyalty at home.

All of them found in Canada the means of saying: "Never again will we submit ourselves to the humiliation of being discarded by the friends for whom we were prepared to give everything we had."

This assessment of the origins of Canadian character is contained in Chapter One of "Cross Country," (Collins) in which MacLennan brings together 10 magazine pieces published during the last few years in the intervals between his novels. In many ways the articles and essays may be regarded as a novelist's notes, thoughtfully rounded out in this medium by the left hand, while the right hand transmuted them into fiction by illumination of character, atmosphere and plot. In both articles and novels, MacLennan is preoccupied with the evolution of the Canadian, how he differs from his original stock and that other evolutionary strain, the United States American; and with the sights, sounds and smells he develops among.

No more has done a more thoughtful job in this field.

It is likely that the articles in "Cross-Country" will prove more controversial than MacLennan's three novels, "Barometer Rising," "Two Solitudes" and "The Precipice." It is one thing to leave theory implicit in action, conversation and character; another to state it as a fact or a belief within the bounds of a medium that leaves little room for referring to exceptions or alternative opinions.

Will Rouse Discussion

There is perhaps an advantage in this, in that the more didactic form is certain to stimulate dissent and discussion and thus amplify the total effect of what has been said in the first place.

This reviewer, for instance — as a Canadian —would not agree that the French, the Loyalists and the Highland Scots complete the essential original grouping of the founding Canadians. Surely there is a fourth group: All those man and women, of many races and creeds though mainly Celtic and Saxon, who came here when the beginnings of the industrial revolution foreshadowed the dominance of the factory in older lands; who could not stand the indignity of human driving, but would match their flesh with the harshest demands of earth and sea to be rid of it.

And—as a Nova Scotian—he looks with a dubious eye at MacLennan's statement that "In Nova Scotia—and I have learned since that is much the same everywhere in Canada—we were Nova Scotians first and Canadians only when we applied for jobs and passports, or when a war broke out and the Government wanted an army. . ."

Provincialism exists and always will—A. R. M. Lower in "Colony to Nation" points out the inevitability of this in provinces which had attained the attributes of nationality before uniting in the younger and larger union. But the validity of that "Nova Scotians first" statement is questionable, if it is meant to apply to the last two or three generations, though it has somehow reached the stature of a business-letter cliche. Actually, what people feel is a warmth for the traditions of their region. They like to be Nova Scotians or British Columbians at Ottawa — just as they like to be Lunenburgers or Cape Bretoners at Halifax —but they all give a single answer in New York; and the answer is Canadian.

Thousands Jam Hall To See Churchill

LONDON Nov. 3 — (CP) — Many people fainted in a crowd of 3,000 which jammed a London hall Wednesday to see author and statesman Winston Churchill recieve a £1,000 ($3,100) prize given by a Sunday newspaper for the first two volume of his history of the second world war.

He told the audience that "writing a book is an adventure." To begin it was a "joy and an amusement. Then it becomes a mystery. Then it becomes a tyrant and in the last phase, when you are reconciled to your servitude, you

Whitehall Notebook

If It's Steak You Want See Your Psychiatrist

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON, Nov. 3 (CP)—If it's a thick, juicy steak you're after, don't rush to the nearest restaurant. Maybe it's just a social reflex, like wearing white collars or standing up in street-cars.

The see-your-psychiatrist-first tip comes from peppery, red-haired Dr. Edith Summerskill, Parliamentary Secretary to Britain's Food Ministry. For five years she's been trying to coax people into changing their food habits.

She would have them eat whale meat instead of steak, snoek instead of salmon, herring instead of sole, and light-grey bread instead of a white loaf made with a larger proportion of Canadian wheat.

Food or Thought

Nobody really wants a steak. Dr. Summerskill says—it's just a matter of social conditioning. People were taught that tucking into a T-bone was the "thing to do, "such as wearing stiff shirts or taking frequent baths.

Money had something to do with it, too. Wealthy people were supposed to like steaks.

"In other words," Dr. Summerskill told a group of market researchers, "meat was an index of prosperity, whereas fish, particularly herring, were symbol of hard times."

Herring used to sell at a penny a dozen. Now it was impossible to persuade housewives that they were just as nutritious as the best sole you could get.

Dr. Summerskill, a tall, striking woman wi' a fondness for fashionable dresses and chic hats, said that she thought she was politically finished" when she started plugging the food value of snoek and whale meat.

Rhyme Time

Now Britain could sell as much meat as she could get.

Dr. Edith's remarks brought reprisal in verse. Wrote a contributor to the Evening Standard:

"Though whale meat as a substitute for steak,

"May warm the heart of Edith to a glow,

"How gladly would we hail a luckier break—

"A substitute for Summerskill and Co."

To which the woman minister replied with a rhyming parody on the fable about the dog with the bone in his mouth who sees his reflection in a pond:

"A dog comes wagging by with waging tail.

"Between his teeth a luscious piece of whale,

"But sees, reflected in a nearby lake,

"A thick-as-maybe juicy tory steak."

The dog tries to get the steak, writes Dr. Edith, and:

"Does that which he never-didn't-oughter,

"Drops his dinner flat into the water. . ."

Three Taxi Cabs Damaged Within Past Week; Feud Between Operators?

Three taxi cabs, two owned by one operator and the third by another have been reported damaged under suspicious circumstances during the past week. Police on investigating believe that a possible feud exists. October 29 Leo Joseph (Gip) [illegible] ed by him had been smashed. The taxi light on top had been shattered and the radio inside had been wrecked.

He told police he had been warned of the act earlier in the evening by a phone call. He accused Joseph Fontaine as the man who had phoned him. He said the first taxi had been similarly damaged two or three days before.

The voice on the telephone had said if he thought his first car had been smashed, to wait until he saw the next job.

Wednesday, Laurance Fontaine, 146 Aylmer St., reported to the police his car parked in a laneway at 75 Park St., the home of Joseph Fontaine, had been damaged.

A stone had been thrown through the windshield and the gas tank filled with sand.

Oct. 27 Feeley testified against Joseph Fontaine in police court in which Fontaine was charged with receiving a stolen outboard motor. Feeley said Fontaine sold the motor to him for $40. When Feeley learned the police were looking for a solen outboard motor he went to Fontaine and Fontaine had bought the motor back from him.

In police court Tuesday morning, Fontaine was charged with threatening a witness on a bootlegging charge. Evidence in this case has not been heard. Fontaine elected trial by a higher court. The preliminary hearing, which will determine whether or not there is sufficient evidence to warrant the case being taken to a higher court, has been tentatively set for Monday.

Board Rejects Union's Plea For More Wages

An unusual situation in present-day labor circles is to be found in the contract dispute between the Canadian Raybestos Co. and Local 527 UE-CIO. The Company is prepared to offer the Union more than the Conciliation Board has recommended.

The offer still does not come up to Union expecations, however, and at a membership meeting Wednesday night the Raybestos workers voted down a Company offer of a "five cent package." This would be made up of a one-and-a-half cent to two-cent hospitalization plan on a contributory basis, and the balance of the five cents a wage increase.

At present the basic rate is 92 cents an hour for men, and 81 cents for women. About 100 employees are in the bargaining unit.

Demands Rejected

A Conciliation Board with Judge W. S. Lane of Picton as chairman recommended no wage increase; rejected Union demands for a 40-hour week, (instead of the present 45) with no reduction in take-home pay; turned down the demand for a union shop and a better night-shift bonus; and also recommended the Union and Company split the cost of wages paid the negotiating committee and stewards during negotiations.

Union officials point out the Company had asked for a split in paying the wages of the negotiating committee, but was content to pay the whole cost of the stewards.

They expressed considerable surprise that the Conciliation Board should be more exacting in its recommendations than the Company had been in its brief.

Asked Numerous Changes

Robert Abbott, president of the Raybestos, said the Union had asked for about 75 contract changes. "More than anybody on earth could possibly expect," was his comment.

He said the Union nominee on the Board, J. L. Cohen of Toronto, had agreed that most of the demands should be thrown out.

"About the only thing Mr. Cohen disagreed on," he told the Examiner, "was the matter of a wage increase. He thought there should be an increase of at least 10-cents-an-hour."

Original Union demands included a 40-hour week with no loss in take-home pay, a 16-cents-an-hour boost in wages, and general improvements in the continuing contract.

The Union is scheduled to meet the Company late today to turn down the latter's "package" offer. Negotiations have been going on since March and Conciliation began in August.

New York Editor Arranges Burial Of Mrs. I. Kilbon

The body of Mrs. Irene Kilbon, victim of a "mercy killing" by her husband, a South Monaghan farmer, was taken to Toronto for burial today after it was released by Ontario Provincial Police pathologists Wednesday.

Wednesday afternoon, Roland Kilbon, brother of the accused arrived in Toronto by air from New York to take charge of burial arrangements. With him is Mrs. Kilbon's brother, William Woods.

Roland Kilbon is the editor of the New York Sun and a former foreign editor for the New York Times.

Pathologists Report

Police pathologists said either of the wounds from the .22 rifle could have been fatal to Mrs. Kilbon. Neighbours said Kilbon told them his wife had attempted suicide by shooting herself in the chest while he was out of his house for a moment. When he returned he found his wife on the floor. He said she begged him to shoot her to end the agony. He shot her through the left temple. Neighbors reported she had intended to drown herself several times in Rice lake but lost her nerve.

The question is whether or not the first shot killed Mrs. Kilbon. On the answer to that may hang the life of Ralph Kilbon who has been charged with murder.

No One More Kind

Friends and neighbors all say no one could have been more kind and devoted to his wife than Kilbon was. When he was superintendent of the American Nepheline Mines, he frequently cancelled important business engagements to be with his wife when she did not want to be left alone.

While they lived on the South Monaghan farm, Kilbon took his wife for drives almost every day unless she was too sick to leave bed or the house. They frequently dropped in on neighbors.

Kilbon was remanded by a Justice of the Peace one week to appear in Cobourg court Tuesday.

Meet Only Once

DETROIT, Nov. 3 (AP) — Mrs. Mary C. Gariepy Wednesday backed up testimony of the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin that the former radio priest had met her only once. Mrs. Gariepy told a jury that the purpose of the meeting was to seek advice about her divorce case. The divorced wife of Dr. Bernard F. Gariepy was the second witness called by the government to refute Dr. Gariepy's statement he had received some $68,000 as "conscience payments" from a person who had taken liberties with his wife.

RING FALSE ALARM

Peterborough firemen had one call to make on Wednesday and there was nothing to that one. An alarm box was pulled at George and McDonnell Sts.

ROSE IN BLOOM

In a fall season in which flower plants and fruit bushes have been growing long past the time when they are usually a clump of dead looking stalks, P. H. Tilley, 66 Aylmer St., has come up with a Talisman rose bloom.

Mr. Tilley is an amateur gardener who specializes in roses and lilies. He said when he brought the rose to the Examiner office today, he had never had a rose growing so late before.

The petals of the rose have been touched a little by the frost, but the bloom is still very healthy looking.

Man Released Without Bail In Swindle Case

Richard O'Brien, 512 Stewart St., charged with being an accessory after the fact in the charge against Aubrey S. Hancock of false pretences was taken off bail and allowed to go free on an adjournment in police court today.

Warrants have been issued for the arrest of Hancock and Paul Imming on charges of false pretences and forgery in connection with a $100,000 used car swindle in which they cheated the Colonial Finance Company, of Toronto.

Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw said he was not ready to proceed in the case of O'Brien, but he thought it was not necessary to hold the man on bail.

He said investigation had revealed O'Brien had played only a minor part in the Hancock organization. He had been employed by them.

Scrap Metal Affinity Brings Jail Term

Pleading guilty to charges of receiving $100 worth of stolen pulleys, James McGrath, St Mary's St., was sentenced to three months and his brother, Arthur McGrath, of the same address, was placed on two years' suspended sentence by Magistrate W. R. Philp in police court today.

Detective W. A. Clarke testified the police had received a phone call tip the night of Oct. 11. The caller said there were two men loading something into a car pulled up to a garage on the south side of Elm St.

A police cruiser was directed to the address. The constables in the cruiser saw a car pulling away from the garage and followed it. After a short chase, the car pulled up behind some houses and two men escaped. The car with a load of pulleys in the back seat, was traced to the McGrath's. The pulleys were owned by J. K. Sheehy.

Defence counsel W. C. Grant said the boys were not really bad, they "seem to have an affinity for scrap metal."

In 1948 James McGrath was placed on suspended sentence and in April 1949, served a 20 day sentence.

Mayor Requests Correct Heraldry On City Shield

With and for its new city hall, Peterborough is likely to get a new coat of arms, with prospec- [illegible]

That was one of the details of appointments mentioned in a discussion of planning progress Wednesday afternoon. Mr. Roy W. Winegar, of Marani and Morris, Toronto architects, submitted progress drawings to a committee of the council. Three of them were sketches of the central block the lobby and the council chamber. Mr. R. Winter, of Hamilton, the council's advisor on this project, was also present.

It was probably Mr. Winter who interjected a question about the nice detail of the escutcheon to be placed on the wall over the mayoral chair. Had the council considered whether they wished to obtain a copy of the royal coat of arms, significant of British connection, or retain Peterborough's own symbolic shield?

Aldermen Grant Miller and Hurrell Dodds suggested the British emblem, but Ald J. E. Gillespie said the city hall was the central place of the administration of the municipality of Peterborough, and it seemed proper to him that the city's shield and crest should be given conspicuous place in the new council house. Union Jacks were customarily draped over the mayor's dais, signifying membership in the British Commonwealth.

Tacit opinion of the members seemed to lean in favor of the home-made coat of arms, especially because it had occupied a significant place in the council chamber for many years.

At that point someone asked about the correctness of its design according to authentic heraldic device, and the only information was the remark of City Clerk Outram that it was fashioned by some departed city engineer following his own idea of appropriateness.

Mayor Swanston remarked that 1950 was the centenary of the founding of the municipality and that the conjunction of a new city hall and the 100th anniversary of Peterborough's incorporation proposed a new coat of arms if the present one flouts all the canons of heraldry.

Seek Expert Guidance

The next suggestion in the brief discussion directed an assignment to Mr. Outram to write the British College of Heraldry for advice, possibly to open negotiations leading to a new emblem in some way befitting Peterborough. At that stage the council was engaging in a matter far removed from its ordinary affairs and worries. Mr. Outram will have to make enquiry about the matter of approach to the College, whom to write to and so on.

Another interesting detail of the city hall is the floor of the lobby. Some time ago it was proposed that the terazzo might be laid out in a mosaic of the county of Peterborough, with its county boundaries, rivers and lakes, and any other usual features of a county map.

That idea was expanded in its boundaries, and will comprise a large area of Central Ontario, reaching northerly to Algonquin Park, and taking in Victoria county, which in pioneer days was part of Peterborough. Port Perry was suggested as the western boundary Tweed on the east and Lake Ontario on the south, which would include Northumberland. That is the broad outline.

This enlargement was inspired by the fact that Peterborough is the principal city in that district, that in its early days it was associated with Cobourg and Port Hope, parts of Durham and Victoria. In these latter days it has acquired more central significance and importance as the hub of the Kawarthas. Furthermore, Peterborough contributed much to the development of the valuable new enterprise of the tourist industry.

Impede Movement?

Mr. Winegar said it would not add any element of difficulty in setting Central Ontario in the lobby floor.

Ald. Doug Miller commented that people entering the lobby would stop to look at the map and might tend to impede movement.

The general opinion of the committee discounted that aspect of obstruction, and the architects are being instructed to proceed with the ampler map.

The three sketches of the exterior and interior of the building are being sent to the National Trust Company, executors of the will of the late W. G. Morrow, of Peterborough, whose bequest of around $500,000 is providing for the city hall. They will probably be returned to the committee at the end of the week.

Possible $60,000 Overdraft In 1949 Financing Suggested By Ald. Waddell

An overd[illegible] of $60,000 was set before the council in committee yest[illegible] by Ald. H. F. Waddell as a possibility in the financing of the city to the end of the year at the present rate of spending. "That's about the worst face we could put on [illegible] ember. It is too early yet to determine what the balance will be when the year ends. Some weeks in January may pass by before the accounts are all in and posted.

Ordinary expenditure throughout the city has been substantially increased by the work done this year in the south end, with other expansion costs incurred in somewhat similar effects of growth of the city on its other fronts.

Wants Report

Ald. Grant Miller suggested that the committee chairmen get together at once and try to have a report ready for next week.

Ald. H. Dodds said he wished to assist in any economies that can be carried out, but he did not think that the board of works should be expected to bear the whole load of suspending jobs.

One of the comments at this anticipatory scanning was that the overdraft may be equivalent to nearly one mill and possibly two, in next year's tax rate.

The double check was mentioned in the conversation, and it was in the sense of cessation rather than supervision.

Ald. Waddell remarked that the time to become apprehensive was now when there was still time to take some action.

One of the members recalled the stern spirit evoked by Mayor Swanston at the inaugural meeting in a plea to the council to avoid spending more than their appropriations. It was intimated that payment of taxes is somewhat under the level of November last year. His Worship said that if Peterborough was stricken by labor trouble and unemployment the outlook for the council ending in good order would be considerably blurred.

Reductions Made In 3 Assessments

Court of Revision disposed of the last of the assessment appeals on its list Wednesday night.

Three property owners in the area towards the east end of Morrow St. were granted reductions as a result of the visit of the Court to that section Saturday afternoon.

The assessment of S. B. Hope was reduced $300, J. F. Greer $240 and G. B. Doherty $240.

As promised at last week's meeting, the members of the Court also visited the properties of Fred Meagher, Aylmer St., and H. Widener, King George St. Mr. Meagher received reductions of $250 and $170 respectively on two houses, and Mr. Widener a cut of $110.

Jack Crowley Given One Year

Magistrate Gee sentenced Jack Crowley, 23, of Peterborough, to 12 months in reformatory in Lindsay court on Wednesday. There were three charges to which he pleaded guilty, one of theft and two of false pretences, and on the second and third sentences of four and six months were imposed to run concurrently with the first.

A charge of theft was laid in Peterborough where he took a cigarette case and lighter from a tobacco store. Peterborough police issued a warrant, and the accused was arrested by Lindsay Police Chief Arthur Webster, when he visited the police station in that town to complain that a kit bag and travel warrant were stolen from him. He said that he was a member of the Navy en route from Vancouver to Halifax. It was upon checking the alleged theft that investigations revealed that he had attempted to get away with more than $250 worth of clothing from two Lindsay merchants.

Crowley arranged for the purchase of the clothing, amounting to $103.50 and $147.95, respectively, claiming that he was in partnership with his father and was engaging a riding school in the vicinity of Dunsford. He used false names in attempting to obtain the goods.

TAR STARTS BLAZE

Boiling tar that dribbled over the pot into the flames beneath, started a small fire at noon Tuesday on Sherbrooke St. The Lucky Strike Bait Co. was having its roof tarred when the incident occurred. Firemen pulled the fire out from under the pot and doused it with a hand pump.

Beria, Man Who May Succeed Stalin Leads New Purge of Top Red Officials

By LEON DENNEN
NEA Special Correspondent

NEW YORK.—(NEA).—A new purge of top party officials is reported taking place in Soviet Russia under the personal supervision of Lavrenti P. Beria, chief of the all-powerful MVD and the latest leading contender for Stalin's job.

The purge seems to involve mostly friends and followers of the late Andrei Zhdanov. Only vague reports have reached usually well-informed Cominform circles [illegible] has recently developed inside the Politburo.

Members of Stalin's immediate entourage have long been cautiously manoeuvring for a place in anticipation of his death. The late Andrei Zhdanov generally had been regarded as a possible successor. But now Zhdanov is dead and Molotov apparently is in eclipse. The two leading actors in this unfolding Soviet drama are Beria and Georgi M. Malenkov, one of the younger and more able members of the Politburo.

For the moment the odds are on Beria, balding, stocky, former student of architecture. As head of the secret MVD, he wields unlimited power wherever the Kremlin's agents operate.

[illegible] party machine which is now being purged, Beria, in addition to the MVD, is said to have also the support of Stalin's "inner cabinet." This includes Marshal Klementi Voroshilov and the Caucasian-born Armenian, Mikoyan — but not Malenkov and Molotov.

The son of a poor peasant, Lavrenti Pavlovitch Beria was born 50 years ago in the Georgian village of Merkhouly in the Sukhum region, which is also the birthplace of Stalin. Poor though he was, his father scraped together enough money to send him to the Stukhum high school and the Baku Politechnic.

He cast his lot with the Bolsheviks at the age of 18—henceforth mixing his studies with conspiratorial activity. Science and engineering have always been [illegible] credited with having procured the atom bomb for Russia.

Having started his political career by aiding Stalin in his fight against Trotsky, Beria's rise in the Politburo hierarchy has been meteoric. He is perhaps the only man Stalin trusts completely. He knows more of the aged dictator's secrets than anyone else in Russia. Moreover, as the head of the Soviet secret police for many years, Beria has had access to the dossiers of everybody who is anybody in Russia.

Like his boss and hero, Stalin, Beria never forgets or forgives. Early in his career he was arrested by the anti-Bolshevik Mensheviks, who were then in control of his native Georgia. Since then Beria has been a bitter foe of all Mensheviks and even former Mensheviks, including the present foreign minister, Andrei Vishinsky.

He runs a vast espionage ring in the countries outside the Iron Curtain. He commands all of Russia's numerous forced labor camps, which supply most of the manpower for Soviet industry. He is in charge of security in the satellite states.

Many chiefs of state behind the Iron Curtain and some of the top ministers—Erno Geroe in Hungary, Anna Pauker and Bodnarenko in Rumania, President Bierut in Poland, Rudolf Slansky in Czechoslovakia, and Walter Ulbricht, Vice Premier of the recently-created Eastern German Republic — are actually Soviet citizens and long-time agents of the MVD and MGB (Soviet Ministry of State Security), responsible directly to Beria.

Beria has mild manners and even milder appearance. He usually wears a pince-nez which makes him look like a pre-revolutionary divinity student. However, he is a firm believer in terror. After his visit to Germany in June, 1947, correspondents at once noted an increase in Soviet arrests, kidnapping of dissidents and other typical methods of "ideological persuasion."

The same was true of the other satellite countries visited by him. But Beria himself never takes chances. Wherever he goes he usually drives a long black Packard with bullet-proof windows and is flanked by a host of MVD agents.

In 1941, when Hitler was already knocking at the gates of the Kremlin, Stalin again put his confidence in Beria and appointed him a marshal of the Soviet Union and member of the supreme State Defense Committee.

By a combination of scientific planning which he had learned as a student of architecture, and by the most ruthless disregard for human life, he kept the Soviet war industries humming. By keeping the firing squads working overtime he assured the safety of the Communist dictatorship.

Of all the members of the Politburo, Beria alone was recently singled out by Stalin for special honors. He was awarded the coveted Lenin Order "for outstanding services to the party and Soviet people."

Unlike Malenkov, who ostensibly represents a "moderate" wing of the Politburo which believes in postponing the day of reckoning with the "capitalist democracies," Beria is a firm exponent of strong measures and direct action. His rise to power, Cominform circles in Europe believe, will soon be followed by Soviet military pressure against Yugoslavia and Finland.

With Moscow facing grave difficulties in the satellite countries and a showdown with Tito imminent, Lavrenti P. Beria seems the logical successor to Stalin.

Says Canada Example Of What Can Be Done

LONDON, Nov. 3—(CP) — A prospective Liberal candidate says that Canada is a good example of what a country can do when it really tries.

John Done, who will fight the suburban constituency of Willesden East at the next general election, told a public meeting:

"Not so long ago Canada had no home-grown tobacco. Today it is self-supporting. That is an example of what can be done."

The Liberal candidate a leaf tobacco importer, urged support of an election manifesto sponsored by Lord Beaverbrook, veteran Conservative newspaper publisher. Principal planks of the platform are a vigorous empire policy and a minimum weekly wage.

Duplessis, Cabinet Take Conference Date

QUEBEC, Nov. 3.— (CP). — L'Evenement-Journal said today that Premier Duplessis and his cabinet have agreed to attend the Federal-Provincial conference on constitutional matters Jan. 10 as proposed by Prime Minister St. Laurent.

The newspaper said in a front-page story that acceptance of the suggested conference date was "understood."

L'Evenement added that no official announcement would be made until Friday at Premier Duplessis' regular press conference.

PRE-COOKED RICE GRAND FOR Quick-Meal COOKERY

Housewives are discovering new help for tired menus, in Minute Rice — the marvelous pre-cooked rice now on sale at grocers'. And what a thrilling discovery Minute Rice is!

Fluffy, snowy-white, tender—Minute Rice is so amazingly quick and easy to use and makes rice puddings that are delicious beyond your imagining!

And it's ready in minutes, to serve as the perfect accompaniment for stews or curries or creamed foods . . . for fried chicken or broiled sausages . . . or quick egg dishes of many kinds.

No Other Rice Like It!

Minute Rice is the only rice of its kind on the market. It's pre-cooked. So you do not cook it like ordinary rice.

There's no washing, no rinsing, no draining, no steaming. You just add it to water and bring to the boil. No further cooking is needed, for plain rice at its snowy, delectable best. Far quicker to cook than potatoes, macaroni or spaghetti—and what a delightful change!

It's "Magicookery"!

With Minute Rice, a completely new kind of menu planning is possible. You'll be inspired to try endless thrifty, easy-to-fix, delicious rice desserts . . . luncheon and supper dishes . . . dinner main courses. And you'll find Minute Rice a quick satisfying addition to consommé, tomato consommé and vegetable soups.

Every woman should keep several packages of Minute Rice on the kitchen shelf.

MASTER CHEF AT HEART—like most men — is this young husband. And Minute Rice is his "open sesame" to dishes that win him a reputation for his wonderful cooking. "I used to leave this sort of thing to my wife," he says, "But with Minute Rice, meal-making is a cinch."

MENU-MAKING MIRACLES EACH A HIT

by Frances Barton

Are busy days making your meals dull? Then, let Minute Rice and miracle-quick Minute Rice recipes bring new interest to your menus. You'll find that the recipes I give you here—and the different recipes on the packages — make meal-making more fun than ever!

QUICK RICE PUDDING

Combine ¾ cup of Minute Rice, 2½ cups milk, ½ cup raisins, in saucepan. Bring to full boil. Remove from heat, cover; let stand 10 minutes. Combine 1 egg slightly beaten, ½ cup granulated or brown sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon (each) cinnamon and nutmeg. Add a small amount of hot mixture, stir well, and return to saucepan. Add 1 tablespoon butter. Cook gently over low heat about 4 minutes, stirring constantly. Serve warm with cream. Makes 6 servings.

SHORT-CUT SPANISH RICE

Sauté ¼ cup finely diced onion in 2 tablespoons butter. Add 1½ cups (1 package) Minute Rice, 2 cups seasoned tomato juice, ½ teaspoon salt, dash pepper, ½ teaspoon sugar. Bring to full boil, remove from heat, cover and let stand 10 minutes. A little chopped green pepper may be added. Serve with crisp bacon. A rosy, appetizing dish for four.

CONSOMMÉ RICÉ

Combine 1 package Minute Rice, 1 can (10 oz.) condensed consommé and ½ cup water. Bring to full boil, cover, remove from heat; season and let stand 10 minutes. Delicious with broiled salmon steaks and a green salad. Makes 4 servings.

Course In Alcohol Education Urged On Dana Porter

WINDSOR, Nov. 3 — A course in "alcohol education" in Ontario schools has been urged by the Ontario Federation of Home and School Associations.

Toronto Letter

A letter to Provincial Education Minister Hon. Dana Porter, signed by Mrs. J. O. Arrowsmith of Toronto, federation president, asking the course be instituted as as quickly as possible, has been made public by Mrs. M. D. MacPhail of Windsor, federation publicity convener.

The federation's action is in behalf of its 65,000 members, follows intensive studies of alcohol courses such as the one introduced in the schools of British Columbia.

The federation's letter said:

"We realize that there can be no easy solution to a problem so deeprooted and is such long standing. We recognize, too, that many factors have contributed to the complexity of the problem and that many approaches must be surveyed before any satisfactory solution may be found. However, we believe that education is basic to all of these and for that reason we would respectfully commend to the Department of Education this action.

Objective Course

"Such a course would have to be objective in approach and wholly scientific in nature, an integral part of these subjects to which it naturally belongs. We are aware that some provision for such education already exists, but if it is to be really effective a less general and more specific treatment is needed. To guard against misinformation and faulty approach, we also respectfully recommend the preparation of a manual for reference material and that teachers be given special instruction in its use. We have studied such a course and examined such reference material."

Businessman Dies

QUEBEC, Nov. 3 (CP)—J. E. Warrington, 66, prominent Quebec businessman, died here suddenly Wednesday at his home. President of Quebec Apartments Limited, owner of the Chateau St. Louis, founder of Agnew Surpass Shoe Stores Ltd., Mr. Warrington was also well-known in fish and game circles.

Papers Show 9% Gain National Advertising

NEW YORK, Nov. 3 (AP) — Newspapers showed a nine-per-cent gain in national advertising in September over the same month last year, Printers' Ink magazine reported Wednesday.

The trade publication said the only other medium to show a gain was outdoor posters, up one per cent. National advertising on radio was down 10 per cent, in business papers was down six per cent, and in magazines was down 12 per cent.

The magazine said no comparison with a year ago was available for television, but that it showed a gain of 06 per cent over August.

Truck, Train Collide

PEMBROKE, Nov. 3 — (CP3.— One man was killed and two others slightly injured Wednesday in a level-crossing accident. Dead is Joseph Meilleur, 23, of Moonbeam, Ont., owner of the truck that collided with a Canadian National Railways mixed freight at a level crossing about 40 miles south-west of here. Injured were Roche Meilleur, 21, brother of the dead man, and Frank Cormier, 25, both of Moonbeam.

City Invests $25,000 For Upkeep Of Lock's Bridge

Ald. Hugh Waddell reported to the committee of the whole council Monday night that the $25,000 received from the Ontario government for maintenance of the locks bridge had been placed in a separate account and invested in Hydro-Electric Commission bonds at 3%.

The interest is to be used as a fund for maintenance of the bridge "in perpetuity".

The bridge had become a responsibility of the Ontario Highways Department from the federal government, who settled at $25,000 for future maintenance Then, when Peterborough annexed the area of North Monaghan south of Lansdowne St., the bridge was turned over to the city.

The question of liability for maintenace was raised, and Hon H. R. Scott was instrumental in getting the 25,000 appropriation three or four years ago. The money has been carried in the treasury funds at the bank, but the council decided to mark particularly for bridge painting and repairs. To that end, the sum was invested in Hydro bonds which have the backing of the Ontario government.

Ald. Doug Miller reported the other night that surface water accumulates in one section of the bridge which was apparently depressed by a pier settling.

RECEIVES CONGRATULATIONS — Hon. Paul Martin, federal minister of health and welfare, receives congratulations from Sir Carl Berendsen, chairman of the New Zealand delegation to the United Nations, following Canada's election to membership on the UN Economic and Social Council.

Senate Inquiry Of 'Five-Percenters' Getting Results

FORT WORTH, Tex., Nov. 3 (AP)—The Senate investigation of "five-percenters" in Washington had concrete results, Bert Andrews, Washington newspaper man, said Wednesday.

Andrews, chief of the Washington bureau of the New York Herald Tribune, told the 16th annual convention of the Associated Press Managing Editors Association that careers of several men were halted or curtailed by the investigations.

The five-percenter stories were [illegible] chief of the Herald Tribune's Washington bureau. The stories led to the retirement, Andrews said, of Maj.-Gen. A. H. Waitt, chief of the army chemical corps; closed the White House doors to John Maragon of Kansas City; directed public criticism at Maj.-Gen. Harry Vaughan, President Truman's military aide, and put James V. Hunt out of business as a Washington "management consultant."

William P. Steven of the Minneapolis Tribune, APME president, said in an interview the public should know what managing editors get together to argue over means of achieving more objective reporting.

He said the public does not realize that newspaper men resent, far more than the public does, barriers to good reporting, dishonesty and attempts by interested parties to distort the news.

Balkan Dispute Breaks Out Anew

LAKE SUCCESS, N.Y., Nov. 3 (CP)—Flickering United Nations hopes for conciliation of the Greek-Balkan dispute during the present assembly session were doomed Wednesday when Albania and Bulgaria lashed out at Greece, United States and Britain.

Representatives of the two Balkan countries used almost the entire work day of the 59-member political committee to present their cases in acid terms. Although not members of the UN, the two countries were specially invited to take part in the debate.

But UN officials and delegates marked down on the UN's credit column the Netherlands-Indonesian agreement reached Wednesday at the Hague.

Secretary-General Trygve Lie hailed the agreement as showing "once more the United Nations' way of conciliation and mediation has proved its value to the world."

Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton of Canada, said the outcome of the round-table talks "is one of the most heartening events in the history of the United Nations."

The Canadian delegate played an important part in securing Council efforts which brought the Indonesian Republicans and the Netherlands to the conference table. The Council acted last March on McNaughton's suggestion to end a stalemate.

Set Motion Over

TORONTO, Nov. 3 — (CP). — A motion for an injunction to restrain the Rev. Thomas Guthrie from preaching in York Road Baptist Church at Guelph Wednesday was set over for at least two weeks by Mr. Justice G. A. Urquhart at Osgoode Hall. The injunction is sought by five of the six deacons in the church, following a controversy over the allegation some weeks ago that he had written a love letter to a married woman in his congregation.

Make Mercy Trip

HALIFAX, Nov. 3 (CP)—The air force said Wednesday night that an unidentified Hudson's Bay Company factor, earlier reported suffering "an unnamed attack" is resting comfortably at the RCAF hospital at Goose Bay, Labrador, after being flown from Fort Chimo. Hospital authorities at Goose Bay described his condition as "good."

Changes Her Mind

LONDON, Ont., Nov. 3 (CP)—Mrs. Jemima Bowie, apparently has changed her mind about taking her first airplane ride to celebrate her 107th birthday this week. After reading a newspaper report that the Stratford negress wanted to fly before she died, George J. Redden, Alvinston businessman, said he would go along with her and would pay the bills. Interviewed at her home on Wednesday night, however, she turned down the invitation and called her idea "just craziness." Mrs. Bowie is blind and an invalid.

ELECTRICIAN TO CABINET MINISTER — Hon. Humphrey Mitchell, an apprentice electrician at 14, became Canada's minister of labor 31 years later. In the interval he was active in the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, served as a Hamilton, Ont., alderman for two years, Labor M.P. for four years and a member of the executive of the Trades and Labor Congress for seven. Mr. Mitchell, first chairman of the National Labor Board, has represented Welland, an Ontario industrial riding since his appointment to the cabinet in 1939. He was born Sept. 9, 1894, in Sussex, England.

And all you do to get it ... just print your name and address and send with 50c in coin or postage stamps and 2 Libby's Evaporated Milk labels to me — Barbara Brent, 1411 Crescent St., Montreal, P.Q.! And, once you've tasted LIBBY'S EVAPORATED MILK, you'll want to keep a supply on hand all the time! It's so good — for coffee — tea — or cooking ... and so very economical!

High Praise and lots of it ... for the gal who serves this Feather Spice Cake! Delicate, fine-textured, so moist and tender because it's made with SWANS DOWN CAKE FLOUR, the cake flour, you know, that's sifted again and again until 27 times as fine as ordinary flour.

FEATHER SPICE CAKE

2 1/2 cups sifted Swans Down Cake Flour
2 1/2 teaspoons Calumet Baking Powder
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon mace
1/4 teaspoon cloves
1/2 cup butter or other shortening
1 cup sugar
2 eggs, unbeaten
1/3 cup molasses
1 cup milk

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder, salt and spices. Sift 3 times. Cream butter, add sugar gradually; cream together until light and fluffy. Add eggs, one at a time, beating thoroughly after each. Add molasses and blend. Add flour, alternately with milk, a small amount at a time, beating after each addition until smooth. Bake in two greased 9-inch layer pans in moderate oven (375 deg. F.) about 25 to 30 minutes.

Make This Menu Test! List the meals you've had for the past week or two, underlining your vegetable dishes. How often have you had corn? ... luscious, mouth-watering corn! It's so easy to serve — so specially delicious when it's HARVEST CREMOGENIZED CORN! Yes, this new cream-style corn will really "perk up" your menus ... your family will love it! M-mmm ... it tastes pure — it taste clean — it really tastes like corn! You see, all the delicious flavours of green, sweet corn are released by this special "Harvest" Cremogenization process. The corn is canned in a "cream" of juicy corn kernels. It's free from silks, cob tissues, husks! And the amount of corn is skilfully blended with the amount of "kernel cream" to give you unparalleled flavour!

When Your Husband Says Happily "Get out my woollens—I'm going hunting this week-end!", you'll probably have a wool-washing job ahead of you. So here's my tip for making it the easiest job imaginable! ... Wash your husband's wool socks — and his heavy hunting sweaters in VEL. "Vel" is ideal for woollens! When you wash your husband's woollens with "Vel", believe me, he'll be delighted with the wonderful results! No need to worry about shrinking or matting, for VEL works perfectly in the lukewarm water that's best for woollens — and can't leave any soapy, residue to coarsen fibres and dull colours. Vel penetrates, lifts out dirt fast, yet it's milder than soap and rinses away faster, leaving your woollens clean, fluffy and naturally soft.

"My Husband's Favourite Dessert," a reader writes, "is Blanc Mange. And — since I've begun using the Blanc Mange recipe in Jane Ashley's recipe folder — he boasts that I make the best he's ever tasted!". You'll want to give your husband the treat of this excellent recipe, so here it is — courtesy of Jane Ashley of Canada Starch's Home Service Department! ...

1/3 cup sugar
6 tbspns. BENSON'S CORN STARCH
1/4 tspn. salt
4 cups milk
1 1/2 tspns. vanilla

Mix sugar, Benson's Corn Starch and salt in top of double boiler. Gradually add milk, mixing until smooth. Place over boiling water and cook, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens. Cover and continue cooking 10 minutes longer, stirring occasionally. Remove from heat. Add vanilla; cool. Pour into moulds or serving dish and chill. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

And, for eleven more delicious recipes and cooking tips, simply write to me — Barbara Brent, 1411 Crescent St., Montreal, P.Q. — for Jane Ashley's recipe folder featuring BENSON'S CORN STARCH!

"I Like Venetian Blinds," a reader writes, "but I had a terrible time cleaning them, 'til a friend told me to try JOHNSON'S CREAM WAX! Now I clean them in a fraction of the time it used to take — and they stay clean so much longer!" Yes, with "Johnson's Cream Wax", Venetian blinds, furniture, woodwork, refrigerators — can be both cleaned and polished in a matter of minutes! Special cleansing ingredients in it remove dirt and stains when you apply it ... and, because it's a genuine wax in quick-buffing form — it puts on a polish quicker! What's more, it's non-oily, so it drys completely dry and dust particles can't cling!

• • • Starry-Eyed — that's what you'll be when you see the brand-new FRIGIDAIRE ELECTRIC RANGE. Just imagine! The handsome cabinet is finished in gleaming-white porcelain, with beautifully-designed chrome handles and a Lumiline cooking top lamp. The top flows in one smooth, unbroken line from the top of the back panel, across the broad cooking surface, down over the switches. The Cook-Master Control cooks oven meals automatically while you're away — and its big dial doubles as a kitchen clock. "The Biggest Little Thing In Baking" — that's what baking powder is often called. It's a small part of any recipe ... but what a vastly important role it plays! That's why I never take chances when I bake — I always use "double-acting" CALUMET BAKING POWDER. For Calumet's two actions — the first in the mixing bowl, the second in the oven — are so perfectly balanced and evenly timed that I get beautiful texture, outstandingly fine results in all my baking. I find it's real economy to bake with Calumet — no risks of baking failures for me!

For Baby's Comfort, there's nothing finer than your favourite hand lotion — JERGENS LOTION! — used by more women than any other hand care in the world. Yes, test after test proved the amazing fact that this same "Jergens Lotion" is five times better for baby-skin than usual hospital skin-care! So smoo-oth — so soothing ... it does a truly superior job of protecting baby's tender skin from rashes and skin irritation! You see, it's absolutely sterile — and does not support the growth of infecting germs. So — after bathing baby — and at diapering — smooth on "Jergens Lotion" all over!

My Idea Of A Mouth-Watering, Fall Weather Breakfast is a glass of fruit or tomato juice, a BIG bowlful of luscious "CREAM OF WHEAT" topped with brown sugar and cream ... then a fried egg, bacon and rich, dark coffee. And the more I hear folks talk about food, the more convinced I am that this is almost everyone's idea of a meal to start the day right. Doesn't take long to prepare, either! Delicious 5 Minute "Cream of Wheat" cooks to complete digestibility in just 5 Minutes of boiling! And it's so good — and so good for you! For 5 Minute "Cream of Wheat" contains Iron, Calcium and Phosphorus for diets deficient in these elements. Ask your grocer tomorrow for 5 Minute "Cream of Wheat" ... such a popular breakfastime habit!

There's A New "Star" in the 'galaxy' of HEINZ JUNIOR FOODS! Heinz Junior Vegetables WITH FISH! Such a good idea from every point of view! You see, fish protein is truly valuable in the diet of a growing youngster. It's easily digested and the equivalent of beef in value to the blood! Tasting is believing how good it is ... so taste for yourself the new Heinz Junior Vegetables containing white fleshed sea fish! M-mm! ... delicious! Yes, this new Heinz "Friday Special" for Junior has everything! — nutritional value — taste appeal and it gives him a really balanced dinner. Ask for this new Junior Food at your dealer's — and ask for Heinz Strained Baby Foods — so skilfully cooked to baby-ready digestibility!

You Wouldn't Think of spoiling the effect of your best "party" dress by wearing a pair of old, sports shoes with it. And it's just as "out of place" to spoil a perfectly "luscious" chocolate cake with vanilla flavouring that isn't quite "right"! Be sure your cakes are deliciously flavoured — with SHIRRIFF'S TRUE VANILLA! Cakes, sauces or puddings flavoured with this finest quality vanilla have that specially good taste your family will love! You see, Shirriff's Vanilla is made from genuine, choice vanilla beans ... then properly aged and mellowed like a rare old wine. Yes, it always pays you to use the finest vanilla you can buy — and that's Shirriff's True Vanilla!

Let's Face It! The cold-weather months are hard on your skin! So — for the very kindest skin-care you can give yourself — I recommend regular use of extra-mild WOODBURY FACIAL SOAP. It's the best beauty treatment I know for skins chapped and parched by winter's winds! You'll never, never have "skin-burn" with this kitten-mild soap. Skin-burn is that roughened condition of skin robbed of its softening oils. You see, Woodbury Soap contains a skin-smoothing ingredient of fine face creams. It's actually made by skin specialists. So try a Woodbury Facial Cocktail every day: Massage the creamy lather thoroughly over your face to cleanse and soften. Then follow with two rinses — a warm and a cold — and pat dry.

Blue Bonnet's here! Blue Bonnet's a hit! Try it once — you'll buy it always.

Delicious flavor! Until you actually try Blue Bonnet — until you actually taste its fresh, delicate country-sweet flavor — you'll never know how delicious a really fine margarine can be.

Proved nutrition! Blue Bonnet margarine is healthful, wholesome, rich in Vitamin A, packed with the food energy so needed by active, growing youngsters. It's made from choice farm products — fresh, pasteurized skim milk and pure vegetable oils.

Real Econom-e-e! You're money in pocket when you pick Blue Bonnet. And so many recipes cost so much less to make, you can enjoy all your favorites again and still save.

Remember, Blue Bonnet brings you the flavor, nutrition and economy that have made it one of America's largest selling brands.

PILOT WALKED OUT OF THIS—This spectacular picture, showing an officer, left, dashing into a wall of fire to rescue the pilot of a flaming plane has just been released by the British Admiralty. The accident happened last May when a Sea Fury fighter plane cracked up and burst into flames on the deck of the carrier Illustrious.

100 Post Office Extras Wanted For Christmas

Peterborough post office officials are hoping to augment the letter and parcel mail staff by about 100 sorters and carriers to deal with the Christmas mail rush. Already detailed plans are being worked out to cope with the extra letters and parcels which pour in and out of the city from the middle of November until Christmas day.

Close quarters have always hampered the speedy handling of mail at rush periods but this year, with extra rooms taken over by he Post Office when the Trent Canal vacated the top floor of the building, the job is expected to be considerably easier.

There are now 854 more pidgeon holes for letter sorting which means that 18 more men can be hired this year than last to help with the mail as soon as it comes in.

Last dates for mailing to destinations in Canada have not yet been released by the Post Office in Ottawa but Nov. 19 is the deadline for mail to Europe.

Ex Service men come first in the choice of men to be hired for Christmas mail work and school students are also expected to be enrolled.

A temporary manually operated elevator is to be installed to take mail up to the top floor and the postmaster's office will be set up on the same floor for the rush period.

Sees Prospects For Farm Goods As Very Good This Season

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

An examination of the marketing of this year's production of farm products is made by the current monthly review of the Bank of Nova Scotia.

On the whole, the prospects look quite good, with some difficulties here and there.

The review states that with the notable exceptions of apples and cheese ,production of most major farm products is somewhat lower this year than last. And since de- portable surpluses are generally smaller.

Grain crops are all smaller, some much smaller. The wheat crop now is estimated at 372,000,000 bushels, down 21,000,000 bushels from last year.

"Since the July 31 carryover was larger than the previous one by just this amount, totalling 99,000.000 bushels, the supply of wheat is unchanged from a year ago. Thus the amount available for export is roughly the same as last year's exports, 232,000,000 bushels.

"This crop year, again, 140,000,000 bushels are pledged under the British contract, and $175,000,000 of economic co-operation administration funds have been made available to assist in financing the purchase.

International Pact

"A further 60,000.000 bushels are presumably covered by the international wheat agreement, which came into operation at the beginning of this crop year.

"Supplies of the two principal feed grains—crop plus carryover—are down from last year, oats by six per cent and barley by 17 per cent. Since west-east shipments may be larger than last year because of somewhat reduced grain crops in Ontario and Quebec, and since reduced yields of hay and clover will increase the call upon grain, a good deal less will be available for export.

"At present the only grains of which there are heavy surpluses are rye and flaxseed.

"Supplies of eggs are not plentiful enough to complete the British egg contract, though it was reduced this year to 46,000,000 dozen from 74.000,000 last year. The supply of bacon is far from sufficient to meet the 160,000,000-pound contract, against which probably not more than 60,000,000 pounds will be shipped.

Strong Domestic Demand

"Strong domestic demand for beef and the reduction in the cattle population which occurred last fall, mean that exports of beef cattle to the United States will be considerably lower this fall than last.

"During the first half of the year, marketing of hogs were down 28 per cent from a year earlier. They now have improved with the movement to market of the spring pig crop, which was 20 per cent above that of the previous year.

"For dairy products there is evidence of some reduction in demand. Prices of all products, except fluid milk, are lower than they were a year ago. Though this year's production of butter may be about the same as in 1948, the price, as a result of competition from margarine, remained at the floor most of the flush-production season.

"Export demand for concentrated milk has weakened, and price support was employed in the spring to remove a surplus of dried skim milk from the market. Cheese, too, has been receiving price support since the British contract for 50,000,000 pounds was completed in August."

SOCIAL CREDIT SPORTSMAN — Despite a leg injury, suffered in his childhood, John Horne Blackmore became 145-pound boxing champion at the University of Alberta in 1913. A school teacher in Cardston, Alta., he joined the Social Credit Party in 1934 and has represented Lethbridge in the Commons since 1935. A massive-chested man with a passion for sports, Mr. Blackmore says he is afraid to listen to hockey or baseball games for fear that he would never finish the voluminous reading schedule he imposes on himself. Mr. Blackmore was born March 27, 1890, at Suplett, Idaho, and is the father of 12 children, two of whom died in military service during the Second World War.

Strachey Dumps Algerian Wine On Poor Germans

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON, Nov 3 (CP)— The last, unwanted drop of Algerian wine is on its way to Germany, and nobody in White hall will shed a tear at its going.

There will merely be smiles. At long last, the Food Ministry has unloaded what government opponents consider the biggest [illegible]

For nearly a year, the ministry's decision to import wine from Algeria has been a topic of political ridicule. Whenever Food Minister Strachey spoke glowingly of the benefits of bulk-buying, a back-bench heckler would be sure to cry: "what about that Algerian wine?"

The story started early in 1948 Into the gloomy vaults of London's dockland came case upon case of Algerian wine—more than 500,000 gallons, trade sources said. About the same time French and Italian wines came on the market, and the public started turning up its nose at Algerian.

In May this year, it was estimated the government still had about £3,000,000 ($9,200,000) worth on its hands. and no buyers in sight. The selling price dropped sharply. Conservatives hinted that the stored wine was turning into vinegar.

The Food Ministry sent salesmen abroad to try to negotiate quick sales, but they returned with empty order books. The price kept dropping from 9s 6d. (about $1.50) a bottle to 7s 6d., then to a low of 5s. for some varieties. Still no sale.

In the House of Commons, angry questioners kept asking how much wine was in store, how much it cost and what would be done with it. Strachey refused to answer. Not in the public interest, he said.

Finally it was revealed that German wine experts were in town, and it was suggested they might be willing to buy for 1s 3d. a bottle.

The deal was closed at an unannounced figure. Strachey said the price was "satisfactory." Government transactions in wine were expected to show "a small profit."

The Evening Standard, which consistently opposed the government, challenged the statement. It said sale to Germany must have been at a sacrifice, or government would have given the figures.

A cynical note was contributed by The Daily Telegraph, a Conservative paper. It summed up the sale in two sentences, under the heading "ret..ibution."

"At least the Germans have been punished," said the paper. "They are going to drink Mr. Strachey's Algerian wine."

Held For Assault

TORONTO, Nov. 3 (CP) — Police laid a charge of attempted rape against 41-year-old William Daniel Wednesday night. He was held as a suspect after blonde Patti Page used her professional torch-singing voice to scream for help from a man who posed as a florist to get into her hotel bedroom. The glamorous 21-year-old singing star from Tulsa, Okla., told police the man wasn't interested in her money, he only "wanted her body." Captured after a hectic pursuit, Daniel was first booked on an assault charge.

Need National Board Of Cultural Affairs

CALGARY, Nov. 3 — (CP) — Canada needs a good national board of cultural affairs, the Royal Commission on Arts and Sciences was told Wednesday.

Members of three Alberta art groups told of the lack, in Western Canada particularly, of "information about the arts and personal direction and inspiration in its use."

Present national institutions, like the National Gallery provide mediocre art shows and inadequate service, they said.

At Ottawa, H. O. McCurry, director of the National Gallery, said that Western art centres were receiving the best shows the gallery was in a position to send them.

"They are getting just as good shows as we can send them consistent with their facilities to handle them," he said.

Car Wheel Runs Over Girl's Ankle

A seven-year-old girl, Mary Lou Dimma, was slightly hurt when hit by a car driven by Stanley W. Jones, 512 Bonacord St. just before noon Tuesday.

Jones reported to Traffice Officer Claire McGillen that he had been driving north on Clonsilla Ave. As he turned right in Sherbrooke St., he saw a group of children standing on the southeast corner. He said the little girl ran out into the right front fender of his car and that the right rear wheel passed over her left ankle.

He took her to the Clinic where Today her mother, Mrs. Robert E. Dimma, 1248 Clonsilla Ave., said the child had gone back to school.

New School For Bewdley

Whether Bewdley will have a new two-room school or an addition will be made to the school at Sackville will be decided November 18 at the Community Hall. The two proposals were made at a recent meeting of the ratepayers of Bewdley.

Bewdley's 23 school pupils will have a new school if the proposal made by the parents has any effect. They suggested that a new two-room school be built, one room to be used for a classroom and the other for recreational room school, the second room would be used as a classroom.

The other alternative suggested by Inspector Carlton was that an addition be made to the present school at Sackville, enlarging it to a grade school. This would mean that each classroom would have four classes.

The present accommodation is inadequate according to Inspector Carlton. There is one room at Sackville and a temporary room in the basement of St. Annes Church at Bewdley.

The addition to the Sackville [illegible] would mean an additional tax rate, Inspector Carlton pointed out.

As Bewdley is largely a summer resort, a large numbe. of the cottagers pay taxes in Bewdley as well as in the city. The general feeling at the meeting was that they should not be burdened with more taxation at least until Bewdley is sufficiently

Two Cars Collide As Truck Blocks View

A woman passenger was slightly hurt in a car accident at the corner of George and Edinburgh St. about 9.30 a.m. Tuesday. Mrs. Leslie Cowling, 302 Park St., driving with her husband, sufferer slight shock, a bruised forehead and a bruised knee.

Investigating officers, Constables Douglas Farthing and Sherman Keliele reported William Duane, Young's Point, was driving east on Edinburgh St. A parked truck blocked his view to the south. As he pulled into George St. for a left turn his car collided with a car driven by Cowling going north. Police reported Cowling said his view was also obscured by the parked truck.

Duane's car had about $3 damage while damage to the Cowling car was estimated at

W.A. Reads Arizona News

BETHANY, Nov. 3—(ENS)—Women's Association of the United Church was entertained by the Rev. and Mrs. W. R. Crandall at the parsonage for the November meeting, with Mrs. G. Waddell presiding.

The scripture lesson was read by Mrs. C. Cummiskey. Mrs. O. Spencer gave Lesson Thoughts and Mr. Crandall led in prayer. Miss Elsie Richardson read a letter from Mrs. A. Driver, a former member, now residing in Phoenix, Arizona, describing her trip there by plane and thanking the society for her parting gift.

It was decided to accept the request of the Durham 500 Bushel Potato Club to cater for its annual banquet, Nov. 25, and committees were appointed to attend to the arrangements.

Mrs. H. L. Challice, Mrs. G. Mulligan and Rev. W. E. Crandall were appointed as a nominating committee for the annual election of officers, which will take place at the December meeting.

The program was in charge of Mrs. H. L. Challice, who gave a reading. Mr. Crandall gave a talk on the sacraments of the United Church, baptism and communion services. Mrs. K. Hamilton gave a reading, and lunch was served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Challice, Mrs. Ralph Mulligan and Mrs. K. Hamilton.

THE SMALL HAT which uncovers a woman's hairline has taken shape here in fall millinery.

One collection which shows what women will wear atop their new fall and winter costumes borrows ideas for hats from elves and pixies. A peaked pixie cap of wine-colored velvet which uncovers half of a woman's hair-do is an Orcel creation, bejeweled over one ear with a spray of baguettes and diamonds (right).

Another pixie-inspired hat, small and peaked of rose-colored velour taupe, is cut high to reveal the hairline, low to hide the ears (left). Its crushed peaked top is accented by a plume-styled clip set with diamonds.

A small draped hat of feathers —of breast of guinea hen—is typical of Janet Colombier's styling for fall (centre). The brim of a spectacular hat of yellow and black-speckled feathers descends to one side, and folds back to display a soaring wing anchored by a jeweled brooch.

Mrs. H. Harker Joins W.A.

MILLBROOK, Nov. 3—(ENS)—St. Andrew's WA November meeting was held on Tuesday at the home of Mrs. J. T. Crowley, when Mrs. H. Harker joined the association. The devotional period was conducted by Miss Estelle Hetherington. Plans were made for the bazaar and tea to be held in the waiting room on Nov. 19. It was decided that the WA would serve refreshments to the 100 representatives of the Canadian Order of Foresters who are expected to attend a service in St. Andrew's Nov. 13. Rev. T. G. Husser, BA, BD is Dominion high chaplain of the COF.

Next meeting, at which the election of officers is to take place will be held in the parsonage on the first Tuesday in December.

Tweed Ensembled With Red Accessories

Red accessories with a "look of affinity" were planned to give town-and-country elegance to this red and gray tweed suit. A beret of red beaver felt sports a pheasant feather; red calfskin pumps tie ghillie-fashion, and a red alligator bag swings from the shoulder of the checkered tweed jacket.

little boat was driven along the Cape Breton coast and finally reached St. Ann's where the party settled.

During the 25 years that followed other Scottish emigrants swelled the settlement and MacLeod ministered to some 2,000 people. When nearing 70 the minister was intrigued by a letter from a son in Australia. Another boat, the Margaret, was built and in 1851 MacLeod and a party of 135 set sail for "down under."

Stil Disappointed

Australia, in turn, proved a disappointment and after two years he and his little company went to sea again, eventually setting at Waipu. Here a large proportion of the population is directly descended from the Margaret's company and those who followed later in give other ships.

Waipu itself is still a small country township on the main road between Auckland and Whangarei, main centre of the northern peninsula of New Zealand, but the whole of the prosperous surrounding countryside is steeped in the traditions of the Scots who arrived nearly a century ago.

Reached Waipu

As a result of their stay in South Australia, the settlers did not reach Waipu until 1854. The 90th anniversary of their arrival was marked in 1944 by the planting of trees from Nova Scotia by two of the surviving pioneers and descendants of all the clans represented. The Nova Scotian flag was later presented to the district and unfurled at the Waipu Caledonial Society's sports in 1946.

Commenting on the coming celebrations in an editorial the New Zealand Herald quotes an historian who said: "For sheer quality of romance, the founding of Waipu is unequalled by any New Zealand settlement, big or little." In these days, when ease and security are the popular gods, the Herald adds, it is instructive to turn back to those old pages of faith and striving, and to read their hard, but shining lesson It will be well to return to St. Ann's in 1851 and to Waipu in 1854.

Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Snelgrove have moved into the home occupied by Mrs. O. Chevis before her marriage last month.

Mr. Earl Hunter of Toronto has been spending a few days with her sister, Mrs. T. G. Husser.

Guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Stinson Sunday for the celebration of Mrs. Stinson's birthday included her brother, Mr. Jack Hamman and son, Arthur of Toronto; Mrs. Jos. May and her daughter Arline of Timiskaming; Mr. and Mrs. Don Cooper and son Scott of Sault Ste. Marie and Mr. and Mrs. Ken Cooper, Janet and John of Cobourg.

CGIT held a Hallowe'en party in the Sunday School rooms at which the Trail Rangers were guests. There were about 30 present and musical games were under the direction of Rev. and Mrs. T. G. Husser and Mrs. Eric Fallis. Refreshments were served.

All services will be withdrawn in St. Andrew's Church on Sunday, so that the congregation may join in anniversary services at Cavan. There will be cars waiting at the Millbrook church to take those without to Cavan. St. Andrew's male quartette and choir will assist Cavan choir.

JAILED FOR RAPE

VANCOUVER, Nov. 3 (CP) — John Kenneth Clark, 32, of Port Coquitlam, B. C., was sentenced Wednesday to 15 years and 10 lashes for rape. He was convicted of assaulting a 25-year-old woman who testified she was dragged from her escort's car in Stanley Park here April 7 and raped by Clark and two companions. Clark was captured in August by Ray Munro and Don McLean of the Vancouver Daily Province who masqueraded as a "spooning" couple in the park and subdued Clark when he molested them.

Recall Settlers Leaving Canada For New Zealand

By J. C. GRAHAM.

WAIPU, N. Z., Nov. 3 (CP) — Keen interest is being shown here in a report from Canada that special ceremonies are being planned at Saint Ann's, NS, for 1951 to mark the departure of the barque Margaret, which carried 135 Scottish colonists on the first stage of their voyage to Waipu.

The journey of the Nova Scotia settlers to South Australia and then to New Zealand under the leadership of Rev. Norman MacLeod is regarded as one of the epics of the early settlement of New Zealand.

A Presbyterian minister and a born leader, MacLeod led a band of Highland Scots to Nova Scotia in 1817. Dissatisfaction with conditions in Pictou, the band built a boat, called by scoffers "The Ark," and set sail for the Ohio Valley. Dogged by bad luck, the

Grateful To Be Rid of Pain That Troubled Her For Years

Pain Located in Side Would Extend Upward to Neck and Head. Tried Many Different Things, But Got No Relief. Now Gratefully Tells How Syntona Helped Her.

MRS. IDA WELCH

Convincing proof of the good results obtained by men and women who have taken Syntona Herbal Compound is found in the many splendid reports that are being received almost daily. These people tell how they have suffered with stomach disorders, sluggish kidneys or liver, nervousness, backache or rheumatic aches and pains. In nearly every case they tell of the splendid relief they have obtained simply by taking a short treatment of Syntona. They are anxious to make their experiences known in the hope that it will be the means of helping others.

For insance, here is the experience of Mrs. Ida Welch, 718 Talbot Street, London, Ontario, as reported only a few days ago:

"For several years I have been troubled with severe pains in my side that extended up to my neck and head. At times the pain was so bad I would have to lie down and could not attend to my work. I tried pain pills and liniments of many kinds, but nothing helped me.

"A few weeks ago a friend told me about Syntona. She spoke of it so highly that I decided to get some and I am certainly glad I did, because this medicine seemed to be made especially for me. I wasn't taking it long when the pain began to lessen until now there is no trouble at all and I feel fine. Besides, I have a better appetite to enjoy my meals. I sleep more soundly at night and everything seems so much easier for me, because I have gained more energy."

Let this pure herbal compound help you as it has so many other local men and women. Syntona is sold and recommended in Peterborough at Elliott's Drug Store.

Miss Musa Cox Explains Teaching Methods

If decorations are any indication, Hallowe'en made a return engagement Wednesday night when the Trinity Baby Band Mothers met in the church parlours. Gay Jack-o'-lanterns were smiling a cheery welcome from mantel and piano top. A tea table was lovely with yellow lace cloth its colour complimented by a centrepiece of bronze, white and yellow 'mums, flanked by lighted yellow tapers in silver holders. Bouquets of 'mums in soft autumn shades graced the room.

The meeting was in charge of Mrs. M. Elliott and her group. Mrs. C. Northey led in prayer and Mrs. M. Latimer read scripture.

Guest speaker was Miss Musa Cox, director of music in the city schools,. In a highly interesting and instructive address she told an attentive audience of today's method of teaching music to public school children. She stated, although a surprisingly large percentage of children entering kindergarten cannot carry a tune at all, with careful and patient teaching most of them are able to sing a melody by the time they have finished Grade Two.

The method used is to train the ear to recognize and the voice to reproduce and this is accomplished in such a way that it seems like a game to the children. Tuning up and the matching are followed by teaching simple songs. Marvellous results are accomplished in a surprisingly short time, Mis Cox said.

The speaker was thanked by Mrs. J. Howes.

Tea was served by the group in charge.

Mrs. N. Hamley was appointed convener of home cooking and Mrs. E. Thompson to take charge of tickets on a turkey dinner to be raffled. Mrs. C. M. McIntyre is to place a wreath on the cenotaph on Armistice Day.

An appeal was made to members to bring in good used clothing to be shipped to England.

Mrs. Wm. Addyman was guest speaker, and gave an interesting account of her visit in England this year. She was introduced by Mrs. H. R. Scott and thanked by Miss M. Bailey.

Next month's meeting will be a special Christmas meeting and the regent asked for full attendance.

Mrs. W. A. Hinds and her group served lunch.

OTONABEE CHAPTER

Otonabee Chapter, IODE, met in the YWCA Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. A. McWilliams, regent, in charge.

Letters were read from the pupils and teachers of Apsley and Highland Grove Schools who received the certificates of merit and money prizes from the Chapter for best attendance and grades in the past year.

Each member was asked for one good piece of used clothing for shipment to England. War service convener, Mrs. L. Davis, [illegible] box of new clothing consisting of sweaters, boys and girls clothing, socks and quilts is ready to be forwarded. The Christmas treat for children in the adopted school was decided upon.

Mrs. F. Hall, general convener, reminded members of the tea and bazaar being held at the YWCA on November 19, and reported on arrangements. A rummage sale was planned, the date and place to be announced. Next sewing meeting is to be at the home of Mrs. A. Gibson on Monday, November 7.

All members were asked to attend the memorial service at the cenotaph on Armistice Day if possible.

Lunch was served at the close by Mrs. W. Comstock and Mrs. W. G. McLaren.

AGNES NEILL CHAPTER

Miss Mary Curry presided at the regular meeting of Lieut.-Col. Agnes Neill Chapter, IODE, which took place at the YWCA.

Success of the rummage sale held last Saturday, convened by Miss Marjorie Benson, was reported.

It was decided Miss Jean Hamley would look after sending special Christmas parcels to overseas families.

Members were sorry to learn Miss Agnes Neill is seriously ill in Toronto and flowers were sent from the Chapter.

Final arrangements were made for the Stardust Ball being held this Friday evening at Club Aragon. Mrs. June Dolan and Miss Marguerite Dummitt will take tickets. Mrs. Olive Greenlaw will be head usher with the following members as ushers: Misses Dorothy Allan, Eleanor Jobbitt, Marjorie Benson, Jean Hamley, Isabel Shearer, Marguerite Quinlan, Jean Duignan, Mesdames Margaret Adamson, Kay Messervey, Verna Tanney, Amy Cranfield and Joan Todd. Miss Jean Cranfield is convener of the dance.

Brother Marries P. J. Marrocco At Kingston

A wedding of interest here was solemnized in St. Mary's Cathedral, Kingston, Saturday morning, when Philip Joseph Marrocco, son of Mrs. Mary Marrocco, 483 Elm St., and the late Rocco Marrocco, was united in marriage to Miss Rosa Strumberger of Kingston. The Rev. F. A. Marrocco of Ottawa, a brother of the groom, performed the ceremony and said the nuptial mass.

The bride was given in marriage by Mr. M. Markotitch. She was lovely in a gown of white brocaded satin with nylon forming a drop-shoulder yoke. Her floor-length veil of tulle illusion was styled with Juliet cap and caught at the front with orange blossoms. She carried a cascade of white baby 'mums and red roses. Her only attendant, Miss Angela Scribar, wore a frock of baby blue taffeta with sweetheart neckline, long sleeves and bustled skirt. Her headdress was a crown of pink carnations and white baby 'mums and she carired a matching bouquet.

Mr. Harry McDonnell attended the groom and ushering was done by Mr. Jack Minicola. Professor Lucien Noury, director of the Cathedral choir, was at the organ.

Following the reception at Morrison's Tea Room the couple left on a honeymoon trip to Oshawa and Peterborough. The bride was wearing a black moire taffeta dress and a coat of grey needlepoint with matching accessories.

Mr. and Mrs. Marrocco will live in Kingston.

Designers Create Pink Sheer Men's Sport Shirt

NEW YORK, Nov. 3—(AP)—Some of the world's most famous and determined designers, such as Elsa Schiaparelli of Paris and Hattie Carnegie of New York, have decided something must be done about the un-style-conscious males.

—Mme. Schiaparelli short-waved her views from Paris to the audience of an elaborate men's fashion show here Wednesday, as follows:

"Men are dying to dress up, only they're afraid of being conspicuous. It is for us women to help them lose that proud feeling of the he-man."

Following Schiaparelli's pronouncement, he-man models strolled down the runway at the plush Hotel Pierre wearing such things as a pink sheer dotted Swiss sports shirt, designed by Hattie Carnegie, a Cartwell straw hat with a three-inch plaid band, printed pure silk shirts and raspberry linen slacks.

For street wear next summer [illegible] examples shown were of nylon blends looking like tropical worsteds, usually single-breasted, and said to be completely washable.

The men will go for shorts in a big way next summer, too, it was stated, the lengths varying from hip to knee.

Fund Organized For Teachers From Overseas

TORONTO, Nov. 3—Women teachers throughout Ontario have set out to ensure that their colleagues from other countries, teaching here on exchange will have a good Christmas. A special fund has been set up and all members of the Federation of Women Teachers' Associations of Ontario will be asked to subscribe to it.

This is the third successive year the organization has aided the visitors financially, but this year the gift takes on new significance. Salaries of the 23 women teachers from Britain, Australia and South Africa have been cut by more than 25 per cent. by devaluation of the pound. The exchange teachers are paid from their home countries in sterling funds.

Elizabeth D. Taylor, executive secretary of the federation, announced the establishment of the fund in Toronto Wednesday. She pointed out that the plight of British teachers, who generally receive lower salaries than Canadian teachers, has been badly aggravated by the exchange situation.

The original purpose of the fund when it was started two years ago was to enable the visitors to see something of Canada during their stay here. "Now," said Miss Taylor, "the gifts in some cases will mean the avoidance of actual physical hardship."

Last Christmas, $100 was given to each British woman exchange teacher in Ontario public schools, and the balance of the fund was divided among them at the end of the school year. This year it is hoped that larger gifts may be made.

Officials of the Ontario Department of Education have requested aid for the exchange teachers from overseas authorities, but it is considered unlikely that help will arrive before Christmas.

OIL RESERVE

It is estimated that there are 250,000,000,000 barrels of oil contained in the oil sands of northern Alberta.

IS THAT PALE YOUNG GIRL YOUR DAUGHTER?

Parents should not ignore the depressed moods, the listless, tired air, the pallor, headaches, fickle appetite—the crying spells—so many daughters exhibit during those years when they are passing into womanhood.

If her health at this stage is not maintained by a sufficiency of good rich blood, all kinds of weaknesses may arise to make her later life unhappy.

So should you notice any of these disturbing signs in your daughter, lose no time. Get some Dr. Williams Pink Pills at your druggist. They are wonderfully effective in helping to build up iron-impoverished blood and have helped to transform thousands and thousands of sickly, pale daughters suffering from simple anemia into happy active girls full of vitality and high spirits, hungry for meals, glad to help with the housework, attractive to others. Right now simple anemia may be undermining the strength and resistance your daughter needs so badly. Don't wait—get Dr. Williams Pink Pills today.

DOROTHY DIX

It's Too Late at Seventeen To Change Out of Hand Son

DEAR MISS DIX: My son is 17 years old and in the tenth grade at school. I am a widow and my husband's great desire was that I should educate the boy with his insurance and make something out of him. But my son has begun to skip school, will not read or study, and wants to go

Dorothy Dix

Saturday and works like a Turk until late, but when it comes to doing anything for me, he refuses I have to wait on him, pick up his clothes. I have tried kindness persuasion and rewards to get him to do the work, but he refuses to mind me and is impudent. Do you think it would do any good to give him a good whipping?

MRS. W. J. P.

ANSWER: You are seventeen years too late now in teaching your boy obedience. You have to do that in the cradle. If you whip a boy of 17, you will only make him so angry that he will probably run away from home. You will not make him mind you.

But perhaps the situation is not as bad as you think it is. You want your boy to be neat and clean and orderly, to be teacher's pet at school and studious at home. You want him to be eager for an education and ambitious about going to college and to prefer to spend his evenings at home with you to running around with other boys. And you are terribly disappointed because he is just a boy. Well, he is just exactly like millions of other boys who have grown up into fine citizens and the prop and stay of our country.

All Alike

Virtually all boys are ike that at 17. They hate to work around home. They resent authority. They are irritable and impudent And there is nothing that their mothers can do but just to keep hands off as much as they can.

You say your son likes to work. That will be his salvation. As soon as he finishes high school, let him get a job that interests him. There is hope for every industrious person. They seldom go far wrong.

But one thing I do urge upon you and that is not to waste your husband's insurance money in sending a boy like that to college. Keep that for yourself to live on and perhaps lend him a helping hand some time when he wants to start a little business of his own. You can lead a horse to water, says the old proverb, but you can't make it drink. So you send a boy to college, but you can't make him a scholar unless he has a thirst for learning.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: For eight years I have kept company with a married man who has a wife and two children, and, although he swears that he loves me well enough to give them up, he never does it. He always makes some excuse about not getting a divorce. Says he has no fault to find with his wife, so she would have to be the one to ask for a divorce. I am getting discouraged waiting and living on the back street of his life. Do you think I will ever get this man all for myself.

TEARS.

ANSWER: No. I do not think that the man ever intends to divorce his wife for you, and the sooner you realize that, the better it will be for you. Realize that if the man had ever wanted to marry you it would have been in the early days of your liaison, and he would have then asked his wife to set him free. Now, when his romance with you is as stale as his marriage, he hasn't the remotest idea of going through the mess of a divorce in order to make you his wife.

It is a pity that the girls who fall for married men do not realize that nine times out of ten the man clings to his wife with both hands and wouldn't part with her for the world, because she is his perpetual alibi. She is his excuse to the girl for not marrying her and he hides behind her skirts while he carries on his nefarious work of stealing a girl's heart.

Enduring the same purgatory with you are innumerable other women who are eating out their hearts for the love of some married man. No lot is sadder than that of the woman who wears out her life on hopeless waiting for a married man, but perhaps the woman is willing to break up another woman's home gets the punishment that fits.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: We are a boy and a girl of 17 and 16, very much in love with each other, Do you think it necessary for us to conduct ourselves so that we may retain our respect for each other in order to keep our love? C. P.

ANSWER: I certainly do. I believe that respect is absolutely essential for the endurance of love. You may have a temporary infatuation for a person whom you know to be weak, unmoral and even vicious, but the love that lasts has to be founded on honesty and uprightness. Also, it is a peculiarity of human nature that we seldom love our fellow sinners. We blame them for having led us astray. So keep your love clean if you want it to last.

HIGH FASHION STYLES will shine on ski slopes this winter. For riding a ski-tow or for warm-ups at the lodge, a coat of blanket-plaid fleece is lined with white alpaca from hemline to helmet (far left). Slalom experts will approve a peplum pleated Byrd cloth jacket, worsted gabardine ski-pants and a matching white helmet lined with white jersey (centre). A fiery red wool cloak, poncho-styled, is weather-proofed by lining of navy nylon taffeta (right).

$400.00 Free Clothing For Some Lucky Couple

At the present time, Blacks' of Peterboro (Towne Togs by Blacks' and Isadore Blacks' Men's Wear) are staging a store-wide sale, in appreciation of the patronage they have received from their many customers durin the past 37 years.

Thirty-Seven years ago, Mrs. Annie Black and the late Phillip Black, opened a women's clothing store in Peterborough, on the corner of George and King Sts., and little realized that 37 years later, they would be the originators of Peterborough's most modern and outstanding clothing stores for both men and women. To-day, Blacks' of Peterboro, is operated by their children, who have been doing their utmost, in trying to give to Peterboro the same honest and conscientious pattern in business, as left to them by their parents.

In addition, the big feature of Blacks' 37th Anniversary Sale, is the free lucky draw they are having, and some lucky couple will receive one complete man's and one complete woman's wardrobe made up of merchandise that is made by Canada's leading manufacturers. All through the years, Blacks' have been doing their utmost in finding the manufacturers, who are reputable for the good, well styled and first quality merchandise, and yet at prices that are well within the average budget. And, today, Blacks' can boast, that the firms they deal with are tops, and any merchandise sold at Blacks', is sold on a money-back guarantee, and through the co-operation of these top firms, and merchandise that is not completely satisfactory, is immediately replaced, or a refund is given, without any hesitation. Through the co-operation and generosity of Blacks' firms, with which they deal, the following merchandise will be given away entirely free of charge. To the lucky lady, a coat by Manuel, and evening gown by Golden Gate dress, a suit by Jane Kinley, a blouse by Jane Kinley, three pair of hose by Phantom, three french uplift brassieres by Rose-Marx, three slips by Fantasy, two pair of gloves by Unique, and a housecoat by Jane Kinley. To the lucky man, a suit by Towne Hall clothing, a coat by Semi-read Tailoring, 6 pair of sox by McGregor, 2 sets of underwear by Stanfields', 3 ties by Berkley, a pair of gloves by Unique, three shirts by Migo, and a hat by Fashion Hat. All that is necessary to be eligible, for this lucky draw, is to get your free lucky ticket, with any purchase at Towne Togs by Blacks' or Isadore Blacks' Men's Wear, side by side at 380 George St. There is only one winning ticket, and the winner gives the other wardrobe to whoever they wish.

6—In Memoriams

DETCHER—In loving memory of father, mother and sister, whom God called home, (father, Dec., 1922, mother, Jan., 1937, Ella, Nov. 3, 1948).
God has called our loved ones
Away from a world of strife,
To shine among the angels
In a fairer, brighter life.
Safe in the arms of Jesus,
Safe from all grief and sin.
Forever and forever,
Where all is pure within.
Our hearts are full of sorrow,
And tears have dimmed our eyes,
But we shall meet them once again,
In that home beyond the skies.
—Sadly missed by Camilla.

Makes Safe Landing

CALGARY, Nov. 3 (CP) — A Trans-Canada Airlines plane bound out of Calgary for Vancouver Wednesday caught fire in one of its engines and was forced to return to the municipal airport. Although the engine was damaged, the landing was safely made and no one was injured.

Find Body In Bush

AYLMER, Que., Nov. 3 (CP)— The body of Ernest Touhey, 54, missing since May, was found Wednesday in a dense bush on a farm three miles north of here. A sum of $948, known to have been carried by Toughe, when he left his hotel room in Aylmer, May 18, was found in a wallet, tied in a handkerchief. The dead man was a brother of Bill Touhey of New York, a former National Hockey League player.

Plan To Open Nursery School

Application forms and copies of the regulations in connection with the nursery school at Dixon House are being sent to the 57 parents who signified their intention to send their children. As only 40 children will be admitted each month, careful consideration must be given to each application.

Jack Dane, Recreation Director, said today that he expects the day nursery school to be open at the Dixon oHuse December 1, under the supervision of Miss [illegible]. On the forms it is pointed out that the nursery school is a part of the Recreation Commission's activities to meet a need in the community. If it is to function successfully, it continues, the cooperation of every parent is required.

The nursery school committee has made nine regulations that must be followed for a child to be admitted. They are: all parents must present a doctor's certificate for the child and fill out other forms required by the school; fees must be paid before the child attends and must be paid monthly; no reductions or refunds can be made for illness of withdrawel from the school; the school is not responsible for loss of personal belongings or for injuries incurred while a child is attending the school; in case of illness the parents are requested to notify the school immediately; parents assume responsibility for any expense incurred in the school dealing with emergency illness of a child; in case of communicable disease or illness of a months' duration, a doctor's certificate is required and transport to and from school is the responsibility of the parents.

Hospital Association Elects J. R. Marshall

Mr. John R. Marshall, chairman of the Board of Governors of Peterborough Civic Hospital was elected president-elect of the Ontario Hospital Association on Monday to Wednesday, at the Royal York Hotel, Toronto.

Dr. W. D. Piercey of Ottawa was elected president, succeeding Miss Pearl Morrison of Toronto. Mr. Marshall assumes the presidency at the convention in 1950.

More than 1,600 delegates were from 107 hospitals of the province. Fifteen representatives of Peterborough Civic Hospital attended at least part of the three days. They included five members of the Board, three of the Women's Auxiliary and eight members of the staff. One of the members of the Women's Auxiliary attending was also a member of the Board of Governors. She is Mrs. Eva Breckenridge.

Two members of the staff and three of the Women's Auxiliary of St. Joseph's Hospital were at the convention.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, Nov. 3—(CP) — Coarse grains scored small gains in initial trades today on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange.

Fair shipper demand appeared in oats and barley, while some processor buying also was indicated in barley. Offerings were light in barley but more liberal in oats, but prices showed a firm undertone.

Rye prices also firmed up under buying from commission houses. The July contract was on the board in rye for the first time. Flax is not open.

Prices:

Oats—Dec. ¼-⅜ higher at 80 ⅜-½; May ⅜-½ higher at 80 7-8 to 81B; July not open.

Barley — Dec. ⅜ higher at $1.45¼; May ⅜-½ higher at $1.43¼-⅝; July not open.

Rye—Dec. ⅛-½ higher at $1.53½ to 7-8; May ⅝-½ higher at $1.57⅝-¼; July $1.57½.

Inspections: Wheat this year 763; last year 458; cars of contract 688; oats 194/173; barley 125/149; Flax 7/80; Rye 27/22; other grains 3/6; total 1119/889.

Why Do Poplars Retain Leaves?

Although they appear to be fussy, nervous characters without rugged powers of resistance to common enemies such as frost, the poplars cling to their leaves much longer than maples, elms, birches and other hardwoods.

Most tenacious of that species appears to be the Lombardy poplar as shown in two attractive rows of this tree, one along the east side of the grounds of the Church of the Sacred Heart. The other is at the residence of Floyd Noble, 20 Park St. Those trees to Tuesday, and were still holding a pleasing drapery of green and gold after the early frosts which dipped to 14 degrees one night.

The merits of the Lombardy, the tall slim tree of distinct personality, are indicated in these two groupings.

Boy Scouts Plan Paper Collection

The Peterborough Boy Scout Association will hold their last paper drive of the year November 15.

The local association discouraged by the low amount received per ton for paper had planned to discontinue the collections. However numerous phone calls to the members of the executive asking when the boys were going to hold their next drive changed their decision.

According to Peter Dominik, head of the Rover Crews, the receipts from the annual Apple Day held several weeks ago were far below expectations. He added that the receipts from the collection of paper will be a little more profitable than in the spring with the paper now being worth $1 more a ton.

All the money derived from the collection will be set aside to start a building fund for a Peterborough scout headquarters.

May Change Rules

LONDON, Nov. 3 (Reuters) — Threatened with a new manpower crisis in the mining industry, the government is considering removal of the "ring fence" around the industry which prevents any man leaving the pits until he is 50 years old. Mining experts have suggested to the government that this restriction is a deterrent to young men who might otherwise become coal miners.

HARD TO GET DOWN

Tippler pigeons have been known to circle their own cotes for 17 hours.

Child, 6, Injured Crossing Highway

HAVELOCK, Nov. 3—(ENS)—Dashing across Highway No. 7 Wednesday afternoon to catch up with some of her school chums, Ruth Lighthouse age six, of R.R. 3 Havelock, was knocked down and slightly injured by a passing car.

The accident occurred at Preneveau, three-and-a-half miles east of Havelock on Highway 7.

Only minor injuries were sustained by the schoolgirl including severe brush burns on her head and face, and she also lost a couple of teeth.

[illegible] of the car involved, told Provincial Constable Arthur Kellogg the girl ran across the Highway at an angle, and directly into his vehicle. She was tossed about 30 feet.

The child was given medical attention by Dr. D. J. Holdcroft, of Havelock, and later allowed to go home.

Refused To Give Name To Officer

"Tell the police officer your name the next time," W. B. Gordon told his client, Lorne A. Wallis, 191 Rink St., after Magistrate W. R. Philp, K.C., had dismissed a charge of vagrancy against Wallis in police court today.

Constable John Conlin said about 12:45 a.m. Oct. 26 he had seen a couple standing on the north side of Hunter St. between Aylmer and George Sts. He said their actions drew his attention.

Shortly after he crossed the street and asked them where they lived. They answered "down the street."

Constable Conlin said he asked them to go home, but they refused. When he asked them their names and addresses, they refused to answer him.

He placed Wallis under arrest. Wallis said he could see no reason to answer the officer because he was doing nothing wrong.

Mr. Gordon said Wallis was probably "a bit lippy" to the officer, but did not know the officer had a perfect right to ask him his name and address. However he said, he hoped everyone walking on a street after midnight did not have to be approached by a police officer and asked his name and address.

Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw said, although Wallis was in the wrong, he should be given the benefit of the doubt.

Detain 6 At Airport

LONDON, Nov. 3—(Reuters)—Scotland Yard detectives Wednesday detained six men at London Airport after days of inquiries into the disappearance of gold bullion and other valuables worth thousands of pounds from planes.

Southeast Asia Watching Communist China's Moves

By MILTON MARMOR

SINGAPORE, Nov. 3—(AP)—Southeast Asia looks North to Communist China with the sensation of a patient expecting the dentist to beckon "next!" The presence of powerful Red forces near the the northern borders of Indo-China and Burma long has been anticipated by those countries and by Thailand, Malaya and the fabled islands of Indonesia.

Now China red victories and [illegible] ments of southeast Asia are believed to be expecting impetus by infiltration. What is deemed more serious is how the governments of independent Burma and Thailand and the nascent United States of Indonesia may now revise their outlook upon the rest of the world.

A conference of the United Nations' Economic Commission for Asia and the Far East had a hint the other day as to how Asian lands had been affected by Chinese Communist victories.

Members were voting on applications of the two warring governments in Indo-China for admission as associate members. One was the Bao Dai state, backed by French military power, and the other regime, that of Moscow-trained Ho Chi Minh, supported by the Soviet union.

Votes Split

Indonesia, associate member without voting powers, declared itself on behalf of Ho Chi Minh Burma and Thailand abstained along with Pakistan and the Philippines. Indi.. voted for both governments. Boa Dai won.

Burma — torn by civil wars among at least five separate armies— seems orienting itself to the new situation. Two Communist armies are fighting separately against the Socialist government but Burma is anxiously eyeing the Yunnan border whe: Chinese Communist guerrillas have been active. The government banks on the loyalty of the Kachins who guard the only passable China border where the Burma Road winds its way.

Neighboring Thailand's sole interest is in maintaining itself in a hard, cruel world. It has been successful until now.

Many onlookers think Indo-China in the key to the future of South-East Asia. They say if the French and Bao Dai regime can hold Indo-China other lands can be held against Communism. But Ho Chi Minh's forces stand off superior French troops for three years, now control virtually all Viet-Nam territory except the cities.

In Malaya, British authorities have the situation in hand although 3,000 to 5,000 Chinese Communist jungle terrorists are costing Britain much money and harassment.

Nab Bank Robber

MONTREAL, Nov. 3 (CP) — A man whom police refused to identify, was arrested in downtown Montreal on six charges of armed bank robbery involving about $22,000. Police said the man [illegible] freedom when two detectives nabbed him as he walked along downtown Bishop Street.

Ban State Lotteries

TORONTO Nov. 3 (CP)—The executive of the General Council of the United Church Wednesday passed a resolution condemning the plan for state lotteries in Quebec province. The resolution called the proposal "a menace to the morals of this nation and contrary to the Criminal Code of Canada."

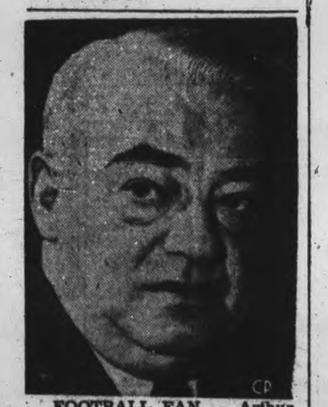
6 Die In Train Crash

CAIRO, Nov. 3 (Reuters) — Six persons were killed and two injured Wednesday night when the Cairo-Upper Egypt express collided with an oil train near Dairut, 170 miles south of here. Both trains were virtually destroyed by the resulting fire from the tank cars.



FOOTBALL FAN — Arthur Leroy Smith is one of the most rabid football fans in Parliament where he sits as Progressive Conservative member for Calgary West. He was first elected to the Commons in the 1945 general election and has been injecting wit and humor into parliamentary debates ever since. A lawyer, Mr. Smith was born in Regina, Feb. 13, 1886.

Charge Jamaica Papers Gagged

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Nov. 3 (Reuters)—Jamaica's government today withdrew is controversial new press bill, aimed at guarding official secrets, following what Frank Pixley, minister for social services, called "strong public criticism."

Pixley said further consideration will be given to some of its provisions.

[illegible] Official Secrets Act provided "severe" penalties, for publication "without lawful excuse" of any "confidential information."

Newspapers here fought it as a "gag" on the press.

Stole Postage Stamps

TORONTO, Nov. 3 — (CP).—Two stamp collectors were convicted Wednesday of stealing postage stamps valued by a dealer at $1,500. Edward Barron, 21, was sentenced to nine months and his brother Louis 27, three months.

P.M.'S ASSISTANT—Walter Edward Harris, a tank officer in the Canadian Army during the second world war, who was wounded in France, is parliamentary assistant to Prime Minister St. Laurent. A Markdale, Ont., lawyer, he was born Jan. 14, 1904 at Kimberley, Ont. First elected to the Commons for Grey-Bruce in 1940, he became parliamentary assistant to Mr. St. Laurent while the prime minister was minister of external affairs.

The Silent Service

LONDON, Nov. 3—(Reuters)—The Royal Navy, traditionally the "Silent Service," threw up a quick smoke screen Wednesday to dodge comment when confronted with the recommendations of a Canadian Royal Commission that the "Nelson tradition" be "played down" in the Royal Canadian Navy. "No comment," was the terse reply given to inquiries in Whitehall on what effect the suggested "Canadianizing" of the Dominion's fleet might have in

FORMING NEW UE-CIO UNION AT CGE

Rent Controls Eased, Permit 20% Increase

Rule Changes Effective December 15

Will Test Validity In Supreme Court, Apartments Affected

OTTAWA, Nov. 4—(CP)—The government has eased rental controls, allowing landlords to charge between 20 and 25 per cent extra on specific types of accommodation on which leases are coming up for renewal.

The boost was announced Thursday night in the Commons by Finance Minister Abbott. He said the government will test the validity of rent-control legislation before the Supreme Court of Canada. If the controls are ruled valid, the government will seek an extension beyond the termination date of March 31 next.

The rentals increase also permits a jump of a flat 20 per cent on rooms, flats and similar accommodation in which toilet facilities are shared.

Landlords are given more leeway in obtaining premises for their own use.

Advise Provinces

Mr. Abbott said he will write the provinces to advise them that question of the validity of the wartime control legislation will be placed before the Supreme Court for a ruling. This will give them time to 'stand by' with provincial legislation to take over controls if the court finds the controls invalid.

Meanwhile, any province that wants to assume control of rental regulations will be assisted by the federal government, said Mr. Abbott.

This was a reiteration of government willingness to permit the provinces to undertake rent control, announced by Mr. Abbott a year ago.

Most provincial governments are making a careful study of them; Premier Johnson of British Columbia declined to comment.

THEY MAY LOOK LIKE BROTHERS HERE but before Thursday night was over that fraternal affection had worn off. This peaceful "shot" was taken prior to the stormy membership meeting of Local 524, United Electrical Workers. Left to right are C. S. Jackson, Canadian UE president; Cyril O'Donnell, recording sec'y; C. R. Sullivan, UE representative; T. P. Davies, vice president (and acting president of the left-appointed interim executive); Art Hunter, zone representative; John G. Morton president and prime mover of the switch to the new electrical union sponsored by the CIO; Joseph Murphy, treasurer; Fred Hannah, CCL representative invited in by the right wingers but unable to speak because of interruptions; George O'Brien, zone representative; and Keith Chiles, financial sec'y. Pro-Jackson leftists claim O'Donnell, Morton, Murphy, O'Brien and Chiles are suspended from the Local.

Right Wingers Commence Circulating Cards As Old Union Badly Split

Following Stormy Union Meeting Present Executive Suspended As Jackson Seeks To Rally Forces

By DAVE WHITE

The nucleus of the new UE-CIO began to take shape at the Peterborough CGE plant early today as membership cards were circulated for the International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers. Right-wing elements of the divided CGE unionists predict they will have two-thirds of the eligible union members signed in little more than a week. They foresee no easy job ahead as they must start at the very first step leading, they hope, to certification as the legal bargaining agent in about three weeks.

And after that negotiations on a new contract will have to recommence.

The left wing is expected to hold onto the property and treasury as Local 524 UE is the present legal bargaining agent.

Interim Executive

Meanwhile the interim executive under acting-president T. P. Davies has called a membership meeting for Sunday night in the Brock St. Summer Gardens. Main topic on the agenda will be the necessary steps to be taken in amending the continuing contract.

In a leaflet to the employees today John G. Morton said the new body will consist of "all UE members who have decided not to follow the Communist-dominated leadership out of the CIO. It urges them to join an international union of 150,000 members, including some former UE locals such as Cobourg, Brockville and Guelph.

C. S. Jackson said it was not necessary for him to give notice of a meeting after Morton adjourned the one on Thursday. The Constitution of the UE provides for the General Executive Board to take action "to protect the rights of the members." And he contended he had been given that authority by the Board.

An open bid for the 3,200 union members of the CGE to join the newly-created electrical workers union was made Thursday night by John G. Morton, president of Local 524 UE-CCL, and the right-

Second Report On Defence Goes To Claxton

OTTAWA, Nov. 4—(CP)—In the wake of the report of a three-man commission on the Navy, it was learned Thursday that a second potentially controversial report on the defense forces is in the hands of Defense Minister Claxton.

But there is no indication he intends to make this one public. On the contrary, there is no apparent inclination to treat it as anything but a private document for the edification and study of defence headquarters alone.

It is understood to be a report by an outside civilian efficiency expert called in to probe the set-up at headquarters, in the administration of the three services and their administrative relations. It is believed to be largely an attempt to find out how red tape can be cut or modified.

Little can be learned of the report other than that it is under study. It was made at the request of Mr. Claxton.

There have been considerable upheavals in administration at headquarters in the last three years because of the unification drive, the move to weld the forces into a more co-ordinated whole.

Some months ago, Mr. Claxton brought in C. M. (Bud) Drury, young, energetic wartime brigadier, and made him deputy minister. One of his major tasks was to iron out the administrative difficulties and to get the department running more smoothly.

Asks Companies Drop Contract With Expelled UE

CLEVELAND, Nov. 4 (AP)—The CIO opened today what promised to be a long, bitter fight for control over 450,000 electrical unionists by appealing to their employers for help.

The 1,200 electrical manufacturers holding contracts with the United Electrical Workers were urged not to recognize the old left-wing leadership as bargaining agent.

The request was made in telegrams dispatched to each firm by CIO Secretary-Treasurer James B. Carey, administrative chairman of a newly-chartered, right-wing electric union.

Carey pointed out that the old UE had been fired out of the CIO in convention here two days ago and said his group "demands" that it be recognized wherever the UE has a contract.

Employers On Spot

This tactic put employers squarely in the middle, since they are legally bound under old contracts. Right now, the UE is engaged in contract negotiations with General Electric and Westinghouse, employing more than 200,000.

Carey's union is known as the International United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers (CIO). The old union has the same name except for the word "International."

This similarity prompted Albert H. Fitzgerald, president of the old UEW to go to court in Philadelphia. He asked Federal Court to

Drop Entrance Examinations

ST. THOMAS, Nov. 4—(CP)—Ontario plans a radical change in its education system that will wipe out the division between elementary and high schools and reorganize the traditional setup of graded school years. Education Minister Porter announced the new system in an address Thursday night that also disclosed changes to be made in curricula and teaching methods. He said some of the changes will come into effect at the beginning of the 1950 school term next September; others will take several years.

Speaking to a meeting of 250 St. Thomas and Elgin teachers, he outlined this five-point program:

1. No more high-school-entrance examinations.
2. Reorganization of the present 13-grades into four divisions—primary, junior, intermediate and senior—to eliminate the dividing line between primary and secondary schools.
3. Redistribution of the teaching load in the higher divisions by transferring certain subjects.
4. Shifting the responsibility for outlining the courses in elementary schools to the local or municipal level.
5. Special changes in various school subjects to meet changing needs and conditions and keep abreast of a changing world.

To Ease Break

Mr. Porter said the elimination of high-school-entrance examinations is designed to end the "arbitrary break" between grade 8, the last elementary school year, and grade 9, the first high school term. Under the four-division system, courses could be made more continuous.

The Porter plan met general approval with education officials, teacher and parents in Toronto. C. C. Goldring, Toronto's director of education, commended the trend towards elimination of the two-level system of primary and secondary schools and also favored abolition of entrance examinations.

"The proposed system will bring us more in line with the United States and Great Britain," he said.

A. J. Skearns, Toronto's Board of Education chairman, said the change was expected because it is anticipated Ontario's Royal Commission on Education will make recommendations along the same lines when it brings in its report.

Fear German Policy Flop Call Big Three Conference

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4—(AP)—British fears that the western powers are beginning to pull apart on top German policy were reported today to have touched off the sudden calling of a big-three foreign ministers meeting in Paris next week. Reports that plans were afoot for the big-three conclave had spread here, but first actual confirmation came from the British Foreign Office in London today.

A Foreign Office spokesman said that the meeting probably would begin next Wednesday or Thursday. The date depends on when State Secretary Dean Acheson of the United States can reach Paris to join Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin of Britain and Foreign Minister Robert Schuman of France.

Other Topics Expected

Actually, speculation among diplomats here is that even though Germany is the primary subject, the ministers' discussions may range widely. The general conflict with Russia and particularly the Yugoslav situation were mentioned.

With respect to Yugoslavia the western powers may soon be confronted with the need for a decision on how far they will go in supporting Premier Tito if Moscow Communists unleash guerrilla warfare against him.

The suggestion for the Paris meeting is understood to have been made first by Bevin.

Brockville UE Union Will Stick With CIO

BROCKVILLE, Nov. 4 (CP)—Employees of the Phillips Electrical Works passed a resolution Thursday night empowering their local officers to take steps to retain their affiliation with the CIO and the Canadian Congress of Labor.

The move would withdraw them from the United Electrical Workers Union, expelled this week from the CIO for alleged Communist leadership.

Union Local 510 is expected to line up with the International Union of Electrical Radio and Machine Workers (CIO) formed at the Cleveland CIO convention to replace the UEW.

Before a packed hall, George Harris, district secretary-treasurer of the UEW, pleaded unsuccessfully with the workers to remain in the UEW.

George Harris and Alderman James O. Cunningham held the floor for approximately 1½ hours in opposition to the resolution to any secession moves from the UE.

Community Plan Said Necessary For Housing Aid

HALIFAX, Nov. 4.—(CP). — Reconstruction Minister Winters indicated Thursday that any Canadian cities and towns which want federal aid for housing developments had better get community plans organized soon.

He told the Maritime division of the Community Planning Association of Canada: "I am not making any predictions but it is not beyond the bounds of possibility that the federal government might make its aid contingent on housing developments forming part of a properly organized community plan."

Mr. Winters said Ottawa was offering to contribute 75 per cent of the funds required for the assembly and servicing of lands to be used as residential sites for private builders.

It also was offering to contribute 75 per cent of funds required for development of rental housing projects and was prepared to accept the same proportion of the deficits which would arise when it was necessary to set rentals below the economic level. The provinces would put up the rest.

Work Together

The proposals would permit the government to enter into arrangements with provincial governvince had been asked to collabments to tackle a wide variety of housing problems. Each pro-

TORONTO, Nov. 4 — (CP)—An East-end druggist was taken for a "ride" Thursday night, beaten by two thugs, robbed of $200 and dumped in a ditch, he told police.

James Small said he stepped into an automobile he thought was a taxi, outside an East-end beverage room. He asked the driver to take him home. In the back seat of the car was another man, who kept quiet until they reached the suburbs, then told Small to keep quiet.

Small was taken to hospital when found wandering on the road on the outskirts of the city. He was treated for face cuts.

Indian Slain Pair Arrested

LONDON, Ont. Nov. 4 (CP)—A man and a woman were arrested by police early today shortly after Edward Riley, 43 of Muncey, was found fatally wounded in a laneway on the Chippawa Reserve. Riley died about 20 minutes after police arrived.

Lloyd Nicholas, beside whose house Riley was found, and Frances Smith, both Muncey Indians, are scheduled to appear in county magistrate's court today.

Police said Riley's face was covered with blood from cuts on his forehead. An axe was found nearby, and police said it had smear marks on it.

Nicholas who was convicted in 1947 of manslaughter in the death of Eldon Meredith, Wallaceburg medical student by shooting on Aug. 24, 1946, was arrested by police near where Riley was lying. The Smith woman was with Nicholas, police said, and clothing of both persons was spatte with blood.

Slap Controls On U.S. Goods

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4 (AP)—The United States government today slapped rigid controls on shipment of strategic goods to any place in the world — except Canada—to prevent re-shipments to the Soviet bloc.

Communist China and Latin America particularly were covered by the new rules.

Officials told a reporter the step was taken more with the idea of averting future re-shipment difficulties than because of any great current traffic in re-shipments to Russian-dominated areas.

Hitherto the department has applied these rigid controls only to Europe and adjacent areas, mostly along the southern rim of the Mediterranean.

The new action extends the control powers to exports to any place in the world except Canada, which has always been in a relatively control-free class of its own, even in wartime.

Another Man Off Princess' Stag List

CHATSWORTH, Derby, England, Nov. 4—(AP)—Michael Tree, long considered a leading eligible for Princess Margaret's hand, married 22-year-old Lady Anne Cavendish here Thursday.

Lady Anne is the younger daughter of the Duke of Devonshire.

Tree is the elder son of Ronald Tree former Conservative member of parliament. He is 27.

The bridegroom and Princess Margaret were childhood friends. A wave of royal marriage rumors developed in 1938 after Margaret spent a week-end at the Tree family home, Ditchley Park, Oxfordshire.

Tenants Call It Outrage But Landlords Very Happy

OTTAWA, Nov. 4. — (CP). — Eight little words—it all depends on the point of view—just about summed up the reaction from the man - in - the - street in Ottawa Thursday night to the Government's anouncement easing rent control regulations.

Generally speaking, landlords said the news was "wonderful" and "about time"; tenants called it an "outrage" and "the last straw."

Told that Finance Minister Douglas Abbott had announced that landlords now may increase rentals on shared accommodation by 20 per cent., George Bleakney, legal adviser to the Ottawa and District Tenants' Protective Association, replied:

"It is an outrage that people who occupy shared accommodation should have to pay even more than they are paying now.

"People who have been paying $50 will have to pay $60 now. This is a great hardship. I don't think that many landlords will fail to take advantage of the opportunity to raise rents."

Charles Compton, president of the Ottawa Property-Owners' Association, said:

"This is a concession to landlords which they will welcome.

"While rent control had its good points during the war, the emergency has, in my opinion, ended. In this age of democracy the rights of the individual must be guarded at all costs. The principle of an Englishman's home being his castle seems to have been neglected during this period of controls."

Brick-Hurling Mob Fells 6 Policemen, As Reds Freed

NEW YORK, Nov. 4 —(AP)—Eleven convicted top American Communists were released from prison Thursday night under heavy bonds. Less than three hours later a brick-hurling mob in Harlem—New York's predominantly Negro district—felled six policemen in a wild welcome-home for one of the Red leaders.

The Communist bigwigs signed bail bonds totalling $260,000 snd walked out to a freedom that may last a year until the United States Supreme Court reviews their recent conviction on charges of conspiring to advocate violent overthrow of the United States govment.

Defendant Benjamin J. Davis, Jr., Negro city councilman, met a roaring welcome when he made a street-corner speech in Harlem a short time later. With him were defendants Henry Winston, also a Negro, and Robert Thompson.

A crowd of about 2,000 cheered the speakers and then began a torchlight parade up Lenox Avenue through the tense, crowded heart of New York's Negro district.

A handful of police stood by. Officers later said the marchers endangered bystanders by waving their flickering torches.

Three police cars swung across Lenox Avenue at 114th Street. The paraders broke the thin police line and milled around the cars, chanting in tune with a sound truck "We will not be moved."

From rooftops came a barrage of bottles, bricks, saucers, cups and broomsticks.

Missiles shattered windows in the area. The paraders tried vainly to overturn a police car. Its windshield was smashed.

The injured police, none hurt severely, were taken to hospitals after they were hit by bricks or other objects.

Gets 10-Year Sentence In Manslaughter Case

TORONTO, Nov. 4 (CP)—Harvey Louis Southerby, 20, of Windsor convicted of manslaughter in the slaying of Leslie William Hern last summer, today was sentenced to 10 years in Kingston penitentiary.

Southerby originally was charged with the murder of Hern, whose body was found stuffed under the boardwalk of an east-end beach. The charge was reduced to manslaughter last week when he was convicted by an Assize Court jury.

Southerby's father made a personal plea for mercy for the youth when he appeared on his son's behalf before Mr. Justice Schro-er.

Claxton Rejects Committee For Defence

OTTAWA, Nov. 4 — (CP). — The government once again has rejected an Opposition request for a standing Commons committee on national defence.

Defence Minister Claxton turned down the suggestion made on Thursday by George Drew, Progressive Conservative Leader.

Mr. Drew said the report of a three-man commission on the Navy indicated need for an in-defence. He renewed an oft-repeated and oft-rejected plea for establishment of a defence committee in the Commons.

"I would welcome such a committee," replied Mr. Claxton, "but I do not think that it is the right way to run the defence forces of this country.'

He said a defence committee had never been established either in the United Kingdom or Canadian Parliaments.

There would be "fullest opportunity" to discuss the administration of defence when its estimates come under study next week.

Need All Details

Mr. Drew said the members had no right to discuss the $400,000,000 in defence estimates without all the knowledge available to the government.

Need for a committee was emphasized by the Navy report and the adverse reports of the recent joint RCAF-Army operation on the Alaska Highway, Exercise Eagle.

Mr. Drew read a section of the Navy report telling of unsanitary living conditions aboard the carrier Magnificent. If the organization of the Navy was at all effective, this must have been brought before the Defence Department over and over again. If they were not brought before the Department, then there must be some breakdown in organization.

Mr. Drew also agreed that criticism of Navy-recruiting methods was warranted. He agreed with the commission recommendation that recruiting appeals be based on the patriotic willingness of young men to serve in the forces.

Placed No Limit

Mr. Claxton said he was glad to hear Mr. Drew say the Navy report indicated the value of such inquiries. He had directed that the inquiry be made and had made no effort to limit the scope of the investgaton.

Mr. Claxton said the commissioners made it clear that by the very nature of things, their report was bound to be critical. But they said this did not mean there was not a good deal of right about the Navy as well.

Of unsanitary conditions on board the Magnifivent, Mr. Claxton said he believes "it was somebody else's job to look after the cockroaches."

orate in the way each thought would best serve local needs. He felt each municipality should present to its provincial government a statement of housing requirements and proposals for the kind of program which would fulfil their plans for the development and redevelopment of their communities.

"If any community wishes to seek the aid of the provincial and federal governments, either in the assembly and servicing of land or in the provision of rental housing under public ownership, it is most desirable that such an application should be supported by evidence of the need for such aid," Mr. Winters said.

Right Wingers

wing leadership. Attendance was estimated at anywhere from 2,000 to 2,800.

In reply the left-wingers claim to have suspended the right wing executive, appointed a new interim one, and declared a vote of confidence in the UE.

A blanket resolution empowering the executive to keep the union within the CIO and CCL, similar to the one passed by the right wingers in Peterborough, also was passed by the Cobourg Local, Morton told the Examiner. The Cobourg Local has about 120 pro-Morton faction in Peterborough in the new electrical union announced at the Cleveland convention.

Rival Union Set Up

The well-established UE was expelled from the CIO Wednesday for allegedly following "the Communist line" and a rival organization known as the International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers was set up under CIO secretary-treasurer James B. Carey.

It was no secret that Peterborough's strongly right-wing leadership was opposed to the policies of C. S. Jackson, Canadian UE president, and was casting about for other direction.

Fearing the Union would be tossed out by the CIO if it remained under left-wing leadership, President Morton introduced the motion "to take whatever steps may be necessary as soon as possible to enable members to retain the connection they have always had with the CIO and CCL."

Whether the motion passed or not, and whether the subsequent actions of the left-wing under Jackson were legal or not, are still matters of controversy after the Thursday meeting. It all depends on which faction is telling the tale. And at the moment it would take a Philadelphia lawyer to sort out the exact legal position of either.

Divided Into Two Meetings

The hectic two-hour session actually divided itself into two meetings each claimed by the rival faction to be illegal. It was marked by strong outbursts of ill feeling including much stamping, shouting, and at least one outbreak of physical violence.

There were no large disorders, however, as the membership confined itself to jeers, catcalls and shouted comment when it disapproved of speakers. An increased police guard proved unnecessary.

Boiling point was reached when after much heckling during a speech by Keith Chiles, financial secretary, President Morton seized the microphone, put the resolution to the floor, and after a show of hands declared it carried by a three-to-one majority.

Morton Struck

As soon as Morton declared the meeting adjourned an excited union member leaped to the platform and struck him. The assailant was immediately hustled off and received rough treatment on his way out to the fresh air.

Apparently unhurt, and following hard upon the resolution and adjournment, Morton left the Brock Street Summer Gardens with other top right wingers. He left the meeting still in a confused uproar.

Though he did not mention affiliation with the International UE-CIO, there was no doubt left as to the drift of right-wing leadership under his direction.

A press release issued after the meeting from CCL headquarters by Morton stated the employees "voted support for the new UE-CIO launched by the CIO."

The position of the right wing was made more difficult because, although the CIO had expelled the UE, the CCL had not. Neither faction has much doubt that this will occur, however.

A more positive position probably would have been taken had the CCL met to formally declare itself as the UE officers are already suspended from the Executive Council.

Complete resolution, claimed passed by the right-wingers by a three to one vote, follows:

"That the membership of Local 524 vote full power to the Executive Board of Local 524 to act in their behalf to protect their membership, treasury, and property; to keep all the aforementioned in Local 524 and within the confines of the CIO and CCL; and that the officers of this Local union are hereby instructed to take whatever steps may be necessary as soon as possible to enable members to retain the connection they have always had with the CIO and CCL."

When the Morton faction walked out, together with a large proportion of the membership, that only concluded half of the night's activities. The adjournment officially ended the meeting, the rightists contend.

Jackson Takes Over

With the Summer Gardens in a hubbub and with many of the union members walking out or shouting abuse at one another, C. S. Jackson walked up to the microphone and called for order.

He told them to sit down and "a democratic UE meeting" would proceed. As UE president, he explained afterwards, he possessed the authority to call a special membership meeting to uphold the rights of union members whenever he saw fit. And this was one of those times.

'Y' Membership 39 Men Down

Final returns from captains of the two divisions of the YMCA Men's membership campaign have this year's total 38 members short of last year's. As in the boy's department, the men continue to join throughout the year and it is expected that membership will increase considerably.

Largest decrease came in the social and bath memberships which slumped 24 members while in the Young Men's Department there was an increase of nine.

One division remained the same club with 33 members.

Only one other division besides the Young Men's is as high as last year and that is the business men's which increased by six members. Other divisions which are lower this year are: rural down five; social, down 14; seniors down 12.

about 2,000 members were in the Summer Gardens originally, and 1,170 stayed for the second meeting.

A series of drastic resolutions were introduced and then passed. In a smashing reply to the would-be secessionists the left wingers suspended the complete pro-Morton executive. And in its place they appointed an interim executive under the acting-president. T. P. Davies.

Under leftist suspension are John G. Morton, president; Keith Chiles, financial secretary; Cyril O'Donnell, secretary; Joseph Murphy, treasurer; William Whibbs, negotiating committee; George Niles, secretary stewards' council; Phyllis Pond, negotiating committee; Mr. Campbell, floor guard; J. A. Wilson, trustee; W. (Dick) Walsh, trustee, and George O'Brien, negotiating committee.

Today a letter over the signature of C. S. Jackson and T. P. Davies will inform the company of the suspension list and the following interim list will be named: T. P. Davies, W. Anderson, Mervin Chambers, James Southgate, Arthur Hunter, R. Allchin, George Wallace, A. Cross, A. Chandler, A. Brooks, F. Thorrington, S. Perry, V. Heath, R. Battley, H. Woodeck, Flo Farrence, P. MacNamee, R. R. Harvey, A. Broult, and Alex Seppalla.

An injunction will also be issued preventing the suspended executives from disposing of the union's funds, Jackson told the membership.

To add to the confusion on the matter of legality the Jackson faction also reports an overwhelming vote of union members confirming their allegiance to the UE. A copy of this resolution was passed around, they say, for signatures.

Jackson pointed out a section in the UE constitution that would appear to be a stumbling block to the rightists securing the local's finances.

Part of Section "O" reads: "Any disbandment, dissolution, secession or disaffiliation of any local shall be invalid and null and void if seven or more members indicate their desire to retain the local charter."

The question of which faction is to obtain the treasury and property of the UE may yet have to be decided in the civil courts.

Membership Meeting

Acting vice-president Davies and Jackson of the UE both promised the workers a membership meeting for a full airing of views on Sunday, or as soon as a proper hall can be obtained.

Decision on he implementation of the strike vote—ostensible reason for the meeting being called in the first place—was tabled by the leftists.

Neither party minced words in the dispute. After the vote taken by Morton, Jackson described the local president's action as "straight bloody Fascist action and stolen whole from the book of James B. Carey in the United States."

He claimed the rightists had even packed the meeting by bringing along their wives to vote, and contended that even before the show of hands his rivals had snapped shut their brief cases ready to leave.

On his part Morton was equally vehement.

"When the Electrical workers walked out of the CIO they walked out of the Canadian labor movement. We joined the CIO. We will stay with the CIO. Jackson can take the few Communists he will soon have left into the Cominform or any other stooge outfit they may set up . . . Nothing but a united labor movement can negotiate a satisfactory settlement with the General Electric monopoly. We stay united and so will most electrical workers in Canada."

One of the most pathetic incidents was the bewilderment of one CGE girl who turned to her male companion for explanation as they both headed for the door.

"We won didn't we?" she asked while Premier Frost of Ontario and several other premiers were not immediately available for their reaction.

Ceiling Changes

The rental-ceiling changes, effective Dec. 15 next:

1. Landlords renewing leases may complete contracts of at least one year, increasing rentals by 20 per cent for unheated self-contained dwellings — apartments, houses and duplexes—and 25 per cent for heated dwellings. These leases must contain a clause al-

on one month's notice. The tenant can be evicted if he declines the offer and the accommodation thus will become free of rent control.

2. Rooms, parts of houses and the like, in which toilet facilities are shared, may have rentals increased by 20 per cent. This is the first boost for such accommodation since controls first were imposed in 1940. Landlords also will have the right to terminate leases on six-months' notice. The increase does not apply to furnished rooms in which linen and services are provided and for which the landlord charges rentals based on the number of people who occupy the room.

3. Leases of two years or more based on any rental on which the landlord and tenant agree, no longer will require approval of the rentals administrator. Previously the administrator had the right to reject such leases. However, he has approved 2,500 within the last year.

4. Landlords who owned accommodation before Nov. 1, 1949, will be able to regain possession after six months' notice. Previously they were allowed to do so on accommodation owned prior to Nov. 1, 1947. The new ruling does not come into effect until Dec. 15 and therefore landlords will not be able to regain possession before next June 15. The ruling is not retroactive but it is applicable to all parts of the year including the winter season.

Other Small Changes

A number of other small changes will be made through the Prices Board. These are expected to be announced by Dec. 15.

A spokesman indicated that the new ceilings are based on maximum rentals which can be charged. In other words, landlords who previously did not avail themselves of increases allowed a year ago, are permitted to charge both increases.

The increases a year ago included an over-all 10 per cent increases for unheated houses and 15 per cent for heated homes.

M. Abbott said the government's decision to obtain a court ruling was a precaution.

"It is possible that the courts would decide that our regulations are unconstitutional. We cannot disregard that possibility."

An order-in-council, allowing for the court test, is expected to be passed within the next two weeks, a spokesman said. The court is not expected to hear the case until next February.

If a decision is not handed down before the date of expiry—March 31—the government likely will ask parliament to renew the controls, to give life to the regulations pending a court decision.

TORONTO, Nov. 4 (CP) — A Toronto paper said today that a survey shows that rents on Toronto's approximately 80,000 living quarters are expected to jump nearly $800,000 because of the 20 to 25 per cent increase in rents announced from Ottawa Thursday night.

Realty experts agree that it is difficult to know the exact figure since leases will terminate at different times.

There are 33,250 rented houses, 15,800 suites, 14,500 apartments over stores, 9,602 duplex apartments, 2,784 double duplexes and 2,433 triple duplexes, making a total of 44,690 suite units.

A weak disturbance centred near Chicago this morning is moving rapidly southeastward. Intermittent light snow associated with it, falling in the Lake Erie and Lake Huron regions and scattered snowflurries occurring in the remainder of Southern Ontario will end this afternoon. Cloudy skies will persist in all regions today and Saturday, and temperatures will continue on the cool side both days. This morning's weather map indicates sunny and milder weather Sunday for all regions.

Forecasts:
Lake Ontario, Niagara, Georgian Bay and Haliburton regions: Cloudy today and Saturday. A few scattered snowflurries ending this afternoon. Cool. Winds light. Low tonight and high Saturday at Trenton, St. Catharines, 30 and 40. Killaloe and Muskoka 25 and 35.

Summary for Saturday—Cloudy and cool.

Will Bomb Ships

HONG KONG, Nov. 4 (Reuters) —The Chinese Nationalist government today formally advised British authorities in Hong Kong that its planes would bomb merchantmen found in Communist-held Chinese ports. The authorities here immediately radioed warnings to British ships on the China coast.

Ford Continues 90% Production

DETROIT, Nov. 4 (AP)—The Ford Motor Company today threw a note of cheer into the United States automobile industry's steel-darkened picture by announcing it will be able to continue nearly full production in all divisions but Lincoln throughout this month.

Earlier, the company had planned to shut down its huge Rouge plant between Nov. 11 and 15. That might have meant quick paralysis of the vast Ford system.

own steel mill at the Rouge factory and "encouraging news in the press" on the steel situation made the new plans possible, said a statement from E. R. Breech, executive vice-president.

Outlines Position

In his address, Mr. Porter outlined the proposed position of teachers, students and curricula in relation to the four divisions. He said some 46 per cent of Ontario students leave school by the time they reach 16 and the system is designed to give them a well-rounded course so they will "finish formal schooling with a sense of achievement rather than of failure."

The primary division would be roughly equivalent to grades 1-3 for pupils aged 6-8. Consideration is being given to a system whereby a teacher would have pupils from all three age groups—perhaps 10 six-year-olds and as many aged seven and eight. Thus the youngsters would have the same teacher for three successive years.

"Under such an organization from eight to 10 pupils would move on the next division—junior—each year, while from eight to 10 beginners from kindergarten, or directly from home, would enter the class," Mr. Porter said.

Avoid Wastage

"By such an organization rigid grade limits can be broken down, and it is hoped that much of the wastage at present resulting from retardation may be avoided."

The junior division will be organized similar to the primary division, a class consisting of about 30 pupils divided among the age levels nine, 10 and 11.

The intermediate division will be designed for pupils aged 12-16. Completion of this division would provide a well-rounded schooling for those pupils leaving at the age of 16. "It must also provide vocation subjects for those pupils who have already decided to enter business and industry at the age of 16."

For those pupils planning to enter the senior division, the intermediate division would provide an exploratory period in which most pupils would select the course in which they wished to specialize. Plans for the senior division have not yet been completed.

Mr. Porter said the course of study issued by his department will be in general terms, indicating the objectives to be obtained and the principles to be followed.

Low Level Responsibility

"Responsibility for filling in the details will rest at the local level and it is anticipated this will be accomplished through wide participation in the construction of courses of study by groups of teachers and inspectors in co-operation with other professionally-competent persons selected by local authorities."

The present 13 grades will be reorganized into four divisions.

1. Primary division—roughly equivalent to the present grades one to three.
2. Junior division—equivalent to grades four to six.
3. Intermediate division—the present grades seven to 10.
4. Senior division—grades 11 to 13.

The revisions will be spread over a few years in order to avoid abrupt changes which might adversely affect the educational progress of the pupils, Mr. Porter said.

Changes considered radical will be tested with small groups before being introduced generally, but certain definite changes in line with the program will go into effect in September, 1950.

Elimination of high school entrance examinations, Mr. Porter said, is designed to break down "an arbitrary break between grades eight and nine which prevents proper articulation between the elementary and secondary levels."

$40 Cash Stolen From Boys' Town

About $40 was stolen from the Boys' Town club house in Nicholls Oval Thursday night. Police already believe they have a good idea who the culprits are.

The money was discovered missing when members of the club entered about 7:30 p.m. Entry was believed made by a window.

Cheese, Produce And Livestock

TORONTO FRUIT

TORONTO, Nov. 4 (CP) — Wholesale fruit and vegetable prices were unchanged here today.

TORONTO PRODUCE

TORONTO, Nov. 4 (CP)—Produce prices quoted on the spot market this morning: Churning cream was two cents higher at 62 cents fob, 66 delivered.

Butter prints were unquoted.

The egg market was firm this morning at unchanged prices. Country shippers quoted graded eggs, cases free: grade A large, 52-54; A medium, 46-48; A pullet, 37-39; grade B, 44-45; grade C, 34-35. Wholesale to retail: grade A large, 57-58; A medium, 50-51; A pullet, 41-42; grade B, 49-50; grade C, 39-40.

Trading was quiet on the butter solid market. First grades were quoted nominally at 60¼-60½. Second grades were not quoted.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, Nov. 4 (CP) — Further good demand attributed to exporters came into oats at today's opening on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange and prices showed a firm tone. Barley also moved up for small gains under buying from shippers and American interests.

Local and commission house selling sent rye prices downward during the dull trade. Flax is not yet open.

Prices:

Oats—Dec. ⅛ higher at 81; May ¼ higher at 81; July not open.

Barley—Dec. ⅛-¼ higher at $1.46⅜-¾; May ⅝ higher at $1.44-1.44⅛; July not open.

Rye—Dec. ½-⅜ lower at $1.52-$1.52⅛B; May ⅜ lower at $1.55½-¾B; July not open.

Flax—Dec., May, July, not open.

Not To Be Confused

Gip Feeley, whose taxis were reported damaged in what was thought to be a gang feud, is Geoffrey Feeley, not Leo Joseph Feeley. The two men are brothers. Although Gip Feeley's taxis were damaged, it was Leo Joseph who testified against Joseph Fontaine in police court Oct. 27. Fontaine was facing a charge of receiving a stolen outboard motor and Leo Joseph's evidence was given at the preliminary hearing. Taxi operators said today Mr. Fontaine was not an operator.

restrain the CIO from organizing a new union under that name.

The title was chosen, said Fitzgerald, "to create chaos, confusion, disorder and deceit." Workers, he went on, "won't be sure what union they belong to and employers will be unsure of what union they are bargaining with."

To Hold Convention

Philadelphia is the city where the expelled UE will hold its convention Nov. 21 and the new IUE-CIO will organize a week later.

In other cities, left and right wing factions of the torn union were fighting in the courts over local treasuries and property.

In Pittsburgh, Byron Byers, a trustee of Westinghouse Local 601 elected on a left-wing ticket, got a temporary injunction tying up the local's $140,000 bank account as he challenged the right of right-wing officers to take over the funds.

And in Pittsfield, Mass., Judge Joseph E. Warner ordered right-wing leaders of the 7,000-member local there to return $38,000 of the local's funds which had been transferred to national CIO headquarters in Washington.

This same pattern was being followed in courts at Dayton, O., New York, Boston, Cleveland, Schentectady, N.Y., and Bridgeport, Conn.

Labor lawyers call this type of inter-union fighting "the messiest area in which the National Labor Relations Board operates."

Carey, who once headed the old UE, claims his group can count on 150,000 as loyal to the CIO and ready to affiliate with his union.

Base Metal Stocks Jump On Exchange

TORONTO, Nov. 4 (CP)—Base metal stocks bounded upwards into new high ground in the forenoon on the Toronto Stock Exchange today.

Best gains in base metals appeared at the opening following news of an increase in the price of copper. The market settled after the initial burst and trading slowed to a crawl.

Industrials tended fractionally lower while golds firmed on scattered advances. Western oils also brightened led by a strongly moving Atlantic oil, up 11 cents at $1.18.

Noranda was the leader in base metals as the group resumed Tuesday's advance. Noranda gained ½ at 68 and Quemont and International Nickel were ahead fractions. East Sullivan opened in a flurry of heavy buying to climb to a new high at $5.05 before settling at $4.95, up 10 cents.

Bell Telephone steadied from yesterday's sharp decline, gaining ¼ at 40⅜. Other utilities tended lower and papers also eased in the Industrial groupings. Refining oils were firmer, Imperial Oil adding ⅜ at a new high at 21⅛.

Kerr Addison continued gaining in senior golds and a few junior producers showed advances up to five cents.

A. G. Carruthers Dies In London

With the Canadian Pacific Express for 48 years, Aaron G. Carruthers, veteran of the First World War, died yesterday at Westminster Hospital, London, Ont. He was in his 86th year and had been rettired since 1928.

He served overseas with the 39th Battalion of Belleville for more than three years and held the rank of major.

Mr. Carruthers was born in Renfrew and joined the Canadian Pacific Express in Winnipeg. He enger. In 1891 he came to Toronto and was transferred to Peterborough in 1906. After the First World War he returned to Toronto and was appointed line auditor from Sault Ste. Marie to Halifax for the CP Express.

Mr. Carruthers, familiarly known in Peterborough as "The Major," never lost his connection with this city and made annual visits here renewing old friendships.

In his youth Mr. Carruthers was a runner. He was a member of "E" Company, Queen's Own Association and the Canadian Military Institute.

Surviving are his widow, Annie M. Carruthers, a daughter, Mrs. H. Freestone, and a son, W. Ross Carruthers, all of Toronto.

Attlee Steals Russian Thunder

LONDON, Nov. 4 — (AP) — Prime Minister Attlee Thursday accused Russia of using the United Nations veto to further imperialistic aims.

In a speech at a U.N. rally in suburban Walthamstow, he charged that the Soviet Union and other Eastern-European Communist countries are anti-democratic and have frustrated the work of the U.N.

"They (the Russians) have in fact used it (the veto) as an instrument of power politics and for furthering the imperialistic aims of that government.

"Despite all their professions, that group of powers in Eastern Europe who obey the orders of the Kremlin are anti-democratic.

"Their philosophy comprises the belief in the right to rule of an aristocracy of ideology.

"They believe in force, they are totally unacquainted with the methods of democracy which obtain in states which have a long experience of civilization."

Rent Changes

OTTAWA, Nov. 4 (CP) — Highlights of Finance Minister Abbott's announcements on rental regulations:

The government wants to abolish rent-controls eventually but prefers to do it on its own time and in its own way.

The government has decided to refer the question of validity of rental regulations to the Supreme Court.

If the regulations are declared valid, the government plans to extend rent-control beyond March 31 1950.

If the regulations are declared invalid, the government will help provinces to prepare "stand-by" rental control regulations.

The government remains willing to vacate the rent-control field to any province making a formal request.

Rentals for rooms in which a tenant must share toilet facilities or other similar equipment may be increased 20 per cent.

Landlords of accommodation in which tenants share toilet facilities may terminate any lease on six months' notice.

A 20-per-cent increase in rents on unheated, self-contained dwellings provided they offer a one-year lease.

Two-year leases agreed upon by tenants and landlords may be signed without specific approval of the rentals administrator.

Landlords who owned accommodation before Nov. 1, 1949, can gain possession on six months' notice if they want the accommodation for their own use.

The new regulations beccme effective Dec. 15, 1949.

Gordon Speech Gov't Policy Drew Declares

OTTAWA, Nov. 4 (CP)—Question of whether Donald Gordon's address in New York last Monday constituted Canadian government policy was bandied in the Commons Thursday.

Prime Minister St. Laurent, replying to a question by T. L. Church (PC-Toronto Broadview) said the speech delivered by the ... does not purport to be a statement of policy."

Later, during the budget debate, George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, said the address may not officially be a statement of government position but it amounted to the same thing.

Discussion of whether Mr. Gordon's address is government policy or not developed while Mr Drew was advocating that Canada call a conference of Commonwealth nations to look for a solution of Commonwealth trade problems.

Set World Pattern.

Mr. Drew's contention was that solution of the Commonwealth difficulties would set a pattern for solution on a world scale.

Mr. Drew suggested at one point that the government at last realized that Canada's trade problems constitute a "crisis."

Finance Minister Abbott interjected that no minister had used the word "crisis."

If they didn't, replied Mr. Drew they failed to use a word that adequately described the situation and their general admissions on the subject of trade.

Mr. Drew went on to say that Mr. Gordon had used the word in his New York address.

Mr. Abbott said Mr. Donold Gordon speech does not necessarily constitute government policy despite the fact that he was agreed with the statements made by Mr. Gordon. Copies of the speech had been sent to him simply as a matter of courtesy not to be approved by the government.

VANCOUVER INDEPENDENT—John Lambert Gibson, a wealthy Vancouver lumberman, made his first move in federal politics when he was elected to the Commons in 1945 as independent member for Comox-Alberni. He was born March 7, 1906 in Vancouver, and is a director of the lumbering firms of Gibson Bros., Ltd., and W. F. Gibson and Sons.

Library Circulation Shows Slight Drop

Circulation in the adult and juvenile departments of the Public Library dropped slightly during October, William Graff, Librarian reported to the Library Board Thursday night.

The adult department slipped by 280 under October, 1948, while the juvenile department dropped 1520.

These decreases the librarian said barely effect the total figures for this year up to October 31. The increase over last year is still 36,403, with the total circulation for this year being 161,909.

Mr. Graff announced while giving his report that the Peterborough Group of Painters will exhibit their work at the Public Library in the auditorium from November 19 to December 31. During the latter part of October, he said, the exhibit of the National Association of Women Artists of the United States was on display in the auditorium while at present the work of the pupils in the Public Schools is being exhibited.

Suggests Area Competition For Farmers At Fall Fairs

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 4 — (ENS)—"Farm boys and girls are better trained today than we were at their age to carry on fair work," said Ben Bleecker, Belleville, first vice-president of Ontario's Fairs Board, at the annual banquet of the Seymour Agricultural Society Thursday. More than 150 sat down to a turkey dinner served by Christ Church Parish Guild.

Mr. Bleecker outlined the conditions that were necessary to have a fair placed in Class A and B categories.

... saving your fair elevated to one of these classes is to have the grants greatly increased," he said. "You should at least, strive to reach the Class B category," he told them.

"In order to encourage the exhibiting of commercial feature products," he said, "special prizes, confined to certain areas, should be offered. This encourages the local farmers to exhibit the product from which he receives the major source of his income."

He said that a fair without a good secretary would, in time, meet failure. "The first duty of a secretary," he asserted, "is to co-operate with the directors and exhibitors. A co-operative secretary is the greatest asset to any fair" he added.

Judge Competently

He advised the Fair Board to engage competent judges. The best article should be placed at the top, he stated. Exhibitors were quick to sense favoritism.

Ralph Banbury, Agricultural Representative for Northumberland County, said that plans made this year will decide the success of a fair next year. He spoke of the excellent work that the calf and swine clubs were doing in training farm girls and boys.

"Take the dairy cow and bacon hog from the rural fair," he asserted, "and you have nothing left. Both bring large sums of money to this country. We can never build up a fair by following the old trail," he warned.

Mrs. W. A. Hume, of Campbellford, second vice-president of the women's division of the Ontario Fairs Board, outlined the duties of the board's officers and gave an account of the convention held each year in Toronto.

... said that in 1930 less than 10 women attended the convention and more than 300 were in attendance last year. One highlight of the convention had been the handicraft display, augmented demonstration of weaving by the Department of Planning and Development. A handicraft display from Campbellford was highly commended she said.

Other speakers were Mayor H. McDonald and the Rev. Gordon J. A. Whitehorn, of Seymour United Churches. Frank Heagle proposed a toast to the ladies and it was responded to by Mrs. Jesse Locke. A. B. Billen welcomed the visitors.

Reg Seymour thanked the Parish Guild for the dinner and Mrs. F. Linton responded. Ernest Irwin presented J. C. Anderson with an Agricultural Service Diploma for his outstanding service on the Fair Board. The guest speaker was introduced by Fred Rutherford.

Program numbers included songs and dances by Harriet and Janet Houlihan, of Codrington, songs by Elmer Kelly and recitations by Fred Palliser. Percy Oddie, president of the Fair Board, was in the chair.

Surprise Shower Held For Miss Jean Fisher

MILLBROOK, Nov. 4 (ENS)—Mrs. Alan Sloan and Mrs Hugh Abbott were joint hostesses at a miscellaneous shower on Tuesday at Mrs. Sloan's home for Miss Jan Fisher, who is to be married later this month. The showed had been kept a surprise. The bride-to-be was led to a chair, decorated in pink and white with a pink umbrella above it. On a table in front of her was a cup made from a bushel basket decorated in pink and white complete with handle and saucer to match. The gifts were arranged ... there were 30 presents ... Dainty refreshments were served by the hostesses.

Missing Farm Hand Took Only His Razor

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 4 — (ENS) — The disappearance of Nycola Dogosch, a Polish farmhand, from the home of Gerald Mitchell, five miles east of here Monday night, still remains a mystery. The latest check-up on his room reveals that the only article he took with him was a straight razor.

Home Catches Fire

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 4 — (ENS)—Firemen were called to the home of Andrew Ibey, Havelock road, at 10.45 a.m., Thursday, where a blaze of unknown origin had caught in a partition. There was little damage.

British Writers Criticize Army's Battle Exercises

By WILLIAM BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON—(CP)—Former war correspondents who watched recent British Army manoeuvres in Germany returned to their desks muttering that what they saw was smart by 1945 standards but out of date in an atomic era.

Their criticism was that tactics by the 2nd Infantry and 7th Armored divisions part of Lt.-Gen. Sir Charles Keightley's British Army of the Rhine, ignored that a Russian invasion would be a mass land-air attack against Western forces vastly ni... is the sort of war experts believe would open a defensive against the Russians.

"Luxurious" Warfare

British formations have been concentrating on narrow fronts, with hard-hitting units in solid depth and air mastery. This, say the critics, is "luxurious" warfare over an inferiorly-equipped and out-numbered enemy.

British spokesmen have said since that the exercise was built around the capacities of the divisions' men—largely 18- and 19-year-olds in the service 18 months. The Americans and ... regulars who were were in the service at least three years.

The comment of the military writers has been that since the BAOR is for all purposes Britain's Continental commitment to Western Union it should be an ... Western Union's supreme land commander, Gen. de Lattre de Tassigny.

The BAOR has three jobs: it is an occupation force, it trains Britain's national servicemen, and it is potentially Britain's Continental commitment to Gen. de Lattre's force.

Western Union spokesmen have said long since that the organization's projected 23-division army would take to the field as one formation. Units, chains of command, equipment and signals are being standardized.

But of the 23 divisions, it appears likely that no more than 10 would be available on the spot in the first days or weeks. Much would hinge on those early days on their calibre and technique of warfare.

Of the three major powers with armies on the Continent, France and the United States have been exercising their forces in campaigns of movement on extended fronts, sweeping them over hundreds of miles of territory. This ... elite formation. Of the 180,000 regulars in Britain's 406,000-man army, wrote the Manchester Guardian's military correspondent, "it should be possible for the War Office to spare 35,000 regulars for the Rhine Army to create two splendid divisions which might set a standard."

The present staff, they say, is so busy processing National Servicemen that it has no time to keep abreast of war development. As a result, "having used one technique with success in North Africa Sicily, Italy and Northwest Europe, they have written it ...

One military writer said, "There is not the remotest chance of the Allies working in that way in the early stages of any coming war." The two Rhine divisions "should become forcing grounds for new ideas, not museums for old ones."

Margaret Coughlin Buried At Douro

Funeral of Margaret Celestine Coughlin, a resident of Lakefield until five years ago, took place Wednesday from the Duffus Funeral Home to St. Joseph's Church, Douro. Requiem mass was sung by Rev. J. J. McCarthy and burial was in St. Joseph's Cemetery.

Miss Coughlin died Saturday in hospital in Toronto after a short illness. She was born in Douro Township in 1915, daughter of the late James Coughlin and Bridget O'Brien. She received her education at Lakefield Public School and was a member of St. Paul's Church there. Five years ago she went to make her home in Toronto. She leaves three sisters, Mrs. Thomas Sullivan (Geraldine) of Lakefield, Mrs. Stanley Belfield (Victorine) of Toronto and Miss Mary Coughlin of Peterborough. A brother Martin Coughlin lives in Douro.

Pall-bearers were five uncles, William G., John L., Thomas and Clement O'Brien and Ambrose Coughlin, and one cousin Cyril Coughlin.

Button-Hole Marks Discerning Man

LONDON (CP)—You can tell a discerning man by the button-hole he wears, says the British Unit of Interflora, otherwise known as the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association.

With full evening dress a man should wear a white carnation; with a dinner jacket or morning coat and grey topper a crimson carnation.

A rose should be worn only on special occasions like St. George's Day. At weddings the bridegroom, the best man and the bride's father should wear gardenias. So should the ushers, although if they prefer they may wear white carnations.

Human Guinea Pigs

LONDON, Nov. 4—(Reuters)—A human "guinea pig" in experiments on malaria was bitten by mosquitoes 770 times in three days and later had a piece of his liver removed for examination, the British Medical Journal reported Thursday. C. H. Howard, 35-year-old civil servant who volunteered for the experiments, said "the irritation was at times almost unbearable." He showed no traces of malaria, the Journal said.

Factory Has Fire

LA MALBAIE, Que., Nov. 4—(CP)—Flames Thursday night caused damages estimated at $50,000 in a furniture factory here. The big plant, built at a cost of $100,000 to house the town's homecraft industries, had been closed for two years.

Fire Levels Warehouse

MONTREAL, Nov. 4—(CP)—A two-alarm fire Thursday night levelled a two-storey warehouse and threatened three other buildings when it raced through the sprawling F. Tremblay Company lumber yards. The blaze, fought by more than 200 firemen, was believed to have started on the first floor of the warehouse filled with lumber. Damage was estimated at $50,000.

Open The Markets

During most of the nineteenth century when Britain was the chief power and the world's banker there were no severe pound shortages comparable with the present dollar shortages with the United States as the great power and banker. One reason was that Britain imported freely. Her creditors paid her in goods. Britain was not of course importing out of the kindness of her heart; she had to feed her people the necessities of life and to give her gentry the world's luxuries. The United States is in a different position. She is well-provided with the raw materials and even the fancy goods. She needs to import very little. Nevertheless, until she does import in considerable quantities from her creditors and customers, there will be dollar shortages which can be curbed only by pouring out millions of her dollars in gifts and loans.

Canada is to a lesser extent in the same wealthy, credit-heavy position. This country, however, is affected both ways. She exports heavily to Britain and Europe, yet, like them, suffers from an American dollar shortage. She is Britain and Europe's creditor, but also the U.S.A.'s debtor. Both Canada and the United States will have to take more British and European goods. If they both do so, and trade is freed into multilateral channels, Canada's dollar shortage will be eased.

Mr. Donald Gordon, Deputy-Governor of the Bank of Canada spoke plainly to the U.S.A. this week:

"Experience has shown that a multilateral world has to be underwritten by some country which will provide both an export market, and a source of capital developments in less advanced regions. Britain and France had undertaken that up to 1914 ....It is only the United States which now can take the lead, which can assume the risks....I do not believe the dollar shortage can be overcome unless the United States provides a much larger, more accessible market for the goods which other nations have for sale. Only when other nations feel secure in their incomes will they be able to deal freely with their expenditures on incomes."

"We of North America stand at a crossroads. If we take one road we accept the new role of North America. It requires that we furnish a ready import market for the goods of other nations and also that we supply development capital for less advanced regions."

Britain in her own interests, as well as under the prodding of Mr. Paul Hoffman, Marshall Plan chief, at the beginning of October relaxed her import licensing policy. A wide range of goods may now be imported freely from non-dollar countries. She cannot extend this policy to the American continent until she has more dollars. If Canada and the United States follow the British lead by reducing import restrictions, Britain should have more dollars, and the policy of freer trade can be made general.

There is hope that the Americans will reverse their thirty-year-old trade policy and make trade freer. Mr. Dean Acheson, American Secretary of State, called on the United States Wednesday evening to lower its tariff barriers and to become "import minded." If it does, Europe will not flounder after 1952 when E.R.P. ends.

General Of A Forlorn Hope

This week Field Marshall the Earl Wavell arrived in Canada, and is visiting Montreal, Ottawa and Toronto. His presence gives Canadians the opportunity to honour one of the great figures of the war. In the early dark years of the war, when Britain and the democracies were ill-equipped and desperately preparing their defences in the hope of achieving a breathing space in which they could muster forces for an offensive, it was this man who with a little army of 30,000 men moved forward against the enemy in the African desert.

It deepened hope that in one section of the world the British were taking the initiative, even though the odds were hopelessly great. Wavell's small African force was pitched into a forlorn hope; yet it was an action of great courage which heartened the anti-Nazi world. Earl Wavell said last year: "I shall certainly never regret that I ordered the campaign to take place in spite of the lack of resources".

The Montreal Gazette in welcoming this noted soldier to its city pointed out that there is something more than robustness to this greatness:

There is also the heart to feel the subtler meanings of living. In his anthology of poetry, Other Men's Flowers, he collected 425 printed pages, all of which he had learned by heart, and used to recite to himself while riding his horse. He expressed his preference for Brown[illegible] King, because "they have courage and humanity and their feet are usually on the ground," and his love of Keats and Shelley, because [illegible] the keys of Canada are gladly at Earl Wavell's disposal during his tour.

Better News About Prices

The Federal Government's latest study of wholesale prices contains good news for Canadian consumers. The Dominion Bureau of Statistics reporting on its survey up to the end of September shows that wholesale prices have passed their peak and a downward trend has been quite steady in almost all types of commodities since the beginning of the year. There is a time lag before the wholesale price reductions are reflected in retail prices. Therefore, the cost-of-living index has not yet fully revealed the extent of the fall of wholesale prices.

Here is a partial indication of the wholesale price decline. The peak of the consumer goods index was passed after it reached 145 last July. That was 45 points higher than for the basic year 1926. Producers' goods passed their wholesale price peak in December, 1948. The general building materials index has been receding since March of this year. The peak in wholesale prices of raw and partly manufactured goods; of fully and chiefly manufactured goods, and of industrial materials occurred in November, October and August of 1948, respectively. The wholesale price index of Canadian farm products has been going down since June of last year. Even the wholesale livestock index is lower than its peak of 279.1 reached last December. Canned fruits are now selling for approximately the same wholesale prices as in 1926.

This general decline in wholesale prices should clearly affect all retail prices of goods by the end of the year, unless tariffs, taxes or labouring costs increase.

Recognition Is Not Approval

It seems likely that Canada will give official recognition to the Chinese Communists who have now established control and government over most of China. This would be a sensible step to take. Certainly there is little use in continuing to recognize the Chiang Kai-shek group as the legal government when it has no actual authority left to it. Recognition of the Chinese agrarian (and Communist) government would not imply approval. It is merely a nod so that what business has to be done between the two countries can be done. Recognition would not imply disapproval, either, and there are reasons for suspending judgement. The revolutionary faction has not shown that it warrants outright condemnation any more than the Nationalist government showed it merited full approval.

Canada now recognizes several Communist governments. If it has diplomatic relations with Yugoslavia, why should it not have them with China? For years Britain and Canada refused to admit officially the existence of the Soviet regime in Russia, and all they gained was the enduring hostility of the U.S.S.R. and, more important, an extravagant ignorance of what was happening in that country.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Rent controls, we read in a heading, are under fire. Landlords are firmly refusing to volunteer as firemen to douse this blaze.

A ranch hand in California murdered four people. One instance where two hands would not have been better than one.

Nye Bevan, British Minister of Health who has been responsible for providing free services from corn-removers to false hair, is paying an official visit to India this winter. Not, we presume, to give the Indians a wigging.

"Man is the only animal that prepares for the future", says a biologist. The Kingston Whig-Standard asks, "Then what does a squirrel think he's doing when he stores up nuts—just plugging a hole?" We really do not know just what a squirrel thinks.

Peterborough's new city hall is to have a map of the district on its entrance hall, to include an area from Muskoka to Lake Ontario, and from Tweed to Port Perry. Why not extend the boundary a little farther west to include Toronto? Then we could walk over Toronto too.

Notes And Queries

By ALPHA

Questions are solicited for this column particularly those relating to local lore and tradition.

DEAR ALPHA: I notice that Prudence Peterborough is disappointed because her descendents show no sympathy with her idea of celebrating her 100th anniversary.

Why does Prudence not celebrate the occasion herself in the same way that the Town Council marked the laying of the cornerstone of the first Town Hall and Market House? Dr. [illegible] devoted a chapter of his "Old Home Town" to it.

"The importance of the occasion was such," wrote Dr. Poole, that it was arranged that an ox should be roasted whole, wherewith to entertain "All and singular", who might chobse to accept the hospitality of the town. This part of the programme was literally carried out, but, unfortunately, while revolving upon the spit, the body of the ox was carried away, either piecemeal or entire, by persons whose guilt was never verified; and thus the great feast of the evening fell to the portion of others than those for whom it was intended. A sumptuous dinner was however served by Thomas Chambers, Esq. at his "Commercial Hotel"; which was followed by speeches and such conviviality as is usual on occasions of the kind"....

If Prudence arranged a monster barbeque, followed by such conviviality as is usual on occasions of the kind, and staged it at the Exhibition Grounds for "all and singular" who could and would pay a small admission fee, the 100th anniversary of the Incorporation of the town of Peterborough could be celebrated without much expense to the taxpayer, and Prudence could meet all her old chums and make a host of new ones.

RESPONSE: A vivid suggestion which might meet the eye and favour of such a person as Mr. Gordon Matthews. With the city's present population, the ox would have to be a real whopper! Coming pat on the heels of this writer's suggestion is a note from Mrs. Helen Marryat about Thomas Chambers who substituted a sumptuous dinner for the filched ox.

"Thomas Chambers, who died in Nicholls Hospital at the age of 81, (year unknown) was one of the second Council of Peterborough. Born in County Monaghan, Ireland, he came to Peterborough in 1833; stayed two years, and returned to Ireland; came again and remained, except for ten years spent on a farm in Otonabee. He was a surveyor by profession, but went into business.

"A member of Peterborough's second Town Council, he was the last survivor of those present at the laying of the corner stone of the old market Building on September 27th, 1851.

"His pall bearers were James Stevenson, M. P. William Cumming, Henry Denne, J. J. Lundy, William Yelland and Henry Rush. He was one of Peterborough's enterprising and wealthy citizens."

Whether or not he was the Thomas Chambers who served a sumptuous dinner at his "Commercial Hotel" after the laying of the corner stone, when the barbequed ox was stolen, is not certain, but presumably he was. He taught school in Otonabee Section No. 8 for a term, (1858) relieving Samuel P. Ford, later a doctor in Norwood for half a century.

My thanks to Mrs. Marryat for the information.

SIR: I beg leave to disagree with your correspondent last Friday who said that Inverlea Bridge was never called the Black Bridge. Even the present structure is called Black Bridge by older residents. I have always heard "Smith Street Bridge" and "The Black Bridge" used interchangeably.

RESPONSE: The railway bridge to which two previous writers have referred undoubtedly did exist, was undoubtedly black, and was undoubtedly the original "Black Bridge" in local parlance. The railway which crossed Rice Lake from Cobourg and entered Ashburnham (not Peterborough proper) crossed the Otonabee on this bridge and thence went north toward Chemong through the gully behind the Normal School. Both earlier writers say the bridge was a street or two below Smith Street (Parkhill Road). I shall try to get all inconsistencies in this bridge affair cleared up next week.

DEAR ALPHA: One of my sons reads widely and I wish to give him a good dictionary for Christmas. Will you kindly suggest what would be a good choice. Several weeks ago J. [illegible] McAree, in his Toronto column wrote about the new Webster's Collegiate Dictionary—one which he values highly. Your column is followed with much interest in our home each Friday.

ANSWER: Webster's Collegiate Dictionary is very good. The biggest, fullest and in many respects the best is, of course, the Oxford English Dictionary, which was begun in the middle of Queen Victoria's reign and not completed until the end of King George V's reign. It is too expensive and its many volumes take up too much space for the ordinary home to afford. A two-volume abridgement of this, the shorter Oxford English Dictionary, is an excellent scholarly work, but probably beyond your son's present needs. I believe that its pre-war costs was forty dollars.

Webster's Twentieth Century Dictionary Unabridged is a large one-volume dictionary with illustrations and full and varied appendices. It, like the cheaper and smaller Webster Collegiate, is an America publication.

The Concise Oxford Dictionary—which is not at all expensive is good, but I prefer the cheaper, though smaller Pocket Oxford Dictionary ($1.75), for quick reference, because it is newer, gives derivations and where needed example of the words as used in phrases. If you get either the Concise or the Pocket Oxford, be sure to buy the English, not American edition. For one reason, the print is better; for another, there is no confusion between English and American pronunciation, since only the English is given.

If you were buying the cheap Oxford Pocket Dictionary, perhaps you would also like to splurge on Fowler's "Modern English Usage", published by the Oxford Press, and uniform with the dictionary in binding, though larger. It has a wealth of information on tricky words and phrases, and is so brightly written that its articles arranged alphabetically and extending from merely a one-word explanation to a whole column make enjoyable reading in themselves.

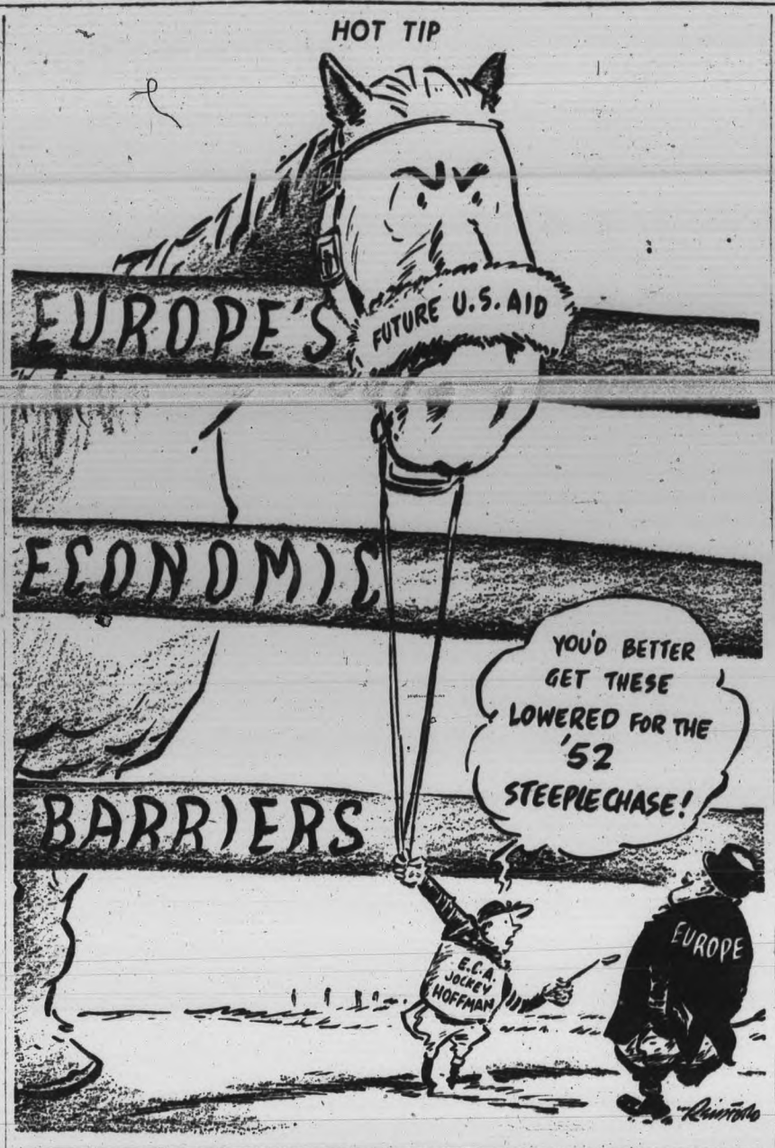
FOR THE RECORD: The new City Hall has a definite site, and work is expected to begin on clearing the site and raising the building next spring. The Council approved some months ago the buying of the block bounded by George, The Library, Water and Murray, and occupants of the houses now standing there have been given notice to be prepared to vacate by March. It is an excellent site, and I believe that the Council have chosen wisely and used a good commonsense long view.

Architects' plans for the building are now being studied. The money for the City Hall bequeathed by the late G. A. Morrow, the residue of his estate, to be made available at the estate's trustees' direction. One of the trustees is the Mayor. Mr. Morrow died ten years ago, so that interest has swelled the sum available, which is now about half a million dollars.



Letters To The Editor

YOUNGSTERS SKATE TOO LATE

Sir: Congratulations to those in charge of our Civic Arena. It is certainly a wonderful attribute to our city. But, there is one thing which would, I am sure, be worth the while of those in charge to look into, and which I am certain, judging from all the controversy round about, will have a definite bearing in the future success of the rink.

I know of many, upon visiting the rink for the purpose of skating, have gone away very disappointed, with the intention of not returning, and all because of the large number of young children who linger on until the 10:30 mark. Could something be done to have the children off the ice earlier in the evening? Don't you think when 9 o'clock rolls around it is time for the young ones to be heading home?

After a day's work at the office or shop it is a real treat to be able to head towards the rink for a couple of hours of recreation, but who in this wide world desires to fall and trip over, push and shove around, little kiddies who should long ago be in their homes. By little ones we refer to those around fourteen years and under, and believe us there are hoards of them.

No one, by any means, wishes to deprive the children of skating privileges in our Arena, but would it not be possible for the Committee in charge to arrive at some arrangement which would be to the favour of all concerned—children and adults alike. I feel certain that I speak for many by this letter.

A CITIZEN.

CEMENTED APPROVAL

Sir: Your editorial of Friday, Oct. 20, 1949, was one of the best that you have printed in your paper. In as much as the Examiner's viewpoint has hardly ever had anything good to say about C.C.F. policy; yet this subject of the cement situation, coming up to our back door as it were, is one of the main planks in the C.C.F. platform because Canada's natural resources should be used for the good of the people rather than that of the monopolies,

You explained it quite well so that it needs no comment here.

Would you, Mr. Editor, choose a subject similar to the cement situation (nails for instance) and explain to the people just why and how these shortages occur so many years after the war when production has had ample time to get back to normal; it would do a great deal toward enlightening the people what happens in so-called free enterprise. Yes, for the monopolies, but not for the people who buy these products.

Big profits for the monopolies out of our own natural resources.

Yours truly,
MAC.

(Ed. Note: Mr. G. K. Fraser, Conservative M.P. for Peterborough must also merit the writer's approval, and perhaps even membership in the C.C.F. party, for his words in the House of Commons two weeks ago on the cement shortage.)

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

I was not in safety, neither had I rest, neither was I quiet; yet trouble came. (Job 3: 26.)

Then Eliphaz the Temanite answered and said.... Remember, I pray thee, who ever perished, being innocent? or where were the righteous cut off?

Even as I have seen, they that plow iniquity, and sow wickedness, reap the same. (Job 4: 1, 7, 8.)

Behold, happy is the man whom God correcteth: therefore despise not thou the chastening of the Almighty. (Job 5: 17.)

From whence come wars and fightings among you? come they not hence, even of your lusts that war in your members? Ye lust, and have not: ye kill, and desire to have, and cannot obtain: ye fight and war, yet ye have not, because ye ask not. Ye ask, and receive not, because ye ask amiss, that ye may consume it upon your lusts....

Submit yourselves therefore to God. Resist the devil, and he will flee from you. (James 4: 1-3, 7.)

Prosperous Tomorrow

By the year 1988, says Sumner H. Slichter, economist of Harvard, the United States will have a population of 175,000,000 with a national income of about $416,000,000,000. There will be an "avid" interest in the arts, and living will be somewhat changed. For example, people, with more leisure will consume fifty per cent. more goods than they do today. The American people, he writes in an article in The Atlantic Monthly, will gradually be made up of two-car families. The family-size swimming pool will become common. Especially, there will be an increase in services. There will be more travel, extended medical services. The nation may be on a thirty-hour week, and the arts should flourish like the green bay tree.

This is a comforting picture, coming from an economist. Yet, if we are able to avoid war, and if we discover a way to eliminate strikes, there is no reason why it should not be a true picture. If this is to be the mirror of tomorrow in the United States, what of Canada? Our future should be no less rosy. The second half of this century may prove to be Canada's, and there are some among us who even now believe they can spy upon the chaotic horizon, signs of this fair and prosperous tomorrow.

Longer Sleeping Car Berths

Donald Gordon has signalized his appointment as chairman of the Canadian National Railways by making a grave commitment. At a press conference in Ottawa he told a six-foot-two reporter that he "might" do something about the length of sleeping-car berths. The present-day sleeping-car berth is by no means a model of roominess. Sleeping in one is not too much of an ordeal for those who come in the standard sizes; the real sufferers are the tall, willowly types who go beyond the regulation six feet. They have a struggle even to get into and out of a berth, and once in they are deprived of the joys of stretching out. Instead, they have to double up like a jackknife to fit into the cramped outlines of their wooden prison. By morning they usually look—and feel—like one of last week's abandoned pretzels.—Edmonton Journal.

Remember When—

By The Canadian Press

Toronto Argonauts tried playing football under United States rules in New Yorw 24 years ago today and wound up on the short end of a 55-7 score piled up by a team representing the US Third Army Corps Area. The Toronto club was baffled by the Americans' use of the forward pass, then unknown in Canadian football.

Selke Disgusted At Showing By Canadiens

By VIC MORRIS, JR.

MONTREAL, Nov. 4 (CP). — General Manager Frank Selke of Montreal Canadiens may have good reasons to be "disgusted" with his team's performance so far in the young National Hockey League season.

sional hockey players in Canada and the United States, is seldom critical of the No. 1 team in his hockey empire, but this week he came right out and said:

"I am disgusted with the way the team is going."

He meant it too.

Although poised in third place, one point ahead of the fast-climbing Chicago Black Hawks, Canadiens have the poorest goal-scoring record in the league, and that includes the cellar-dwelling Boston Bruins.

Only 16 Goals

Manager Selke based his criticism of the team on the "poor showing" of his forwards, who have accounted for only 16 goals in nine games.

He did not delve into the reason why the boys are not putting the puck into the net, but he hinted that a few shuffles with his farm system might inject some life into the team.

"For instance," he said, "I had to pull Burt Herschfield, a strong forward, from Montreal Royals to steer him to Cincinnati for some fast grooming in the American Hockey League.

"Actually I don't like to do this because under our farm system it does not pay to push a fellow too fast. But I need some kids with a scoring eye and I think that Herschfield will come along and be up with Canadiens before the season is over."

What Mr. Selke was trying to say is that he has given his Canadiens warning that he will move fresh youngsters in from his farm system the minute that his regulars stop ringing the register with goals.

Mr. Selke should get some consolation, however, from the fact that his team has been scored on only 12 times since the start of the season. But he does not, and tells why:

"Customers pay to see their team win, and without goals the teams don't win."

BETTERS RECORD

Soviet champion F. F. Vanin has bettered the world's record for 30,000 metres in a race at Tbilisi, Czechoslovakia, it was reported from Prague Thursday, running the distance in 1.39:14.6. The official mark is 1.40:46.4, set by Nikko Hietanen of Finland.

The spectator suffered a head cut in a melee during a game between Canadiens and Chicago Black Hawks Nov. 2. Two of Reardon's teammates, Leo Gravelle and Billy Reay, were also charged in separate incidents, but charges against Reay were dropped. President Bill Tobin, of the Chicago club posted $100 bonds for Reardon and Gravelle.

Belleville Collegiate, winners of the Bay of Quinte grid senior school area, are coming at full strength for their playoff with PCVS tomorrow aft at 2.15 in the Oval. Word is wafted out of Bella Villa that the senior PCI-ers (thrice COSSA champs) may get a jolt when they hit the Quinte crew in COSSA playdowns. But we think the Goulding bunch will beat them both games, even if it's fairly close, and even with Al Northcott sidelined with a fractured ankle. We're also quite prepared to call the Londry lads from the local knowledge shop over Oshawa juniors there.

One of the inside pix shows Bob Greenlaw, late of the local Legion. It gives his age as 26, weight 178, height five feet 11, a right-winger with a right-hand shot. From Peterborough. The hefty senior Maritime schedule goes from Oct. 24 till the end of February, with lengthy playoffs following ere playdowns commence. Jake Wade is back with Glace Bay Miners of this loop.

Stouffville And Legion

Stouffville plays Legionnaires at 8.30 tonight in the Civic Arena, an OHA senior "B" exhibition. The Clippers have moved up from intermediate "A" this puck semester and are likely to be grouped with the local teams, so this joust should be right interesting. If it's as good as that Midland-Legion tilt the other night, fans can't complain. Jim Ellis has been shaking up his lines lately to get the best possible combinations on the attack. He has plenty of fast, hustling and able forwards, but the trick is to get threesomes that click well together when going in on the other goal. They'll shake down shortly into a potent pack, but Stouffville may prove a stiff test this eve.

* * * * * *

Frank Buckland of the OHA executive expects to call a meeting next week to arrange the senior "B" grouping in this part of the province. Reports indicate that it might be an eight-team setup to include Kingston, Belleville, Petes, Legion, Lindsay Meteors, Markham, Stouffville and Toronto to Bell. Later maybe playing outside of Toronto. Both Kingston and Belleville have asked for entry, but may have to settle for an inter-locking schedule, owing to such lengthy hauls — particularly to the Limestone City. But an eight-team group would provide hockey followers with lots of variety here, and it would give the Petes and Legion different types of opposition.

Helps Back The Petes

Don McGillis Sr., a prominent figure on the local sports' horizon the last few years — especially in assisting football and hockey — is helping to sponsor the Petes' puckists this year. Getting them off on the right financial footing. The team is taking shape now and has an exhibition with Meteors this p.m. in Lindsay at 8.30, standard time. Murray Fife, a senior "A" centre from Owen Sound Mercurys, will line up with the Foley flock, and district additions are Leonard of Marmora, Loveless of Inkerman Rockets, and West of Orono. Former is a defenceman and the other two are forwards. Also a couple of ex-juniors here, Ted Collins and Joe Whitnall. Maybe a few other newcomers, as well as the pick of last year's senior "B" pack. More on them again.

Couple of soccer items in the mail bag. Replay of the tied semi-final senior school tilt between Prince of Wales and Central will be staged Monday aft at four down at King Edward, winner to meet Confederation in the final. Two referees on deck for this one. Some fine playoffs so far in the senior public school circuit. The final meeting of the Peterborough and District Soccer Association will be held Monday at nine p.m., standard time, in Lindsay at Leith's shoe store. The Messrs. Anderson and Cox of the Lindsay club will be on hand. Classy CGE-ers of this city pretty well swept honors in the league the past season.

Milton finally knocked off Little Britain for the OBA intermediate "C" title....Girls' cage season opens tonight in the YWCA with Black's playing Normals at eight, followed by Nurses against Neill's....Doug Free turned out at Diesels' drill in Belleville the other eve but he didn't sign up, not so far, at least....Lewicki's troublesome case was finally settled and he'll play for the junior Dukes....NHL Prexy Campbell warns puck fans to stay off the ice during fights, or they'll get hurt....Just three USA-born hockeyists now in the NHL, Brimsek of Hawks, Dussault of Canadiens, and Babando of the Wings....Optimists midgets play southend midgets at five p.m. tomorrow in Civic Arena, followed by Optimists bantams and Warsaw at six; Optimists' teams were formerly known as Boy's Town squads....PMHA schedules expected right shortly now....YM lasses', Kawartha loop and men's city bowling items in elsewhere tonight....Ed Murphy and some others have a meeting at 7.30 p.m. Tuesday in the "Y" to organize barbershop singing quartets....No doubt, our musical baritone on ball trips gave him the idea, or was it?

PLACEMENT PROFESSOR—Chester McCance, veteran footballer with Montreal Alouettes, has lifted himself among the Big Four leading scorers on the strength of his toe. Uncle Chester, who admits being at least 36 years old, has been booting placements and field goals with monotonous regularity, adding to his total points with a galloping touchdown here and there. The veteran, formerly a Winnipeg Blue Bomber, has performed remarkably in a tough season.

Western University Asks For Playoff Game

LONDON, Ont., Nov. 4 (CP) — Arguing that any senior intercollegiate playoff this year should be held in London, the University of Western Ontario's Gazette said editorially today that its stand had the backing of the arts and science faculty.

With the Western Mustangs already assured of at least a playoff berth, the Gazette said it is only fair that a sudden death affair should take place in the local stadium. The two previous playoffs involving Western were held in Toronto last year and in [illegible] stresses the argument, too, about loss in time and money of Western students flocking to another city for the title final. It estimated that a total of 5,000 local students attended the previous finals in Toronto and Montreal, spending some $150,000.

So it is about time, the Gazette hinted broadly, that London cuts in on money like that. Besides, local fans should get a break on a playoff game, the same as Toronto and Montreal have had.

The editorial is signed by Ian McIntosh, editor and publisher of the Gazette.

Milton Defeats Little Britain

LITTLE BRITAIN, Ont., Nov. 4 (CP)—Behind the five-hit hurling of lean righthander Bruce Marshall, Milton Red Sox won the Ontario Baseball Association Intermediate C championship on Thursday by walloping Little Britain Combines 10-4. It was the Sox' second straight victory, having won at home Saturday 6-3.

Over 300 blanketed fans shivered through the nine innings as [illegible] and hurled no-hit ball until he weakened in the seventh.

NHL Rests Deadly Weapons Till Weekend Tilts Start

By JACK MITCHELL,
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

Since Chicago police seem to be reading the National Hockey League reports so literally, maybe the sportswriters should start a movement to soft-peddle on the synonyms.

Words like "fired", "shot" and "drilled" fit easily into the hockey fans' vocabulary to explain the action of propelling a rubber disk with a hockey stick. But think of their effect in a city that still remembers the meaning Al Capone's crew gave them.

So what do you think, fellows? Is it worth foregoing a synonym to stop those Chicago cops calling hockey sticks "deadly weapons."

That's what Chicago fan George Grbich accused Kenny Reardon and Leo Gravelle of assaulting him with in that Wednesday night Chicago Black Hawks charivaree with Montreal Canadiens.

As the Canadiens clipper succinctly explained the start of the rumpus.

"Somebody grabbed me by the nape of my sweater as I skated by and instinctively I swung my stick. I thought it had busted against the screen and I was the most surprised person in the world when I turned around and saw I'd bloodied somebody."

Bloodies Steel Worker

The bloodied somebody was Gfbich, the 33-year-old Chicago steel worker whose rink side friends laid the charges against the two Canadien players. It took $200 bonds signed by Black Hawks president Bill Tobin to bail them out in time to catch the train back to Montreal.

Grbich was later photographed in Canadiens dressingroom, a big bandage covering his 10-stitch scalp wound as he talked it over amiably with Reardon. All was forgiven, he said, 'I'm not mad at anybody."

But those assault with deadly weapon charges are still on the Chicago police blotter for Reardon and Gravelle to answer Nov. 14 when Canadiens go back to Chicago.

Worst Beating

At that, maybe those charges would be more appropriate if laid by big Bill Durnan against the Black Hawks. The Chicago players used their deadly weapons to give the Canadiens goalie his worst beating of the season in firing four goals to Canadiens' one.

Durnan, who has won the Vezina Trophy as the league's best goalie in five of his six NHL seasons, still is the least-scored on netminder, however. He has been beaten 12 times in nine games, four less than Toronto's Turk Broda has in eight contests.

Jack Gelineau, rookie goalie of the last-place Boston Bruins, is the most assaulted with a deadly weapon netminder. He has given up 37 in Boston's nine games.

As an aftermath of the Chicago rumpus, NHL president Clarence Campbell Thursday warned fans to stay off the ice unless they wish to get hurt. During the Chicago row, at least one fan was reported to have rushed onto the slippery surface to chase some Canadiens.

Stampeders Hit Playoff Trail For Grey Cup

By The Canadian Press

It is playoff time in Canadian football with the Dominion champion cowboys from Calgary hitting the trail tomorrow in defence of the Grey Cup.

In the east, a playoff squabble between Ottawa Rough Riders and Montreal Alouettes is overshadowing the regular season schedule windup this week-end in two of the three senior loops.

Coach Les Lear's Calgary Stampeders [illegible] in the opening game of a two-game, total-point series for the Western Canada title and the right to meet the east for the Dominion crown.

In the east, the Big Four and ORFU schedules end Saturday. The senior intercollegiate loop still has a week to go.

In the Big Four, where Ottawa and Montreal already have clinched the two playoff berths. Toronto Argonauts invade Montreal and the winless Hamilton Wildcats will make a last desperate victory bid against the league-leading Rough Riders at Ottawa.

Other Decisions

Playoff positions in the ORFU also are decided with Hamilton Tigers and Sarnia Imperials holding down the coveted spots. The Tigers wind up the regular schedule in a game at Hamilton against Toronto Balmy Beach and Windsor Rockets finish out their string against Sarnia in Windsor.

In the senior intercollegiate loop McGill will meet University of Toronto, while Queen's University tackles University of Western Ontario. The students end their regular season Nov. 12.

Big Four fans were far more interested today in the outcome of the squabble between Montreal and Ottawa over playoff dates than they were in tomorrow's final league tilts.

One thing certain at the moment is that the second game of the two-game, total-point series will be played in Ottawa Nov. 12-and-in daylight. The clubs have appealed to the league executive to settle the issue.

The wrangling Big Four clubs could have learned a valuable lesson in cooperation by looking towards the ORFU.

Tigers executive members and Coach Hapes were none-too-pleased about playoff arrangements calling for a game in Sarnia Friday, Nov. 11 and back in Hamilton Nov. 12.

However, Tigers philosophically agreed to the dates, saying: "It's no worse for us than it is for them."

PRESIDENT WILLIAM McTEAGUE of the St. Peter's Catholic Youth Organization, which already has a membership of 120.

Wm. McTeague Heads CYO

After a lapse of a year, the St. Peter's Cathedral CYO has resumed activities with a new lease of life. William McTeague was elected president along with three other executives and a full list of committee members.

Mr. McTeague was an active member of the former CYO but this is his first term as president.

Already about 120 young people have joined for the fall, winter and spring weekly meetings of fun and general entertainment. A dance and busiess session were the two chief items on the agenda Wednesday night. All members are of St. Peter's parish and over school age.

Paul Caravaggie chairman, introduced the Rev. Raymond Garvey who outlined the aims and ideals of the organization.

Following is the complete executive and committees:

Harold Killen, chairman of sports, and advocates Marion McTeague, Joan Rose, Jim Conlin, Bill McTeague, Frank Alberico and Frederick Allore. The Rev. Raymond Garvey, chairman of spiritual committee. Marie Kieran, chairman of educational, and advocates Rosemarie Creally, and Jack Hayes.

Vote Coleman Of Yankees Rookie Of Year

NEW YORK, Nov. 4—(AP)—Gerry Coleman, fancy-fielding second baseman of New York Yankees, was voted today the American League's rookie of the year.

The slim 25-year-old resident of San Francisco joined Brooklyn's Don Newcombe of the National League as the frosh standouts of their respective circuits.

Both received the majority in [illegible] members of the Baseball Writers' Association throughout the major league cities.

Whereas Newcombe breezed past all opposition by capturing 105 votes, Coleman had strenuous competition from outfielder Roy Sievers of St. Louis Browns and southpaw pitcher Alex Kellner of Philadelphia Athletics.

The wiry infielder, who piloted a dive bomber during the war, was named on 40 ballots to 33 for Sievers and 30 for Kellner.

Following Newcombe in the National League were Willie Jones of the Philadelphia Phils with four votes and Del Crandall of Boston Braves with three.

Coleman's value to the Yankees cannot be measured by cold statistics. He batted only .276, collected only two homers, and drove in only 43 runs.

However, Coleman is the type who can do a lot of things and do them well. He is smart, aggressive, an excellent fielder, fast on the bases and hard to fool at the plate.

Appoint Dr. Gilmour To Research Council

TORONTO, Nov. 4.—Appointment of Dr. G. P. Gilmour, chancellor of, McMaster University, Hamilton, to the Ontario Research Council was announced Thursday by Premier Frost. Dr. Gilmour's appointment fills the vacancy created by the death of Dr. C. E. Burke.

Premier Frost also announced appointment of G. K. Johnston of Brockville to the board, which administers the Ontario Canteen Fund, established after the Second World War to assist needy veterans in needy circumstances. Mr. Johnston replaces Percy T. Bould, who resigned.

Bowling Notes

All games in the YMCA senior girls' bowling league this week were won by two-point margins. Glengarrys Lucky Strikes, Hurricanes and Bombers defeated Aces, Tigers, Corvettes and Commandos. High three went to Aggie Anderson with 675 as Beryl Csumrik had 666, Mary Morton 655, M. Wood 637 and A. Merrett 628. B. Csumrik took down high single honors with 297, followed by A. Anderson with 286 and M. Morton with 255. High single went to Tigers with 1,031.

In the Kawartha lasses' loop, Easy Aces took a 3-1 win over Eagles, Wrens won 3-1 against Bobolinks, and Majorettes and Rookies split evenly. Majorettes [illegible] with 979. D. Martin led individual trundlers with top three of 728 and leading single of 329, a fine one-game effort. M Tice rolled a 727 triple.

Threatening Trade

SINGAPORE, Nov. 4—(Reuters)—Canada is seriously threatening Australia's big flour export trade with Malaya, C. Perrett, General Manager of the Australian Wheat Board, said here today. "At present the Canadians are underquoting us by £1 a ton," Perrett asserted. "Unless we compete with their price, they will have a great chance of moving in on the market."

Big 4 Executive Decides Games

TORONTO, Nov. 4 (CP)—The Big Four executive ruled in a telegraphic vote completed today that the first of a two-game series for the Interprovincial Football Union championship will be played in Montreal at 2 p.m. Nov. 9.

Result of the vote, announced by Dr. J. J. O'Connor, I.F.U. president, ended a squabble started early this week between the two clubs over playoff dates and times. The dispute revolved chiefly over the Montreal club's insistence that its home game be played under lights.

Dr. O'Connor declined to give details of how the vote went [illegible] executive in four cities—Toronto, Ottawa, Montreal and Hamilton.

The vote was undertaken Thursday night, two hours after the deadline set by the president for the clubs to come to an agreement on whether the Nov. 9 game at Montreal should be held in the afternoon or night. The second game will be played in Ottawa Nov. 12.

Lobbying In Washington Million Dollar Business

By GEORGE KITCHEN

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4—(CP)—This capital is the centre of a multi-million-dollar business which thrives by telling other people what it thinks they should do. This sprawling enterprise is the business of "lobbying", through which groups affected by governmental action seek to influence legislators and legislation. It is a business toward which registered organizations already have contributed $40,000,000.

And that recorded amount, a hint of the unrecorded millions spent to influence Congress.

The lobby is largely a United States invention, peculiar to the American parliamentary system.

The dictionary defines it as "persons not members of a legislative body who strive to influence its proceedings by personal agency." The individual group.

The lobbies represent hundreds of groups and industries. The two major lobbies are labor and management. Labor has some 120 registered lobbyists while management—business in all its various phases—has more than 2,000.

But Congress is convinced that the lobby is akin to the iceberg—with most of its ramifications submerged and only a small portion on the surface. To get a clearer picture, the House of Representatives shortly will open an inquiry into lobby operations.

Place For Lobby

As an example, there are at least 3,000 trade associations in the United States, all of which have been formed to enable their members to press their point of view before Congress. Yet, only 125 trade associations are registered as lobbyists.

At the same time Congressional and governmental experts feel that there is a place for the lobby.

They explain that there are innumerable fields in agriculture, business, education, labor, and health about which the average Congressman can have little more than knowledge. It is the task of the lobbyist, they say, to keep him informed.

Falls Out Car Door Man Dies In Accident

EGANVILLE, Ont., Nov. 4 (CP)—Thomas Irving, 89, of Eganville, Ont., was killed in a freak accident here Thursday.

Mr. Irving was riding in an automobile driven by James Howard, 79, also of Eganville, when the door on the passenger side flew open as the car was making a turn. Mr. Howard grabbed his companion as Mr. Irving started to topple out of the car, but in doing so lost control of the vehicle which hit a tree. The impact caused Mr. Irving to fall from the open door. He suffered a skull fracture.

Coroner Dr. R. L. Reeves said an inquest will be held.

Must Ensure Farmer Makes A Good Living

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

One of the knottiest problems facing governments today is ensuring that the farmer makes a good living, but without encouraging him to grow things for which demand has fallen off.

The current Monthly Review of the Bank of Nova Scotia [illegible]

"There are few fields of national economic policy in which it is more difficult to arrive at workable standards and methods than that of agricultural price support.

"As the experience of the United States indicates, there are grave dangers in a policy embodying fixed formulae and some hard thinking needs to be done to work out a broad approach to this problem—all the more because of Canada's dependence on exports.

On Limited Scale

"So far, operations under the Canadian Agricultural Prices Support Act have, except in the case of butter, been on a fairly limited scale, and the trend of official thinking in engaging in them is perhaps indicated in the phraseology describing the support prices set last year for Maritime potatoes and for honey — 'sufficient to protect producers from serious loss without encouraging excessive production.'

"There is certainly a strong case for protecting the farmer against the effects of very low prices and the inability to market his production, and for assisting him while production patterns are readjusted to suit available outlets.

In Interests of Community

"Such action is of course, in the interests of the whole community since farm depression effects the economy generally. But, to find a means of giving the farmer protection without creating serious production and marketing complications is another matter.

"Some way or other, policies will have to be evolved which will represent a fair balance between the interests of the farmer and of the consuming tax-paying public, which will not create difficulties in export markets, and which will be practicable from an administrative standpoint."

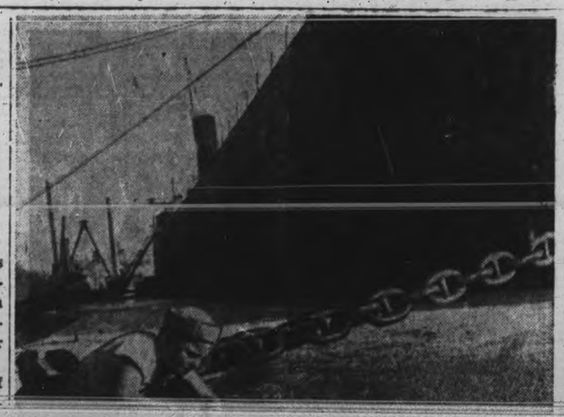
The review comments further:

"There is no doubt that Canadian agriculture is in a period of readjustment. The approaching expiration of the British contracts for bacon, eggs and cheese brings into focus some of the problems that must be faced."

Sunday School Room Decorated For Party

NORWOOD, Nov. 4—(ENS)—The Mission Band of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church held a Hallowe'en party in the Sunday schoolroom. The president, Marjorie Smith, had planned the program with the help of members. The room was decorated and those taking part in the program were Marjorie Smith, Beryl Nichols, Anne and Eleanor Kavanagh Beverley Rothwell, Margaret [illegible]d Kathryn Duncanson.

Lunch was served by the older girls and mothers. About 40 children were present.



LAKE MYSTERY—Fishermen at Erieau, a Lake Erie port 20 miles south of Chatham, Ont., are at a loss to account for the millions of dead shiners and chub that have been washed ashore. They have never seen anything like this tremendous loss of life among small fish. Here nine-year-old Lyle McCormick is shown scooping some of the dead fish from the carpet in a slip at the port. In the background is the coal freighter Alexander Leslie.

Delay Decision On Tax Payment

TORONTO, Nov. 4 (CP)—Mr. Justice C. G. O'Connor of the Exchequer Court of Canada has reserved judgment in the appeal by executors of the R. Ray McLaughlin estate against income tax assessment for 1944-45. The amount in dispute is approximately $28,500.

The Canadian Press erroneously reported Tuesday that counsel for the estate claimed that losses of $290,000 incurred by Mr. McLaughlin while operating a farm at nearby Oshawa should be exempt from income tax levied against the estate.

From 1920 to 1943 inclusive, losses aggregating $255,000 were allowed as a deduction from Mr. McLaughlin's investment income, counsel said. But following his death in 1947, the revenue department disallowed 50 per cent of farm losses, and all depreciation on farm buildings in its assessment of his 1944-45 returns.

The disallowance was made on grounds that he was not a bona fide farmer. Evidence adduced during the hearing was directed to providing deceased was a bona fide farmer and there was no reason for the department to deprive him of the right to the deductions allowed during his lifetime.

Dies After Beating

WINNIPEG, Nov. 4—(CP)—Mrs. Eva Murzak, 65, died in hospital Thursday night following a brutal broomstick beating at her north-end home. Mrs. Murzak was admitted to hospital Wednesday night with brain injuries, severe shock, and a possibly-fractured skull. Police charged her husband, William Murzak, with assault, and have questioned two male roomers.

Amethyst Cat AWOL Back After Spree

PLYMOUTH, Nov. 4 —(CP)—Simon, the feline VC member of the crew of the Royal Navy sloop Amethyst, took unofficial shore leave last night, but today was back aboard ship sleeping off his spree.

He disappeared at dusk and shipmates regretfully posted him missing. It was a black mark on his brilliant record of service under fire. Simon had broken ship and had violated quarantine regulations.

But he rolled back at dawn and settled down for a lengthy nap. Said a shipmate:

"Turn him over to the police? Not . . . likely."

Simon is holder of the Dicken medal — "the animals' VC" — awarded to him for dauntlessly going about his business of catching mice while the Amethyst was trapped in the Yangtze last summer.

Matinee Idol Dies

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 4—(AP)—William Desmond, a matinee idol of silent movies, died Wednesday night of a respiratory ailment. Desmond, 71, began his film career in 1915, appearing in "Peggy" with Billie Burke. But before that he was the hero in leading plays on Broadway and in Los Angeles, among them "Quo Vadis," "Bird of Paradise," "Benhur" "Alias Jimmy Valentine," "Sign of the Cross," and "Romeo and Juliet."

Blame Husband For 75% Divorce Cases

OTTAWA, Nov. 4 — (CP). — The husband is to blame for 75 per cent of all divorce cases before the Senate, Senator John T. Haig said Thursday.

The Progressive Conservative Leader in the Upper Chamber and deputy chairman of the Senate Divorce Committee added that if Parliament felt there should be no divorce, they could along with other members, before the Commons Private Bills Committee.

The main consideration of the Senate Committee, he said, was to protect children in broken marriages. Protection of the woman was the next interest. The husband, who provided grounds for three-quarters of the Senate cases, could "look after himself."

Senator F. W. Gershaw (L.-Alberta) said the Upper Chamber was "no divorce mill." Chamber dealt only with Quebec cases and in Quebec, where there were no provincial divorce courts, there were fewer divorces than in any other part of the country.

Marriages cemented during war provided one of the reasons for divorce, Senator Gershaw said.

He believed some boys amrried women who pampered them.

"Then they went overseas and were pampered by some woman over there

"They came back and did not want to have anything to do with the woman they married in Canada."

In some cases, the same set of circumstances applied to women who went overseas, came back, and had "no use" for their husbands.

Police Hold Youth For Stealing Taxi

MONTREAL, Nov. 4 (CP) — Ontario Provincial Police at Cornwall notified local authorities Thursday they had arrested Benoit Cote, 22, found in possession of a taxicab stolen in Ville Lasalle.

Rene Thibodeau told police here he was dozing in his cab at a private stand downtown late Tuesday night when a man awakened him and asked to be driven to Ville Lasalle.

When Thibodeau replied he had only 60 cents, the man put him out of the cab and drove away.

Allow 11 Reds Out On Bail Pending Appeal

NEW YORK, Nov. 4 (AP) — The United States Court of Appeals ruled Thursday the 11 top American Communists convicted of conspiracy may be released in bail pending appeal of their case.

The court ruled that seven could be released in $20,000 bail each and four in $30,000 bail apiece.

asked that their total bail be set at $1,000,000.

An opinion handed down said bail was being set because the government "conceded that the appeal herein raises a 'substantial question'."

Four at $30,000

Bail of $30,000 was set for Eugene Dennis, John B. Williamson, Jacob Stachel and Irving Potash.

A $20,000 was fixed for Robert G. Thompson, Benjamin J. Davis, Jr., Harry Winston, John Gates, Gilbert Green, Carl Winter and Gus Hall.

Previously the government asked $100,000 bail each for Dennis, Potash, Stachel, Williamson, Hall, Green and Thompson. It recommended $75,000 bail each for Davis, Winston, Gates and Winter.

A lawyer for the Communists, O. John Rogge, asked earlier that bail be set at no more than $10,000 for any defendant.

The 11 were convicted of conspiracy to advocate violent overthrow of the United States government.

Two parked cars were damaged by a car which failed to stop on Hunter St. about 9.20 p.m. Wednesday.

The first car hit was owned by Earle Johns, 497 Aylmer St.; the second by Donald Edmunds, Millbrook.

The story reported to police was that while Johns' car was parked on Hunter St. it was hit on a rear fender by another car.

A bystander shouted to the driver to stop. The driver loked back and while turned collided with Edmunds' car parked a short distance along the street.

The car did not stop but was later traced by police to 194 Lansdowne St.

Ava Gardner Big Name After Years

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 4—(AP)—It took years of trying, but Ava Gardner now is a big name at MGM.

She leaves next March for Spain and Britain where she will ing Dutchman" for MGM.

She will star opposite James Mason, who she says is a "dreamboat." She says he's the most co-operative and ablest actor she has worked with.

The studio has also cast Ava for "Right Cross" with Dick Powell and Ricardo Montalban. This would follow her current loanout for "Carriage Entrance," but Ava's got news for them: she's not going to do it.

Friday Footnotes

Dana Andrews plans to get back into producing his own films, despite his wounds from "No Minor Vices." He is nestling an idea for a big-time film which would cost a mere $400,000. "It is such a natural idea, I'm surprised no one has thought of it" he says, but that's all he'll devulge.

Margaret Sullivan, here for "No Sad Songs," after a six-year absence, says the greatest change she noticed in picture-making is the speed. "I like it this way," she says; "you don't get tired between shots."

Jimmy Durante, who has been absent too long from the screen, will get more action next year. MGM has him down for a Van Johnson Musical and the Caruso story, in which he'll play Mario Lanza's valet.

Shields Given School Champs At Kiwanis Meeting

Champions of the Little Olympics, the annual track and field meet sponsored by the Kiwanis Club, received their shields for their groups at the weekly meeting of the Kiwanis Club Thursday at the Empress Hotel. The meet is for students of the public and separate schools.

Al Clark, Physical Director at the YMCA and chairman of the Kiwanis Club's meet committee, said before introducing the win-that it had to be postponed twice due to wet track conditions.

Four of the winners, he said, were from Queen Mary School which two years ago had only two participants in the Little Olympics. He congratulated the students of the school for embarking on an athletic program that enabled them to sweep the four titles.

The girls who took the honors in their divisions were: Joanne Kearns, intermediate, Sacred Heart school; Meredith Morgan, junior, Queen Mary school; Elizabeth Green, senior, Queen Mary school. The boys who were presented shields were: Gordon White, intermediate, Queen Mary school; Lorne Hale, junior, King George school; William Watson, senior, Queen Mary school.

Kiwanians Charles Hurst, Jack Coit, Jack Davern, Dennis Fitzgerald, John Madden and Blaine Till made the presentation of the shields.

The year is 1949...

CANADIANS pause on Remembrance Day to pay tribute to the courage of those who died to keep us free.

These young men and women gave "the last full measure of devotion" to causes that perhaps not all of them fully understood. But today it is our job to understand these causes, to recognize Canada's place among the nations, and to do all we can to preserve freedom among men.

The stout hearts and strong arms of her sons and daughters have always been Canada's sure shield. Every Remembrance Day we honour those who went forth to battle in almost every decade of our nation's history from 1775 to 1945.

This Day, as we pay tribute to those who gave everything, we remember the living too, and the descendants of those who fell. Let us help the Canadian Legion whose self-appointed task is to see that neither are forgotten, that the dead are honoured and the living helped.

It is a privilege for every Canadian to wear a Poppy to help the Canadian Legion raise the POPPY FUND. And while the "Last Post" is sounding this Remembrance Day, wearing a POPPY shows we remember our debt to the veterans of Canada's wars and their families.

Church Members Mark Birthday At Supper Party

MARMORA, Nov. 4 (ENS) — Seventy-fifth anniversary supper of St. Andrews United Church was held in the church hall on Wednesday. The meal was served by the Women's Association.

There was a display of documents and other old effects of the church exhibited in the church. Among the items was a list of subscribers towards the erection of the church which was commenced in 1868 and the Indenture issued in 1869. Another document deal with the loan of $1,500 for eight years from Canada Permanent Loan and Savings Company, bearing the date of February 17 1873.

A commemoration program was presented in the Town Hall after supper under the chairmanship of Rev. G. D. Young.

Reeve Vincent M. Lynch brought greetings from the citizens. During his residence in Marmora he had known the last ten ministers to serve St. Andrews.

Two trumpet solos were played by Robert Sanderson. A history of the Methodist and later, the United Church, was presented by Miss Grace Warren, granddaughter of one of the original members of the church. Miss Warren's painstaking efforts in preparing the paper were lauded by the chairman and speakers who followed her reading.

Letters of greeting read by the chairman were from Rev. J. A. O'Neill, of the Sacred Heart Church, Marmora, Rev. G H. Bache of Marmora Free Methodist Church and Rev. W. H. Clarke, Deseronto, pastor of the church during the First World War.

Rural Dean J. M. Brownlie congratulated St. Andrews Church members on behalf of himself and his parish.

Cuts Cake

Mrs. Harry Campion, one of the oldest members, cut the anniversary cake.

Rev. H. C. Vaclavik of the Rawdon charge of the United Church spoke about his native Czechoslovakia and his mastering of various handicaps before becoming ordained as a United Church minister. He told of the hardships inflicted on his fellow countrymen under Communism and lauded Canadians he had met in western Canada who were outstanding in their devotion to Christian duties in the face of adversities.

He reminded his listeners that two of the churches on his charge were formerly mission stations under the Marmora charge.

Mrs. Vaughn Glover made her first appearance on the local hall as a violinist.

Zion Church Active 65 Years

MARMORA, Nov. 4 (ENS) — Zion United Church of the Marmora charge celebrated its 65th anniversary Sunday. Every seat was occupied at the evening service at which Rev. E. M. Cadigan of Ottawa, former pastor, was the guest speaker.

The speaker pointed out the mistake of assuming too great responsibility for national, community and church or having too great a desire to arrange and control everything. He was not advising his hearers to become careless or to neglect the interest they should take in the welfare of the community, church or home. There was a difference between caring less and being careless.

The choir sang two anthems and Ed. Poste was the organist. A number of former residents were present to celebrate the anniversary.

Two Showers Held For Bernice Smith

MILLBROOK, Nov. 4 (ENS) — Miss Bernice Smith, whose marriage takes place today in Toronto, was guest of honor at a presentation last week at the home of Mrs. Cliff Larmer for which Mrs. Larmer and Mrs. Walter Challice were joint hostesses.

The bride-to-be was presented with a Duncan Phyfe table and refreshments were served.

Another shower for Miss Smith for which Miss Audrey Keene was hostess at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Lloyd Sutton, RR 1, Fraserville, was held on Saturday. There were 40 guests and many gifts were piled in a decorated basket carried in by Misses Mary Tinney and Audrey Keen. A lunch was served.

Miss Smith had already been the guest of honor at five showers in Toronto.

Approve Nationalization

DUBLIN, Nov. 4—(AP)—The Dail Thursday night approved in principle a bill to nationalize railroads and other transport services in the Republic of Ireland. The measure was given second reading by a vote of 74 to 59. The bill now goes to committee hearings and third and final reading in the Dail.

Dies Eight Days After Street Accident

HAVELOCK Nov. 4—(ENS)—Word has been received by Postmaster H.-T. Mathison that his aunt, Mrs. Mary Armstrong, 84, of 224 Prince Edward Dr., Etobicoke Township, and a former resident of this district, died in St. Joseph's Hospital, Toronto, on Wednesday, eight days after she was struck by a car as she was crossing Annette St. at Quebec Ave.

Mrs. Armstrong was formerly the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bannon, and was born on the homestead on the Trent River Road where George Brooks now lives. She attended Old Havelock School and was a member of Knox Presbyterian Church.

During her girlhood she moved with her parents to Flesherton where she met her husband, and returned to the home of her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. William Mathison, at Havelock, for her marriage, which was performed by the Rev. Hugh Brown. It was his first wedding after assuming the pastorate of Knox Church.

After their marriage Mr. and Mrs. Armstrong lived in Flesherton where Mr. Armstrong was for many years a jeweller and manager of the local Bell Telephone branch.

Mrs. Armstrong was prominent in the work of the Flesherton United Church. She was also a past worthy patron of the Flesherton Order of the Eastern Star and active in the Women's Institute. She moved from Flesherton to Toronto where she was a member of High Park United Church and he Alexander Bible Class.

She leaves a daughter, Mrs. H. M. Hyland, with whom she lived, a son Wesley Armstrong, of Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Mathison attended the funeral in Flesherton of Havelock, is a niece.

Donegal Farmers To Start Forum

NORWOOD, Nov. 4—(ENS)—Three Farm Forums of the Norwood vicinity held meetings last Monday. The Trent River West Forum met at the home of Warden Gardner and the Killarney Corner group at Frank Andrew's home. Twelve families gathered at the home of Harold Van Volkenburg in Donegal community and decided to start a

Discussing the broadcast, "Wanted — a chance for experience," it was agreed that young people, particularly young married couples, were interested in farm organizations. The need for leadership was greater than ever before, to combat the increased demands and strikes of other organized groups. These demands were resulting in increases in farm costs.

On the other hand, some organizations vigorously opposed higher prices for for produce.

Special training in leadership was most necessary. This was the responsibility of parents and educational groups. Folk schools were mentioned and the positions on fair boards, cheese boards and livestock shipping boards; greater responsibility on farms; financing trips to annual meetings and judging contests etc.

Revival of Farm Young People's groups in this community was suggested. One forum decided to invite Mr. Bell, assistant agricultural representative, to a meeting, and others asked that Clifford Johnston come to their forum on Nov. 14.

The recreation period was mostly in keeping with Hallowe'en. Games and contests were followed by an amusing auction at one forum 35 cents was collected from the sale. This amount was set aside to start a fund for an action project to be undertaken later in the season. Lunch was served.

Cattle Prices Slump Sharply On Toronto Market

TORONTO, Nov. 4 — (CP). — Cattle prices slumped 50 cents a hundredweight after a steady opening in trading on the Toronto Livestock Market this week, the Dominion Marketing Service reported today.

The fresh cattle run of 8,662 head was added to 1,200 from last week. Included in fresh offerings were 4,400 Western cattle.

Buyers picked out a few top cattle on Monday at steady prices. Choice weighty steers sold up to $23.50. Good light steers were $20-$21 and good heifers $18.50-$19. Plain to medium light steers boners as low as $12. Good cows were $14-$15 with canners and cutters from $9-$11.

Good export bulls closed at $16.50-$17 and plain light bulls ranged downward to $13.50. Fed yearlings closed at $19-$23 a hundredweight. Good stockers and feeders were mostly $18-$19 with stock calves at $20. Plain stockers sold as low as $13.50.

The closing market was dull with indications of a heavy holdover.

Calves totalled 2,632 head. Prices were strong at $27-$29 a hundredweight for choice veal-$16-$25 a hundredweight. Grass calves for slaughter closed at mostly $13-$15.50.

Hogs totalled 3,593 head. Prices dropped 50 cents a hundredweight to $29 for Grade-A and $28.50 for Grade-B1. Sows were steady and unchanged at $19 dressed.

Offering of sheep and lambs were 4,864 head. Lambs added 50 cents a hundredweight at $23 for good ewes and wethers and $22.50 for bucks. Sheep were firm at $11-$11.50 for best light ewes, with culls and heavies from

Can't Bribe Way To Asiatic Hearts

VANCOUVER, Nov. 4 (CP). — India's Prime Minister, Pandit Nehru admonished white nations Wednesday night that "no part of Asia is going to be won over by military or financial means."

"We would not sell our souls for financial help," he added in a speech to a cheering audience of 1,500 at a civic auditorium reception. At least half the crowd consisted of members of British

He reiterated that India will not tie to any power bloc in world politics, but will work in its own way for world peace.

Nehru said India stayed in the British Commonwealth because it was a co-operative union and the "world needs co-operation. But he emphasized that "he would not remain in a commonwealth if it came in the way of our functioning in the way in which we wish to function."

Says No One To Blame If Child Fails Grade

OMEMEE, Nov. 4 (ENS) —Mrs. L. McQuade, Home and School room mother for Grades one and two of Omemee Public School held an afternoon tea party at her home Wednesday for mothers of the pupils, the teacher, Miss Lamb, the Public School principal, Mrs. L. M. Curtis and the Home and School executive members.

Miss Lamb spoke of the bond between the home and the school being strengthend by such meeting.

She introduced the subject of children who start to school under six years. All children were not equally developed at the same age and the fact that some of the youngsters were not able to complete grade one in the year did not prove there was lack of intelligence on the part of the child or that anyone-child teacher or parent—was the blame. In promoting, she said, careful consideration was given to the best interests of the child.

Mr. Curtis spoke on the fairness of examinations as a test of fitness for promotion. With few exceptions, he said, if a pupil knew his work, he could put it on paper and he thought it no kindness to a pupil to slip him into a grade for which he was unprepared. He encouraged parents who were not satisfied with the progress of their children to talk it over with the teachers rather than with their neighbors.

Questions were asked by the mothers concerning pre-school activities and teaching methods in the early grades.

Guelph Union Quits Jackson Group

GUELPH, Nov. 4—(CP)—Leland Electric of Canada Company workers voted unanimously Thursday night to withdraw from the parent organization of the United Electrical Union. The action follows in the wake of Thursday's expulsion by the C.I.O. convention meeting in Cleveland of the U.E.W. from their ranks.

The decision contemplated by the local union for some time which came to a head with a strike of 300 workers at the Guelph plant a month ago. Negotiations which led to the return of the employees were conducted by local union officers and a new agreement ratified at Thursday night's meeting.

A secret ballot to be conducted by the provincial Labor Department in the plant will determine under whose jurisdiction or certification the rebel right-wingers will fall. The local union will remain an affiliate of the C.I.O. and C.C.L. under the newly formed International Union of Electrical Radio and Machine Workers.

Live Bomb Lurks In Basement

A live 11-pound practice bomb found by an excited Mrs. Margaret Stickel, 107 Stewart St., was reported to police who now have the bomb and are wondering what to do with it.

Mrs. Stickel found the bomb in the basement of her house, but she did not know how it got there. The lower floor of her house is occupied by two families.

Police have contacted a former sergeant armourer of the RCAF, to remove the war head.

Slept Uninvited In Friend's Bed

A friend in need turned out to be a wolf in sheep's clothing for William Ferguson, 525 Albert St., who pleaded guilty to a charge of being drunk and was fined $10 and costs by Magistrate W. R. Philp in police court today.

Thursday afternoon about 4.45 police were called to a Charlotte St. house. The man who called said he had come home earlier and found Ferguson in his house drunk. He pushed Ferguson out and left to pick up his wife. When husband and wife returned home, they found Ferguson sleeping upstairs, still drunk.

Asked in court if he knew the man whose house he had invaded, Ferguson said, "Sure, he works with me."

Two Elk Have Appropriated Last Area of Woods In City

Mrs Fred Blondin, 556 Edison Ave., relates to the Examiner one of those "rus in urbe" stories of two elk that have appropriated the only remnant woods in the city, the poplar and tamarac swamp south of May's School and Bell Avenue. "They come out of that little woods, just at dusk, and wander out into the field between it and Monaghan Road," Mrs. Blondin said. "I could hardly believe my eyes when I saw one elk the other evening. It has a wonderful set of horns, and I'm sure that I am right in my identification, because I know red deer. I am pretty sure that this one is an elk and not a deer, although I did not see it in full daylight.

"My husband and I last evening saw two of them, and we have been wondering if it is generally known that these animals from wild life are actually in the city."

The Examiner enquired from George Ball, principal of May's school, whether the pupils had seen anything resembling a deer in their neighborhood.

Mr. Ball confirmed the report of Mrs. Blondin not that the Examiner doubted her impressions. "Some of the children have been telling me about a deer south of Burford's and Bell Ave. They say they have seen it, and that it makes a rush toward them."

The poplar bush is on the north side of the CNR between Monaghan Road and Erskine Ave. The community has been gradually chopping into its stand of trees and cutting down its area, but it is still a fanrly large wood lot.

It was suggested a year or two ago after annexation, that some effort should be made to preserve those trees as a last natural leafy spot and bird sanctuary.

Wants Animals Protected

As to the elk invasion, Mrs Blondin said she hoped that publicity would protect and not injure the two animals.

"You can see them from Monaghan Road almost any evening when they come out of the swamp into the field."

C. S. Kingan said he had heard that there was one elk in the woods. "I guess it is one of those we put in the Crown Reserve south of Apsley. It must have worked its way down into Otonabee and crossed the river into Monaghan. That's one way it could have done.

"The Game Overseer knows about it. We have heard there is an elk and several deer in the bush. We should get them out of there. Right now there is nothing to prevent somebody from taking a pot shot at them. There are a few people like that around town, but apparently there is no one of that disposition living in the vicinity of Erskine Ave. bush."

RESPECT NEW UNION

M. J. Fenwick, United Steelworkers of America representative, told The Examiner today that the Steelworkers will respect the jurisdiction of the newly-formed international union of electrical workers. There will be no attempt on the part of Steel to enroll CGE workers, he said. An offer of help was extended to the pro-Morton faction at CGE. "They can also count on our support in ridding the union of C. S. Jackson and his Communist cohorts," stated Fenwick.

A local branch for the preservation of barbershop oldtime singing harmony in quartet volume may be organized here. Eddie Murphy, Jim Ridyard, Ed. O'Brien and a few more local fanciers of vocal harmony have arranged for an open meeting next Tuesday at 7.30 p.m. in the YMCA to organize such a branch and like-minded male warblers will be welcomed.

TROUNCE SOUTHERN CLUB

The Legion's Cribbage team whipped the DeLaval Cribbage Club team by 421 points in the weekly Legion cribbage night Wednesday at the Legion Hall. Legionnaires McKane and Gimblett hit a perfect score for eight games, 968 points, to help pile up the Legion score to 7363. Legionnaires Mounce and Bell placed second with 956 points while Simmonds and Hiller also of the Legion Club were third with 943 points.

HOLD KIDS' DAY

National Kids' Day will be celebrated this year November 19, Vincent McCabe, president of the Kiwanis Club, announced at the Thursday meeting. Kiwanis International and the National Kids' Day Foundation are combining this year to bring Kids' Day to the attention of the people in the United States and Canada.

Legion Calls For Helpers On Poppy Day

Poppy Day is Saturday. Commenced shortly after the close of World War I, Poppy Day will be celebrated Saturday with members of the Ladies' Branch of the Canadian Legion in Peterborough, the Ladies' Auxiliary, students from the public and separate schools and the Collegiate selling the poppies, made by veterans, to swell the poppy fund.

"Buy a Poppy to Wear on Remembrance Day" is the slogan used by the Canadian Legion.

Today members of the Ladies' Auxiliary canvassed the schools while in the factories the managements had the boxes sent throughout the plant.

Made By Veterans

The poppies which are sold by the Legion canvassers are made by the disabled veterans in the Vetcraft Shops of Canada, operated by the Dominion government through the Department of Veterans' Affairs. The manufacture of the poppies provides a livelihood for the disabled veterans of both wars.

Proceeds from sale of poppies after the cost of the poppies have been met, are placed in the Legion Branch 52 poppy fund. This fund is used to assist veterans and their families and widows of veterans who are in special need or distress. Each year the local branch of the Legion spends from $1,500 to $2,000 in this work. No grant is received from the local Community Chest Fund, relying upon the sale of poppies Saturday.

Helpers Needed

Garfield Torrance of the poppy fund committee said Friday that more people are needed to assist with the work on Saturday. Those wishing to help with the sale of poppies should call at the Legion Hall.

Children assisting in the sale of the poppies will receive hot chocolate and refreshments upon their return after their shift Saturday. A ticket to one of the theatres will also be given each child.

There is behind this effort the desire of the Legion to have every citizen wear a poppy on Remembrance Day, November 11, in memory of the men of Peterborough who died in World War I and World War II.

Lakefield Man Burned By Faulty Blowtorch

Burned on the arm by a shooting flame from a blowtorch, a Lakefield plumber, Edwin J. Millage, 60, was taken to Civic Hospital, Peterborough, Thursday afternoon where officials reported him "getting along nicely."

Mr. Millage was working on a septic tank when the valve of his blowtorch became loose and a flame shot out of the valve, badly burning his right forearm.

Reginald Turner Prominent Citizen Dies

Reginald Henry Turner, retired manufacturer, died today at Civic Hospital. He had been in declining health for more than a year.

Mr. Turner was born in Port Hope, son of the late John J. Turner, Sr., and his wife Jane Ann Hart, and had lived in Peterborough continuously since 1884 when his father transferred from [illegible] sail-making business which he had established with a background of skill and experience acquired in England.

Reg Turner grew up in his father's business at the corner of George and King Streets, which passed into new ownership at the beginning of this year. At one time he was vice-president of the company, in association with his father, and his brothers, Achilles W. and Webber F. Turner of this city, and the late John J. Turner, Jr.

Went Into Ice Business

Retiring from active participation in the Turner Company, Mr. R. H. Turner established the Sanitary Ice Supply, at the north end of Water St., equipped with the first commercial artificial ice-making plant in the city. From nearby premises he also carried on a fuel business, eventually disposing of both branches of that enterprise.

Mr. Turner was educated in Peterborough. As a young man he enlisted in the Canadian contingent for the Boer War and saw active service in South Africa. During his life time he engaged in many local affairs. He was a vice-president of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, president of the Motor League, a member of the Curling Club, Peterborough Golf and Country Club, Rotary Club, Corinthian Lodge A.F. & A.M. and Otonabee Lodge I.O.O.F., of which he was a member more than 50 years.

He had withdrawn in recent years from various organizations to which he had given his capable support, but he was a trustee of the Y.M.C.A. up to his death. He was also a member of St. Luke's Anglican Church, as were other members of the Turner family. A forgotten incident of their past laymanship at St. Luke's was the contribution of the four brothers in a parish concert in the Sunday School hall. As a quartet and singly, they provided most of the program.

Another recollection was the keen interest of the Turner family in the old Grand Opera House which they purchased from Rupert H. Bradburn. It was located immediately north of the Turner factor on the present site of Paramount Theatre.

A Real Showman

When Reg Turner went into the tent and awning plant of his father, the show business lost a man who was naturally adapted for it. He was obviously a showman possessing a talent for it which was largely shared by his brothers, and also by their father who is reported to have been an exceptionally good singer in his youth, before business monopolized his attention.

Mr. Turner had long been a cheery optimist, widely known in Peterborough, an interesting companion who delighted at times in recalling incidents from his travels, his war experience, and his business contacts. He saw the bright and humorous side of life. He leaves his wife, the former Elizabeth Garrow, and his brothers, Mr. A. W. (Chill) Turner and Mr. Webber F. Turner.

The body is resting at the family residence, 515 Water St., until early Monday afternoon. The funeral will take place from St. Luke's Church where the service will be conducted by the rector, Rev. Walter Gilling, beginning at 2.30 o'clock. Burial will be at Little Lake Cemetery.

Not Necessary To Be Inside Reporter Covering First Union Meeting Discovers

By BOB HATTON

"Well what happened at the union meeting last night?" people have been asking me as a reporter today. "It was confused. I can say that for it," is the answer which most readily comes to the lips. It was the first union meeting I had been at —or rather near. The meeting was strictly a closed one for UE union members only. While the good-natured mob filed in, some ten guards were at the door examining membership cards and [illegible]

"Why don't you use this old union card and go in?", some person obviously looking for excitement asked me.

Who wants to be a dead hero? Anyway it would be all Greek—or Russian—to me.

Doors Are Closed

When the last CGE worker had hurried in and the guards belligerently closed the doors, the booming loudspeaker roared out in a boisterous bellow that could be heard a block away. "Has that Examiner photographer left yet?"

Why bother going in? The closed meeting had more the sound of an open air public meeting.

A voice which was identified for me as belonging to C. S. Jackson Canadian president of the UE, roared through the shaking brick walls loud and clear.

"A straight bloody fascist action stolen whole from the book of James B. Carey in the United States," Jackson shouted raising himself to a fever pitch.

He was describing Morton's motion which, I was told, amounted to a blanket okay for the executive to take the local into the new International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers CIO.

"The CGE is rubbing its hands in glee because you're being taken down the path to destruction," Jackson shouted at the crowd which left-wingers said numbered 2,000 and the right-wingers 2,800.

But the reception most of Jackson's remarks got would hardly persuade him he was winning friends and influencing people.

Shortly after, John G. Morton stalked out of the hall. He was surrounded by a gang of grinning cohorts. But I don't know whether he left because he was mad at the crowd inside, it was mad at him, or whether his wife had told him to come home early.

In any case the closed meeting became very much a public one with Jackson, a tall, slight harassed looking man, dominating the loud speaker system and the meeting. About half the crowd streamed out and a reporter or two trickled in.

Morton and his executive were now thrown out of their jobs and some 18 other men were going to run things until a new executive could be elected. He also said if Morton thought he was going to get away with local 524's money, he was crazy.

By this time, most of Morton's supporters had apparently left and Jackson was cheered time after time.

The meeting finally ended, but it was a lot more confused at the end than I had been at the start. Apparently however both sides are happy; they both have padlocks on the door of the UE union hall on George St.

Cobourg Votes To Leave UE

COBOURG, Nov. 4.—(ENS). — The Cobourg local of the CGE, comprising about 120 union members, voted Thursday night to leave the UE and affiliate with the new international union of electrical, radio and machine workers.

This latter group was set up in opposition to the UE at the current CIO convention.

Acting President Al Knipfel of local 534, UE, issued this statement:

"It is the earnest desire of the members of the local to remain with the CIO, and thereby show our approval of the actions of the right wing groups of the UE. We wish to affiliate the new union with the CIO. Telegrams have been sent to James B. Carey, secretary-treasurer of the CIO, and Philip Murray, president of the CIO, informing them of our action."

FIRST CONCERT

The first Community Concert of the season took place Thursday night at the Collegiate when "De Paur's Infantry Chorus" of 35 American negro veterans gave the program.

German Union Pledges Fight Militarism

FRANKFURT, Germany, Nov 4 (AP) — A 5,000,000 member trade union federation pledged to fight militarism and nationalism and safeguard democratic rights has just been formed in Western Germany.

The mammoth organization is anti-Communist. It is firmly committed to support social justice in Germany and a peaceful understanding among countries.

eration, four years in the making, represents 40 per cent of the working population of western Germany.

Harvey W. Brown, director of the office of labor affairs of the United States High Commission for Germany, says:

"The chance for a free existence of the whole German people may well be in the hands of the Federation. The whole success of the democratic way of life in Germany depends upon how well the Federation does its job of fighting for social justice. . . and in utilizing the democratic processes. . ."

Important Move

The Labor Affairs Digest, official labor publication of the U. S. High Commission calls the founding of the Federation "the most important action in the German labor field since the war."

In 1945 labor leaders undertook the job of rebuilding German trade unions after 12 years in which a generation had grown up without any knowledge of trade unionism.

Within four years they have recruited more members than were enrolled in western Germany before 1933.

Delegates from 60 trade unions met in Munich to form the Federation. Only one big German union did not take part—the clerical workers. The 60 member unions claim a paid-up membership of 5,000,000 including 668,000 women and 442,000 youths.

American officials say that not more than 20 of the 487 delegates were Communists.

Kidnap School Girl

MULLINS, S.C., Nov. 4 (AU)—Police reported Wednesday night that seven-year-old Mary Spivey was kidnapped by two men after she got off a school bus to go to her farm home. The red coat and pink sweater she was wearing were found a short time later near where two white men picked up the girl in a 1941 Plymouth coupe, police said.

Hope Food Ministry Economy Means "Snoopers" On Way Out

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON, Nov. 4 (CP)—Conservatives whooped when Prime Minister Attlee announced that Britain's Food Ministry is cutting staff to save money.

In his economy program speech, Attlee told the House of Commons that £1,700,000 ($5,270,000) would be saved on food administration. Reductions would be made by streamlining regional organization and shedding certain "refinements of control."

Opposition members interpreted the latter phrase to mean government food "snoopers."

"Snooper" is the conservative word for food enforcement officers. Under defence laws in force, these officers may enter homes or stores to see whether such things as table jellies are being made without licence.

J. A. Langford-Holt, Conservative member for Shrewsberry, Shropshire, has referred to the food officers as food Minister Strackey's "private police force." This followed a Parliamentary reply in which the government acknowledged that 90 per cent of the snoopers used to be policemen.

Access at Any Time

Langford - Holt said the snoopers may visit homes "at any time of the day or night, whether the householders is at home or away."

All the snoopers needs is a card of authority signed by a Food Ministery official.

In April, 1948, there were 751 food enforcement officers. By April this year, the total had increased to nearly 1,000. In addition, there were more than 1,000 inspectors of food production and storage also holding the ministry warrant.

The Food Ministry now employs a total staff of about 40,000. Under the new retrenchment program, about 4,000 are expected to be released within 12 months.

Government opponents hope the snoopers are among those on the way out.

U.S. Planes Use Canadian Bases

OTTAWA, Nov. 4 — (CP). — United States Navy aircraft will use the facilities of three Canadian air bases during North-west Atlantic manoeuvres by the US Navy later this month, Defence Headquarters announced Thursday.

Some 40 naval aircraft are expected to take part in the exercises.

They will use the Canadian bases at Goose Bay, Labrador, Dartmouth, NS, and Frobisher Bay, on the south-east corner of Baffin Island. Long-range sea search planes will use these bases while patrol aircraft will operate from the Dartmouth.

Defence Headquarters said the use of Canadian bases was "part of the program of close co-operation between the armed forces of the two countries."

Shoemaker Arrested On False Pretences

BRANTFORD, Nov. 4 (CP) — Nicholas Marchuk, alias Nick Maker, was arrested today on a charge of false pretences.

The 33-year-old shoemaker was arrested in an apartment here seven hours after a Buffalo, N. Y., taxi driver reported that Marchuk had left a $36 taxi bill unpaid. The cabbie had driven Marchuk and another man from Buffalo Wednesday evening and arrived here about midnight.

Police reported that the driver Charles A. Gullo, said he and his fares went into a restaurant here shortly after midnight. Marchuk left "for a few minutes" but did not return.

Police said that Welland and Niagara Falls police were also seeking Marchuk.

"CIRCUMSTANCES made it necessary for me to drive my Hillman to Toronto in a hurry," writes Mr. J. C. B. Keane, of 766 Monterey Ave., Victoria, B.C. "I covered the entire 2,818 mile route in only 4½ days, averaging over 55 m.p.h. for long periods through the United States. Biggest mileage covered in a single day was 696!"

"My Hillman behaved beautifully, cruising smoothly over Stillwater Pass (7000 ft.) in high gear, and handling perfectly at better than 70 m.p.h. on the highway. Despite very long sessions at the wheel without a break, I was always completely relaxed and comfortable. What's more, my Hillman steered and held the road better than any of the big cars I have owned."

"Gas consumption was at least 40 miles to the gallon. Driving costs were no more than $1.00 per 100 miles."

Canadian Wins Nobel Award

By GUSTAV SVENSSON

STOCKHOLM, Nov. 4 (AP) — Coveted Nobel prizes for 1949 in the fields of physics and chemistry were awarded Thursday to two professors in American universities—one a Japanese and the other a Canadian scientist.

The first Japanese ever to receive the Nobel prize, Dr. Hideki Yukawa, was awarded the high honor for his mathematical discovery of the matter which holds electrons and protons together in the atom. The 42-year-old Dr. Yukawa has been professor of theoretical physics at Columbia University since last September.

Winner of the chemistry prize was Dr. William Francis Giauque, 54, professor of thermodynamics at the University of California who has studied the action of atoms at an absolute zero temperature. He is a native of Niagara Falls, Ont.

The prize for literature was shelved until next year after it was reported that the members of the Stockholm Academy were deadlocked in their secret meeting over four top candidates, including Winston Churchill and the Italian philosopher, Benedetto Croce.

Although none of the 35 candidates nominated were named, it was believed that the other top two in the controversy were the American novelist, William Faulkner, and Carl Sandburg, poet and biographer of Abraham Lincoln.

PRESTON, Ont., Nov. 4—(CP)—A 24-member syndicate, which won $150 on an Irish sweepstakes ticket, have decided to "blow" the cheque on a party. Albert Abbott who drew Hyperbole, favorite for the recent Cambridgeshire Handicap, said he sold 23 shares in the ticket. Hyperbole was an also-ran.

11 Airmen Die In B-29 Crash

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Nov. 4 (CP)—Eleven airmen were killed Thursday night when a B-29 Superfortress of the 373rd weather reconnaisance squadron here crashed at sea one mile from the north shore of Bermuda.

There were 14 men aboard the plane. Four survivors were picked up by a row boat but one of them died after being taken out of the water.

The plane from Kindley Field, U. S. Air Force base here, was on a test flight preparatory to take-off on a weather mission.

It developed engine trouble and crashed in the sea soon after leaving the field.

Visions Of Hot Steak Dinner Kept Marooned Woman Going

FORT FRANCES, Ont., Nov. 4 —(CP)—Cast away on a rain and snow-swept island for 90 hungry, sleepless hours, Mrs. John Frankiewicz said Thursday rom a hospital bed that she managed to keep going by "vsiions" of hot steak dinners and steaming coffee

The young housewife, whose husband was drowned in the upsetting of a motor-driven canoe on Lake Despair, 35 miles northwest of here, spent three days and four nights on the island. The ordeal weakened her to such an extent that once when seachers passed only 25 feet away in a boat "I was unable to mumble a word or wave a hand to them."

Mrs. Frankiewicz, whose husband was a Hong Kong veteran, said that a heavy parka she was wearing seemed to fill with air and helped her keep afloat after the canoe tipped in rough water She said that she is "unable to swim a stroke."

Mr. and Mrs. Frankiewicz were off on the first leg of a hunting trip when the acident occurred last Friday. The woman was found on Burnt Island Tuesday morning.

"Friday night I sat and shivered in my wet clothes and then Saturday morning I tried to dry my clothes in the strong wind and made a sort of shelter by the root of a big tree that had blown down. Getting some branches, I covered part of it over and piled some on the wet ground to sit on.

'Saturday night it rained and I got soaking wet again and couldn't sleep because I was having visions of hot steak dinners and steaming coffee.

Plane Misses Signal

'On Sunday morning I saw a plane fly over and I waved a red handkerchief but they didn't see me. In the afternoon I became very thirsty but not the least bit hungry.

"I crawled down to the shore an dtook a big drink of cold water and then I was very sick and could hardly pul myself back to the shelter. That night it turned very cold and my clothes froze stiff and my feet and legs pained."

Mrs. Frankiewicz said that on Monday morning she heard the sound of paddles striking rocks near the shore and she saw a boatload of searchers directed by Constable Ken Rayner of the Ontario Provincial Police. It was this boat that passed only 25 feet from her.

"From then on I didn't care what happened and I think that sometimes I wished that I had stayed with my husband."

Mrs. Frankiewicz said that she must have been in the water at least 2½ hours after the canoe tipped about 200 feet from the point of the island on which she eventually was cast up.

City Father Trades Words With Smythe On Tickets

TORONTO, Nov. 4 (CP) — Verbal broadsides flowed freely from both camps Thursday in Toronto's battle of hockey tickets, precipitated when Maple Leaf Gardens changed the color of free ducats issued city controllers.

City fathers were conspicuous of their absence at the Toronto-New York National Hockey League fixture Wednesday, first big-time engagement in the Gardens since their seats were switched from the exclusive, rinkside "red" section to the more common "blue" section.

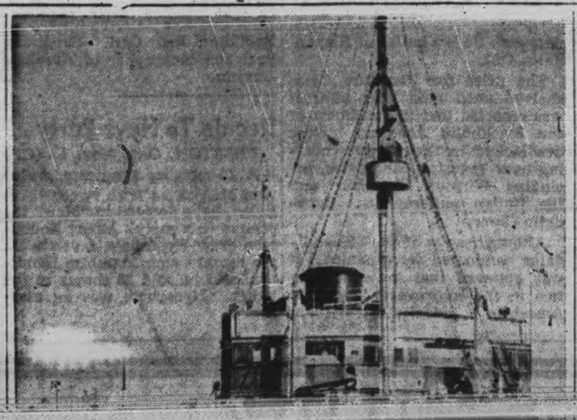
[illegible] were Controller David Balfour and Conn Smythe, the Gardens' outspoken major-domo. Mayor Hiram McCallum kept out of it—and he advised his controllers to "duck."

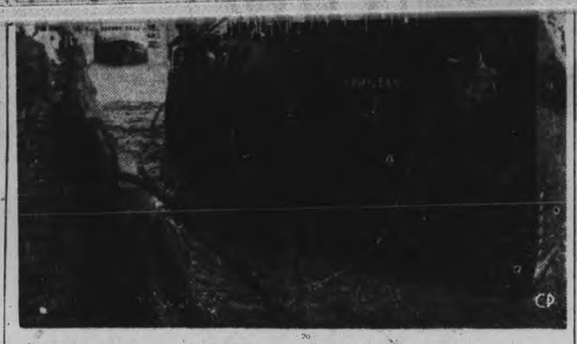
Controller Balfour said he would accept no more tickets unless the Gardens managing-director writes him a properly-worded invitation to attend the NHL attractions.

Mr. Smythe retorted: "Mr. Balfour is thereby doing a public service by making two more tickets available to the general public."

When Controller Allan Lamport returned his tickets, Mr. Smythe promptly scratched his name from the Gardens' list of complimentary [illegible]

Mr. Smythe denied Mr. Lamport's suggestion an increased city assessment for the arena may have been the cause for the ticket switch. The assessment this year was increased $300,000.





"GREAT FAT SEAL"—Eskimos living along Hudson Strait in Canada's sub-Arctic territory regard the Transport Department icebreaker N. B. McLean as a friendly annual visitor and call it the "great fat seal." The icebreaker is shown above arriving at Quebec after a four-month, 7,213-mile patrol on the northern grain route from the port of Churchill.

Public School Art Exhibition Shows Fine Work Done In Schools

The public schools art exhibition which opened at the Public Library Thursday features many types of media new to the public school curriculum.

The introduction of tempera paint and brush work among children of all public school grades is one of the most outstanding examples displayed.

An ingenious media which several of the youngsters have used with effect is the scratch picture. The paper is covered with a [illegible] after which the subject is scratched out. Then to the entire picture is applied a coat of India ink and when the ink is rubbed away from the picture scratched on the wax, the subject stands out in relief against the dark background.

Colored Marble

Another method resulting in some excellent designs is to drop oil paints of varying colors into a container of water. When the colors rise to the surface a piece of paper is laid on top of the water and carefully removed. The result is a reproduction on paper of colored marble.

Designs suitable for wall paper, dress material, etc., are produced by using ink blots and other novel methods are paste pull designing, spatter work, finger painting, string work on paper and paper sculpture.

There is a map of Canada and the Nova Scotian crest reproduced in salt and flour modelling and a large assortment of papier mache models of Hallowe'en masks, dolls, fruit etc.

In the kindergarten and junior section there is a fine display of papier mache fruits set out with place mats and serviettes with thanksgiving designs made by the children. Hanging on the wall are several thanksgiving designs for sets of china.

Puppet Show

Central School is exhibiting a puppet show complete with minature stage and curtains. The puppets have controls and are made of paper bags and dressed in crepe paper and cloth.

A couple of larger papier mache figures representing Queen Elizabeth and Drake are exhibited by Prince of Wales School and Queen [illegible] so have some fine papier mache figures on display.

A diarama representing the landing of Champlain in asbestos and clay, is also exhibited and there are several exquisite models of furnished rooms.

Log cabins of corrugated paper and painted paper wig-wams bring a characteristically Canadian atmosphere to a thanksgiving scene in which the figures of clothes pegs are cleverly dressed to represent men and women.

Most of the subjects of models, paintings and crayon drawings are Canadian. One graphic picture, however, is a poster advocating temperance. A creditable reproduction of St. John's Anglican Church in water colors hangs with a variety of subjects including ski-ing scenes and a great variety of action subjects.

There are two excellent maps, one reproduced on a sheet of factory cloth approximately four feet by two and a half depicting the fur trade in Canada. The other measuring five feet by five is a crayon drawing on paper is entitled Lure of Western Canada Markers from chief centres direct the attention to panels containing pictures depicting the interest of the particular spot.

The exhibition is under the direction of Miss C. Wagar, supervisor of art who was assisted in hanging the pictures and arranging the models by Mrs. Kidd and her pupils.

Schools represented are King Edward King George, Central Prince of Wales, Queen Mary, Queen Alexandra, Confederation, Mays, Grove and Parkhill.

FATHER OF SCOUTING The Boy Scouts Association was first formed in 1908 by the late Lieut.-Gen. Lord Baden-Powell.

Fines Stock Salesman

LONDON, Ont., Nov. 4—(CP)—Fines totalling $1,400 were levied by Magistrate D. B. Menzies in the last two days against three local stock salesmen for trading in securities without licences. Fred C. Small Thursday was convicted on one of two charges and was fined $500. Ross T. Little pleaded guilty to two charges and was fined $200 on each. On Wednesday, Gordon Dewey was convicted on one charge and fined $500.

Population Booming

TORONTO, Nov. 4 — (CP) — Premier Frost said Thursday the population of Ontario is increasing at the rate of 10,000 a month including immigration and births. The province is building enough houses to take care of the increase while also catching up a little with its housing back-log, he said in a statement. Present population is listed as "inexcess of 4,500,000.

Appointed Rector

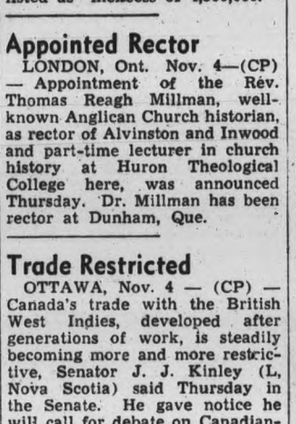
LONDON, Ont. Nov. 4—(CP) — Appointment of the Rev. Thomas Reagh Millman, well-known Anglican Church historian, as rector of Alvinston and Inwood and part-time lecturer in church history at Huron Theological College here, was announced Thursday. Dr. Millman has been rector at Dunham, Que.

Trade Restricted

OTTAWA, Nov. 4 — (CP) — Canada's trade with the British West Indies, developed after generations of work, is steadily becoming more and more restrictive, Senator J. J. Kinley (L, Nova Scotia) said Thursday in the Senate. He gave notice he will call for debate on Canadian-British West Indies trade soon.

March of Dimes Drive

OTTAWA, Nov. 4 — (CP) — A national Canadian March of Dimes campaign was approved Thursday by the Canadian Foundation for Poliomyelitis. The drive is expected to get under way in January.



VERSATILE LAWYER — David Arnold Croll was born in Moscow, March 12, 1900, and came to Canada at the age of six. Twenty-four years later he was elected to the Ontario Legislature as a Liberal after several years as mayor of Windsor, Ont. Appointed minsiter of labor and municipal affairs, he resigned his portfolio in 1937 nd ajoined the Essex Scottish Regiment as a private in 1939. He left the army in 1945 as a colonel and was elected to the House of Commons for Toronto Spadina in the general election of that year.

Beecham, London Orchestra Plan 1950 Canadian Tour

MONTREAL, Nov. 4 (CP) — Sir Thomas Beecham, conductor of the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra of London, announced on Thursday that he will bring the orchestra to this continent next year for a tour that will be the greatest effort of purely private enterprise in the history of music.

The eight week tour, first in Canada and the United States for the 100-piece orchestra, is expected to begin in Montreal next Oct. 16. The conductor, famed for his acid wit, told a press conference that it will receive no government aid.

"I have insisted that the first concert given by the orchestra upon this territory shall be in Montreal," Sir Thomas said.

"There is a very good reason for this. During the past nine years my closest and most continuous association with any trans-Atlantic musical organization has been with the Montreal Festivals."

Sir Thomas is here to direct Berlioz' Requiem, to be presented tomorrow night in Notre Dame Church with an augmented orchestra 300 voices and four brass bands.

"We," said Sir Thomas, "that is the orchestra and I, have absolutely refused to add one iota to the British taxpayers' burden, by sponging on it in the name of art."

Sir Thomas said Berlioz was the most original mind that had as yet appeared on the musical scene He had no predecessors and though he had some imitators, he had no followers. The real founder of the orchestra, Berlioz was its great master.

He said singing standards were declining throughout the world because the standards of music and vocal teachers were declining. Singing was still maintained in most parts of England but they had stopped singing in Wales. "They only strike now," said Beecham.

Search On Island

FORT FRANCES Ont., Nov. 4 (CP)—The search for two hunters from International Falls, Minn., Thursday moved to a small island in Lake Kabetomaga, about 20 miles southeast of here. The men, George Bergstedt, 31, and Wally Thompson, 67, are four days overdue from a duck hunting trip to the lake. Their boat and some hunting equipment were found on the island Wednesday.

Fears Canada Losing Patience With Britain

MANCHESTER, Nov. 4 (CP)—In a lengthy leading editorial, the Manchester Guardian today accuses the Labor party's left-wing members of making Canada the "scapegoat" of the British economic crisis.

The influential Liberal newspaper says the thesis first broached—even that Canada would be broke if Britain stopped buying Canadian wheat, now has been taken up by the party's left-wingers as a "painless" way of explaining Britain's financial plight to the electorate.

The Guardian warns that Britain would come off second best in any attempt to force Canada into the sterling area. The paper says Canada's economy is efficient and flexible and the Dominion could count on American aid if forced to revamp her economy.

"Canadians don't want to have to integrate themselves more closely in a North American economy, but it's not they who have to be very worried about the consequences.

"It's we who have to be worried lest the talk of our left-wingers should finally make Canadians decide their patience and help for British recovery is not worthwhile. That patience is already being severely tested by fresh cuts in dollar imports which the government is now beginning to make.

"The worst think that could happen for us now is to destroy Canadian goodwill by a fatuous pretence that Canada either ought to or can be forced into the sterling area."

ARCTIC ARRIVALS — A doctor, missionary and three Eskimo children were passengers aboard the Transport Department icebreaker N. B. McLean which docked at Quebec this week from its annual patrol of the Hudson Bay shipping lanes to Churchill. Dr. Bernard Laramee, left, of Montreal was aboard in his capacity as physician for the Indian Affairs Department. Father Marcel Rio, right, left his mission at Southampton Island after a three-year stay. The Eskimos were brought out for medical care and study.

Government Supporters Crush CCF Want-of-Confidence Motion

OTTAWA, Nov. 4—(CP) — A CCF want-of-confidence motion in the government calling for immediate tariff reduction was defeated 169 to 19 Thursday night as the Commons neared the end of the budget debate.

The CCF received Social Credit support while the Progressive Conservatives lined up with the Liberals to reject the motion. It asked the government to give "immediate consideration to a reduction of tariffs sufficient to encourage an increase in imports from the United Kingdom and other sterling areas."

Another Vote

Rejection of the motion now clears the way for discussion and eventual vote on a Progressive Conservative want-of-confidence motion.

This motion, introduced by Hon. Earl Howe (PC, Dufferin-Simcoe) asks the government to invite Commonwealth countries to a conference to work out arrangements for preserving "those traditional markets on which jobs and opportunities for Canadians very largely depend."

James Rooney (L-Toronto St. Paul's) suggested the government ... Oct. 21 by Ross Thatcher (CCF, Moose Jaw), first speaker for his party in the budget debate.

Dealing particularly with the situation in his riding, Mr. Rooney said that as a result of the housing shortage more and more people are moving to the suburbs. If apartments were available more of these people would remain in the city.

By replacing slum houses with modern apartment buildings the city's revenues would be increased.

Coal Mine Help

Help for western coal mines was urged by C. E. Johnston (SC-Bow River). The Calgary teacher said the federal government ... ied apartment houses to ease the housing shortage in large cities.

... subventions on western coal to enable it to compete on the central Canada market with United States coal.

Owen Jones (CCF-Yale) pressed the government to unfreeze a fund of $23,000,000 set aside for loans to municipalities under the Municipal Improvements Assistance Act.

Joseph Noseworthy (CCF-York South) suggested the question of federal aid to education as a subject for discussion at the forthcoming Dominion-Provincial conference on constitutional matters.

2 Key Men In Monopoly Inquiry Hand Resignations To Government

OTTAWA, Nov. 4. (CP)—Two key men in Canada's anti-monopoly probes of dental supply, optical, bread and flour-milling firms have resigned their posts.

Justice Minister Garson in the Commons Thursday announced the resignations of F. A. McGregor, 61-year-old commissioner of the Combines Act, and one of his two deputies, I. M. MacKeigan, 34.

It was understood there was no relationship between the two resignations. Mr. McGregor was believed to have acted to underline a protest against the government's handling of his reports on alleged monopolies or acts in restraint of trade.

Mr. MacKeigan was believed to have made known his wishes to resign from the justice department many months ago, but remained at his post to complete his work. He expects to leave Dec. 1 and take up the practice of law in Halifax.

The effective date of Mr. McGregor's resignation was not indicated by Mr. Garson, but it is reported to be Jan. 1.

No Appointments

A departmental spokesman said he presumed the men would be replaced, but he knew of no appointments pending or when such appointments would be made.

Only senior man remaining on the combines investigation staff is A. S. Whiteley, 46, one of Mr. McGregor's two deputies, who joined the department 12 years ago.

Mr. Garson gave no reason for the commissioner's resignation, but said he will table Friday an exchange of correspondence with Mr. McGregor and the deputy commissioner.

Speculation on the commissioner's resignation — which comes at a time when the government has said it is going to tighten the Combines law—has been boiling for the last two days.

Prodded by CCF members Wednesday and Thursday, Mr. Garson said he would table Monday the department's report on an alleged combine in the flour and milling industry.

Stanley Knowles (CCF—Winnipeg North Centre) asked when the report was received. He wanted to know if it was being tabled within 15 days of its receipt by the minister as provided in the Act.

Files Appeal

REGINA, Nov. 4 — (CP) — Walter Tucker, Saskatchewan Liberal leader, Thursday filed notice of appeal against a court of King's Bench judgment which dismissed his $100,000 slander suit against Premier T. C. Douglas. Mr. Tucker's action alleged the Premier had slandered him in a campaign speech delivered before the 1948 Provincial election.

Says Dairy Producers Own Worst Enemies

OTTAWA, Nov. 4 (CP)—Gordon Greer, president of the Ottawa Valley Milk Producers' Association, said Thursday that dairy producers are their own worst enemies because not all of them support their organization.

"Our own ranks are our most serious obstacle to progress," said Mr. Greer in an address at the annual association banquet.

"We have to be thoroughly organized against the organized opposition, otherwise we have no chance of making progress. Indeed, farmers outside the organization are a millstone about our necks."

Can't Reach Agreement

OTTAWA, Nov. 4 — (CP) — Inability of the various accountants organizations in Ontario to reach an agreement is preventing formation of a central licensing agency for accounts, Guy W. Smith, president of the Institute of Chartered Accountants of Ontario, said Thursday.

No Military Toys

BERLIN, Nov. 4—(Reuters) — West-Berlin school children, resolved to have nothing to do with toy soldiers, cannons, tanks and bombers, will ask western-sector toy shops to display notices saying "no militaristic toys sold here."

UN Studying Unemployment

LAKE SUCCESS, N.Y., Nov. 4 (CP)—The United Nations Economic Committee Thursday decided to issue a recommendation that all 59 member countries consider immediate measures to fight unemployment.

The move was the first by the UN to meet economic problems made acute since the series of currency devaluations last month.

The Australian resolution approved by the 59-member committee goes to the full assembly for final approval.

At the same time the committee rejected a Czechoslovak resolution recommending that UN members take drastic legislative action ranging from tax reform to arms reduction to meet unemployment problems.

Adoption of the Australian resolution, by a vote of 35 to 9 with two abstentions, ended a two-week debate based on a UN survey which showed unemployment is rising around the world.

James Plimsoll of Australia told reporters his resolution was largely aimed at boosting international trade, which has a great effect on employment. He said the trade problems have been brought to the fore since the currency devaluations.

The vote on the Czech resolution was 21 against, six for, and 21 abstentions. The Russian bloc voted against the Australian plan and supported the Czech.

Grand Scale Tea, Bazaar By St. Andrew's WA Exceeds Past Successes

A grand scale tea and bazaar that maintained interest for a capacity crowd during three hours of Thursday afternoon was the satisfying result achieved by St. Andrew's WA workers. Greatest yet in financial and social returns, the event exceeded expectations and the splendid successes of past years.

General Convener Mrs. C. C. Pilon and convener of ticket sales, Mrs. Jack Richardson, are largely [illegible]

Six bazaar tables in the Sunday school auditorium were groaning under the weight of their sale offerings at the opening hour, but all were relieved of encumbrance by six o'clock. An uninformed shopper might well have thought she had come into the Christmas toy department of a large store, for there were all sizes of dressed dolls and extra clothes for dollies, made with hand-embroidered smocking and in the exact pattern of little girls' dresses. In addition there were miniature replicas of modern beds, each fitted with a spring and mattress as well as the necessary bedding and a fancy comforter, and in each bed was a tiny doll in night dress.

Aprons, mittens and socks in children's sizes were quickly picked up, giving excellent quality at prices well below local retail. Novelty holders, hand towels, fancy aprons and potted plants were among the innumerable attractions, and a corner of one table was filled with jewelry, old and new. A full size bedspread, knitted by Mrs. T. Brightman, was offered to the highest bidder. A small knitted afghan was displayed on the specialty table.

Garden produce filled one table and included fresh vegetables as well as canned goods, eggs, home cooking, candy and plants. Cakes, pies, buns and drop cakes and a wide assortment of confections from the cooking and candy tables are being enjoyed today.

Christmas cards sold by Mrs. M. Mitchell presented an opportunity to be well ahead of the rush this year.

Festive decorations in this room, the work of Mrs. J. G. Wharry, befitted the season of duck hunting, Hallowe'en and gay parties. True, the birds were stuffed, but they were effective on beds of pine needles, cornered by pudgy pumpkins with grinning faces. Clusters of colored balloons hung over silvered shields on the walls.

Mrs. Ken Kingston decorated the tea tables using yellow and brown with copper as the color theme and she brought sumac, bittersweet and snowberries from the woods for background charm.

An antique epergne with turpentine pine cones from Virginia centred the stage tea table, filled in at the botom with old fashioned popcorn and white pine cones and branches. The cloth of yellow lace and yellow candles were in copper painted bases. On the parlor tea table the yellow damask cloth was centred with a copper tray, almost hidden by brown oak leaves and yellow chrysanthemums. The candles in similar bases were green.

Tea pourers during the afternoon were Mrs. E. Hawley, Mrs. H. Tremaine, Mrs. J. Heffernan, Mrs. A. McWilliams, Mrs. C. Laing, Mrs. J. McColl, Mrs. F. W. K. Harris, and Mrs. G. Glendinning. Servers were Mrs. J. G. Wharry, Mrs. J. Archibald, Mrs. E. Braund, Mrs. P. Rowell, Miss Doris Burgess, Mrs. F. Rothschild, Mrs. R. Blackwell, Mrs. H. White, Mrs. K. Kingston, Mrs. K. Robertson, Miss Verna Burgess and Mrs. H. Waddell. The plates were replenished by Miss Ruth Barns, Mrs. J. Campbell, Mrs. V. Foster, Mrs. J. Gillespie, and Mrs. R. Whalon.

Mrs. H. Baker was in charge of the tea rooms with Mrs. G. Ham and Mrs. R. Lewis assisting. [illegible] Green, Mrs. F. Dawson, Mrs. W. A. Henry, Mrs. R. Cole, Mrs. G. A. Gillespie, Mrs. R. McNab and Miss M. Manning.

Hostesses to the tea rooms were Mrs. G. Reinhardt, Mrs. M. T. Breckenridge, Mrs. A. Moir, Misses B. King and M. Ferguson.

Bazaar assistants were: doll specialty table, Mrs. J. S. Boyd, Mrs. F. W. Moeser, Mrs. J. A. McKone, Mrs. H. Davis, Mrs. C. B. Waite, Mrs. Wm. Swanger, Mrs. M. B. Carr; miscellaneous novelty table, Mrs. D. V. Ketcheson, Mrs. E. R. Shirley and Mrs. C. Wishart; garden produce, Mrs. I. Rattenbury, Mrs. W. L. White, Mrs. C. Andrew, Mrs. A. E. Gatz, Miss Hall; home cooking, Mrs. W. E. Baggs, Mrs. T. Gaskell, Mrs. H. Northrop, Mrs. S. Batten, Mrs. H. Wilson and Mrs. J. Young; candy booth, Mrs. J. Turnbull, Mrs. J. Jessen and Mrs. L. Bearne.

Receiving with Mrs. I. H. Keefer, president, was Mrs. M. J. Aiken. Mrs. V. Hamilton was assisting at the treasurer's table.

Why Break Up Two Families For Amusing Love Affair

DEAR MISS DIX: I am very much in love with a married man who is my physician. The affair began by my amusing myself by trying to lure him away from his wife to whom he was very devoted. Well, I have succeeded and, although she became my friend and was very kind to me, I can't let that have a husband and child, but this passion of mine is greater than even my love for my child and I am willing to sacrifice everything. But I am wondering if he will come through the test, or will the ties that bind him to his wife prove too strong to break? If I am willing to give up my child for him I ought to be very sure that his love will be lasting. What shall I do?

AN UNHAPPY WOMAN

ANSWER: The thing for you to do is the decent, clean kind thing, and that is to give up this guilty love. Break up your liaison with this married man. Restore him to his wife before she finds out about his treachery to her and go back to you own husband and child and do your duty by them.

You do not seen to be troubled with much conscience, but surely no woman's soul is so dead that she can escape having twinges of remorse when she thinks that just to amuse herself she brought dishonor on two families and broke up two homes.

Comes Unbidden

Sometimes love comes to us unbidden and a married man and woman are swept into each other's arms by a great gust of passion before they realize what is happening to them. One can have sympathy and make excuses for this tragic catastrophe. But you have no such apology to offer for your conduct.

You were not in love with this man. You knew he was in love with his wife and yet you deliberately set yourself to work, by using every feminine art and wile, to take him away from his wife and to inspire in him a passion that could only bring him misery. Could any woman do a more heartless thing to a sister woman? Could any woman do a crueler thing to a man, for well you knew that you would not only ruin his happiness but wreck him professionally.

And you ask if his love for you will be lasting. Can a weak thing be strong? The man whom a woman can take away from his wife, a better-looking and more seductive woman can always take away from her.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: Does a better wife than a good-natured, untidy one?

J. S. K.

ANSWER Depends upon ease of mind versus ease of body, and whether you would rather have a wife who saved your pennies or saved your disposition.

There are homes where a man has to wipe his feet before he enters; where he dares not move a chair out of its appointed place; where to drop a paper on a floor or to spill cigarette ashes is a high crime and misdemeanor and where the whole of life goes on with the never-ending nagging and fretting and whining and complaining of a shrewish woman.

And there are other homes that look as if a cyclone has just passed over them; where nothing is ever orderly or overly clean; where meals are never on time and are badly cooked; where there is a lamentable lack of thrift and management, but where there is always laughter and good nature and sympathy and understanding.

A man may come to such a home secure of being drawn by tender hands across the threshold, of being petted and made much of, of being praised and jollied and appreciated. Children's toys may be scattered over the floor and the dog may be asleep on the best sofa, but there is fun and liberty and human give and take, and the husband and children never want to leave home and adore the sweet-tempered, easy-going, slovenly woman at the head of it.

DEAR MISS DIX: How long should a boy and girl go together before they get married?

A. AND B.

ANSWER: The ideal length of time is long enough for them to get well acquainted with each other and not so long that they get tired of each other.

DOROTHY DIX cannot reply personally to readers, but will answer problems of general interest through her column.

FOR INDIAN HEALTH — This aerial view of Moose Factory Island on the Moose River, a few miles from James Bay, shows construction site of the new $2,000,000 Indian hospital being built by the federal government. In the background are the buildings of the historic fort, Moose Factory, one of the oldest settlements in Ontario, dating back to 1673. The multi-million dollar hospital will serve 900 Indians who trap and hunt in the James Bay area. Tuberculosis has been a big killer of the natives and one of the aims of the new medical establishment is to reduce this death toll.

Queen Upholds Happy Home Nation's Strength

LONDON, Nov. 4 (AP)—Queen Elizabeth Thursday held up a happy home and family as "the true worth and strength of a nation."

She spoke briefly in accepting an honorary fellowship in the Royal College of Obstetricians and Gynaecologists.

"I share with all my heart your belief that it is on the happiness of home and family that the true worth and strength of a nation depend," the Queen said.

"But what has been so well described as 'the miracle of life and the source of all tenderness and love in humanity' demands more than even the best technical attention.

"It demands spiritual approach as well, and it is good to know that in your profession its members bring to their work a warm human understanding and a deep sense of moral values,"

Council Seeking Woman On Liquor Board

TORONTO, Nov. 4—(CP)—Appointment of a woman to the Ontario Liquor Control Board was urged Thursday night in a declaration of policy adopted by a rally of several thousand Ontario women representing scores of women's groups.

The gathering, held in downtown Massey Hall under sponsorship of the Ontario Provincial Council of Women, also called for a conference with the Ontario Government to discuss the sale and use of liquor. It suggested that the province set up a body to study the operation of laws governing liquor handling.

Speakers were Dr. Charlotte Whiton, Ottawa social worker; Mrs. Edgar Bates, dean of women at McMaster University, Hamilton; and Mrs. J. R. Futcher of St. Thomas, president of the Federated Women's Institutes of Ontario.

Dr. Whitton told the rally, which filled Massey Hall and overflowed into nearby Metropolitan United Church, that Ontario citizens, particularly mothers, are "a bit illogical and irresponsible" in calling on the government to enforce in licensed premises legal provisions ignored in private homes.

"It is this sort of careless and casual growth in the social use of alcoholic beverages, often by well-ordered, disciplined and moderate persons, that calls for effective education in the regular school system as to the nature and use of alcohol," she added. "Only so can these social costs be avoided or reduced."

Mrs. Bates said a survey showed that 65 per cent of adults in Canada use alcohol and that five per cent develop an illness from its use.

Mrs. Futcher advocated closing down all premises that serve intoxicating beverages to men and women. She said:

"We are not extremists or cranks when we take up arms against any abuse if it is because we honestly feel there is a danger. We deplore the fact the drinking habit is growing among our citizens, both young and old . . . Is it not stupidity to open community centres to protect our youth and, at the same time, to license liquor premises to corrupt them?"

EATON'S TOYLAND

Opens Saturday November 5th

Lovely . . . Lovable Barbara Ann Scott Dolls

5.95

These winsome dolls with medium-blonde hair and long-lashed sleeping eyes bear a striking resemblance to our famous skating queen. Made of natural colour composition with moving arms and legs, and dressed in a dainty marabou-trimmed skating dress and headpiece of bright cotton velvet. With a pair of white skates to complete her outfit.

Realistic Baby "Wetums" Dolls

Lifelike composition dolls about 13" high. Like a real baby, when she drinks she wets. Each 1.49

Toyland Feature Value
Dolls' Strollers

Well made strollers in a pink or blue enamelled finish, with rubber-tired wheels. Handle about 19" from floor. Each 2.89

Monkey Shines For Indoor Fun

See Jacko the monkey climb the palm tree and pick himself some marble "coco-nuts." A sturdy metal toy about 18" high. Each 2.25

Toyland Feature Value
Sturdy Pedal Cars

Solid meal frames in blue enamelled finish, with bright red wooden seat and cream coloured disc wheels with oversize rubber tires. Handlebars have practical rubber grips. Each 3.89

Sturdy Mechanical Trains For Young Engineers

A favourite toy of all young boys . . . engine, coal tender and 2 coaches in a realistic enamel finish. Overall length of train about 16". Complete with track. Set 1.98

Junior Cooking Sets of Shiny Aluminum

19 utensils for the well-equipped Kiddies' Kitchen . . . 5 saucepans, 3 broilettes, 3 frying pans, 2 pie plates, 2 turners, 2 spoons, and 1 dish, egg beater and rolling pin. Set 1.49

Junior Cleanette Sets For Busy Housekeepers

6-piece cleaning sets, consisting of carpet sweeper, long-handled mop, duster, neat cotton apron, nail brush and cake of soap . . . complete "housecleaning" needs. Set ..... .95

Extension-Ladder Fire Trucks

Realistic fire trucks of fire-red plastic with contrasting trim . . . powered by a strong, spring-wind motor, that operates siren and bell as truck races across the room. Each 1.89

Toyland Feature Value
Baffling "Ghost Trains"

One train enters tunnel, another leaves it! Cleverly designed toy finished in realistically lithographed metal. Operates for several minutes on each winding. Each 2.69

10-Piece Pastry Sets For A Girl's Kitchen

A gift to thrill the eager young cook on Christmas morning . . . metal pastry sets consisting of rolling pin, bread board, mixing bowl, fluted bowl, cake pan, pie plate, cookie tin, 2 cookie cutters and an egg beater. Set 1.19

Toyland Feature Value
Checkerboard Sets

Large size checkerboards attractively covered with simulated leather paper. Complete with 24 red and black wood checkers and neatly boxed. Set ..... .29

"The Night Before Christmas"

A favourite Christmas story beautifully illustrated in gay colours . . . in a soft cover with three bells that jingle merrily as you turn the pages. Each ..... .49

Gerty the Goose

Order Right-Wing Leaders Out of U.E.

New Unions Ignore Fitzgerald

Membership Divided Across US—Canada Jockey For Position

PITSBURGH, Nov. 5 (AP) — President Albert J. Fitzgerald's order reading right-wing leaders out of his United Electrical Workers Union is being met today either with defiance or with silence.

The order, in the form of telegrams to individual officers, came Friday, a result of the expulsion of the U.E. by the national CIO earlier this week at its convention in Cleveland.

The expulsion, on the grounds of left-wing-ism, immediately put the long-standing left-right fight out in the open.

Officers of at least five big UE locals through the United States have received telegrams from Fitzgerald telling they are no longer officers or members of the union.

Some, like Clyde J. Bowman, executive board member of 13,700-member local 601 at the Westinghouse Electric Corporation in East Pittsburgh, have wired back defiant messages. Bowman, one of 24 officers "read out" at Pittsburgh, told Fitzgerald:

"Because you walked out of the CIO, I no longer recognize you as having any authority to tell me anything."

Ignore Telegrams

Others, like the 10 right-wingers tossed out at Westinghouse's turbine plant in Sharon, Pa. simply ignored the telegrams.

Unverified reports indicated all right-wing UE officials got Fitzgerald telegrams, which also were signed by Charles Newell, UE international representative.

A UE official at Pittsburgh reported the telegram he received from Fitzgerald said:

"Because you left the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers and because of your participation in a conspiracy

Scalding At RMC Horseplay Won't Be Tradition, CO Says

KINGSTON, Nov. 5—(CP)—Donald W. Strong of Brantford, 22-year-old Royal Military College cadet who was scalded when class mates dumped him into a bath of hot water, was the victim "of an isolated incident of horseplay of the sort that occurs from time to time among any group of high spirited young men," Brigadier D. R. Agnew, commandant of the College said today. "I do not condone it and I am making every effort to eliminate such college pranks," he continued. "Throwing cadets into baths is not an R.M.C. tradition . . . and it will not be allowed to become a tradition."

The incident occurred during a popular demonstration by cadets after church parade last Sunday. The commandant explained that the practice of the college was to give all the cadets the opportunity to exercise responsibility in junior leadership. Their authority during their six-weeks tour of duty was similar to that of an acting N.C.O.

"Last Sunday, Cadet Strong and three other cadets who had been acting as squadron seniors had just completed their tour of duty," said Brigadier Agnew.

Permit Demonstration

Anticipating the possibility that cadets might wish to mark by some demonstration, the end of "NCO's" tenture of office, the commandant said he had told the cadets that if they had approved of the actions of their seniors, "I would permit them to demonstrate in some form, providing it would not humiliate or bring discredit to any cadet."

"When the cadets were dismissed from church parade last Sunday, the four seniors were spontaneously picked up and carried around the square on the shoulders of their fellows." "Those participating sang—'For they are jolly good fellows.'"

"The 'chaired' cadets were carried into the dormitory building and the bath incident was an unfortunate culmination to the demonstration" Brig. Agnew added.

There was no intention on the part of any cadet to seize an opportunity to "take-it-out" on Strong, Brig. Agnew said.

Death Rewards King Of Hoboes

NEW YORK, Nov. 5—(AP)—Dan O'Brien, who called himself "The King of the Hoboes," had the kind of funeral he probably would have wanted.

And today he sleeps in a satin-lined casket in a pretty little cemetery plot—a richer bed than he knew during his 90 years.

Dan died last week at New York's Bellevue hospital— broke, as usual.

His friends came to the funeral Friday in a little mortuary chapel. Some were well dressed; some came from the Bowery.

'Professor" Giuseppe Ravitta, the "Paganini of the Gutter" who fiddles outside Carnegie Hall, played "Ave Maria" on his violin.

Box Car Betty eulogized him.

The Unitarian clergyman, Rev. Charles F. Potter, added his words . . . "to rushing go-getters he preached relaxation . . . to city people he sang the song of the open road."

Dan had never done much, didn't work, played with the kids, and told people to take it easy.

GM Officials Meet Union For Parley

Company Heads Grant Burt's Request To Hold Conference

OSHAWA, Nov. 5 — (CP) — Company and union officials will meet today to discuss the General Motors strike.

It marks the first time since the strike began Oct. 26 over production speedup charges that company officials and the United Automobile Workers (CIO) have entered negotiations. Approximately 5,000 workers are affected by the strike.

The company Friday granted a request for a meeting from George Burt, Canadian director of the UAW.

W. A. Wecker, president of General Motors of Canada, and J. B. Highfield, works manager, will sit in on the conference with Mr. Burt.

To Remain In Oshawa

Mr. Burt said Friday night he is prepared to remain in Oshawa until the strike is settled as long as Mr. Wecker continues to participate in negotiations.

"We are pleased," said Mr. Burt, "that he has finally used his authority to grant us a meeting and we are eager to participate in order to bring a settlement of the dispute."

Details of union proposals to the company were not announced.

The walkout was called after four employees were fired when they objected to a proposed production speed-up.

At Kitchener, the Dominion Rubber Company said Friday it would lay off an unspecified number of employees during the week-end if the strike continued.

It is also reported that more than 2,200 workers at McKinnon Industries in St. Catharines are expected to be out of work or on an abbreviated work-week if the strike continues. McKinnon is a General Motors subsidiary, manufacturing parts for the Oshawa plant.

Fear 20 Perish In Flash Flood

CARACAS, Venezuela, Nov. 5 (AP)—At least 20 persons were reported dead in a flash flood which swept through Caracas suburbs Friday and authorities feared the death toll might run higher.

The flood, worst in Venezuela's capital in many years, caused damage estimated unofficially at $10,000,000.

Today hundreds homeess Venezuelans searched frantically for members of their families missing in the flood.

A six-hour downpour Friday brought a sudden rush of water here from the usually tiny Guaire River, which already was swollen by several days of heavy rains.

Roaring flood waters swept first through the rude huts of hundreds of poor families living along the river banks. Horrified onlookers saw whole families bob by in the water, helpless amid the wreckage of their houses and furniture.

Mother 39 Seeks Name For Her 20th Child

SOLDIERS GROVE, Wis.. Nov. 5 (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Fred Schoville still were searching today for a name for their 20th child.

The baby, a husky 10-pound lad at birth, was delivered Tuesday at the Schoville home where all 19 of the others were born. The boy and his 39-year old mother were reported "doing fine."

The oldest child is a 23-year-old daughter and all were single births—a world record for such a short time, claims Schoville, 42.

As far as taking care of his family is concerned there's nothing to it, Schoville, an oil salesman said, "the older ones take care of the younger ones and the Lord takes care of the money."

Price Fixing Trend Alarming, Resigns

OTTAWA, Nov. 5 (CP) — A report of alleged price-fixing in Canada's flour milling industry sparked the controversy between Canada's anti-monopoly chief and the Cabinet. It culminated in the resignation of 61-year-old F. A McGregor.

This was disclosed in 2,000 words of correspondence between the combines investigation commissioner and Justice Minister Garson, tabled Friday in the Commons.

Mr. McGregor said he was resigning after 24 years of service and "before my time" because he has been aware of "tendencies" during recent months to "seriously threaten the usefulness" of the Combines Investigation Act.

"To an alarming degree price-fixing activities such as we reported in the flour-milling industry have been developing in the post-war years," the commissioner said in his letter dated Oct. 29.

One of the ways to remedy this development was to make public reports on this price-fixing, but this had not been done in the case of the flour milling report, Mr. McGregor said.

Withhold Report

The government's "withholding for so many months" of the report was Mr. McGregor's first specific instance of "certain tendencies' which caused him "deep concern."

Closely related to this were the "difference of opinion on basic policy" that were disclosed in "recent discussions" on the flour investigation and report.

The commissioner said he was satisfied that the facts disclosed in the report "more than justify the investigation." But, he charged, Mr. Garson had "expressed the opinion that the inquiry should never have been started."

In the Commons Mr. Garson said in reply to Stanley Knowles (CCF-Winnipeg North Centre) that the report on alleged flour-milling price-fixing has been in government hands since last December 29.

Mr. Knowles had said that under the Act, such a report had to be made public within 15 days of delivery to the minister.

Mr. Garson said he would table the report in the Commons Monday.

Has Amendments

He introduced a Bill to amend the Combines Act and said it will carry into effect three recommendations by Mr. McGregor "designed to strengthen enforcement." The Bill proposed no changes in the definition of offences or in the basic pattern of the Act. But it did contain changes to remove difficulties, encountered in the unsuccessful prosecution of dental supplies firms.

One of the amendments provides that indicted corporations cannot elect trial by jury. They must be tried by a judge without a jury.

Mr. Garson in his reply to Mr. McGregor, dated yesterday, said the attribution of a statement that he (Mr. Garson) has stated the flour-milling probe "should never have been started" was not correct.

He agreed that some uniform price rises had occurred after the war, but there was a satisfactory explanation. This came out at a conference October 22 at which the commissioner, Mr. Garson, Donald Gordon and Kenneth Taylor had attended.

City Ordered To Pay $11,000 For J. T. O'Connell Property

Judge Sheldon L. Smoke has valued at $11,000 the John T. O'Connell block of land in the south end which the city expropriated for an ex-service men's housing subdivision on which Reynold Construction Company has built many of the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation dwellings.

Judge Smoke has directed that the city is to pay Mr. O'Connell the $11,000 for the 8.56 acres extending from Park St. to Monaghan Road, and lying between Rose Ave. and O'Connell Road. The east end of the long, narrow block was sold previously for private occupation. Location of the property is indicated by the Frank Jobbitt hardware store on the Park St. front.

The O'Connell land was the last of the properties west of Park St. and south of Lansdowne St. acquired by the city for emergency housing needs. City council decided that its position nearer to the centre of the city than other properties across Monaghan Road highly recommended it as a housing site. Discussions with the owner failed to bring about agreement, and the council decided to expropriate. Chief witness for the city in the expropriation proceedings was W. H. Bosley, Toronto realtor.

Judge Smoke said the O'Connell estimate of $53,640 was ridiculous. He accepted largely the valuation arrived at by Mr. Bosley.

" . . . . The evidence of O'Connell as to the value of this property is so ridiculous that I hesitate to refer to it . . . ," the judge commented in giving his reasons for his decision

"I make no award with respect to the forcible taking of the lands in question as there appears to be no element to justify such an award," Judge Smoke announced. O'Connell had claimed $4,000 because the city was expropriating the land."

Value Of Gardens

"To Carmen Paterno and Carmen Fisico, gardeners, who were asking $5,000 for the loss of their market garden crop on the land and an additional $1,000 for loss of the use of the land in 1949, Judge Smoke awarded $1,550."

Rookie Constable Discovers Fire At 3:20 a.m. On George Street Rounds

Blame Defective Wiring In Basement For Stubborn Blaze, Firemen Battle Smoke For Three Hours

Fire which swept the premises of Blackwood and Freeburn Gift and Appliance Shop, George street, at 3.20 this morning, did damage estimated unofficially at $20,000. Centring in the basement of the building, the flames crept into the back room of the shop causing heavy damage to the goods stored there. Damage to the main part of the shop is extensive due to smoke and water. Constable Donald Jones, a rookie policeman, turned in the fire alarm directly across from the burning store at the corner of George and Brock Streets at 3.20. Firemen arriving on the scene first believed the call to be false (a number of false alarms having been turned in from this box, one less than a week ago). Then Constable Jones was seen waving his flashlight and they knew there was trouble.

Edward Freeburn, one of the partners of the business, estimated the stock in the store at $25,000, most of which he added would be of little value now. A large amount of it is fine English bone china. Most of the expensive sets were in the basement which was hit hardest by the fire.

Insurance adjustors, an inspector from the Fire Marshal's office and Fire Chief George Smith were not available for an accurate estimate at the time of going to press. They were still inspecting the premises.

It is believed the fire started from defective wiring in the basement near the furnace. Fireman had trouble fighting the blaze in the dense smoke as the lights in the basement failed. Each time they tried to put in a new fuse, it blew.

About 6:30 a.m. the fire was well under control with only minor spots throughout the cellar. They were all out by 7:30. The last line of hose disconnected at 7:45.

The store then had the appearance of a second-hand china shop. The large plate glass windows were covered with a thick layer of sticky grey substance. The same soot covered the fine English china which the store imported, and radios, refrigerators, and other electrical appliances.

Lucky Escape

Directly above the appliance store is an empty business office. The fire never directly touched it, luckily, for there were several

Trucks Collide At Springville, 5 Men Injured

Five Toronto men returning home after working on the hydro in Peterborough, were injured Friday evening when their truck was involved in a collision with a transport on Highway 28 at Springville. They are all in Civic Hospital, one with a fractured leg, another a fractured jaw, and they all have multiple lacerations.

Driver of the truck was James Brennan, 23, 1044 Roseland Ave., who has a sprained leg and lacerations on the head. The hospital reports his condition today is "good."

The transport was driven by Emile Gagnon, Ottawa, who did not require hospital treatment.

Passengers In Truck

Passengers in the truck were James Craig, 20, 34 Desavery Ave., with a fractured left leg, bruised eye and face, whose condition is reported "satisfactory."

Robert Campbell, 21, 624 Euclid Ave,, who has a fractured jaw, multiple lacerations of the face and lip. He had a "fair" night.

Gerald Townsend, 20, 107 Howard Park, lacerated forehead and brush burns round the ankles. His condition is "good."

John Slinger, 27, 7 Spadina Rd., lacerated forehead, condition "good."

The vehicles sideswiped on the hill at Springville around 8.30 p.m. Provincial Constable Roy Feeley, Peterborough district headquarters, investigated.

Canada Enters Cable Agreement

OTTAWA, Nov. 5 (CP)—Canada is entering into an international agreement designed to simplify communications traffic and sharply reduce the full rate charged for sending overseas cables and telegrams.

A spokesman for the Department of Transport disclosed on Friday night that Canada is one of 68 countries expected to ratify the agreement. It will cut by 25 per cent the full rate charges for overseas cables.

Details of the agreement were announced in Washington Friday night. It is scheduled to go into effect next July 1 and cuts will be made on rates in force Feb. 1 —the deadline set for ratification of the pact.

One of the main features of the agreement, worked out at a conference in Paris May 18 to Aug. 5 is simplification of traffic handling through elimination of some classes of rates.

To Adjourn Inquiry On Noronic Again

TORONTO, Nov. 5—(CP)—The federal inquiry into the Sept. 17 Noronic disaster will be adjourned again almost as soon as it is resumed on Monday.

J. W. Pickup, senior counsel in the probe, said today that Mr. Justice R. L. Kellock of the Supreme Court is "not yet ready to pass judgment."

"Therefore there will be a further adjournment," said Mr. Pickup.

Strong 'Quake Rocks California

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Nov. 5 — (AP)—A strong earthquake shook San Diego and rocked 10,000 square miles of Southern California at 3:43 p.m. EST Friday.

Sharpest quake here in eight years, it jarred buildings here with a powerful upthrust motion followed by a north-south movement.

The tremor was felt lightly in Los Angeles, Long Beach, Riverside, Santa Ana and San Bernardino, but not at near-by Arrowhead Springs, which is almost directly atop California's greatest earthquake fault, San Andreas.

The Palomar Observatory on Palomar Mountain, near here felt the tremor but lightly and for only a second or two, and no damage was reported.

Six Prominent Czechs Hanged In Armed Plot

PRAGUE, Nov. 5—(AP)—Six prominent Czechs, convicted as ringleaders of an alleged plot to overthrow the Communist-led government, were hanged today, it was officially announced.

The men were accused of preparing to lead a coup last spring. The government charged that they were "just at the point of executing a well-prepared revolt" when police caught them.

Among those executed were men who had held prominent positions in Czechoslovak public affairs before the Communists assumed power in February, 1948. Those hanged were: Josef Charcat, chief of the Prague security police during the first Republic; Dr. Jaroslav Brokovec, prominent lawyer; Emanuel Cancik; Vratislav Polesny; Kvetoslav Prokes, and Vratislav Handa.

Separate Schools Unchanged Under New Education Plan

TORONTO, Nov. 5 (CP) — Education Minister Dana Porter said Friday at a press conference that no change is foreseen in the present setup of Separate Schools under the new educational system to be introduced in Ontario.

Mr. Porter amplified some of the details of the plan and emphasized the flexibility of the school system under the proposed changes.

Children attending Separate Schools will finish grade eight, as at present, then go into grade nine in the new intermediate level.

Mr. Porter said that under the new plan local school boards will have more to say than at present in the choice of subjects, so that they can fit them to local needs.

Mr. Porter explained that one of the reasons behind the grouping is that pupils with more ability than others will not be held back by artificial grade levels.

If, however, in the teacher's opinion, a pupil is ready to advance to the intermediate school after only two years in primary school it will be permissible.

Mr. Porter said changes already have been made in the normal school curriculum to provide teachers to operate the new system. A summer course will be available next year for teachers who wish to brush up on the new tactics.

Next September the new scheme will be put into operation in each of the first grades of the four levels with the complete changover taking place over three years.

Vancouver Paper Ends 41-Month Strike

Agreement Provides Full I.T.U. Recognition, Re-establishes Local

VANCOUVER, Nov. 5 (CP)— Settlement of a 41-month strike against the Southam-owned Vancouver Daily Province was announced today by publisher P. C. Galbraith and Vancouver presidents of the three Allied Printing Trade unions involved.

A. Bevis, president of Local 226 of the International Typographical Union (AFL), said in a statement that the agreement provides for "full recognition and acceptance of ITU laws" and re-establishes the Vancouver local as "having complete jurisdiction in the composing room."

His statement was released coincidently with Mr. Galbraith's.

Negotiations began two weeks ago and ended Friday. Local 226, the ITU, Local 88 of the International Sterotyper's Union (AFL) and Local 70 of the ITU affiliated Mailer's participated.

Return To Posts

Members of the union return Monday to the posts they left June 6, 1946. Picketing ended Friday night.

ITU printers walked out then in sympathy with the union's Winnipeg local which had broken with newspapers there the previous November. In dispute there was whether ITU laws were subject to arbitration. The union held they were not.

The Daily Province resumed publication six weeks after the strike began.

Mr. Galbraith said in his statement:

"In the long months of the strike, the Daily Province had taken on a group of young people to help us produce the paper, because a newspaper must continue to publish. Throughout the negotiations, therefore, our greatest concern was that this group which had helped us, should not be forgotten. It was pleasant to discover that all three unions, so far as they could, were willing to cooperate with us in this regard.

Friendly Relations

The statement added:

"I think both sides came out of these negotiations honorably and that the friendly relations which existed between the Daily Province and the unions for 50 years, are not only renewed, but that they start again on a closer and a more enduring basis than ever before."

Mr. Bevis said: "Provision has been made whereby persons who are employed in the composing room at conclusion of these negotions will make application for membership in the union in the regular way."

Expect Major Break In U.S. Steel Strike

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5—(AP) —A major break in the 36-day steel strike seemed imminent today, while the United States government stepped in as peacemaker between John L. Lewis and the still-unbroken front of soft-coal mine owners.

Republic Steel Corporation, the country's third biggest steelmaker, made its 54,000 workers a pension offer in Cleveland. The CIO United Steelworkers' district director there did not disclose the terms but said:

"With (CIO President Philip) Murray's approval, we'll accept it."

Rail Connections Subsidized By Government

OTTAWA, Nov. 5 — (CP). — Railways have at least one thing in common with sports promoters —they must have good connections if they want to make money.

The fact that the Pacific Great Eastern—British Columbia's provincially-owned railway system—lacks such connections was emphasized on Friday in the House of Commons. It now runs from Squamish in the south-west corner of the province to Quesnel in the middle. Neither has any connection with the main lines of [illegible]

However, the Commons took the first steps toward remedying the situation when it gave first reading to a Bill authorizing the Federal Government to help extend the railway to Prince George.

Since Prince George, 83 miles north of Quesnel, is on the main line of the Canadian National Railway the extension would give the PGE a connection with the rest of Canada.

The Bill which will authorize Federal payment of $1,245,000 subsidy to assist in building the 83-mile extension was introduced after the House approved a resolution saying the same thing.

Take Over Railway

The Commons also gave first reading to a Bill authorizing the CNR to take over the Temiscouata Railway Company at a cost of $480,000. The 113-mile line runs from Riviere Du Loup, Que., to Edmundston, NB, and Connors, NB. This railway has its troubles too. It is a losing proposition. But the government feels it is essential to keep it operating.

During the Private Bills hour of the night sitting the Commons gave third and fnial reading to 81 Quebec divorce Bills. A total of 29 others were given second reading — approval in principle. All votes were on division, by which some members indicate objection without calling for a formal vote.

The judge said he reached this figure from the evidence of Herbert Doig, a successful market gardener, who set the value of the crop which was not mature when the expropriation was made.

"I make no award with respect to the loss of the use of the lands for 1949 since Paterno and Fisico made no permanent improvements."

In both cases the judge allowed four per cent. interest which accumulated on the award money. Both were also awarded their costs of arbitration.

O'Connell also asked $1,000 for the "dilapidated old barn" on the property. That amount was "practically twice the value placed on it by his (O'Connell's) own witnesses, and I wholly disregard his evidence upon this point," Judge Smoke declared.

He commented that O'Connell's witnesses placed the value of the property at from about $26,000 to more than $35,000.

Judge Smoke said the land was just raw land. Two indicated streets were nothing more than mere trails across a field. He said the complainants' witnesses had taken into consideration some factors, such as the streets, which they thought were favourable to a higher price, but which fact turned out to be arguments against a high price.

The provision of $1,000 with costs to Paterno and Fisico, the market gardeners, is to both of them and not to each, payable by the city. The action of arbitration was heard by Judge Smoke early last summer. It was learned at the hearing that the two gardeners did not know anything about the city's decision until Reynolds Construction men with a bulldozer and other machinery moved in and started to take out cellars in their young crop of onions and potatoes and radishes. Contention of the city is that Mr. O'Connell should have informed them.

Vote To Secede

In New Jersey, with about 30,000 UE members, seven locals voted to secede from the parent body and join a new Electrical Workers' Union, just chartered by the CIO. Three other locals in the same State voted to stick with the UE.

Three New York State Unions, have decided to switch their allegiance to the new CIO group.

In South Bend Ind., a 1,000-member UE local of the Singer Sewing Machine Manufacturing Company voted unanimously to apply for membership in the CIO United Auto Workers.

Get Court Order

Dallas Smith, right wing, president of the 4,000-member General Electric Corporation UE Local at Fort Wayne, Ind., got a Fitzgerald telegram. There, the right-wingers have obtained a court order, restraining district and international officers from interfering with the local's finances.

Presidents of right-wing Locals 755 and 801 at Dayton, O., and the right-wing president of District 7 (Ohio-Kentucky) also received Fitzgerald wires. They were ignoring them.

In Erie, Pt., the 8,500 member General Electric Local met on Wednesday, before receiving notime of the CIO expulsion, and reaffirmed its faith in the policies of the UE. At the same meeting, John W. O'Hara, 33-year-old right winger, was suspended indefinietly from union membership after he admitted having said:

"The UE is a rotten mess top to bottom and ought to be cleaned up."

The vote for expulsion at the poorly-attended meeting was about 150 to 60.

Both in East Pittsburgh and Sharon, Pa., left-wingers have obtained temporary court orders, forbidding the right wing to expend union funds. The East Pittsburgh local has called a membership meeting for next Wednesday to decide what action it shall take on the CIO expulsion.

The 5,500-member Local 610 covering two Westinghouse air brake plants in Wilmerding and Swissvale may split into two unions.

About 2,200 of the local's 5,500 members work at Union Switch and Signal, a subsidiary of air brake. They demand the local withdraw from the UE and join the new CIO union. The other 3,300 workers at the main air brake plant are determined to remain with the UE.

Have Big Job

CLEVELAND, Nov. 5 (AP) — Delegates to the CIO convention now realize that the job of amputating their rebellious left-wing is far from ended.

The convention, before adjourning Friday night, had tossed out two unions under left-wing leadership—the United Electrical Workers and the Farm Equipment Workers.

The convention chartered a new union to compete with the UE. The CIO nevertheless may use considerable time to dispose of 10 other unions headed by men accused of following the Communist party line.

The CIO executive board met today to begin work on the problem.

The convention handed the board the question of the eligibility of the men selected by the 10 left-wing unions to sit on the board under the amended constitution.

The amendments bar Communists or their sympathizers from seats on the 51-man board, and authorize the board to expel any unions whose policies follow the Communist, Fascist or other line in conflict with CIO aims.

CIO president Philip Murray allowed no leeway in the case of Ben Gold, head of the Fur and Leather Workers, and an admitted Communist party member. Murray Friday announced that Gold just wasn't eligible to sit on the policy-making executive board.

With nine other union heads believed to follow the party line, it wasn't so easy. At first Murray, elected to his 10th term as CIO president, indicated that the issues would be fought out at today's session of the executive board. But later he told the delegates the board would act on the issues at an early date.

Rent Increases Raise Howl

By The Canadian Press

Protests from tenants and from Labor organizations continued to mount over Finance Minister Abbott's announcement that landlords may raise rents by 20 or 25 per cent. starting Dec. 15. Labor groups are discussing steps ranging from a one-day Canada-wide strike to public protest meetings to express their opposition. Meantime, a few spokesmen for the landlords suggest that this third post-war increase is not enough for them and that rental controls should be removed altogether.

The increases can be blocked in any province that replaces federal rental ceilings with ceilings of its own, a Federal government spokesman said Friday night. So far, however, no province has offered to enter the rent-control field.

The suggestion of a one-day [illegible] of Labor was put forward by the Montreal Boot and Shoe Workers Union (CIO). But in Ottawa A. R. Mosher, CCL president, called the proposal "utter nonsense." Earlier, Mr. Mosher said the rent increase will mean a boost in the cost of living and that "a good many people are already paying rents above what they can afford."

Sponsor Protests

Hamilton and District Trades and Labor Council decided to sponsor two public protest meetings. The Council was told that the increase "will take about eight per cent of the working man's wages."

A. L. Marks, executive member of the Edmonton Property Owners' Association, said:

"This action to increase rents rather than remove rental controls is not only self-defeating but it actually prevents patriotic citizens who want to help in the housing shortage from doing so."

Finance Minister Abbott, in Montreal for the week-end, said the increases are "justifiable" and predicted that not all landlords will take advantage of them. However, rental administrator Owen Lobley said in Ottawa that the landlord probably will take whatever he can get.

OBITUARIES

CARRIE LUCINDA CALCUTT

The sudden death of Mrs. Carrie Lucinda Calcutt, widow of Chas. W. Calcutt, occurred Friday at her home in Harwood. She died of coronary thrombosis at the age of 69.

A year ago Mrs. Calcutt suffered a slight stroke and was ill for several months, but had recovered and had been out among friends again. She was born in Harwood, the eldest daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lean. He husband died in 1932.

Mrs. Calcutt spent nearly all of her life in the village and following her husband's death, ran the Calcutt boat livery near Harwood wharf.

Funeral services were held at St. John's Church, Harwood, today conducted by the Rev. L. J. Delaney, of Lakefield.

Surviving are her daughter, Mrs. Jack Patch (Orba), and three grandchildren, Helen, Nancy and Jacelyn Patch. Also one brother, Mr. Fred Lean, of Oshawa, and one sister Mrs. G. A. Adams of Toronto.

Mrs. Calcutt had many friends in the community and was noted for her kindness and courtesy.

She was a member of St. John's Church at Harwood, a valued member of the Woman's Auxiliary of the church and a life long member of the Harwood Branch of the Women's Institute. She took a keen interest in all community affairs and during the war years, made her contribution by sewing and knitting.

TENNICE (BUFF) GUERIN

Former CPR freight shed foreman for 40 years, Tennice (Buff) Guerin, 66, died Friday in hospital following a lengthy illness. He was born in Peterborough, son of the late Tennice Guerin and Rose Shannon, and has lived all his life here. His wife, the former Teresa Watson, predeceased him seven years ago.

He leaves one daughter, Mrs. J. Brewer (Almadell) and granddaughter June, both of Toronto, and a son Gerard G. Guerin of Whitehorse, Yukon. In Flint, Mich., is a sister, Mrs. R. Holt, and a brother, Thomas Guerin. Another Sister, Mrs. F. Flagler, lives in this city.

Mr. Guerin has been retired from the CPR for the last four years. He was a member of the Canadian Legion, Branch 52, BESL, a Veteran of the First World War. Enlisting in August, 1914, he held the rank of sergeant the 7th Battery, 3rd Brigade CFA, and was also a member of the 1st Brigade CFA and the 1st Division Ammunition Column. He was discharged in 1916 and wore the 1914-15 Star and British War and Victory Medals. He was a member of St. Alphonsus Church.

Funeral will be on Monday from the Anglesley Funeral Home to St. Alphonsus Church where requiem mass will be said at 9 a.m. Burial will be at St. Peter's Cemetery.

JOHN COLLINS

John Collins, 295 McGill St., died this morning at his home at the age of 71 after a lengthy illness.

A retired farmer, Mr. Collins was born in Otonabee township, the son of Timothy Collins and Agnes Buckham. He resided in Otonabee all his life until moving to Peterborough three years ago.

Mr. Collins is survived by his wife, the former Agnes Beamish; two brothers, Abner and James of Peterborough. He was a member of St. George's Anglican Church. Formerly he was a member and rector's warden of St. Mark's Church, Otonabee.

The funeral service wil be held in St. George's Anglican Church, from the funeral home of A. Comstock and Sons Monday at two p.m. Rev. E. C. Moore officiating. Interment will be in Little Lake Cemetery.

MRS. JAMES SEYMOUR

Mrs. Edith Seymour, Ida, died Friday in hospital after an illness of four and a half years. She was the widow of the late James Seymour who predeceased her 12 years ago.

Mrs. Seymour was born in Springbrook, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Burkitt. She was a member of Fairmount United Church and a former president of the Women's Missionary Society, as well as being a life member.

She is survived by four sons, Percy D. of Hamilton, Harry I. of Ottawa, William J. and Carmen W. of Cavan Township, one daughter Mrs. Austin Poast (Sadie) of Peterborough, one sister Mrs. A. P. Williams, Springbrook, as well as 16 grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

The funeral service will be held Monday at 3:30 p.m. from the funeral home of A. Comstock & Sons, Rev. F. W. Craik officiating. Interment will be in Little Lake Cemetery.

No Decision Yet On Charge Of Manslaughter

COBOURG, Nov. 5—(ENS)—Magistrate R. B. Baxter reserved until Tuesday his decision regarding the committal of Harvey Lingard, of Bewdley, on a motor manslaughter charge when the preliminary hearing was held Friday afternoon. Lingard was charged after a fatal accident which occurred near Fenella on October 14 in which nine-year-old Nancy Davis, of Bewdley, was killed.

Counsel for the accused asked that the charge be dismissed on the grounds that the Crown failed to produce evidence regarding the results of a blood test were blocked by defence counsel Stuart Ryan who declared that the blood test had been taken when Lingard was in the hospital suffering from shock and injuries received in the accident and that it was not a voluntary blood test. Magistrate Baxter ruled this evidence inadmissible.

Dr. W. E. Wilkins, of Cobourg, testified that when he examined the girl he found she was dead and had sustained a fractured skull and fractured neck, either of which could have caused death.

Lingard was swerving from side to side after he had passed him testified Murray Sissler, of Castleton, a motorist who followed Lingard down the hill from Burnley Corners.

"I was travelling about 30 miles an hour and an old car with two in the front and two in the rumble seat passed me at a much faster rate than I was going. It seemed to be swerving from side to side and on one of the swerves it caught the left rear of a car ahead of it and then went into the ditch.

Prior to that the car was going from the east shoulder of the highway to the centre and back again. When I went over to the car there was a little girl lying on the ground on one side of the car and a man lying on the ground on the opposite side. A passeger got out of the car and a boy came around as I got there. It happened about 5.35 p.m. and visibility was good. There was a barrier where the new road is to come through but I could see it as the old car passed me," Sissler testified.

Smelled Alcohol

Dr. D. H. Gear, of Cobourg, said that he came upon the accident as he was returning from Roseneath Fair. He examined Lingard and found that he was not seriously injured. The doctor said that he detected a strong odour of liquor on Lingard's breath. He was asked at the hospital if he wanted a blood sample taken but he was semi-conscious. The blood samples were taken and turned over to Provincial Constable Lyle Erskine.

Under cross-examination he told defence counsel that Lingard was suffering slightly from shock and it was correct that shock tended to obscure clear thinking. Defence counsel then objected to the evidence regarding the analysis of the blood sample from going in.

"I can see grave danger in admitting that evidence," commented Magistrate Baxter. "If a court admits this evidence, there is nothing to prevent any police officer from taking a blood sample."

"If that view is held, one could easily reach an impasse because any accused could refuse to allow a blood sample being taken," observed Crown Attorney Harry Deyman.

"I think I will have to rule this evidence inadmissable," the magistrate decided.

Fred Toms, Garden Hill, whose car was struck by Lingard's said that the car hit him from behind so he applied the brakes and stopped. He saw the Lingard car roll over in the ditch.

Kenneth Davis, cousin of the accused and a resident of Bewdley, said he was riding in the front seat with Lingard, and Nancy and her brother, Norman, were in the rumble seat.

Driving Normally

"We were driving in a normal manner on the right side of the road. Just before the accident I was turned around talking to the kids in the back. We hit something ahead of us and it sounded as if a tire blew. Then we went into the ditch," testified Davis.

Norman Dudley of Warkworth, said that Lingard's car passed him at Bewdley corners and then he saw it hit a car ahead. Lingard's car swerved and upset. Witness said he followed the car because it looked as if something was wrong by the way it was weaving back and forth. After it hit the car it went completely out of control and the girl was thrown out as the car rolled into the ditch. There were highway signs showing that the road was under construction.

Cost-of-Living Declines Tenth Of Point

OTTAWA, Nov. 5 (CP)—Harassed Canadian consumers got a thimbleful of cost of living relief in September.

The index eased one tenth of a point to 162.2, second consecutive drop in two months and reflecting price declines in such foodstuffs as fresh and canned vegetables, eggs, oranges, beef, lamb and pork. Radio prices also went down.

These declines countered increases in butter, lard, coffee and price of coal, coke and gasoline caused by 10 per cent devaluation of the Canadian dollar.

September was the second month in succession that lower food prices eased the price barometer from its all time high of 162.8 in July.

The index, issued by the Bureau of Statistics Friday, is calculated on the basis that 1935-39 equals 100.

Made up of six price groups, each with varying values, the index was hit by two sharp changes in September.

The food group, most important in the index, dropped two points to 205.0—lower by two fifths of a point from the standing a year ago of 205.4.

The fuel and lighting group went up four points to an all-time high of 134.1. At the same time last year the group standing was 128.8.

MP's Never Say In 10 Mins. What They Can Say In 40

By MEL SUFRIN

OTTAWA, Nov. 5— (CP) — Newcomers to Parliament are constantly amazed by the apparent ease with which seasoned members roll through the long speeches.

In fact, a look at Hansard — the verbatim report of Parliamentary proceedings— will indicate that most members will seldom say something in 10 minutes if they can take 40.

That's further illustrated by [illegible] most speeches.

After speaking for 40 minutes, a member can continue only with unanimous consent of the Commons. He rarely is refused that consent, probably because the other members realize they may find themselves in the same spot sometime.

They also don't object because they can always leave if they find the speech boring.

Attention

Speech mannerisms among the members are as varied as the members themselves.

Prime Minister St. Laurent, for instance, talks with the short, clipped phrases typical to a corporation lawyer, combined with the inevitable careful selection of words necessary for a member of the government.

George Drew, as a former Premier of Ontario, also carefully choose his words, delivering them in one of the loudest, and clearest voices in the Commons. He invariably gains momentum after starting off slowly and quietly.

M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, retains slight traces of an English accent in his smooth delivery which often sounds as though he [illegible]

Voices

Here are a few others among Parliament's notable voices:

John Diefenbaker (PC—Lake Centre) eloquent, court-room style oratory with a western drawl and plenty of arm-waving.

Solon Low, Social Credit leader: straight-forward delivery of neatly-itemized thoughts.

Rev. Dan McIvor (L—Fort William): loud and fervent, like an old-time evangelist preacher.

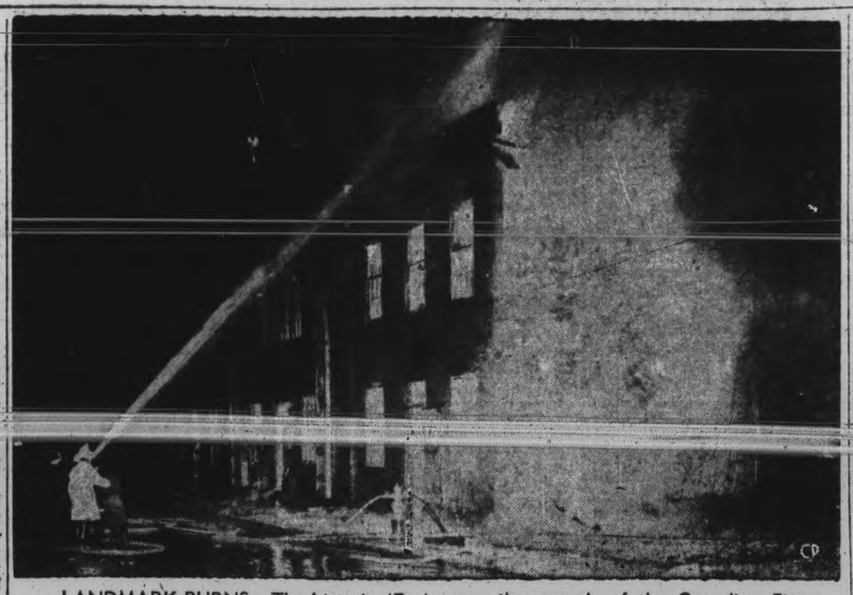
Angus MacInnis (CCF—Vancouver East): pleasantly rasping voice of a man born in the maritimes but living on the west coast.



LANDMARK BURNS—The historic 47-year-old rink of the Minto Skating Club in Ottawa, training-ground for some of Canada's famous figure skaters including Barbara Ann Scott, was destroyed by an early-morning fire Thursday. Lost in the blaze were the records of the Canadian Figure Skating Association and valuable trophies won by club members as well as thousands of dollars worth of skating equipment. Damage was estimated at more than $250,000.

New York Stage Featuring Tragic Plays

By PAT USSHER

NEW YORK, Nov. 5—(CP)—Tragedy trod the New York stage this week as the theatre season belatedly got under way in earnest.

The finest of the incoming productions was "Lost in the Stars," a musical adaptation of Alan Patron's moving novel, "Cry, the [illegible] been brought to the stage of the music box with impressive fidelity. Rouben Mamoulian directed the production of this tale of crime and punishment and of relations between the black and white races in a South African setting.

Todd Duncan is magnificent in the role of Stephen Kumalo, a native clergyman and father of a wayward son. Leslie Banks portrays in restrained but heartfelt fashion the part of James Jarvis, the leading white character.

The haunting and melancholy music by Kurt Weil catches the dark forlorn atmosphere of the notel.

It is a performance so eloquent that few can see it through with dry eyes.

The Horrendous Hubbards

The infamous Hubbard family are back on Broadway in a musical written and composed by Marc Blitzstein, called "Regina." They are as virulent a gang as they were in Lillian Hellman's play, "The Little Foxes," on which the musical is based.

Heading the cast in this handsome, spectacular production at the 46th Street theatre is Jane Pickens as Regina Giddens. She sings splendidly and acts forcefully as the scheming sister.

Refined Tortu

In "Montserrat," a historical play about Bolivar's struggle to free Venezuela from Spanish rule, Emlyn Williams enacts the part of Izquiredo, a pitiless Spanish colonel. His acting is so distinguished that it is difficult not to admire the colonel, even as he sends six innocent people to death before a firing squad. William Redfield also is impressive as Montserrat, a young, idealistic Spanish Captain who betrays his uniform because he sympathizes with Bolivar.

Report Drinking Water Condemned At Schools

HAMILTON, Nov. 5 — (CP) — Health Minister Kelley announced here Thursday night that an immediate investigation would be held into reports that drinking water for 900 school children of nearby Minnow Lake is being supplied by firemen from Sudbury because the school wells have been condemned as a menace to health.

Dr. J. O. McDonald, Minnow Lake health officer, has condemned wells of the public and separate schools. Mr. Kelley said he was awaiting momentarily a report from J. Caverley, Provincial Health Inspector in the area, who is taking steps to remedy the situation.

A number of mothers reported Thursday night that some school children have been ill with stomach complaints.

Both public and separate schools were closed last week by Dr. McDonald as a precautionary measure and public school officials immediately ordered the digging of a well which now is running water.

May Reconsider Newsprint Order

LONDON, Ont., Nov. 5—(CP)—government was reported to be reconsidering its 1950 purchases of newsprint from Canada following pressure from British newspapers not to close off the vital dominion market.

An informed London source told The Canadian Press that a delegation representing the British press, alarmed at reports that Britain's dollar import cuts included the complete cut-off of Canadian newsprint had conferred with Harold Wilson, president of the Board of Trade.

As a result of the meeting, this source said, the government now is known to be reconsidering the newsprint situation but no decision has yet been made.

Canada is supplying Britain with 100,000 tons of newsprint this year, a contract which will be undisturbed.

But reports both in London and Ottawa have said that Britain has decided against going ahead with a contract for a similar amount from Canada next year, as well as cutting her purchases of timber and food in the dominion.

It is known that Britain has a provisional order for 100,000 tons of Scandinavian newsprint for delivery in 1950, considerably more than she took from that source this year.

Calls Plan Nonsense

OTTAWA, Nov. 5 (CP)—A. R. Mosher, president of the Canadian Congress of Labor, Friday night described as "utter nonsense" a suggestion that the Congress call a one-day Canada-wide strike in protest against Government-announced rental increases. The suggestion was made at Montreal by Henri Larocque, business agent of the Montreal Boot and Shoe Workers Union (CIO).

TALKING IT OVER—A recent visitor to Canadian National Railways headquarters at Montreal was Donald Gordon, president-designate of the system. Mr. Gordon, left, is examining a map of the railway's network with R. C. Vaughan whom he will succeed as chairman and president, Jan. 1. During his Montreal visit, Mr. Gordon met and talked informally with company officials.

Canada's Parliament Comes Of Age

Two constitutional measures of historic significance have been passed in the present session of the House of Commons. The first was a bill to amend the Supreme Court Act to make it the exclusive and ultimate Court, thus abolishing appeals to the British Privy Council. The second measure was an address to the King and British Parliament asking that the British North America Act be amended so as to give Canada control over her own constitution, without subsequent reference to the Parliament of the United Kingdom. (The motion was qualified, as we note below). A third step announced by the Prime Minister is the calling of a Dominion-Provincial conference in February next, to consider ways of constitutional agreement between the provinces and the Federal Government. As the Minister of Justice, the Honourable Stuart Garson, termed the existing rights of appeal to the British Privy Council and Canada's inability to amend her own Constitution, the "two badges of colonialism" are being torn away. Thus Canada will come of age constitutionally. It is apt and perhaps more than a coincidence that these historic measures are being taken by the twenty-first Parliament of the Dominion of Canada.

The Government has moved logically and determinedly in a sequence which is a tribute to the Prime Minister's political sagacity and brilliant legal mind. The Supreme Court was strengthened and then made really supreme, in preparation for its new duty as final custodian and interpreter of the Constitution. Next the way was cleared so that Canada may henceforth be able to amend her own Constitution, in all federal matters. With these two measures taken the Federal Government will meet the Provincial Governments to seek a method of abolishing any remaining bonds imbedded in the B.N.A. Act which still cannot be constitutionally guarded by Canada herself. These are: guarantees of provincial rights, education rights, language rights, the right to have at least one session of parliament each year, the right to call general elections at least every fifth year. All parliaments and parties agree to them. There remains only to find a way by which they can be entrenched in an Act of the Parliament of Canada instead of an Act of the British Parliament. When this way is found, a final petition will go to Britain and the British Parliament will then pass the last Act it will ever make on behalf of Canada.

There is a tendency in some quarters to believe that the two constitutional measures which have now passed the House of Commons (the address has still to receive the sanction of the Senate) amount to little, and that much depends on the Conference. This is not so. The Conference can fail to agree and Canada would still be constitutionally unshackled. The motion to amend the B.N.A. Act states that Parliament shall have the right to amend it henceforth in all Federal matters excepting language and the duration of Parliament. Since the Provinces already have full power to amend their constitutions—this was made perfectly clear by Mr. St. Laurent—and have had it ever since the B.N.A. Act was passed in 1867 there will be nothing left in the control of the British Parliament excepting the two or three specific matters already mentioned.

Henceforth when a constitutional amendment is sought, and there is objection to it by one party or another, the matter will be referred to Supreme Court, who will decide whether it is within Federal or Provincial jurisdiction. It is logically very simple. Here is the Prime Minister's statement on this point:

"Our proposal is based upon the assumption that there is a line but that it would not be fair for us to attempt arbitrarily to draw that line. We shall have it declared in general terms, that we have the power, without consulting the provinces as represented by the ten premiers, to deal with those things that are on our side of the line. If, it is felt, we attempt to do anything which anyone feels crosses the line or impinges in any way on something that is outside our jurisdiction, there will be the courts to decide whether we are right or whether we are wrong.

Some hon. gentlemen say that that is not good enough. Well, that is the best that human ingenuity has been able to devise throughout the hundreds and thousands of years that there have been disputes between human beings."

The twenty-first Parliament, and the present Government are seizing an opportunit for these important constitutional measures which seldom is available [illegible] circumstances that the Prime Minister sponsoring them is a French-Canadian and one of the ablest constitutional lawyers Canada has had; that the Government implementing them has the almost unanimous support of Quebec members, and that the Parliament passing them is less sectional in its prejudices than most and fully aware of its historic mission in these matters.

Department Of Education Logic

The Ontario Minister of Education's statement of far-reaching plans to reorganize the province's school system is an unexpected jolt. Without at this time making an analysis of the proposed changes—most of them seem good—we are perplexed by the timing and method of the announcement. Who made the plans? Are they Mr. Porter's, the Department's, a few Toronto educationists? What has the Royal Commission on Education to say, the Commission charged in 1943 with surveying the educational system and needs of the Province, and with making recommendations? The Commission after six years of study, has not yet tabled its Report, and as far as we know, has not even finished it. If the Minister of Education and his Department are making these profound changes off their own bat, why did the Government of which Mr. Porter is a member set up the Commission?

We are given indirect assurance by the Chairman of the Toronto Board of Education that 'it is anticipated that the Royal Commission on Education will make recommendations along the same lines when it brings in its report'. Why bother to make recommendations or to bring in the Report, now that changes are being made anyway without consulting the Commission's non-existent Report? The cart is before the horse. The Government is apparently not acting on the recommendations of the Commission; but the Commission is anticipated to recommend the actions of the government. The process does not have the kind of logic which the Department of Education's teachers are expected to inculcate in their pupils.

Rent Hawsers Cast Off

What is left of rent control following the Minister of Finances' announcement is a flimsy line; the main cables have been cut. This action by the Federal Government was to be expected for it has been anxious to get away from rent controls as soon as possible. If the Government of Ontario feels that more controls should be retained, or others imposed, it can do so, for Ottawa told the Provinces last year that any provincial legislature which wished could take over the control of rents itself, in its own province.

Rent controls were imposed in France at the end of the Great War, 1918. The French Government has never been able to remove them. The consequences to the houses as well as landlords have been bad in the extreme, especially in Paris where the owners are not getting enough rent to keep roofs in repair, let alone to draw interest on their investment. Unless Canada is to have rent controls to the end of time, they should be completely removed when the housing shortage ends.

NOTE AND COMMENT

What, no more entrance examinations? Well, that seems logical, now that there are to be no more high schools to enter.

"Attlee Steal Russian Thunder", a headline informs us. Never mind that noisy stuff; let him steal their A-bomb if he wants to make the headline of history.

F. A. McGregor, commissioner of the Combines Investigation Act, the nearest Canadian equivalent to an American "trust-buster" is reported to have given his resignation to the Government. It seems that Ottawa has bussed instead of bust the trusts which it trusted the Commissioner to bust.

The Marchbanks Correspondence

To Amyas Pilgarlic, Esq.
Dear Pil:

At last I am back in Canada. It was delightful to be away: it is good to return, though my heart sinks when I see the number of letters which will all have to be read and answered.

I flew home from Scotland. I made my way thither from Wales by two trains—the Flying Scot and the Creeping Scot. What a country Scotland is, and how wonderfully the characteristics of the countryside are repeated in the people! The British Isles is rich in eccentrics, and those of Scotland are among the [illegible] 18th century Lords of Session—Lord Gardenstone, who always slept with his pet pig for warmth, and Lord Monboddo, who thought that all children were born with tails! What has Canada to show to equal them?

I may tell you that as I made my way to Prestwick, I passed the Johnny Walker distillery, and the works of Shanks of Barrhead, the great makers of sanitary pottery. "The Alpha and Omega of many a good party", said my companion, raising his hat respectfully.

Yours as always,
SAM.

To Samuel Marchbanks, Esq.
Dear Mr. Marchbanks:

As you are aware, we have been trying for some years to raise funds and redecorate repair the edifice of St. Cuspid's. Indeed, I may say that the church was in poor shape when I became its incumbent, and time has not been kind to it—just as time has not been kind to any of us, alas! However, I have now hit on the happy plan of a Beauty Contest, to be held at our November Bazaar, open to all ladies of the church. I write to ask if you will consent to judge this event, and also I should like your opinion as to whether contestants should wear bathing suits or not. It has been hinted to me that offence might be given in some quarters by such a garb. But on the other hand, if we do not have a bathing-suit parade, will anyone come? These are the problems which vex your friend and rector.

SIMON GOASTE.

To the Rev. Simon Goaste, B.D.
Dear Rector:

Nothing would induce me to judge your beauty contest. Who am I, after all, to judge between the purely — indeed exclusively—spiritual beauty of Miss Minerva Hawser and the fleshly appeal of Miss Nancy Frisgig? No, no, my dear Goaste; this is a task for your own penetrating eye. You and you alone must be the judge.

As for bathing suits, I favour them, in spite of the inadequate heating of the church hall. Indeed, if you are set on having a November contest, I shall glady offer a special prize for the lady who turns the most interesting shade of blue.

Your parishioner,
SAMUEL MARCHBANKS.

To Miss Nancy Frisgig
Charming Nancy:

Thank you for your note welcoming me back. But if you are thinking of flying the Atlantic, as you say, put out of your mind any notion that it will be a pleasure jaunt. Flying the ocean is more like what I imagine Hell to be than anything I have struck. One looks out of the window at an endless landscape of cotton wool—wool above, wool below, wool on every hand. One does not appear to be moving at all. And the noise of the engines can be terrific; only a symphony of pneumatic drills could compare with it.

By the way, has the Rev. Mr. Goaste asked you to be in his November Beauty Contest for the Church Repair Fund? If you are going to be there, in a bathing suit, I shall attend; if not, not. In my experience the qualities which make devoted church workers are too seldom allied to those qualities which make beauty contest material. I wonder why?

Yours,
SML. MARCHBANKS.

To Samuel Marchbanks, Esq.
Dear Mr. Marchbanks:

Although I am not a member of St. Cuspid's or one of the denomination it represents, I am compelled, simply as a Canadian woman, to protest against the proposal to hold a beauty contest there. Keep Canadian Womanhood Covered, is what I say. The Rev. Goaste has been saying everywhere that you are going to be judge of this Affair, and I insist that you insist that he desist, or the Ladies Club of which I am perpetual Chairwoman will cease to borrow your books from the Public Library. Consider this as a warning.

MRS. KEDIJAH SCISSORBILL.

To Mrs. Kedijah Scissorbill
Dear Mrs. Scissorbill:

Thank you for your charming note. My association with St. Cuspid's is of the slightest; I sometimes laughingly refer to myself as a member of its parish because the Rector has borrowed so many of my books. May I say, however, that if I choose to judge a beauty contest there or elsewhere, I shall not seek the sanction of yourself or the moulting old pullets of whom you are the leader.

Your
SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

To Samuel Marchbanks, Esq.
Dear Mr. Marchbanks:

May I call upon you on Monday in order to borrow some books of reference of which I know you to be the possessor? I am about to begin work upon an historical study which I have long pondered, to be called "The Rise, Decline and Fall of the Toothpick, with an Appendix on the Toothpick in Canadian Lumbering". Also, have you any old Toothpicks which I might have photographed for illustrations? My own forbears always used gold or silver toothpicks which they carried upon their watch chains. It occurs to me that someone of humbler birth, such as yourself, might have the wooden toothpicks I need.

Yours in hope
MINERVA HAWSER

To Mouseman, Mousemanand Forcemeat
Dear Sirs:

Are you men or mice? Of course we must take legal action against Dandiprat. I know he put the skunk in my car because I know Dandiprat, and it is just the sort of thing he would think of. I am amazed by Mr. Cicero Forcemeat's suggestion that the case would not hold water in court. If Forcemeat wants watertight cases, he will not get them from me. A lawyer who cannot bridge a few unavoidable gaps in evidence is not the man for me. Now, think again, gentlemen!

Yours in expectation of fireworks,
S. MARCHBANKS

Letters To The Editor

FORBY AND FORNENST

Sir: I think the writer of that article on the words "forby" and "fornent" must have had a Scots grandmother. I looked them up in my dictionaries, and found "forby" in Chambers (1911), Funk and Wagnall (1925) and Nuttall (1936). but "fornent" in Chambers only. Both words are qualified by "(Scot.)"; and Chambers adds "(Scone)" after "forby", meaning near, past. No derivation is given.

English was the speech of my Scots home, but I often heard these two words commonly used in country places: "forby" meaning "besides" or "as well"; and "fornent" or "fornenst" as the writer of your article used it, and also as meaning "opposite" on "in front of": "right fornent you" meant "right in front of you".

It is odd to think of "fetch" becoming obsolete. I fetch water from the well, wood from the shed, vegetables from the garden; and one thinks of the phrase "That'll fetch him!",—or the price that might be "fetched" for some valuable painting at Christie's.

Perhaps in countries with older cultures, old meaningful words last longer, whether listed in a dictionary or spoken in dialect. The young immigrant adopts and absorbs the speech of his neighbours, while the older one holds fast to that which he has, and uses words like "forby", "fornent" and "fetch".

I enjoy your editorial page very much. My days are full and I have little leisure for reading; and so it is a pleasant thing to pick up your paper in the late evening and enjoy what you offer for the day, from the quotation at the top to the cartoon at the foot: your book reviews, Alpha's column, Mr. Marchbanks' diary and letters, the third column articles on pictures, music, sculpture (though these articles are sometimes above me). I have learned a lot too from your editorials on world affairs; and I particularly enjoyed an editorial some time ago on Cardinal Newman, and more recently one on Goethe. I also like the friendly helpful way Mrs. Mary Moore writes her cookery column.

"EDINA".

THE OBSESSED

Sir: A mental institution for Peterborough sounds like a wonderful idea, in fact almost a necessity; and I would nominate as charter inmates all those members of the City Council, Industrial Commission and Examiner staff who seem obsessed with the idea of making Peterborough a bigger, dirtier, noisier, more congested and more expensive town in which to live; as well as a much juicier target for an atomic bomb.

Your truly,
J. L. McKEEVER.

When A Strike Strikes

What happens in a town of 135,000 when 75 per cent. of its wage-earners have received their last pay cheque?

Gary, Indiana, 30,000 of whose 42,000 wage earners are steel workers out on strike, is learning the tough answer to this one because its lifeblood—the steel payrolls—stopped flowing.

A lot of people left town as soon as the strike started, about two weeks ago. The first day of the strike, the bus companies had their biggest day in some years.

Retail business has already dropped about 50 per cent. since the strike.

In steelworker sections of Pittsburgh retailers are cutting back on their orders of everything from shoes to auto supplies. In Lorain, Ohio, butchers say customers "all want neck bones and pigs feet". The trend of jewellery business in Buffalo indicates fewer steel mill hands will be wed.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And the Lord God said, Behold, the man is become as one of us, to know good and evil: and now, lest he put forth his hand, and take also of the tree of life, and eat, and live for ever: therefore the Lord God sent him forth from the garden of Eden, to till the ground from whence he was taken. The drunk replied: "Just give him water, he's driving."

London Bridge Is Opened In Africa

A bridge—over which thousands of Londoners have walked—was opened recently at Kafue, Northern Rhodesia. It is the emergency bridge which linked the South Bank of London's river Thames, near County Hall, to the Victoria Embankment. The bridge is the gift of the Beit Trustees on whose behalf it was handed over to the Government of Northern Rhodesia by Sir Alfred Beit.

A BRITISH OPINION

"To arms, McGregor. Someone's told the English that snow has fallen in Scotland."

London Express

Remember the time when firemen used to sit outside the fire hall with their chairs tilted against the wall waiting for something to happen. They don't do it these days of course. In fact they are quite busy inside, especially at Sault Ste. Marie where the Department of Lands and Forests flying [illegible] hangar. As northern lakes skim over with ice behind them, planes from a dozen points from the Manitoba to the Quebec borders crowd the landing stages, the apron and shops. The Black Gang is working around the clock. Pilots are getting their tickets renewed while their wives frequent shops and beauty parlours. Director George Ponsford will have his finger on the pulse of the whole operation including the overhaul that is going on at remote bases. Tales of summer adventures in nightly pub sessions will far outshine those told by canoe brigade voyageurs on the same spot almost 200 years ago.

It's nice to know that I have at least one reader. Jim Fraser phoned this week to say how wrong my advice was last week about the way experts advise that wild ducks should be cooked, especially the cooking times. He and his wife rassled with some birds in their kitchen till basting forks were bent and the air was blue, trying to get them cooked. "It took an hour," said Jim, "and until that time was up they were all bloody and everything." He was quite definite that they were not a brace of old decoys he had taken home. Neither did he think they were hell-divers and the suggestion that he might have hung them for a few weeks before eating them didn't appease him in the least. Watch for my recipe on cooking venison, Jim. . .

Loony Walk and Take-Off

The ungainly flight of a pair of south bound loons the other morning recalled an old Chippewa legend that I had read somewhere lately. It is worth repeating. Their no-good Indian spirit, Nanabhazoo, was feeling hungry one day when he spied a flock of ducklings that would make a good meal. He enticed the birds ashore with the promise of showing them a new dance in a ring with backs to a fire and eyes closed. An alert loon, who warned the little ones in time, flew off but not soon enough. The enraged Spirit booted him so terrifically in the rear that his wings and legs were set back on his body with the impact. It is an appropriate story when you consider what an awkward bird the loon is on land and on flight take-off.

Surely there is no city of comparable size in Canada, that has like Peterborough a sizeable lake in the heart of it, known affectionately as Little Lake. There are some great fish taken from it, in season, and at this time of the year it harbours wild ducks. One of my scouts who works in a factory on Armour Hill tells me that he and several fellow employees have been watching rafts of ducks through the week. They are floating off Cemetery Point with the instinctive reasoning that here in indeed a Sanctuary where they will be safe.

Hunters' Moon

Dates for hunters and trappers to mark on their calendars are as follows: Deer, Nov. 14 to 23, inclusive; Fisher, Nov. 1 to Feb. 28, inclusive; Marten, no open season; Beaver, Feb. 1 to April 15, inclusive; Beaver may not be taken on Crown Lands except by holders of trap-line licenses and a special beaver license is required to take beaver on privately-owned lands. Norman Bradley and Bill Gibson cannot wait for our own deer season to open but will leave for their camp on the Wanapitei River, ten miles south of Burwash, where hunting opened on Nov. 1st. They will be joined by five other members from Toronto.

Department of Highways roadside park on Eel's Brook, north of Haultain on Highway 28 has blossomed forth with two fine granite picnic fireplaces. Although they have only been recently constructed and will find little use this season, they will be a welcome accessory to picnickers next year. Another of these parks worthy of mention is on the east shore of Paudash Lake. A long curving steel and stone parapet provides a turn-off parking lot above the park which plunges down to the waterline among well underbrushed birches. The view through the bare trees at this time of the year stretches three ways and is directly across from an island-studded channel on the west shore. It is worth a pause the next time you are driving along that way.

Six bronze plaques are being erected by the Ontario Government and the Georgian Bay Association to commemorate explorer Samuel de Champlain's visit to Huronia more than 300 years ago. Not included as a point worthy of posterity was Wallace's Point on the Otonabee where he and 15 Frenchmen and 500 Hurons staged a monstrous deer hunt. The site has been carefully determined by Professor G. H. Needler of Toronto. Let us not hide our background under a bushel.

Steady, Slow-Changing British Face

By WILLIAM TINKER

(Ed. Note: This concludes Mr. Tinker's articles on post-war Britain)

Death on the roads. Outside the towns there are no speed limits on the roads for motor vehicles and all may travel as fast as the driver wishes. There is a speed limit of 30 miles per hour in towns, which is more honoured in the breach than in the observance. This ignoring of the speed limit in cities coupled with the fact than only parking lights are used when driving at night, results in a very heavy [illegible] killed or injured on the roads of Britain. This I feel is as much a disgrace to Britain, as the burning of innocent and helpless children in house fires is to Canada.

If those killed or injured on the roads in Britain were members of the house of Commons, the house of Lords, or the diplomatic corps, something would be done to stop this senseless slaughter, but as they are mainly members of the lower classes no one seems to care.

The reporting of fatal traffic accidents is so commonplace, that the name of the driver of the car by which people have been killed, is sometimes omitted in the newspaper report. Radio or wireless as it is termed, is excellent. No static, no advertisements, but real good reception characterizes the broadcasting of B.B.C. In this connection I had expected that the various dialects of Britain would be dying out, due somewhat to the excellent English diction and grammar of the broadcasters, but this was not so. Dialects seemed just as deeply rooted as they had ever been, and some seemed just as difficult to understand, British children usually speak two languages. One, of very good English, at school or for special occasions, and another, that of the dialect of the district, for home and playmates

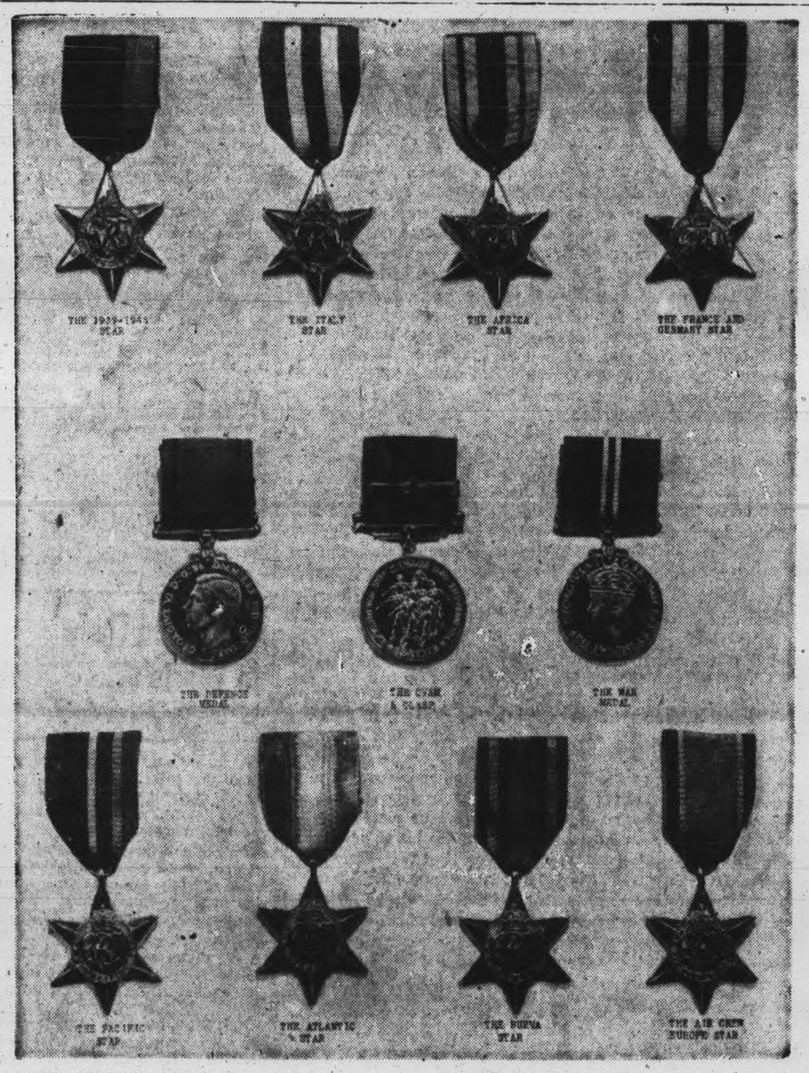
The Future

And now, what of the future? Is the world about to witness the fall of the British Empire (we are we going to see a Renaissance? All the British people with whom I discussed this matter were confident a way would be found out of their present difficulties. They held firmly to this idea, not because they had any plan, or could see their way, but because a solution had always been found in the past, and they were sure that somehow, sometime, the right man would arise—like Lloyd George in the first war, and Churchill in the second—to lead them to the promised land. "We have always won the last battle, you know," they would say.

But, as I see it, this time things are different. The enemy is within, not without, and although Sir Stafford Cripps has told the nation that everyone must work harder, and produce more for the the same pay as they are now receiving, there is a great movement by many trade unions, particularly the engineers and the railway workers, to get increased wages. And these unions are persisting, and will not be disuaded from their efforts to obtain 20 and 10 shillings per week advance, although I feel, that even the most elementary student of economics could see the country could not afford such substantial increases in pay without crippling the economy of the nation. The question of Britain's survival, in my opinion, therefore, depends upon the way the nation responds to the appeal of Sir Stafford Cripps.

If the unions are willing to for their members, and their members are willing to produce more for the same pay they are now receiving, and the investor, banker, and capitalist will be content to receive less dividends from their investments than they have in the past, then there will be a renaissance indeed. But, if they do not respond, but each class acts in a selfish manner, and persists in getting all possible, without any regard to the effect on the nation as a whole, then the outlook will be rather dark.

Is the British nation "big" enough to do this? Are individuals unselfish enough to voluntarily relinquish some of the social and economical advantages they gained during the past few years? These question will be answered within the next few months, and upon their answers, I feel, depends the future of the British nation.



NEXT FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 11, veterans of the last war will wear for the first time on the Armistice Day parade two to seven of the medals shown above. Issue of them began from Ottawa last month and is still continuing. This is the complete list of British and Canadian medals which could be earned by veterans of the 1939-45 war, apart from decorations for gallantry and special service: Left to Right, TOP ROW: The 1939-45 Star, The Italy Star; The Africa Star; The France and Germany Star; CENTRE ROW: The Defence Medal; The Canadian Volunteer Service Medal and Clasp; (the only special Canadian medal) The War Medal; BOTTOM ROW: The Pacific Star, The Atlantic Star, The Burma Star, The Air Crew Europe Star.

Men Who March Away

What of the faith and fire within us
Men who march away
Ere the barn-cocks say
Night is growing gray,
Leaving all that here could win us;
What of the faith and fire within us
Men who march away?

Is it a purblind prank, O think you,
Friend with the musing eye,
Who watch us stepping by
With doubt and dolorous sigh?
Can much pondering so hoodwink you!
Is it a purblind prank, O think you,
Friend with the musing eye?

Nay, we well see what we are doing
Though some may not see,
Dalliers as they be;
England's need are we;
Her distress would leave us rueing:
Nay, We well see what we are doing
Though some may not see!

In our heart of hearts believing
Victory crowns the just,
And that braggarts must
Surely bite the dust,
Press we to the field ungrieving,
In our heart of hearts believing

Cobourg Priest Writes Gay Sports Column

(From Cobourg Sentinel-Star)

When silver-tinged, bushy-haired Reverend Father Gerald J. Maher used to write his weekly sport column in the Sentinel-Star under the pseudonym of "Elsie" he had more than one local sport enthusiast holding his sides.

Readers who had no specific interest in the sports page would leaf over to keep up with "Elsie's" latest escapades. Speculation ran high as the weeks passed as to just who "Elsie" was.

Not to be out-done, down-to-earth Father Maher let loose in his column one week. Said he:

"It has come to our ears that Jim Medhurst, Matting manager, has been wondering who Elsie is. With professional dignity, we decline to reveal our whole identity but do not mind painting a few strokes on the canvas for him. Elsie is well over forty years of age, does not go in for loud type of clothing, having had the same kind of humble garb Elsie is now wearing, since September 1915, Elsie is not worried by the twice-annual change in head gear because Elsie buys a new hat every two years and does not bother remodelling the old one.

"Elsie has been wearing Elsie's hair the same way since the age of twelve. A kind mother before that age had tried to part Elsie's hair in the middle but the vaseline bill became more than the milk bill—so Elsie's hair was let grow "brush-cut."

"Elsie is often seen around both Cobourg hospitals, is well known to doctors and undertakers, being frequently consulted by the two latter professions. Elsie is not so well known to local dentists because of demands made on Elsie's jaws by the dental experts of other towns before Elsie's coming to Cobourg-by-the-sea.

"Elsie has no girl chums or friends in the ordinary sense of the word but boasts of and is proud of many smiling girl acquaintances. Elsie, in the words of the poet is "passing rich on forty pounds a year" and while life has been kind to Elsie, most of Elsie's future is behind Elsie."

Quick-speaking Father Maher, who, incidentally wrote the Town League poem (Tennyson), two weeks ago, is a news-room veteran from away back.

It runs in the family. His father Joseph Maher of Rubidge St. is a member of the Examiner's Circulation department.

While taking an honor arts course at University of Toronto, St. Michael's College, young Maher worked for four summer months, one year on the flagrantly-Tory, Peterboro Review. Then just so his politics wouldn't become too lop-sided he rode the opposite horse next summer scribed sport news for the Grit Evening Examiner.

But young Maher's boyhood experience wasn't limited to newspaper ofices. For two summers before he had even stuck his nose inside a newsroom, he worked as a deck-hand on a Kawartha Lakes canal boat. He was a husky youth and it was no mean day's work that he had done when the tug's six o'clock whistle blew.

Back in 1918 when Father Maher graduated in Theology from Toronto Augustus seminary, the Catholic church sent him up to do missionary work in Ontario's Muskoka area. For 18 years he worked back and forth along the 50-mile stretch between Gravenhurst and Parry Sound. Sometimes he would grab a ride aboard a freight engine. Other times he would manage to catch a lit with some truck driver who would drop him off in some out-of-the-way spot where sickness had struck or death had taken another life.

Father Maher has always been close to his people and that may be one reason why he has always been wrapped up in sports. He was born in downtown Toronto under the shadow of the old Mutual Street arena and the sport fever that youngsters seem to catch from living around a hockey rink has stayed with him.

Shortly after Father Maher came here in 1941 to assist the late Father P. J. Kelly at St. Michael's—a parish of some 1,200 souls—he annoyed some of his more Puritanical contemporaries by upholding Sunday sports when the issue grew hot in town. Said Father Maher: "I can see nothing wrong with Sunday sports as long as the boys and girls attend mass first."

During the hour the Sentinel-Star visited the priests' house to interview Father Maher last week, he was called away at least three times to answer telephone calls and consult parishioners who came seeking help. That is typical of the Father's work as parish assistant to Father J. P. Collins, he works what one might call a 24-hour day. Sometimes he is called out twice in a night to administer last rites or to bring comfort to someone seriously sick. During the daytime he has 27 youngsters at St. Joseph's Orphanage to help look after. He is chaplain of the local Knights of Columbus and the Catholic Youth Organization.

And still he finds time to take a deep personal interest in the Men's Softball League, to bowl for five years in the town league, to sit on the executive, now, and to pen his weekly Town League column for the sport page of the Sentinel-Star—a job for which he has an undeniable flair. In fact, "The Canadian Register," official Catholic magazine hit the nail on the head several years ago when it said, "When Father Maher entered the seminary, the newspaper world lost an asset."

Today, Father Maher still writes the odd "stick" for the Canadian Register and also occasionally for another Catholic paper, "The Ensign" published in Montreal.

The OLD GUIDE & TRAPPER — "Town Hall Tonight"

Riddle These

Riddles seem to have gone out of fashion with the parlour, but there may be living-room for these several old-fashioned ones. What thing is referred to by each? The answers are given below:

Thirty white horses upon a red hill,
Now they champ, now they tramp, now they stand still.

Old Mother Twitchett had but one eye,
And a long tail which she let fly;
And every time she went over a gap
She left a bit of her tail in a trap.

Little Nancy Etticoat,
In a white petticoat,
And a red nose;
The longer she stands
The shorter she grows.

What's that which all love more than life,
Fear more than death or mortal strife?—
That which contented men desire,
That poor possess, the rich require,
The miser spends, the spendthrift saves,
And all men carry to their graves?

(Answers: Teeth and gums, a needle and thread, a candle, nothing.)

Legionnaires Clip Clippers In Rough Exhibition Fray

Legionnaires continued their winning ways along the exhibition trail last night at Civic Arena when they trimmed Stouffville Clippers 6-1 in a fair fray. While it still wasn't mid-season hockey, the local squad looked better than in their previous start to earn the duke in a fairly rough tussle. They drew 12 of the 23 penalties handed out, each side getting two majors for fighting. The Ellis outfit got the lone tally of the initial inning, and held a 4-0 margin going into the more even third chukker. The speedy young Clippers made it a fight all the way and, but for some nice [illegible] without Bill Crowley (who was working) but they clicked well most of the way in a speedy joust. The fighting penalties went to Godfrey and Couch in the second, and to Deans and Montgomery in the third.

A Fair Crowd

Only a fair-sized crowd saw the tilt between rivals which will likely meet several times in group games. Legion will have an exhibition Monday at Stouffville against the mostly-Toronto team. The refereeing was good generally as both sides were inclined to play as though a title depended on it, throwing elbows and getting away with some interference with fights threatening several times. The visitors used a sub goalie in the third heat.

Chum Fryia led the local snipers with two goals and an assist. Keith Montgomery and Bert Hill were in on a pair each, as was Joe Rochetta with a goal and an assist. Coombs, Parnell and Doug Mortimer each were in on one, the latter also going well on defence. The whole squad showed improved hockey in this fracas, while the visitors made it a game throughout. Bradbury got their lone marker on an angle shot in the third to rob Nicholls of a shutout.

Southworth, Baker, Wright and Goalie Irvine also stood out.

Stouffville: Goal, Irvine; defence, Baker and Hawksbury; centre, Southworth; wings, Drummond and Earle; alternates, Deans, Corcoran, Kelly, Clark, Minton, Bradbury, Couch, Hopper, Wright and Boadway.

Legion, Goal, Nicholls; defence, Godfrey and Burns; centre, Rochetta; wings, Vitarelli and Fryia; alternates, Parnell, Stewart, F. Mortimer, Hill, Coombs, Greenlaw, D. Mortimer and Montgomery.

Referees, P. Calladine and T. Giardino.

Summary:

First Period

Legion—Rochetta (Montgomery, Fryia) 16.30
Penalties — Drummond, Parnell, Montgomery, D. Mortimer, Southworth, Hawksbury, Hopper, F. Mortimer.

Second Period

Legion—Fryia (Rochetta) 3:55
Legion—Fryia (Montgomery) 15:05
Legion—Coombs (Hill) 19:59
Penalties—Couch 2, Burns 2, Deans 2, F. Mortimer, Earle, Stewart, Godfrey, Parnell.

Third Period

Legion—Parnell (Stewart) 5:00
Stouffville—Bradbury 11:35
Legion—D. Mortimer (Hill) 19:10
Penalties — D. Mortimer, Deans, Montgomery, Hawksbury.

Neill's-Black's Take Wins In Girls' Loop

A good-sized crowd witnessed the opening double-header of the Girls' Basketball League season last night at the YWCA, with Neill's defeating Nurses 23-11 and Black's gaining a 25-19 victory over the Normals. They were good games for the start of the season, with the calibre almost mid-season, playing being rugged, close and quite good all the way.

The opener saw Black's earn the win in stiff going over the coming teachers, piling up a 15-9 lead at the half after some close checking. Normals outscored them in the third quarter but some quick and accurate passing by Black's paid off in the fourth frame of a tight tilt. The winners all went well, with J. Caverly, R. Beard, M. Beggs and C. Ferguson outstanding. S. McEwen, A. Curtis and M. Coombs looked good, the Normals having but one score of seven foul shots while the winners got two in seven. The teams:

Normals—M. Halroyd S. Burgess, M. Coombs 6, S. McEwen 8, A. Curtis 2, M. Kerr, L. Cullen, A. Herrington, E. Scriver, J. Galaway, S. Gilmour, G. Clarke 3.

Black's—A. Hichling 2 S. Weiss, M. Beggs 2, C. Ferguson 4, J. Caverly 1D, R. Mayler, R. Beard 4, M. McKee3, R. McKarry, M. Laing, G. Kein.

Smart Play

The second game was fast and smart play was shown by both sides all the way for this time of year. Neill's earned the duke on better combination to catch the Nurses up the floor and hit the hoop. They led at the halfway mark 14-7 and outscored the losers 9-4 the rest of the route in fast going. They got three of eight foul shots to one of seven for Nurses. J. Plunkett, A. Bowler and J. Smith shone for the losers as F. Floyd, J. Vase and D. Callan starred for Neill's. The teams:

Nurses—A. Bowler 4, G. Wiechorek 5, J. Smith, J. Plunkett 2, J. Deyell, G. Calvert, S. Wilkinson.

Neill's—D. Callan 3, D. Saunders, J. Dunk 9, W. Floyd 2 B. Larmer, J. Millard, J. Vass 8, M. Freeman 1, P. Stewart.

Officials: A. Menzies and H. Smith.

Fanny Brice Resumes 'Brat' Role

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 5—(AP)—Next week a 58-year-old grandmother resumes her impersonation of a seven-year-old brat.

This sort of thing has been going on since 1912, when Fanny Brice first dreamed up Baby Snooks. It is likely to continue as long as there is breath in the famed comedienne.

Miss Brice seems resigned to a life with "Schnooks," as she calls the radio moppet. I mentioned that her fans would also like to hear some of her wonderful routines of yore.

"How about another show? I hear they're dragging out the Ziegfeld Follies again."

"They would have to drag me back there to do it," she replied. "I would never leave California willingly."

Television?

"Maybe yes. But I wouldn't do it the way it's done now. No one can put a different show on every week and keep it good. If I did it, I'd rehearse a show carefully, then put it on three or four weeks—the same show every week. That way everybody would see it."

A Parody

That leaves her with Baby Snooks, who was born in vaudeville in 1912. It started as a parody on a pampered movie child. One night she was forced into entertaining at a party. She did her whole routine in the baby talk she used in the movie baby number and it was a howl.

She did the character off and on for years and in 1937 put it on the radio.

Miss Brice was off the airwaves during last year's radio upheaval. She used the time to give birth to an autobiography.

Loves Nickey

"It's an amazing experience," she said. "It's like being psychoanalyzed. There were days when I felt very sad. And days when I felt very happy."

She promises to tell all in the book, including her feelings about her two husbands.

About Billy Rose, she told me: "He comes out all right in the book. Mainly I say how smart he is."

About Nickey Arnstein: "I thought I would have a lot to say about Nickey. But it just ended up with the fact that I loved him."

GUELPH BEATS McMASTER

Guelph's OAC Aggies defeated McMaster Marauders 16-7 at Hamilton Friday in an intermediate intercollegiate football game played during the season's first snowstorm. Sparked by a speedy backfield led by Goomer Raithby, Tony Colverly and Terry Brennan, the Aggies bulled their way through McMaster's hard-charging wing line.

Comes an item from The Weekly News, headed: "Glucose Kids Do It Again." Seems Scotland's international footballers haven't lost a match since they started taking the glucose treatment. Said treatment has spread to many other football (they don't refer to it as soccer, you know) clubs, and all praise it highly. Dictionary says glucose is a grape-sugar or destrose. A Glasgow doctor four years ago started giving it to players, being a firm believer in the stimulating properties of glucose for athletes. Players since have been saying they finished a match almost as strong as they started, taking this stimulant from time to time. Might be a thought for our hockeyists, eh?

* * * * * *

It bucks you up and makes you feel fresher, we understand. One team manager says that, prepping for a game, they had seven bottles of glucose beverage amongst the team at every meal. They also used powdered glucose instead of sugar with their tea. And in the dressing room before the game, the players had a glass of this beverage and used it also at halftime. A little hard to take at first, players soon couldn't get enough. It's not harmful to an ordinary healthy person if taken in reasonable doses over several days, though prolonged use of it may not be wise. Diabetics, of course, shouldn't touch it. Sugar has long been known as an athletic stimulant, long-distance swimmers and runners taking it in lump form while competing.

Paul Irwin President

Senior lacrosse club held its fall meeting and elected officers for the 1950 season here. Paul Irwin was elected president, with Hilly Yudin vice-prexy, and Mick Magee (as a players' representative) the secretary-treasurer. The board of directors includes: Ken Kingston, Walt Murphy, Doug Miller, Bob Peirson, Pete King, Ernie Braund, Dr. Herb Young, Red Creighton and Pup Curtin. Some experienced men there in the gutted-stick game, and they won't be idle during the winter months in planning for another big OLA senior "A" season for the Petes. A much stronger squad will perform here when spring rolls around, according to official predictions.

* * * * * *

You'd think a title was at stake the way Stouffville Clippers and Legionnaires stepped into each other last eve at the arena. A couple of fist fights—one scrap having several in it—and plenty of slashing, elbowing and roughing. One penalty shy of two dozen, with the scrappy Legions as usual drawing most. They're ordered to stay on the ice enough and Jim Ellis is every bit as crusty a coach on his players as Ned Vitarelli was last year) but they do love to battle. A good attitude, we feel, if not carried to excess. As time marches on, we can recall when Jim himself was no angel on the ice—and we can also remember when last night's two referees, Pat Calladine and Tony Giardino, served a fair amount of time in the sin bin! But, come, Perdue, let's not rake up the past!

* * * * * *

Both Squads Hustled

'Twas a good game, with both sides hustling. Minus Bill Crowley (at work), the Legionnaires hurried all the way and looked better than in their last start. The Clippers, too, looked like they might develop into a tough team to beat ere too long. They're young and scrappy, with speed to burn, and they might well have made it closer with a few breaks. Fryia, Rochetta, Montgomery and Hill led the local marksmen, and we liked the work of Doug Mortimer on defence. Burns and Godfrey were good, as well, the latter always proving a tower of strength back of the blue line. The club will be equipped with new outfits in a week or so, costing some two hundred bucks. Nice going.

* * * * * *

Girls' basketball opened for the winter season last gloaming in the YW gym, and two tidy tussles were served up to a goodly gallery. Black's yanked out a 25-19 verdict o'er Normals in the opener with the score tied in the third but the winners coming on fast near the finish to gain the duke. Second part of the twin bill saw Neill's defeat the Nurses 23-11 with both sides turning in hoop play of almost mid-season calibre. It could be that this loop will be better balanced than for a long time, with plenty of keen contests coming up. We should get the schedule within a few more days, but they'll be playing next Friday night anyway.

Off The Grape-Vine

Meteors edged Petes 5-4 last eve in Lindsay, the Petes using a sub goalie in the third and experimenting with a raft of players.... Fans here can see these teams when they clash Wednesday in the arena, and Meteors will have Veigel, who suffered a fractured leg last year... Legion goes to Stouffville on Monday, and North York juniors play the Oddfellows here next Friday.... PMHA schedule should start next week.... Minor lacrosse conveners, coaches and managers have a dinner on Nov. 24.... Max Baer hit Ontario this week as a pro mat referee .. An exhibition midget puck fray, Southenders and Optimists, at five p.m. today in the arena; on Monday at six p.m., Marines meet Southend midgets there in an exhibition.... Belleville and PCVS seniors clash in a COSSA grid playdown at 2.15 this aft in the Oval.... Junior PCI-ers meet Oshawa for lakeshore honors today in Port Hope... Orilia is at Cobourg in ORFU play but Oshawa Raiders are idle a week ere meeting Sarnia in intermediate "B" finals.... Prince of Wales plays Central at four p.m. Monday at King Edward in school soccer semi-finals... Peterborough Soccer Association has a Monday meeting at nine, standard time, in Lindsay.... So, deer and elk are seen in the southend now, huh? Maybe we can compose a song something like this: "O, drop 'round and meet her in the borough of Peter, where the deer and the elk are at play"—and so on.

Meteors Edge Tine Petes In Neat Fray

Suffering from third-periodditis the Petes lapsed into a coma in the third stanza of their hockey exhibition in Lindsay to allow the Toronto Meteors to doctor them 5-4. This strange disease quite common to some teams near the beginning of the season struck the Petes suddenly in the opening [illegible] have the game on ice.

Lynn in the Toronto nets saved the Meteors in the first and second periods turning aside some hot drives from close in. In the dying minutes of the game he backed his team, catching and kicking the puck to victory.

Used Jones

Reg Jones, who replaced Harding in the nets in the third period, was much busier than the steady Ray. The defence which had played an outstanding game in the first and second disappeared in the third, allowing three and four men to swoop down on the Petes' goal.

The Petes' first line Jerry Creighton, Fred Garvey and Jack West, and the second line of Murray Fife, Honey Tompkins and Ted Collins, carried too much speed for the Meteors in the first and second but the defence faltered in the third. Horton and Leonard, the first string defence, played a fast, clean game with McMaster and Wasson the rough pair.

The passing, shooting and checking of both teams indicated more practices would be needed by the squads before starting into a long senior B schedule.

Formica and Spragge each tallied two goals for the Meteors with Sherban getting the winning counter. Peterborough goals were taken by Garvey, West, Dart and McMaster.

The lineups:

Toronto Meteors — Goal, Lynn; defence, Sadler, Butler; centre, Montgomery; wings, Williams Sherban; alternates, Delast, Formica, Brooks, Parks, Spragge, Thomas, Sweenie, Monroe.

Petes — Goal, Harding and Jones; defence, Horton, Leonard; centre, West; wings, J. Creighton, Garvey; alternates, Jopling, Dart, Coughlin, McMaster, Wasson Legros, Marshall, Loveless, Conlin, Griffin, Mortimer, Quigley, Fife, Tompkins, Collins.

The summary:

First Period

Petes—Garvey (Gus Leonard) 13.58
Petes—West (Horton) 14.07
Penalties— Sweenie, Thomas, Collins.

Second Period

Petes—Dart 16.04
Petes—McMaster 18.23
Penalties—McMaster, Horton.

Third Period

Toronto—Formica 1.54
Toronto—Spragge (Monroe) 4.44
Toronto—Formica 14.20
Toronto—Spragge 16.44
Toronto—Sherban (Montgomery) 18.04
Penalties—Quigley, Collins major.

Here And There In Sports . . .

By The Canadian Press

A melee of fans and players broke out after a suburban high school football game at Detroit Friday night, sending a woman and two men to hospital.

Two of the three, including the woman, were reported to have suffered stab wounds. One man was held for questioning.

Most of the 3,500 spectators and players took part in the fighting on the field immediately after a game at Melvindale, Emil L. Pipp, police chief at the suburb, reported.

Mrs. Viola Higgins, 34, a Negro, and Gerald Biskner, 19, were reported to have been stabbed. Jack Lowe, 23, also was injured. Police arrested Banks Higgins, 34 husband of Mrs. Higgins, for questioning.

The fracas broke out after a game between River Rouge and Melvindale. River Rouge won 7-0.

An unemployed groom was arrested at Salem, N. H., Friday and a racing sheet operator was taken into custody in Los Angeles in connection with an apparent attempt to fix a horse race at Rockingham Park Oct. 24.

William K. Weaver of Nogales, Ariz., pleaded innocent to eight counts of maliciously interfering with race horses. He was held on $12,000 for the April term of the Rockingham County Superior Court.

Los Angeles police, at the request of New Hampshire authorities, arrested Forest C. (Chub) Wilson on charges of aiding and abetting in malicious tampering and interfering with race horses at Rockingham on that same date.

With a far-away look in his eyes, Clark Griffith said Friday at Washington he'd frankly like to have Baltimore Orioles back in the American League.

"You never can tell," said the 79-year-old president of Washington Senators, "there might be an opening soon in our league."

He declined to elaborate at Washington on the opening but it was reported that Griff favors dropping the profitless St. Louis Browns from the junior circuit. The Senators' skipper said he would go all out to get an American League franchise for Baltimore if a vacancy occurs.

Gold Lode, owned by Vernon Cardy of Val David, Que., was third Friday in the William F Wharton Memorial Trophy event for conformation hunters at the United States National Horse Show, at New York. The showing, however added two points to the horse's score to give him the lead, with 14 points, in the conformation hunter championship, one of the shows big ribbon events.

At Detroit, police commissioner Harry S. Toy said Friday he may ask the Michigan Boxing Commission to postpone the Lester Felton-Tony Pellone fight scheduled at Detroit Wednesday night.

Toy's statement highlighted another day of investigation by police into the Oct. 21 fight in which Detroiter Felton won a decision over Kid Gavilan of Cuba.

"As long as the Gavilan-Felton fight is under investigation, I do not think it wise procedure for Felton to fight again," Toy said. "It will take us at least another week to conclude our inquiry."

In a dreary, five-round catchweight main bout, Toronto welterweight Norm Thompson beat Glen Dafoe of Oshawa on points Friday night in an amateur boxing show at Brockville.

Another feature clash saw Vince Tyo, Cornwall, gain a five-round decision over Billy Corbett, Toronto. Both fought at 140 pounds.

Other results:

Three rounds: Laird Kinch, 128, Brockville, beat Roy Reshone, 130, Oshawa, on points; Don Blair 135 Brockville, defeated Reg. Wanamaker, 132, Oshawa, on points; Harold Hamelin, 123, of Brockville, outpointed Tony Genele 122, Toronto; Jim Cauley, 115, Brockville, decisioned Bob Burrows, 115, Oshawa.

FUTURE BOMBER GREATS?—Art Stevenson, one of the greatest backfield players ever to wear a Winnipeg Blue Bomber uniform, proudly displays his twin sons, Curtis, left, and Carey, who hopes will develop into future Bomber stars. Coming from the University of Nebraska to Winnipeg in 1937, he played until 1941 but is now living in Phoenix, Arizona, where he is practising medicine. A triple-threat quarterback, Stevenson made Western Interprovincial Football Union all-star teams in 1937, 1938, 1940 and 1941 and twice led the league scoring. He plans to send his twin sons to the University of Manitoba.

Tigers Blank Mercurys 9-0 As Marlboros Score 9-1

By The Canadian Press.

Big scores and a few surprises dotted the results of six Ontario Hockey Association games played last night.

Both senior games ended with lopsided scores. At Toronto, the leading Marlboros dumped the third-place Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen 9-1. Hamilton Tigers, after losing six straight games, blasted out a 9-0 victory at home over the second-slot Owen Sound Mercurys. Another big surprise came at St. Catharines when the Teepees, in top spot in the junior series, were defeated 9-7 by the tail-end Windsor Spitfires.

Barrie Flyers handed the Junior Toronto Marlboros their first defeat of the season at Barrie when they dumped the Dukes for a 5-2 victory. Barrie and Marlboros now are tied for second place, one point behind the Teepees.

Guelph Biltmores defeated Galt Black Hawks 5-3 in overtime at Guelph to jump into a three-way tie for fourth place with Galt and St. Michael's and Stratford Kroehlers are still tied with Windsor and Oshawa Generals for last place in the loop after defeating the Toronto St. Michael's 6-2 last night.

Have Little Trouble

The Senior Marlboros had little trouble with Dutchmen. They took a 4-0 lead in the first frame and increased it to 7-0 in the second, almost scoring at will.

Chuck Blair scored three times for the Dukes. Bill Johnson and Alfie Childs each scored twice and Johnny McCormack and Al Buchanan once. Doug Verity got the K-W goal.

For the Tigers Clare Shillington and Jack Taylor each scored twice. The other markers were picked up by Johnny Conick, Alf Dinning, Tommy Smelie, Murray Comfort and Harold Hursley.

The Spitfires turned the tables on the Teepees thanks to five unanswered goals in the second frame. St. Catharines took a 3-2 first-period lead, were smothered in the second and outscored the Spits 4-2 in the third.

High Scorer

Earl Riebel was high scorer for the Spits with three goals. Ed Grosse and Ed Stankiewicz each scored twice and the other markers were picked up by Rawlyk and Earl Johnson. Norm Corcoran, Red Sullivan and Wayne Brown each sank two for Teepees. Mel Mullen got the other.

At Barrie Leo Barber scored twice for the winners while Bob Holden, Stan Long and Enso Zanatta each tallied once. Jack McKenzie scored the Marlies' two goals with George Armstrong getting the assists.

Jimmie Pernfuss' three goals and a tight Stratford defence gave the Kroehlers their victory over St. Michael's with Dinny Flanagan and Denny Draper each getting one. Gord Roy and Willie Marshall scored for St. Michael's.

Andy Bathgate scored three goals for Guelph, one of them the winner in the overtime period. George Ford, Jack Hill and Jack Green were the Galt snipers.

Wield Deadly Hockey Weapons On Four Fronts

By JACK MITCHELL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

National Hockey League puck chasers will wield their deadly weapons on four fronts this week-end.

So long as the customers heed League President Clarence Campbell's warning to stay off the ice, the mortality rate on fans should be low. Even if tickets are still at a premium, the players can't afford to alienate too many fans' affections by cracking noggins [illegible] settle in the four week-end games to guarantee they'll be trying to use their sticks with deadly effect on opposing goalies—and fair enough, on one another.

One big clash comes at Toronto tonight when the Maple Leafs battle it out with Detroit Red Wings for first place. They're tied now, each with 11 points in eight games. In another night game, Canadiens will be trying to close up on the co-leaders when they tackle the last-place Boston Bruins at Montreal.

Both Toronto and Detroit also play Sunday night games. Detroit is at home to the fifth place New York Rangers while Toronto meets the fourth-place Black Hawks in Chicago.

Lewicki Transfer Finished Friday

TORONTO, Nov. 5 — (CP) — Transfer of Danny Lewicki from Stratford to Toronto Marlboros in the Ontario Hockey Association junior A series was completed Friday—the first step in bringing the 18-year-old player back into the game.

OHA secretary Gerge Panter received release forms from Stratford and the Association put its official okay on them.

Still hanging fire is the suspension clamped on Lewicki Oct. 6 by the National Hockey League and the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association for failure to comply with terms of the NHL's C form. The transfer to Marlboros, amateur farm club of Toronto Maple Leafs of the NHL which holds Lewicki's C form, paved the way for reinstatement.

"Everything is okay as far as the transfer goes and all that is necessary now to put Lewicki back into the game is for the NHL to request reinstatement from the CAHA," Panter said in an interview. "This would be done immediately the request is made."

Boxing Club Starts Activities On Monday

Boxing's limp body will get a shot in the arm in Peterborough Monday night as the new boxing club opens in the Ashburnham Hall. Sponsored by the Peterborough Administrative Boxing Council which was formed by 14 organizations in the spring the club will open for action at 7 p.m.

Workouts will be held each Monday, Wednesday and Friday. The club will be a non-profit organization.

Under the supervision the boys will be taught the art of boxing, said Jack Dane, Recreation Director. Ron Menzies will coach the boys until the club is financially sound enough to hire a full-time boxing instructor.

Some work has yet to be done to the ring which is situated on the stage of the hall. The back wall has to be padded as does the floor of the ring. Armar Butcher, Parks Superintendent, has promised to have punching-bag platforms made before the opening Monday night.

FARM BOY TO CHIEF — Hon. Gordon Wilfrid Howson, who started life as an Ontario farm boy, living near Norwood, successively became a teacher, banker, university student, soldier, barrister, member of the Alberta legislature provincial leader of his party and finally chief justice of the province. He was appointed chief justice of the trials division of the Alberta Supreme Court in 1944.

Terms Beecham Talk "A Lot Of Hot Air"

CARDIFF, Wales, Nov. 5—(CP)—Will Arthur, secretary of the South Wales Miners Union, Friday termed recent statements in Montreal of Sir Thomas Beecham as "a lot of hot air."

Sir Thomas is reported to have told Montrealers: "They've stopped singing in Wales; they only strike now."

Arthur said this "is not the first silly statement" by the noted conductor.

"For Sir Thomas' information less coal has been lost in South Wales these last two years because of strikes than in any other comparable coalfield in the country," Arthur said.

"As for singing, at our last Miners' Eisteddfod we had 22 choirs and — soloists competing."

Judge Missing For 19 Years Left No Trace

By ROBERT MARX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK (CP) — Joseph Force Crater is 60 years old—if he is still alive.

Whether he is, no one knows. Nineteen years ago the former New York Supreme Court justice waved goodnight to his dinner companions, hopped into a taxi and disappeared.

At first it was suspected he had met with foul play. Later investigations revealed he had been involved in stock-market speculation and graft.

The bureau of missing persons says the case is still open. A crack detective is still on the job searching for clues to the judge's mysterious disappearance.

When he vanished, Judge Crater was six feet tall, weighing 185 pounds, had blue eyes and sparse, grey-sprinkled hair. His smashed right index finger was noticeable.

There have been numerous reports of Judge Crater being found—both dead and alive. He has been variously identified as a California gold prospector, a Tahiti beachcomber, an amnesia victim in Missouri, a headless skeleton in Vermont and a body in many places. Each report has been closely checked, all over the United States, in Canada, South America and Europe, but each has been proved false.

The day he disappeared, Aug. 6, 1930, the judge had withdrawn $5,100 from two banks, destroyed some papers and gathered other documents together. He purchased two tickets to a musical show he had already seen, then went to dinner with a lawyer and an actress.

After dinner he left in the taxi and was never seen again.

During ensuing years many theories were advanced. Some persons believed he had committed suicide. Others thought he was a victim of amnesia.

Some, including his wife, suggested that the judge, an active participant in politics, had been kidnapped and murdered by political opponents. There was also the possibility of damaging speculation on the stock market, which crashed the year before.

Scots Denounce Book

GLASGOW, Scotland, Nov. 5 (CP)—Three thousand angry Scots Friday night met to denounce as "wicked and untrue" a book about Scotland's western isles. The book by Alastair Alpin MacGregor describes the islanders as drunken, lazy, greedy, immoral, brutal and dirty. The islanders and their kinsmen, attending the protest meeting, decided to bombard the publishers with telegrams demanding the book be withdrawn "until cleaned up."

PAINTER'S EARLY WORK

The Bargello palace in Florence Italy contains five works by Michael Angelo, which he painted when only 16 years old.

BRUIN BRUISER — In 13 years of National Hockey League competition, Milt Schmidt has made life miserable for opposing players who felt like trading body checks. Originally renowned as the high-scoring centre of Boston Bruins' feared Kitchener Kraut line with Woody Dumart and Bobby Bauer, the 31-year-old six-footer now alternates between centre and defence.

School Changes Leap In Dark

TORONTO, Nov. 5 —(CP)— Changes in the curriculum of Ontario schools were described in a C.C.F. statement Friday as "a wild leap in the dark."

The statement was signed by Opposition Leader E. B. Jolliffe and C. H. Millard, M.P.P. and chairman of the committee on education for the party.

It said that whether the changes announced by Education Minister Porter were wise or unwise, the facts were that a royal commission has, "at great expense to the taxpayers," been investigating all phases of education for 4½ years and has not yet reported.

The legislature was not informed at its last session that such changes were contemplated but on the contrary was assured that important and overdue changes must await the commission's recommendations.

Three WMS Branches Meet At Fairmount

FAIRMOUNT, Nov. 5 (ENS)—The Thank-offering meeting of the WMS was held Wednesday at the home of Mrs. R. F. McIndoo, Cavan and Springville societies were guests and about 35 ladies were present.

Mrs. F. W. K. Harris and Mrs. H. Rehill of Peterborough were guest speakers and there was a quiz program on the origin and work of the Women's Missionary Society at home and overseas.

Mrs. S. S. Staples of Springville and Mrs. W. Armitage of Cavan thanked the speakers and hostesses. Mrs. N. McConnell sang a solo and Mrs. McConnell and Mrs. E. McCarrell sang a duet. Lunch was served.

Arrangements were made for a pot luck dinner at the home of Mrs. H. McGee next Wednesday when two quilts are to be quilted for overseas relief and good second-hand clothing to be brought in for the bale.

Mrs. R. K. Earle, Mrs. H. McBain and Mrs. Roy Hooten were appointed nominating committee.

Women Raise $90 For Church At Bazaar

NORWOOD, Nov. 5 (ENS)—An afternoon tea and bazaar in the library on Saturday organized by the women of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church realized $90.

Mrs. A. A. Waddell, Mrs. Harry Morgan and Mrs. Frank Andrews were on the tea committee; Mrs. Will Robb, Mrs. J. Gilmour, Mrs. R. D. Duncanson and Mrs. T. Lumsden were in charge of the fancy work and aprons; Mrs. G. Aitchieson, Mrs. T. A. Borland, Mrs. G. Ross and Mrs. Roy Baker were at the home baking table.

Seabiscuit, king of the handicap division on American tracks, won the Riggs Handicap in track-record time in Pimlico 12 years ago today. The California-owned colt did the 1 3/16 miles in 1:57 2/5, clipping three-fifths of a second from the old mark. He also regained top-money position, bringing his total earnings for the year to $167,142.50.

Use Helicopters To Assist Land Surveyors

OTTAWA, Nov. 5 (CP)—Helicopters have come to the aid of the ground-grubbing surveyor.

The surveyors with Canada's topographical service have to lay down fixed points, by old-fashioned ground methods, before the modern air photo surveys can be of any use.

This year, as an experiment, they tried to modernize their methods. They used two helicopters with outstanding success in the [illegible] around Fort Nelson, B. C.

The surveyors found the helicopters, equipped with pontoons, were able to operate successfully from both land and water bases and helped to make this year's topo-survey program the largest ever completed. More than 110,000 square miles of important mining, forestry, agricultural and other territory were surveyed.

Importance of the expanded work is indicated from the Resources Department's figures which say that less than 15 per cent of Canada's territory has been "satisfactorily mapped at the four-mile scale."

As a result of this year's field work, more than 80,000 square miles of territory will be mapped at this scale. This summer's work also will make possible the mapping at one mile to the inch of the widely-separated mining areas of Quebec-Labrador, the Yellowknife district of Northwest Territories, the Kimberley area of British Columbia, important areas in the prairies and in the industrial areas of the Eastern Townships of Quebec, the Maritimes and Newfoundland.

DEFENCE CHIEF — Brooke Claxton, who was battery sergeant-major with the Distinguished Conduct Medal during the first world war, now is the chief of Canada's three armed services. He was law professor at McGill University when he was first elected to the Commons as Liberal member for Montreal in 1944. He became defence minister in 1946. Mr. Claxton was born in Montreal, Aug. 23, 1898.

Baby Improving

WATERTOWN, N. Y., Nov. 5 (CP)—Penne Ann Willselblech, who weighed only 1½ pounds a week after birth, left here for home Friday with her parents. Penne weighed 2¼ pounds when born last July 30 and her weight dropped during the next week. She now scales four pounds, 14 ounces after spending two of her three months of life in an incubator.

Leaves Jackie Cooper

LOS ANGELES Nov. 5—(AP)—Jackie Cooper, the one-time child actor, came back from the war "a changed man," his pretty wife testified Friday as she divorced him. Actress June Horne won an uncontested decree in Superior Court, custody of their three-year-old son John Anthony, and $50 a week for the boy's support.

Attention, All Boxers!

I have been instructed by the Peterborough Administrative Boxing Council that Ashburnham Hall on Hunter Street East, has been made available as training quarters for our new Peterborough Boxing Club. The Local Administrative Boxing Council, made up of representatives from fourteen service clubs in this city, and operating as a non-profit community service, intend using Ashburnham Hall throughout the Winter on Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings from seven to nine o'clock.

A cordial invitation to make use of our training facilities is extended to all persons interested in this sport. To parents of the younger lads, may I suggest that you signify your consent to their participation by accompanying them on their initial visit. There, it can be seen that our training methods constitute an attempt to develop character and true sportsmanship in ALL—rather than championship material in a FEW.

While only part of our previously ordered training equipment has arrived to date, it has been decided that the Peterborough Boxing Club will open on Monday evening, November 7th, as originally planned.

Sincerely Yours,

A. RON MENZIES,
Secretary,
Peterborough Administrative Boxing Council

Small Fraction Of Atomic Work On Secret List

OTTAWA, Nov .5—(CP)—Only a small fraction of Canada's atomic effort is in a secret category, Dr. C. J. Mackenzie told the Commons' first atomic committee Friday. He is chairman of the Atomic Energy Control Board.

At its first meeting, the committee:

1. Heard parliamentary assistant to Trade Minister Howe, as chairman.

2. Agreed to meet twice next week and the nspend two days at the Chalk River atomic project 125 miles west of Ottawa the week after.

3. Heard Dr. Mackenzie promise to tell them everything, with secret information strictly off the record and earmarked to go no further.

4. Heard Dr. Mackenzie explain that because of an international agreement it will be impossibe to take the press along this time "but we hope that in a very short time that will be possible."

The agreement is with the United States and the United Kingdom.

Dr. Mackenzie said Chalk River's scientists are "very happy" at the appointment of a committee because they are anxious to get a body of informed opinion built up among public men.

There were " a lot of problems up there" that should be appreciated. But it was a project that "eventually, not in my time, is going to be a very very important place."

Haven't Anficipated Commission Report

TORONTO, Nov. 5 (CP)—The plan for revised curricula in Ontario schools announced Thursday night in St. Thomas by Education Minister Porter, does not anticipate the report of a Royal Commission on education appointed in March 1945, Mr. Porter said Friday in an interview.

Mr. Porter announced Thursday night his department plans to eliminate high-school entrance examinations, reorganize the present 13 grades into four general divisions, eliminating the gap between primary and secondary schools, and to shift some of the responsibility for drafting curricula to local school boards.

He said today he did not know whether the new plan will be in line with recommendations to be made by the commission which has not yet submitted its report.

The new plan was based on experiments which are being conducted in some Ontario communities particularly Toronto, Hamilton and Ottawa. Students in normal schools were already studying the courses which will be introduced in primary schools in September, 1950.

The changes affected the curriculum only and "taxation will not be affected in the slightest degree," he said.

Jury Suggests Hospital Have Bigger Staffs

LONDON, Ont., Nov. 5 (CP)—Recommendations that Ontario Hospital here have larger ward staffs, that older members have less responsibility, and that additional alarms be installed and "maintained in good working condition" were made by a coroner's jury here Thursday night.

They were part of a verdict which found that Charles Henry Yelf, 63-year-old hospital attendant was bludgeoned to death Oct. 14, in a corridor by a mental patient who wielded a wooden [illegible] reach its verdict after a 2½ hour inquest.

Its recommendations were made said the verdict, "on the basis of evidence given and to assist in prevention of similar occurrences in the future." The jury also said that the hospital staff should be rotated in the different wards and not kept in one ward.

Dr. G. H. Stevenson, superintendent, said that Yelf was killed by a 34-year-old patient who had been in the hospital for 10 years. He said he was suffering from a disease in which impulsive acts without obvious cause were not uncommon. The man could have [illegible] assault on an imdoing. When questioned by him the next day the patient admitted attacking Yelf "but was not capable of evaluating the attack. He laughed about it and didn't realize he had taken a man's life."

Prophet Fulfilled Mission Midst Sadness, Suffering

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D.D.

The prophet Jeremiah, whose book of 52 chapters, and five chapters of Lamentations, are a major part of Old Testament prophecy, lived in troublous times. His courageous mission was fulfilled in sadness and suffering, as he saw the land that he loved invaded, its king made blind, its people mostly carried into exile, and a remnant forced to flee to Egypt. Jeremiah himself also sought refuge there, and disappeared, so that there is no accurate knowledge concerning his last days.

[illegible] prophet Jeremiah. It was in counselling his king, Zedekiah (Jeremiah 38, 39), toward precisely such action that the prophet brought upon himself the wrath of the so-called 'princes," who had him cast into a dungeon, and left to die.

Jeremiah foresaw the destruction and havoc that were about to be inflicted on Jerusalem by the invading Babylon army. But this warning and counsel only brought upon him the charge of disloyalty and treason, and the penalty of imminent death.

[illegible] man, whom not even the direst suffering, and the persistent threat of death, could swerve from his mission to declare what God had revealed to him, and to save king and people from the disaster that threatened them, when they refused to heed his warning and to follow his guidance.

Centuries later, Jesus, who put the deepest commitments of the soul in the realm of practical good judgment and a wise counting of the cost, was to inquire (Luke 14:32) "what king, going to make war against another king, sitteth not down first, and consulteth whether he be able with ten thousand to meet him that cometh against him with twenty thousand? Or else, while the other is yet a great way off, he sendeth an ambassage, and desireth conditions of peace."

Though Jesus applied this to the disciples' counting of the cost in committing themselves to Him, He that may have had in mind the [illegible] of the King, the putting out of his eyes, destruction, and exile, is told in chapter 39. But there is a bright ray in that dark tragedy in the story in chapter 38 of Jeremiah's rescue from the pit through the offices of a courageous and sympathetic courtier. A gentle and tender touch is added when the courtier dropped "cast clouts and rotten rags," that Jeremiah might put them under his armpits, and avoid the chafe of the rope as kind hands pulled him out.

In all this is the background of the problem of suffering, and of God's suffering servants, emphasized in Isaiah 53. We shall return to that, with more concerning Jeremiah, and some suggestions of what his life and his prophecies mean for our lives and our times. It is of little use to study even these great things in the past, and in the Bible, unless we profit by them today and learn the lessons they teach.

Slave To Your Sins Or Slave To Jesus Christ

REV. E. R. JAMES

Paul, A Bond Servant Of Jesus Christ Rom. 1; 1.

Paul, a Jewish gentleman, born a Roman citizen, opens his letter with the startling claim that he is "a bond servant of Jesus Christ". You would expect such a scholar to open with words of self praise. Let us ponder upon the expression "a bond servant", may it develope in you the spirit of humility and lowly mindedness.

Slavery was the living cancer in the body of the Roman state. Artistotle, the famous Greek thinker, gives this definition of the slave, which later becames the basis of Roman law. "A slave is a living tool; he is the living possession of his master; he is a part of his owner", In plain words the slave belongs body and mind to his master. The Christian is the slave of the Lord Jesus Christ, belonging entirely to Him. "Bought with a price, the Blood of Jesus Christ. "This is My Body which is broken for you; this is My Blood which is shed for you for the remission of sins."

Dr. Deissman in his fascinating work "Light from the ancient east" describes Roman law and practice for the freeing of slaves. How was a slave made free? "The owner comes with the slave to the heathen temple. There he sells his slave to the god and receives the purchase money from the temple treasury, the slave having previously paid it in from his savings. The slave becomes the property of the god. He is free for ever, especially from his former master". Here is the translation of a freeing found on the wall of a temple:—"Nathan, sold to the god Appollo, a male slave, FOR FREEDOM"

You are tied and bound by the chain of your sins. You are a slave to your sins. Some day you enter into a congregation of Christians and hear the wonderful story of Christ's love for you. He is the owner. He has paid the price of your redemption with His Blood. With simple humble faith you realise His Presence. "Where two or three are gathered together in My Name there am I in the midst of them". You hear His Voice saying unto you: "Son thy sins be forgiven thee; take up thy bed and walk". You rise in His strength—you are part of His Body. You discover He is your Saviour and Redeemer. You are redeemed FOR FREEDOM. It is a spiritual experience and discovery. "My strength is sufficient for thee, My strength is made perfect in weakness".

BEING MADE FREE FROM SIN YE BECAME SERVANTS OF RIGHTEOUSNESS.

Clergymen Debate Witchcraft

PORT ELIZABETH, South Africa—(CP)—A marked reversion among natives to heathen customs and superstitions was reported by two dignitaries of the Church of the Province of South Africa at a conference of Anglican missionaries here.

They were Archdeacon Spencer Hall, of Grahamstown, and Canon Charles Savage, of Capetown. Canon Savage said that the revival of ancient heathen customs was being deliberately fostered by native extremists.

Archdeacon Hall said that there was a marked and increasing drift back to witchcraft, superstition and ancestor-worship, which were symptoms of the search for expression of the natives' new race-consciousness.

Archdeacon Arthur Armor, of Kroonstead, said that at some "initiation schools" human flesh was cooked and eaten. He added that there was close link between these initiation schools and ritual murders, and that blood from the victim of ritual murder was used in circumsion ceremonies.

Jackson Claims Second Union Is Not Divided

Though Local 524 UE is split between left and right-wing factions, there has been no indication as yet that Local 527, a composite of about 400 workers in Peterborough Lock, Raybestos, and Ontario Marble is contemplating leaving the UE.

"There is no division among the workers of Local 527 on the question of being in the UE", C [illegible] the UE, told the Examiner.

"They are all solid UE and they don't feel it necessary to take up a position saying so," he said.

Union members at Raybestos and Peterborough Lock, like their brothers at CGE, are trying to arrange contract settlements with their respective employers.

Raybestos, with a total of about 120 union members, had a half-day work stoppage Friday afternoon when they protested company offers and an alleged delay in negotiations. A Conciliation Board has already handed down a recommendation.

Expect A Board

Some 200 UE-ers at Peterborough Lock are expecting their dispute over the continuing contract to be placed in the hands of a Conciliation Board. Recently a conciliation officer visited the parties but was unable to arrange a basis of agreement. It is expected his recommendation will be the setting up of a board.

Raybestos workers reportedly endorsed the UE as their union at a membership meeting Thursday night, and pledged their solid support. The question of endorsation will probably be brought up at a similar rally of Peterborough Lock workers on Tuesday night, and union officers say they have no doubt of the result.

Right Wingers Optimistic

Meanwhile the expansion of the new UE-CIO at the CGE plant headed by John G. Morton and the right wing element, is continuing. Membership cards were passed Friday to sign up UE members who wished to join the electrical workers organization set up by James B. Carey at the present CIO convention.

Right wingers are optimistic stating they expect to sign two-third of the workers in little more than a week, and certification can probably be obtained in three weeks.

A flat contradiction of this view was offered by Jackson. Far from obtaining a two-thirds majority, the Canadian president said, "Morton will have to fold his books in a week's time."

While some workers were signing there has been more or less of a mass rejection of his cards, Jackson stated.

Left Wing To Meet

A meeting of the interim Local 524 executive has been called for today to discuss the agenda of the Sunday night meeting in Brock Street Summer Gardens.

"The interim committee under vice-president T. P. Davies was declared elected by the left-wing at the Thursday night meeting to fill the vacancies of the right-wingers previously suspended This meeting was labelled a rump session by the right wing.

All companies in Peterborough having contracts with the UE received telegrams on Friday from James B. Carey, administrative chairman of the new UE-CIO, urging them not to recognize the UE left-wing leadership as bargaining agent. CGE, Raybestos and Peterborough Lock all confirmed the fact they received these telegrams, and it is believed Ontario Marble did as well.

None of the company officials would make any comment.

Referring to the split among CGE unionists and the probable course of events, Ian McRae, works manager of the Peterborough works, would only say: "This is a problem entirely up to the members of the union to decide. It would be presumptuous of me to offer an opinion."

Visits England After Being Away 36 Years

"The people in England are a lot better off than they were when I left the country 36 years ago," John Smith, 116 McDonnel St. said Friday, the day after arriving home from a six months visit.

One of Mr. Smith's first ports of call when he arrived home in Peterborough was to the Examiner office where he described the [illegible] to England since they left to make Canada their home.

"They don't want any sympathy, they can fight their own battles" is Mr. Smith's opinion. His chief reason for telling the Examiner of his visit, he said, was to refute what he described as a false impression of present day conditions in Britain given by some newspaper reports in this country of queuing and clothing exchanges.

"They don't queue any more than we do when we go to the groceteria here," Mr. Smith said. The only queuing trouble, he said, was when candy was taken off the ration and everybody scrambled for it. Since then, however, it has become rationed again and supplies were steady again. He and his wife had two pounds of candy a month between them he said and that was more than they required.

Staying with Mrs. Smith's sister in Reading, the couple travelled around the south coast of Britain. They visited Windsor castle saw the Trooping of the Colors, the military ceremony attended by the king on his official birthday and the shopping centres of London.

Mr. Smith was able to take part in the completion of a Sunday school built by the daughter of his wife's sister. The Sunday school started during the war when Reading received a number of evacuees from London.

The Sunday school met in a private home but the need for a permanent building of its own became more and more apparent. The school was built entirely by volunteer labor and Mr. Smith, a decorator, painted the interior before he left for home.

Table Talk

The Diary of Samuel Marchbanks, first published in book form two years ago, has a companion volume. It is "The Table Talk of Samuel Marchbanks," just off the presses. Readers of our Saturday Marchbanks column and of the Diary in book form, will be interested in this new compilation. The author, Robertson Davies, has the distinction of being published twice in a fortnight. The Table Talk appeared Friday; Mr. Davies' play "Fortune, My Foe" ten days earlier.

Work Stoppage For Half-Day At Raybestos

A half-day work stoppage was staged Friday afternoon by Raybestos production workers. About 100 of them, members of local 527 UE, stood by their machines, in protest against company offers for a contract settlement.

They sat down at 1 p.m. and refused to do any work until 5 p.m., union officials informed the Examiner. Then they went home It is understood that about 15 members of the night shift came into the shop and when informed of the stoppage left immediately.

One of the chief items standing in the way of agreement is the company offer of "a package five-cent increase." This would include a grant of from one-and-a-half to a two-cent hospitalization plan on a contributory basis, and with the remainder of the five cents a wage increase.

Offers Turned Down

Membership meetings were held Wednesday and Thursday nights and Raybestos workers say the company offer was turned down unanimously both times.

A deadlock in negotiations was apparently arrived at Friday morning. And union officials say the membership asked Robert Abbott, general manager, to arrange a meeting of company officials and the union negotiating committee in the afternoon.

When later informed that Mr. Abbott was ill and would be unable to meet them they decided on the stoppage. Further attempts to arrange a meeting will be undertaken today.

Another membership rally will be held Sunday at 2 p.m. in the Union Hall.

Raybestos and Local 527 have been in negotiations since March and took the dispute to conciliation in August.

A surprise recommendation of the conciliation board was that there be no pay increases, shortening of working hours or any other of the main union demands UE officials stated that the board under Judge W. S. Lane of Picton recommended even less than the company was willing to concede.

Proposed School System Provide Complete Course For Intermediate Students

The proposed changes in Ontario's school system as announced by Hon. Dana Porter, Minister of Education, at St. Thomas will provide a more definitely practical intermediate course for students who are not aiming at the universities, Mr. K. S. Wightman, Peterborough's superintendent of schools, told the Examiner today. "We shall get away from the artificial break that has been so long in effect at the end of Grade VIII of our Public Schools, the High School entrance," Mr. Wightman explained. "It used to be that parents ren at school until they reached the age of 14. That age limit was moved up to 16 years, but the school system or organization was not altered to provide fullest advantages for those young people whom the law kept at school."

Mr. Wightman casually remarked that he had been writing that kind of recommendation into his reports as inspector for the last ten years. The Board of Education was sympathetic, and actually accomplished much that was helpful for that group of students. Now, the Department is contemplating the changes which experience demonstrated to be necessary.

Make Best of Planning

"Children had to remain at school until they reached the legal age of 16. They passed the entrance examinations, and they went on to the Collegiate Institute or the High School as the case may be. But, it was not their intention to continue their studies through the secondary branch of the school system. The results were that Boards, teachers and students had to make the best of the planning that could be offered to them."

This phase of change announced by Hon. Mr. Porter impressed Mr. Wightman as a most important feature, something which educationists recognized as need for young peole.

Removal of the entrance examination stage of progress in education would allow for more flexibility in school organization.

"It means, as we all expect, that we shall be able to provide for students up to 16 or 17 something to equip them in a better way than heretofore so that they will be ready to go out into the world. They will have at least three or four years of study that will be specially designed for their needs. They will have something more helpful to them to show for those years in what is now secondary school work."

Mr. Wightman stressed the importance of the announcement by Hon. Mr. Porter, and said the manner of its presentation indicated that it was the intention of the Ontario government to carry out the amendments that were now proposed. At the same time, he remarked that school administrators, board of education, school inspectors, superintendents and teachers have seen for years the need of children, and particularly the problem of those young people who had precious years for an intermediate stage of education, but were not going through to the higher matriculation and university courses.

Second In Importance

classroom system was second in importance in the Wightman summary of the Minister's proposed changes. The rigid division of the several groups into grades was a phase of the school system which had become outmoded. There are grades set in the primary schools and other grades in the secondary or upper schools, that is on both sides of entrance.

Local or municipal responsibility for outlining courses in the elementary school program was also approvingly mentioned by Mr. Wightman. He linked those two loosely together, and said that here in Peterborough the Board of Education and its advisers have "been taking quite a good deal in our own hands in that direction. It was a matter of elaborating and determining details as we saw fit."

The proposed revision of the system which Mr. Porter said was to becbme in part effective in September 1950 will authorize what local boards have been doing in that extemporizing of method and range of teaching as a means of assisting young people for the realities of life ahead of them.

First Snow Blamed For Two Accidents

Peterborough's first snow fall of the winter was believed partly responsible for two accidents Friday night.

A 16-year-old boy, Alex Daniels, 286 Braidwood St., was knocked from his bicycle about 7.45 p.m. and suffered a deep gash over his left eye.

He collided with a car driven by W. C. Bennett, 237 Princess St. at Park and Princess Sts. The right front headlight of the Bennett car was knocked off in the accident. Young Daniels did not have a light on his bicycle. Police said a light snow was falling and visibility was poor.

Two cars driven by Emerald McMillen, 240 McDonnel St., and John A. Lewis, 21 Park St. N., collided at the corner of Reid and Dalhousie Sts. at 8.35 p.m.

Constable Stewart Fife, who heard the crash of the accident while on his beat, reported McMillen was driving west on Dalhousie St. Lewis was driving north on Reid. Both were reported to have said they did not see the other car coming until too late. It was snowing at the time.

Turkey Raisers Breed Birds Now To Fit Roasting Pans

By NICK NICKELS

As certain as Christmas is only 43 days away, families have already given some thought to traditional get-togethers which implies seasonal food and roast turkey. Modern living has brought about a very drastic change in this matter. Families, houses, cook stoves and roasting pans have shrunken in size and to meet this situation, poultrymen have seen that large birds have no place in the modern scheme of things.

The only obvious solution was to raise birds to fit pans and purses. And Norman L. Paterson is one man who has studied this trend and has done something to meet it. In fact, he is possibly one of the few men in Canada to-day who has pioneered the scientific business of raising midget turkeys and has found his efforts have paid off.

Stream-Lined Turkey Factory

For the past four years Mr. Paterson has developed a streamlined turkey factory. Although this seems an odd description, no other is exactly applicable. A visit to his plant across the Indian River from the old stone grist mill shows that his business is that of the most modern production-line methods.

Day-old hatchery chicks or poults in lots of 50 leave his elaborate brooding house at the age of six weeks, under their own power, by portable runways, and go into two of his elevated and sheltered pens. One of these buildings is 100 feet long, raised ground, the other, 60 feet. These buildings are divided by wire netting into sections that accomodate 50 birds where they grow to maturity and fleshiness and are ready for killing in mid-December.

The pens are edged with covered feeding troughs and barrels of water drain into drinking troughs. Both feed and drink is before the birds at all times and the feeding, in Mr. Paterson's opinion, is the main secret of his success.

Prepared Food Fed

Prepared pellets, consisting of proteins, minerals and carbohydrates, are fed to them from the chick stage. It starts with chick grade food followed by growing and finally fattening pellets. Now that the birds are almost full-grown, each one consumes about five pounds of food per week.

Because the birds are not allowed to roam at will, eating wild grasses and insects, there is no chance to become rangy, long-boned fowl that accumulate a layer of fat when they are fed heavily before killing time. The fat has already developed within the flesh which disappears in the roasting process.

These midget turkey are called Beltsville Whites and the strain

See Brockington's Hand In Writing of Navy Report

By DOUGLAS HOW

OTTAWA, Nov. 5—(CP)—The book of the week is a 74-page document that may come to be known as the Canadian Navy declaration of independence. Parliamentary reporters, survivors of multitudes of its labored and prosaic brethren, remember nothing quite like this 27,000-word report of a three-man commission on the navy. For it has some of the roll and the swell of the sea itself and it bears the unmistakeable imprint of an unmistakeable hand.

The hand is that of Leonard W. Brockington. Welsh-born Ottawa lawyer whose nautical commands have never surpassed a boyhood rowboat but whose record at law, as conciliator, scholar, executive, broadcaster and master of words made him an excellent anchor man. On a warship, he saw the navy in action on D-day off the Normandy coast.

His colleagues were the navy's No. 2 man, Rear Admiral E. R. Mainguy and L. C. Audette of the Canadian Maritime Commission, a wartime navy officer.

Here's in their report. for the first time in formal print wells the cry from the sailors themselves that the time has come to make the Canadian Navy more Canadian, to cease the "pallid" imitations of the Royal Navy, to turn this most British of Canadian forces loose in the surge of Canadian consciousness.

Broader Than Navy

It is no crack at the magnificent traditions of the R.N. nor a cry for removal of all its heritage; it is merely a reflection of something far broaders than the navy itself.

It comes out in prose that is definitely Brockington, so much so that the translators had a tough time making French out of parts of it like ". . . observations of the inevitable rather than animadversions of the avoidable."

It quotes Nelson, Churchill and Stephen Leacock. It recommends that sailors read sea classics such as "Moby Dick" and "The Ship" rather than "a string of unrelated snippets by a variety of authors."

Satisfied With Lot

It speaks of the "poison" of Malcontents and, in contrast tells the Commissioners' "pleasantest hour" with three recruits who were "merry, full of the sense of adventure, satisfied with their lot. . ."

It concludes by saying "no one could sit face to face with the hundreds of young Canadians, officers and men, who told us the truth as they saw it, without a pride in the clean, strong manhood with which this land is blessed."

This is the prose of the Mr. Brockington who, according to Ottawa legend, finally objected to the removal of "purple passages" from speeches he used to write for former Prime Minister Mackenzie King.

"Ah, Brockington." Mr. King is supposed to have told him, "you forget that people remember purple passages."

There is much to remember in the navy report.

U.N. Delegates Discover Parties Mean Doing 3 a. m. Homework

By NORMAN ALTSTEDTER

LAKE SUCCESS, N.Y., Nov. 5—(CP)—For many United Nations delegates, cocktail parties mean only burning more midnight oil.

Rene Jutras, one of Canada's top delegates to the U. N. Assembly, views most of the social functions as a diplomatic necessity, Unless the party breaks up early, he's up until the small hours doing assembly homework.

When the wining and dining is is over, the Liberal members of Parliament [illegible] to prepare for his duties the next day as Canada's representative in the Assembly's 59-member administrative committee.

"For a newcomer to the U.N as I am, a United Nations Assembly is a lot tougher than a session of Parliament," Jutras said in an interview during which he outlined the packed daily schedule filled by delegates.

Early in the present U.N. session he was the Dominion's top representative in the special political committee as well. Then he sometimes did not finish his homework until 3 a.m.

Up At 7:30 a.m.

And at 7.30 a.m. awakening is the rule for the 36-year-old former RCAF flight lieutenant.

That leaves 1½ hours for breakfast and any personal business before the daily meeting of the whole Canadian delegation under the semi-formal chairmanship of L. B. Pearson, External Affairs Minister.

The delegates climbs into its four cars at 10 a.m. to start the hour-long drive out from New York to U.N. headquarters at Lake Success.

The committee meetings are scheduled to start at 10:45 a.m. but seldom get under way until 11 a.m. and last about two or 2½ hours.

There is usually a two-hour break for lunch but even that time is taken up with assembly work. Usually Jutras grabs a sandwich in the plainly-furnished press bar after waiting in line for about 20 minutes.

Occasionally some committee problem calls for a luncheon meeting of a group of delegates to trade ideas and perhaps come up with some compromise. These dining room or at one of the countryside restaurants to be found within a couple of miles of U.N. headquarters.

No fixed time is set for closing the afternoon committee meetings but they are not usually over until about 6:30 p.m. late in the session they often extend into night meetings lasting to midnight.

Resume Consideration Of Power Proposal

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5—(AP)—The Federal Power Commission announced Friday it has resumed consideration of the proposal by the Power Authority of New York State for a licence to develop part of a co-operative power project on the St. Lawrence River.

The Commission last March postponed action on the State application pending reconsideration by Congress of the proposed St. Lawrence seaway, which would include power facilities.

The Commission at the time had already completed hearing estimony on the New York application and briefs had been filed by participating parties.

BUFFALO N.Y., Nov. 5—(AP)—Joseph F. Melia, former publisher of the old New York American and one-time assistant general manager of the Washington Post, died Friday. Melia, who was 65, spent a lifetime in the newspaper business in the northeastern United States.

Citizens of Peterborough . . . U.E. Members at C.G.E.--

The United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America and its Local 524 are the sole bargaining agency for the C.G.E. workers.

Attempts to make you believe otherwise must be branded as malicious, false and deliberately disruptive.

Office holders of this local headed by Jack Morton presented a motion which was ambiguous and in effect would place unrestricted control of the local funds in the hands of his group. The motion would further have taken all powers of decision as to union affiliation out of the hands of the members.

The proposal made by the splitters was contrary to the constitution of the U.E. and even if passed by the meeting would not have been binding. It would result in confusion and division. Its main result would have been to destroy the effectiveness of the present agreement.

Morton and his supporting officers have been suspended from all office and right to speak or act in the name of or on behalf of the U.E.R. & M.W.A. and its Local 524. This action was supported by the majority of those attending the Thursday night meeting at the Brock Street Arena.

A Rank and File Committee, headed by Vice President Tommy (T. P.) Davies has been elected to conduct and manage all the affairs of the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America, Local 524 pending further decisions of the membership of the local.

The following are members of this committee which replaces the executive of Local 524 U.E. R.M.W.A.:

SUNDAY EVENING, 7.30 P.M. BROCK ST. ARENA

All members of the U.E. are requested to be present to take all necessary steps to protect their contract and their collective bargaining position.

Full discussion on all issues will be encouraged. BUT any attempt at disruption will be forthrightly dealt with by the members .

Attempts are being made to confuse the workers and the public by the unlicensed and unprincipled use of the well-known symbol of our union - - the letters U.E. This symbol stands for the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America.

A disruptive group within our union are attempting to set up a new and phoney organization called The International United Electrical Radio and Machine Workers - - and are trying to confuse by calling it UE-CIO. A court order is now impending to prevent this act of duplicity.

A call is being made by his disruptive group to employers to dishonor contracts with the real UE. No legal sanction exists for any such setting aside of contracts by either employers or disruptive groups.

The UE will continue to protect and improve the conditions and welfare of the CGE employees. Freed now from the strangling, anti democratic and disruptive leadership of the disruptive group the UE will be able to deepen its inner democracy, strengthen its bargaining position and bring new gains to its members and to the community of Peterborough.

- Ignore the continued acts of the disrupters.
- Build a truly rank and file union.
- Strengthen the unity of all GE workers through the one and only UE.

Need To Be A Mathematical Genius To Follow Winnipeg Voting

By ROBERT CLARKE

WINNIPEG, Nov. 5 (CP)—It's not necessary to be a mathematical genius to understand the proportional representation method of vote compilation, but it sure helps.

Proportional representation—or P.R. as it is termed by those who deal in its intricacies—will be the system used to establish winners in the three Winnipeg ridings—North, Centre and South—and in St. Boniface in Manitoba's Nov. 10 provincial election.

ed in each of the Winnipeg ridings and two in St. Boniface. One-seat ridings were there are more than two candidates use the single transferable vote system. Under it, a candidate is elected without further ado if he obtains half the total vote plus one. Otherwise, the low candidate is dropped and second choices on his ballots are used to decide the winner.

Two University of Manitoba professors and an insurance company officer will handle the complicated P.R. computation. The three experts estimate it will take nearly three days to declare the winners in the four ridings. Since the election is on Thursday this means they will wind up their job late Saturday night.

Must Reach Quota

Under the P.R. a quota is set which must be reached for a candidate to become elected.

As an example, take Winnipeg North where there are 12 candidates. Each voter is supposed to designate his choices by number—first, second, third, fourth and so on down the line.

If 30,000 votes are cast, the total is divided by five (four members to be elected and add one) which gives a total of 6,000. This result is increased by one, establishing that number votes on the first count, when only first choices are tabulated, is automatically declared elected. Then starts the tedious business of finding which other candidates may be elected on second choice and so on.

Dispose Of Surplus

The first step is to dispose of any surplus votes held by candidates elected on the first count. If one candidate is elected on the first count with 8,000 votes, he received 1,999 votes more than he needed. This surplus is spread among the other candidates.

Disposition of the surplus is made on this basis: the fifth place candidate might have received 800 ballots, first-choice, or 1/10th of the winning candidate's figure. So he receives 1/10th of the surplus, or 199 votes.

After the surplus is allocated, the bottom candidate is dropped and his ballots are checked for second choices. Contestants marked in second place on these ballots receive credit for the votes. This applies except for the candidate who has already passed the quota. Where his name appears second, the checkers go on to the third choice.

STOCKYARD CONGESTION — There were plenty of mouths to feed at the Union Stockyards in St. Boniface, Man., recently. Officials were forced to place an embargo on loadings of cattle and calves to the yards, largest in the British Empire, when the pens were jammed with close to 14,000 head of livestock. Congestion was described by officials as seasonal.

Stock Prices Continue Advance Started During Month Of June

By The Canadian Press

Steadily increasing interest was apparent this week on markets as security prices continued the advance that started in mid-June.

The four-month advance slowly pushed its way into new high ground. Business decreased when prices showed signs of slipping and increased on the upturn.

Year-end dividend increases and extras helped the advance but some observers predicted a slight year-end drop in the market caus- many common stocks purchases are going into safety deposit boxes.

A slight tapering off in prices was evident after the mid-week upsurge as many traders realized profits.

Remains Unexcited

New York was unexcited by the Bethlehem Steel strike agreement Tuesday but Wednesday saw the average price level climb to a 12-month peak in one of the busiest sessions of the year.

Profit-taking clamped down Thursday and Friday. The Associated Press 60-stock average dipped .1 Friday to close the five days at 68.6, a gain of .8 from the previous Friday.

Base metal stocks featured rising Canadian markets. Buying was heavy in leading issues. Increases in the prices of lead, zinc and copper spurred the Toronto base metal index to the highest point in 12 months and within touching distance of the highest since 1937. In two weeks, the base metal index has added more than eight points.

Papers Soaring

Papers carried industrials into the highest price territory in three and utilities and foods were strong. Many issues sold at new highs for the year or longer.

Considerable attention was focused on Imperial Oil following news of a possible new oil pool found by an Imperial well near Edmonton.

The Toronto exchange's industrial index moved 2.29 in climbing to a three-year price peak. Golds added 2.88 on the index There was heavy New York buying in senior gold producers.

Grain markets tended higher from the previous Friday. In Chicago, December corn was ahead while oats eased. In Winnipeg December oats, barley and rye showed gains ranging up to six cents.

'NATURE UNSPOILED

The LONG-EARED OWL is probably our most efficient destroyer of pests. Over 90% of his diet is composed of destructive mice and other small mammals. He deserves protection. Look for him in evergreens—but remember that it takes sharp eyes to find him.

Comics Decorate For "Nova Hop" In PCVS Gym

Latest idea in decorating has been thought of by the PCVS students. For the Nova Hop, enjoyed by a crowd of students and ex-students Friday evening, they reproduced characters of the comic strips on posters that covered the gymnasium walls The pictures were effectivey hung over colored pages of funny papers, and tables in the ante-room were covered with the comic sheets. Huge red balloons hung from the gallery.

Those responsible for this smart style of decorating were Lynn Davidson Orlene Shunk, Ann Coit and Ann McDonald.

Miss Melva Lee Doxsee was hostess for the evening. Chaperones were Mr. and Mrs C. S. Browne, Dr. and Mrs. E. P. Ray, Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Simmers, Miss Marie Hicks and Mr. H. Shearer. Refreshments were in charge of Martha Aitken and June Gunn.

Winners of the novelty dances were Gwen Martin and Doug Hancock in the spot dance; Nancy Moffat and George Fanjoy in the "banana split dance"; Patsy Johnson and John Outram, Gertie Philips and John Milburn in eliminations.

Doug Woods entertained by singing the popular song, "Lucky Ol' Sun."

A LUXURIOUS COAT of Canadian mink by Schipper Friefeld has a small pointed collar and interesting sleeve treatment. Worn with a small pink feather cap.

Featherbrain Club Holds Dance First of Season

Girls of the YW Featherbrain Club held their first dance of the season Friday evening in the recreation room. Hallowe'en decorations gave atmosphere for a "scavenger hunt" that took place before dancing commenced.

The door prizes were won by Diane Pierce and Mel Innes. Winners of the "knee dance" were Joanne Davidson and Peter Rose; of the "broom dance," Laurence Ball and Mel Innes; statue dance, Arlene Ferguson and Eddie Dunn; elimination dance, June Adams and Robert Ross; spot dance, Reta Naylor and Doug Graham.

Mrs. Clegg Leads Knox Church WMS

Under leadership of Vice-President Mrs. H. Clegg and pianist Mrs. H. Lewis, the Afternoon Auxiliary of the WMS of Knox Church met in the ladies' parlors this week.

During the business session a motion was made by Mrs. Lewis and seconded by Mrs. C. Gertley that the literature secretary, Mrs. D. Gourley, send for books to help mission band leaders.

Mrs. Clegg expressed appreciation for the clothes brought by Nettie McKenzie Mission Band for a bale to Korea.

Mrs. W. Collins gave an excellent financial statement. Miss S. Summers reported that members made 43 calls during the past month. Mrs. J. Gerard read an article from the Missionary Monthly entitled, "A Declaration of Purpose."

Mrs. F. English conducted the worship service. Mrs. Gourley assisted by Mrs. Clegg, Mrs. R. Goodfellow, Mrs. C. Weldon and Mrs. Piper, presented the second chapter of the study book.

Apsley News

Mr. and Mrs. George Burroughs of Drumheller visited their niece, Mrs. T. H. Lean this week Mrs. Lean accompanied them on a visit to another niece, Mrs. Everett Schran at Birds Creek.

Mr. Vernal Windsor, Powassan, spent a few days with his family this week.

Daisy Mae and Li'l Abner Figure in Stardust Ball

With the fourth annual Stardust Ball Friday evening, the girls of Agnes Neill Chapter, IODE, retained their reputation for the most popular dance of the year. They have taken their cue from Daisy Mae of the comics who still chases L. Abner though many Sadie Hawkins' days have gone by without success.

With stardust in their eyes, the girls proudly escort the man of their choice to this dance and pay all his expenses. There's a bit of stardust in the boys' eyes too, for they know the invitation signifies a liking for their company. More than 300 couples attended.

Loveliest gowns are chosen for the Stardust Ball and they were truly gorgeous and exciting this year. So many strapless numbers are appearing that the boys have ceased to ask "What holds it up?" But one of the most striking dresses had wrist length sleeves and covered shoulders, its simplicity of style emphasized in unadorned white. Lustrous velvets took their place in the evening whirl with the first snowfall. A few corsages were being worn as bracelets, and they were very effective. A good many boutonnieres were in evidence and it is noticeable that seldom else do the men wear this traditional decoration.

Pale blue and silver carried out the decorative color scheme with a ceiling of balloons hung with glittering stars. Life-size figures of Daisy Mae and Li'l Abner raced across the Club Aragon bandstand where Bobby Kinsman and his orchestra were playing. Miss Jean Cranfield, general convener, planned the decorations.

Winners of the spot dance were Miss Dorothy Mills and Mr. Vern Simpson. The door prize draw was won by Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Morrow.

Lending their patronage to this event were Mayor M. J. Swanston and Mrs. Swanston, Mrs. W. Gordon Hall, regent of Municipal Chapter, IODE, and Lieut.-Col. Hall. Miss Mary Curry, regent of Agnes Neill Chapter, and Mrs. Gordon Vallery, vice-regent, were in the receivig line, assisted by Mr. Harry B. Pyle and Mr. Vallery. Mrs. Bob Greenlaw was in charge of ushering.

SHINING STAR — Avril Keiller, pert, auburn-haired Montreal-born actress, is currently on tour with the Broadway hit "Anne of the Thousands Days." The McGill University graduate has had a yen for the theatre since she was a child. After several seasons with Montreal Repertory Theatre, she went to New York in 1946. Although her role in the present hit is her first stage part, she has been successful as a photographer's model and has appeared in movie shorts.

GEORGE STREET

A sing-song opened the meeting of George St. CGIT this week, with Miss Allen at the piano.

Joan Tremaine, senior president, was in charge of the morning service which centred around the meaning of friendship. After scripture reading and sentence prayers, Carol McKenzie read an article entitled, "Your Pattern and Companion." Poems dealing with the theme were read by Victoria McKim and Joyce Copp.

During business period, plans were made for a hike to be held next week. Miss McNab announced the meeting of Girls' Council and Eileen Armstrong and Marion Outram were chosen to represent Junior Group, Jean Tremaine and Joyce Copp representing Senior Girls.

ST. JAMES'

Shirley Hudgin reported that Mission Study, "Growing with the Years," was conducted by Mrs. Davis at this week's meeting. Plans were made to hold a Mother and Daughter banquet in December. Balance of the time was spent in folk dancing and quilting for the WMS.

TRINITY

When the hoboes arrived at Trinity Monday night, they found a camp fire awaiting them and as they gathered they swapped stories and sang. However, their fest was short-lived as they were told the cupboard was bare and it was up to them to go begging [illegible] their horror found shoes had to be shined, floors had to to waxed, silver had to be cleaned and other odd jobs had to be done before the desired provisions were forthcoming. Upon return to the church, they pooled the resources and consumed the loot. Games were played before closing.

Members of Senior group were entertained at the home of Mrs. R. Woodcock Tuesday evening when they were introduced to the art of quilting. The quilt on which they worked will form part of the bale the group is packing in response to the appeal for the Canadian Church Relief Abroad

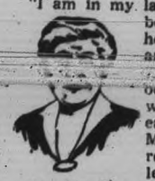
Mother Told Act As Guest When Living With Daughter

A woman said to me the other day:

"I am in my late 50's. I have been just a housewife and am not trained for any occupation by which I could earn my living. My husband has recently died, leaving me without any money, and I am compelled to go and live with my married daughter since I cannot support myself and she is not able to provide for me outside of her own home.



Dorothy Dix

"My daughter is a good daughter and loves me dearly. Her husband is a fine man and has extended me a cordial invitation to make my home with them. But I know that in his heart he does not want me. He is very domestic and fond of his home and he would find it happier if no third party were thrust into it.

"It would be far, far better for all concerned if I could have stayed on in my own little house, or could go to some boarding house or hotel to live, but since this cannot be, how can I handle the situation in which we find ourselves so as to avoid as much friction as possible and get the most out of it?

Behave As Guest

"Well," I replied, "it has always seemed to me that when a mother goes to live with her married children the proper role for her to assume is that of guest, and to demean herself accordingly. She would follow the rules laid down for the conduct of guests as religiously as she does the Ten Commandments, and, if she will do this, she will generally find out that from having been looked on as a pest who was wished on them, she has become the star boarder.

"The very first requisite in a successful guest is to maintain an attitude of pleased admiration of everything her hosts have and do. When you go to visit the A's you do not make sour comments on their home, their manner of living and their personal habits.

"Still less would you be guilty of such a breach of etiquette as criticizing your hosts to each other. You would reflect that since they were married and had to live together, the blinder they were to each other's faults, the better for them, and that, anyway, there was nothing you could do about it.

"If Mr. A. telephoned that he had to stay downtown for a conference and wouldn't be home to dinner, you wouldn't dream of suggesting to Mrs. A. that he was probably taking that stenographer of his out to a night club. Nor would you suggest to Mr. A. that Mrs. A. spent too much money and played too much bridge.

Be Press Agent

"You press-agent the A's to each other until you make each feel that he or she has drawn the matrimonial prize package and thereby promote harmony instead of discord.

"The next rule for being a successful guest is not to throw a monkey-wrench in the domestic machinery. Hands off. Keep your fingers out of the pies. Let them run their own houses and their own wives and husbands and children the way they want to without any advice or comment from you.

"If you were visiting the B.'s, you wouldn't feel it your sacred duty to reorganize their whole household or to supervise their morals or manners. No more it is your business to meddle in your children's affairs.

"Half of the time when children dread having mother come to live with them it is because they know they can never play, smoke a cigarette or drink a cocktail without having a row with her, and that she and the children will be in perpetual conflict because girls and boys didn't tear around in automobiles when she was young.

Pay For Board

"Next, remember that a guest pays for her board. Make yourself a pleasant and agreeable companion instead of being a whining and complaining old woman who is just about as cheering to have around the house as a barrel of tears would be.

"And, lastly, bear in mind that a wise guests does not give her hosts so much of her society that they get fed up on her. She cultivates her own interests and amusements and friends and gives her hosts a chance to go off alone together ,or have a conversation on which she is not listening in.

"These are some of the rules for making yourself a welcome guest. Try them out on your in-laws and see if they don't work."

Says Home Should Contain Something of Canadian Past

That antiques interest almost all lovers of art and beauty was proved Friday afternoon by the large attendance of Women's Art Association members at the studio meeting. The speaker was Mrs. Arthur Burridge who has made a hobby of collecting lovely old things from Canadian homes, and she brought some very fine pieces with her, which were the basis of her address.

"Antiques are full of virtues and full of faults. We ourselves must develop what is good in them" said Mrs. Burridge and indeed she has developed a great deal from very little in many cases. "All art is a matter of proportion, fitness and harmony" she pointed out. "You have to learn to recognize beauty". As example she held up attractive painted iron shells which are used as ashtrays in her home — they were once the homely bases of old umbrella stands.

Old picture frames provide a link with the past and become most usefull articles in the modern home when some ingenuity is exerted upon them. Mrs. Burridge refinished them with paint, using a cold grey and a warm grey and sometimes a bit of colour, often putting on the decorating colour with her finger. Many hobbyists have made use of these old frames but how many have thought to use the extra big ones as single bed ends padding the centre and upholstering in a pastel shade?

"Every home should have a little bit of Canadian past" and this collector suggests the arrow-back chair. Another reminder is the coal oil lamp in a bracket holder which is nice for ivy. "The present contemporary style of decorating ties in modern and antique furniture and it is not necessary for the woods to match Such combinations seem to lend courage to be ourselves" she said.

"It takes knowledge and good taste to fit antiques into the modern home" Mrs. Burridge said. "Education inquality is the only way to acquire good taste, but like any other faculty it increases with use."

Interests Follow Pattern

Collectors are often heard to say they gather antiques because they love them. Mrs. Burridge acknowledges this but divides the collectors into three types: the documentary collector who records where, by whom, or whom, rare or ommon, early or late; the esthetic type, interested only in the artistic qualities, ually an interior decorator; the interpretative group whose interest is in the expression of the time, the significance of the handwork by people long gone, about whom it tells much.

Th display of collector's items included cottage Staffordshire, [illegible] dozens now hard to [illegible] china, now called "Historica china"! types of Parian ware; shell-like hands, modelled from Queen Victoria; and a collection of ironstone.

"If you don't collect glass, you should" Mrs. Burridge declared as she held up compotes of sawtooth. Victorian star and popcorn design. For an attractive epergne to grace a lovely tea table she oiled compote on compote with a matching sawtooth glass in the centre. Another unique suggestion was using an antique castor to hold small glasses of tomato juice.

Introducing Mrs. Burridge Mrs N. D. Seaton remarked that she had been president of Hamilton Women's Art Association for three terms during the war years Since her husband's retirement from McMaster University staff, she lives at their summer home at Pleasant Point, on Sturgeon Lake where they are turning their hobby into profit.

WI To Send Food Overseas

ROSENEATH, Nov. 5. (ENS)—Citizenship was the theme of the Women's Institute meeting at the home of Miss Jessie Johnston on Thursday.

The president Mrs. Harold Taylor, presided and Mrs. Walter A. Down, branch convener of citizenship was in charge of the program.

It was decided a miniature cup will be presented to Frances Thackeray of SS 1 and 25, Alnwick, the winner of the third prize and the large Institute cup at the speaking contest. The large cup is kept in the school of the winner, and the miniature cup is the personal property of the re- [illegible] be engraved.

Plans were made to pack a large box of candies, raisins, dates tea, malted milk, jello, etc. on Saturday, Nov. 5 in the town hall to be sent to Miss Isa Lewis, Baptist Deaconess in England for distribution among the needy.

Mrs. Harold Taylor and Mrs Alfred Pringle were appointed a committee to pack the box.

A parcel of food will be purchased from Institute funds and sent to Roseneath Women's Institute in Scotland to be distributed.

During the meeting the members made boxes of used Christmas cards to be filled and sent to the Sick Children's and Isolatio.. Hospital.

Plan Christmas Gifts

Mrs. Bart Thackeray secretary treasurer, reported a balance of $121. Miss Jessie Johnston presented the good cheer report.

Plans were made for an exchange of Christmas gifts at the December meeting, the price not to exceed 30 cents. Mrs. Robert Linton will be hostess and a visiting minister will be the speaker. Mrs. Alfred Pringle, branch convener of social welfare will be in charge of the program.

The district project, Personality and Dress, will be held in the Town Hall Dec. 1. Miss Nora Creyke of the Women's Institute Department Toronto, will be in charge and Fenella and Harwood branches will be guests of the Roseneath branch. Potter-Roberts Wedding Today

In All Saints' Anglican Church today the Rev. W. E. Kibblewhite solemnized the marriage of Jean Wilma, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Roberts of Peterborough, and Mr. George Arthur Potter, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Potter, London, England.

The bride was attired in a suit of grey worsted and wore a pale blue hat and corsage of pink roses. She was given in marriage by her father and attended by her sister, Miss Shirley Roberts, who was wearing a dark green gabardine suit with matching hat and a corsage of white roses.

The groomsman was Mr. Ronald White of Toronto.

A reception followed at the bride's home, where her mother received, wearing a black crepe dress with satin trim, a hat of deep red velour and a corsage of red roses.

When leaving later on a wedding trip to Ottawa, the bride was wearing her grey suit with navy accessories.

Mr. and Mrs. Potter will live in West Toronto.

6—In Memoriams

BOWEN—In loving memory of Clarence E. Bowen, who died in the service, November 5, 1942.
Bravely he answered his country's call,
Nobly he went and gave his all,
Sadly we mourned for him all,
'Til at last war was over.
And the boys again came marching home.
Sadly we mentioned our hero's name,
"To me Clarence is not dead,
Just across another ocean,"
His brother Herbert said.
Since then I know I'll clasp his hand,
Some where, some day, in another land,
—Fondly remembered by father, mother, brothers and sister.

CORP—In loving memory of our dear daughter, Brenda Ann, who passed away November 5, 1947.
She was only a little white rosebud,
A sweet little flower from birth;
God took her home to heaven,
Before she was soiled of earth.
—Ever remembered by mother, dad, and brothers.

CORP—In loving memory of my dear granddaughter who passed away Nov. 5, 1947.
Another sweet flower has withered,
A gem from the casket set free,
A lamb in the fold of the Shepherd,
Who said: "Let them come unto Me."
—Ever remembered by her grandmother.

ELLIS—In ever loving memory of Corp. William John Ellis, 153918, accidentally killed on active service overseas, Nov. 5, 1945.
As one fares forth for just a while,
No thought of staying in the mind,
So fared you forth, and left a smile,
Of hope and confidence behind.
You have not died; there is no death!
Your soul took flight in that last breath,
But well we know who closed your eyes,
We'll meet again in Paradise.
—Lovingly remembered by wife, Margaret and son William John.

MENZIES—In loving memory of Clara Hadley Menzies, who passed away November 6, 1940.
The world may change from year to year,
And friends from day to day,
But never will the one we loved,
From memory pass away.
—Ever remembered by son David, daughter-in-law Marguerite and granddaughters.

Turkeys

was developed in Maryland. They will range at full maturity from eight to 15 pounds. Some gourments will be disappointed that they produce very little white meat and their small legs make dwindling drumsticks compared to the usual Broad Breasted Bronzes. But there is a lot more meat on the Whites with a minimum of bone and waste.

Chicks Cost Half a Dollar

It was pointed out by Mr. Paterson that some recent newspaper and trade journal accounts on the raising of Beltsville Whites reported that hatching eggs cost the poultryman about $2.50 each. That might have been the imported cost of original clutches from Maryland, he said, but now chicks can be purchased from hatcheries for about half a dollar.

Now that the dressing season is close at hand the Paterson turkey plant will be a busy spot for about ten days. Birds are herded on runways to the killing house and ten men will work in the converted brooder house at picking and packing for market. It was of interest to learn that these professional pickers report the complete absence of lice. That condition is common with free-running flocks and also various diseases, chiefly blackhead.

Any business venture is computed on the minimum of loss. At Mr. Paterson's plant he started this season with 300 chicks each of Whites and Bronzes, the latter are banquet birds. Out of his flock of 600 he has lost three and two more, in segregated pens, are not up to the mark. Oddly enough, one of these birds is blind.

PRACTICAL PLANS FOR THE HOME YOU WANT AND HOW TO PLAN IT

W. Hickey Wins Appeal Against $2,034 Liability

Just how far an employer is liable when an employee of his damages a customer's property is apparently a tough one even for Supreme Court Justices to decide.

An appeal against a judgment finding him liable when a car [illegible] wrecked, has been sustained in a judgment handed down from the Ontario Court of Appeal.

W. J. Hickey, local garage operator, was assessed $2,034.54 and costs last May by Mr. Justice Genest, the result of a new-model car owned by Charles Libman, George St., being smashed.

According to evidence presented in the case heard in Peterborough, Mr. Libman left his car at Hickey's garage for minor servicing and repairs at the beginning of August, 1947. A young employee of Mr. Hickey's, unknown to both the owner and the garage proprietor, took the car for a joyride.

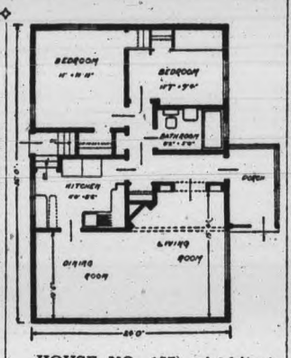
Together with some companions he spent most the night riding around and finally was involved in a serious accident just inside the city limit. The Libman car was almost a total wreck.

It was agreed by both the plaintiff and the defendant that Mr. Hickey knew nothing of his employee's action, but it was contended by the former that he was liable for damages none the less.

Mr. Justice Genest upheld this view but the subsequent appeal undertaken by T. J. Carley, K.C., resulted in the previous judgment being set aside. And the action was dismissed with costs.

A. S. Pattillo appeared for the respondent.

HOUSE NO. 157—Architect Lloyd Finch of Winnipeg, Man., designed this little beauty. The exterior is extremely simple, just a rectangle with a low-sweeping gable roof. Clever use of color and millwork has produced a distinctive house from the simplest basic design, almost completely stripped of non-essentials. Here is an economy house really well handled! But let's proceed inside. Good planning doesn't stop on the outside by any means. In the first place we find the rear of the house is devoted to sleeping quarters, while the front part is the living area. For an economy house the arrangement of living room, dining room and kitchen is exceptionally good. Access from kitchen to front door is provided through the hall. The living room has huge windows, an interesting corner-wise fireplace and built-in book shelves on each side of the archway into the hall. While we never recommend narrow lots, poor land use and high municipal taxes on frontage lead many of us to accept the inevitable when building in the city. If you must build on a narrow lot, this house is worth studying. For further information write Home Building in Canada, 372 Bay St., Toronto.



Basement Still Remains Part Of Majority of New Homes

Many prospective home builders nowadays are apt to look on the inclusion of a basement in their building plans as a questionable use of good building money . . and something that can be nicely passed up in favour of a ground floor utility room. While the utility room has certain points in its favour including less stair-climbing . . . don't blind yourself to the fact that basements continue very definite reasons. Here are a few of them you'll want to mull over before making a decision.

Let's Consider Costs

First, let's consider the basement from a viewpoint of costs. Unless you have to blast through rock, it costs considerably more to provide the same amount of space above ground as is provided in the basement. No matter whether for a four-room bungalow or large mansion, most building by-laws still call for foundations extending below the frost line . . . meaning a certain amount of excavating is going to be necessary whether or not you put in a full basement. The exclusion of the basement will save some money . . . but at the expense of a very considerable amount of space.

Provides Needed Storage

Considerable storage space may be provided in a utility room . . . but chances are you'll always be needing more. There's the ash and garbage containers, summer screens and awnings, winter storm sash, the lawn mower, rakes and a whole host of other gardening equipment . . . preserves, tools, paint cans and brushes, sporting equipment and a wide diversified number of other items that won't be absorbed in upstairs storage closets. And don't forget coal . . . winter's supply would be pretty likely to overflow out the windows of a utility room.

Besides the importance of storage space, a basement offers inexpensive space for a recreation room, workshop, darkroom or games room. And don't overlook the laundry . . . a recent survey conducted by the magazine Home Building in Canada showed that over 78 per cent of the housewives interviewed still preferred their laundry located in the basement.

Bright And Airy

Present day methods of construction and heating equipment enables you to have a basement equally comfortable, healthful and attractive as any upstairs room. If you feel you can do without the basement now, but will likely be wanting this additional space sometime in the future remember that putting in a basement under an existing structure is a prohibitively costly project.

When most people think of finishing the basement they usually tackle first the recreation or rumpus room, where the youngsters and oldsters alike can find recreation without disrupting upstairs household routine. Next in popularity is possibly a workshop for the man of the house where he can work to his heart's content right up to his neck in wood shavings. Then likely follows a basement darkroom to enable the bathroom to revert to its established purpose.

The Basement Laundry

A light, clean and attractive laundry room can be easily built in the besement. With walls and ceiling finished in any one of a number of materials . . . a waterproof floor attractively finished with linoleum . . . and with provision for heating and ventilating . . . wash day blues can be a thing of the past.

A great convenience you'll always be thankful for is a laundry chute from the upper floors to bring soiled clothes directly down to the basement laundry sorting table. Even if your basement boasts and automatic clothes dryer, you'll want to locate the laundry as convenient as possible to the outdoor drying yard. Equipped with a playpen to keep the junior member of the family under surveyance, a portable radio and telephone extension . . . you're all set for the day's wash.

Heating plants have undergone extensive streamlining in the past decade and are now generally available in units of attractive exterior design. If your heating plant won't add to the decor of the basement playroom, you might partition it off in a separate room of its own . . . possibly also containing the hot water heater and fuel bin. Make sure the bin is air-tight, solidly built up to ceiling height on all sides, with a sliding door provided to confine coal dust to the bin. Even the most utilitarian coal bin can be made more presentable by the occasional coat of paint.

Plumbing For Economy

If you provide that very convenient downstairs washroom, plan is so that piping can be economically grouped with the laundry and heating plant. There's no point in extra piping running [illegible] stairs, you'll find plenty of electrical outlets a great convenience in the recreation room, laundry and work shop.

Welsh Couple Win Damage Suit

TORONTO, Nov. 5—(CP)—A Welsh couple, who came to Canada less than two years ago, Friday won a $600 damage suit from their landlords.

Robert and Bridget Jones sued their landlords, William and Susan Dixon, for recovery of their furniture and clothing and a rebate on rent found by the Prices Board to be excessive.

Jones told Magistrate Samuel Factor that "Canada is a fine country but Canadians—they're ruddy well rotten. I haven't met a good one yet."

He testified the Dixons charged him $21 a week for two rooms and kitchen privileges. The Prices Board set rent for the premises at $7 for four persons and $10 for more than four. The Jones' have four children.

Jones said he stopped paying rent when the Board ruled it excessive. He was locked out of his apartment and clothes and furniture seized.

21 Germans Jailed 25 Years For Blast

BERLIN, Nov. 5 (Reuters). — A Soviet military court at Magdeburg sentenced 21 Germans to 25 years hard labor each for an explosion in a Russian munition train at Wolmirstedt last May, the British-licensed Sozialdemokrat reported Friday. The explosion wrecked a rail station and killed 11 Russian soldiers and eight Germans.

Husband Too Loving

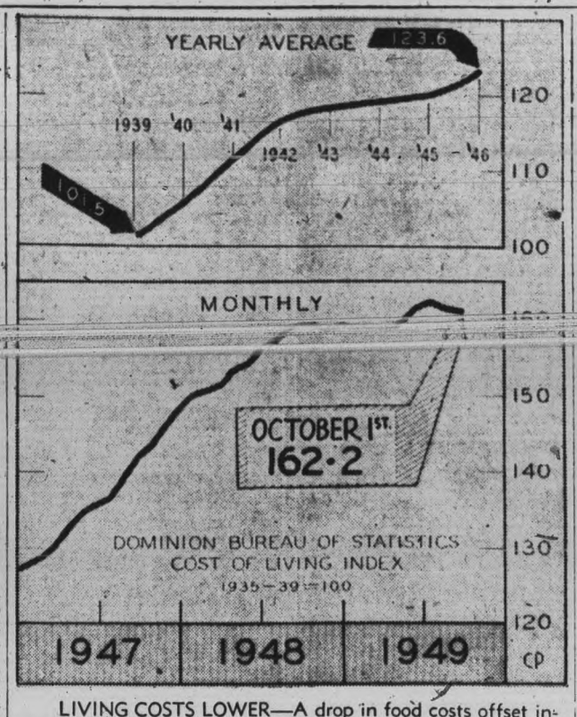
BREMERTON, Wash., Nov. 5 (AP)—A 31-year-old woman who said she wanted to get rid of her husband because he was too amorous is in jail on an attempted murder charge. "I love her and want her back home here with the family," said the husband. The wife, Mrs. Margaret Susan Piatt, signed a statement she made a $324 down payment in a plot to have him killed. "Wilford wanted to make love every night of our 15 years of married life and I couldn't stand it," Mrs. Piatt told officials.

Hold Public Hearings

OTTAWA, Nov. 5 (CP) — The International Joint Commission will hold public hearings in Niagara Falls, Ont., and Buffalo this month in its inquiry of pollution of the Niagara River. Hearings will be held Nov. 15 and 16 in Buffalo and Nov. 17 at Niagara Falls, a notice published in the Canada Gazette said.

Killed In Collision

CHATHAM, Nov. 5 (CP)—Mrs. Edith Regis, 65, was killed and her daughter, Margaret, is in critical condition in hospital here as a result of a collision between an automobile and an oil truck. Charles Regis, 72, suffered back injuries but his condition is reported as fairly good.



LIVING COSTS LOWER—A drop in food costs offset increases in the price of fuel and other commodities affected by dollar devaluation to bring down living costs in September for the second straight month, the Bureau of Statistics reported in its monthly Cost-of-Living Index. The index dropped one-tenth of a point to 162.2 Oct. 1. The Sept. 1 figure of 162.3 represented a half-point drop from the preceding month.

Sewage Plant Ready January

COBOURG, Nov. 5— (ENS) — Cobourg's new sewage disposal plant, part of a $470,000 project is expected to be in operation by the latter part of January or early in February. Located in the west end, the plant consists of a pump house, one bio-filters, two clarifiers and a digester.

Engineers ran into some trouble in locating the primary clarifier, due to the presence of a spring. The large volume of water coming from this spring is evident from the fact that two 2-inch pipes are being used to bring the water up to a point where it can be run off through an exit pipe by gravity and also handled by power pumps.

The procedure to be adopted is to get the water level in the clarifier pumped out and drained until it is negligible. Then to fill it with water from an exterior source when the weight will equalize the pressure of the water level becomes so low as to provide pressure less that that of the spring, special valves will go into operation to relieve the pressure from below, thereby removing any danger of the cement cracking.

The pump house is the nerve centre of the system and houses equipment to remove sand, grit and other foreign materials from the sewage. It also contains the boiler room and will be heated by gas obtained from the digester.

More than 95 percent of the sewage treatment will be purifying water. The sewage first goes to the primary clarifier, then to the biofilter where oxygen is added to the water as part of the purifying procedure. The sewage then goes to the secondary clarifier. These clarifiers are huge concrete tanks with an electrically-driven mechanism that scrapes the sludge from the bottom. The next step is the action of the digester where the sludge is looked after. The sewage goes through the pump house next and is recirculated.

When completed the new plant will be the most modern in Ontario, it is claimed.

Military Training Good At Universities

MONTREAL, Nov. 5—(CP) — Officer training in universities across Canada is of such a standard and in such numbers per capita as to compare with any other country in the world, Defence Minister Claxton Friday night told the annual mess dinner of the McGill University Contingent COTC.

Mr. Claxton said that in 28 Canadian universities and colleges 2,040 COTC personnel were listed at the end of the 1949 academic year. There has been a marked increase since, he added, and today's total was 2,619.

"More than 5,000 candidates are training today in our country for their commissions in the armed forces," the Defence Minister said.

U.K. Exports Drop

LONDON, Nov. 5 (CP)—Britain's exports to Canada during the third quarter of 1949 dropped by £1,000,000 ($3,100,000) compared to the previous quarter, the Board of Trade Journal announced Friday. Imports from Canada mainly in timber and dairy produce, jumped by £7,000,000 during the quarter.

Find Farm Hand In Brighton Missing 3 Days

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 5 — (ENS) —After wandering aimlessly on foot for three days, Nycola Dogosch, the Polish farm hand missing from the farm of Gerald Mitchell since 2 p.m. Monday, [illegible] Brighton.

A search party of 25 men looked in vain for 24 hours along the east bank of Bradley Bay Tuesday and Thursday a fellow Polish man whom Dogosch contacted in Brighton, 20 miles from Campbellford reported his whereabouts.

Dogosch left the farm Monday night with no shoes on his feet. He was wearing a pair, however, when he returned with a Polish interpreter employed by the Government Thursday.

It took him from Monday evening until Thursday noon to reach Brighton. He was wandering without knowing where he was going and is unable to tell which route he took.

Although he is now back at Mitchell's farm he says he does not want to stay there. Mitchell, however, who has employed him for the past 11 months, wants to persuade him to stay during the winter.

Dogosch has suffered extreme hardship during and since the war. For five years he was in a Russian concentration camp and has lost trace of his wife and two children.

Before leaving Campbellford Monday, he had been under the care of a doctor and is now reported to be in poor health. He speaks very little English.

Castle Gets New Look

TORONTO, Nov. 5 (CP)—Casa Loma, Toronto's majestic old castle, has taken on a new look. A television aerial, high atop a turret, indicates the castle—now used for dancing—is right up to date. Engineers picked a cellar room as the best place to install a video set. As many as 100 dancers can view the programs.

Medicine, Dentistry Most Costly Courses

OTTAWA, Nov. 5—(CP)—An exhaustive survey of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics showed Friday that medicine and dentistry are the most expensive university courses.

Purely aside from the longer periods of study higher tuition fees and more expensive books and equipment make the year-by-year costs of the two courses higher, the report said.

The Bureau took the survey with the assistance of the National Federation of Canadian University Students. Costs were based on the 1947-48 academic year.

It found costs ranged from $816—for a year at the least-expensive university for the average woman student in arts—to $1,555 for a year at the most expensive medical school.

61 Vessels Laid Up

CLEVELAND, Nov. 5—(AP)—Pittsburgh Steamship Company Friday announced that its 61 Great Lakes vessels are ending operations for the winter. Forty-eight vesels are either laid up or are heading for winter berths. Another 13, loaded with ore at Milwaukee, will be held there for about a week to determine lay-up locations, the announcement said.

Former Broker Guilty 14 Charges Of Theft

TORONTO, Nov. 5 — (CP) — James Barley Bell, 65-year-old former stock salesman, pleaded guilty to 14 charges of theft from clients and was remanded to Nov. 7. The amount involved is believed between $40,000 and $50,000.

Arrested two weeks ago in Lindsay on a charge of automobile theft, Bell was returned to Toronto where he was questioned for several days by Arthur Varity, chief investigator for the Ontario Securities Commission.

One client, Miss Ida McKim, of Orangeville, reported a loss of $25 000. Another, Mrs. Mary Reid Everett, lost $10,000.

Police said the thefts dated back to 1932.

Says Drivers Like Thugs

TORONTO, Nov. 5 (CP) — Mayor Hiram McCallum said Friday that some Toronto cab drivers look like thugs. He asked at a police commission meeting that they be made to wear a distinctive uniform. Inspector Albert Marshall was asked to investigate the advisability of putting the suggestion into effect.

Slain At Wedding

KENORA, Nov. 5 (CP)—John Sherman, 39, was slain Thursday night with a 10-inch butcher knife during a wedding reception. Police said Leslie Creed, Sherman's brother-in-law is charged with murder. Police said the two got into an argument at the reception following the marriage of Creed's brother.

County Farm Notes

By HARRY THEOBALD

National Cheese Week Is Nov. 7 - 12 — Junior Farmers Plan Bus Trip To Royal — Wireworms In Old Sod Affect Several Local Wheat Fields — Farm Forum Subject Monday Discusses Education Costs.

Farm Forum subject for Monday night is 'Education Divided by Ten". The subject it discusses is federal aid for education. The significance of the word ten is its count of the number of provinces in Canada.

Education in Canada and United States is a provincial and state responsibility. In Great Britain, Denmark and Sweden [illegible]

Forum audiences will hear the presentation of a general proposal that the national government should at least assist in the financing of schools as a means of equalizing the facilities and quality of teaching. Some of the provinces are wealthier than others, with the result that children of the one province are provided with better means of obtaining a good education than are the children of the poorer province.

Topics of teachers, salaries, school accommodation and other pertinent to the problem will be included in this broadcast.

Suggested question is: "What do you consider the most serious educational problem in your community?" Perhaps it is restricted to the primary school level, but if it moves up to the top it may repeat the concern recently expressed about the high cost of university education. Many of the elders in the professions of Ontario were sons of farms. Their life opportunities were sought in the cities. Today more attention is being given in the country to the advantages of an agricultural course at O. A. C. Kemptville.

The costs of university education, partly caused by the gradual extention of the required years of attendance, have become a serious obstacle to the boys and girls of average homes.

M. R. SLOAN REVIEW

Max R. Sloan, Assessment Supervisor of the Ontario Department of Municipal Affairs, has reviewed in a letter to Farm Radio Forum certain aspects of rural school education costs. Mr Sloan was Peterborough's Assessment Commissioner before his provincial appointment.

Many farmers contend that some means should be provided for equalizing school costs, particularly in suburban belts.

'A farm worth $10,000 pays $50 school tax, and a $10.000 house on the corner of the farm pays $10 school tax." Forum asks "why"

Mr. Sloan discusses various factors in this problem, and intimates that a practical solution has not yet been reached.

"The Department of Education from their work with the schools and the Department of Municipal Affairs from their work with municipalities as regards assessment and taxation have been giving considerable study to seek information and a method by which this problem of one dwelling on 100 acres of land will not be required to pay such a large amount of taxes as compared with a residence on a smaller area of land, and further steps are being taken by means of an intensive study to ascertain whether this problem can be overcome in a satisfactory manner."

BELMONT FORUMS

Mrs. M. Dafoe, Norwood RR-2, reports Belmont forums recently organized in Donegal and Killarney school sections. The North School section group met last Monday night at the home of Warden Gardner. Their meeting Nov. 7 will be at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Claude McNutt, Belmont township.

The interest reflected in these new east Peterborough Forums will give fresh encouragement to the Forum workers sponsored by the Federation of Agriculture.

BRITISH FARM POLICY

"British farmers have fixed prices and guaranteed markets fro three-quarters of the produce they sell. Each Februray the farmers' representatives and the Government officials sit around a table laden with sheafs of facts and figures and thresh out future prices. These are guaranteed and, if necessary, subsidized by the Government."

This is a quotation from an article by A. N. Duckham, agricultural attache, British Embassy, Washington, D.C., and provincial director of the National Agricultural Advisory Service of England and Wales. It was published in the Agricultural Institute Review, Ottawa.

"Every year, so far, agreement has been reached, but the final decision, as is right in a democratic country, lies with the government. Crop prices are one or two years ahead. Farmers already know what they will get for their wheat sugar beets, etc., in 1950. Minimum prices of livestock products are fixed for four years ahead, with the actual price set about a year ahead. When they sow, our farmers know the price at which they will reap. They can plan ahead with confidence and can get on with the job, which is food production, without having to worry about markets."

COMPULSION OF WAR

Control of agriculture in Britain was tightened under the duress and necessity of the war The Old Country was forced to enlarge its farm operations as a means of reducing its dependence upon imports of foodstuffs.

[illegible] third of our people with the produce of our farms. Now, we must produce more food at home to try to feed half the people of Britain. That is why we aim by 1952 to produce 50% more than we did in 1946. Our object is to make an acre of farmland yield 1½ times as much in 1952 as it did before the war.'

"Britain emerged from the war with a battered economy. We lost $12 billion of our physical and financial assets. We lost half our merchant shipping and many factories and houses through enemy action. We had to dispose of many of our over- as assets, particularly in the dollar area, to help fight the war. We lost some overseas markets and foreign earnings from life insurance, banking, etc."

Britain's farm people run their own show. Each county has a County Agricultural Executive committee which, in turn, has a sub-committee for each district of the county, and for the major special local interests, poultry, milk, etc., according to the county.

RESPONSIBLE COMMITTEES

"Though these sub-committees, farmers, farm labor and landlords play a big part in administering and planning agricultural programs. The committees have taken over the main burden of agricultural administration. It is their job to get the national program across to the farmer, to make the farmer's needs and grievances known to the government and the experiment stations, and to make sure that individual farmers are giving of their best.

Placing responsibility for executing national policy firmly upon the farming community brings out the qualities of self-discipline, self-respect and service to one's neighbors without impairing initiative or imperilling freedom amongst farm people."

"Each county committee has a professional staff which is drawn from the National Agricultural Advisory Service. It is paid by the government, looks after the administrative routine and provides technical advice to the Committee and to the farmers the Committee services."

"There is one aspect which is frequently misunderstood on this side of the Atlantic, and of which no one in Britain is very fond but which we regard as an unpleasant necessity. This is the provision that the tenant farmer who flouts the rules of good husbandry, or a landlord who fails to observe the rules of good estate management can. by process of law, be dispossessed, — with, of course, proper financial compensation."

"We already have an output per man on the land which is as high as any country in the world except probably New Zealand. For comparable crops, our yields per acre are twice the North American average. We must, however, do better than this if we are to win through, for we are fighting a touch economic battle."

In 1948 only seven farmers or landlords were dispossessed. Mr. Duckman wrote that "we are not prepared to see ultimate freedom of 50 million people prejudiced by the ignorance, unwillingness or obtuseness of a few recalcitrant individuals. Socially, we have a traditional distrust of inefficient farmers or bad landlords."

FARMING IN THE THEATRE

The picture "Green Promise" at the Capital this week was a moving appeal for the adoption of new ideas and practices in agriculture. It was the story of a rural home divided. On one side was the middle-aged father clinging to the methods and the thinking and outlooks of his generation, and on the other were his four motherless children typifying the new way and guests of farm life.

In its effect it was a plea for co-operation of the agricultural representative in Ontario. Of special interest in the story was the prominence given to the projects of youth, directed by the 4-H Clubs, similar in general scope and purpose to the Junior Farmers' Club of this country.

Club projects, county and State achievement days with the finals at Chicago during the week of International Livestock Show, which Burritt Mann is about to attend from Peterborough, were familiar topics to a local rural audience. Probably few farmers noticed this picture with its little stresses on such matters as soil erosion. farm wood lots, soil management and above all the place of the county agent in the agricultural community, both the voice and the hand of new knowledge gained through the study and experiments of Agricultural Departments of state and university.

If "Green Pastures" appears again on a local program it is worth the notice of the Federation of Agriculture. Such pictures of rural life and fundamental affairs are too rare, especially as produced and offered by a company such as R.K.O.

[illegible] has been sold for $20,000 by J. M., G. W. and W. D. Fraser, Streetsville, Ont., to Guillermo Herrera Carrizosa and Hernandez Herrera Carrizosa, brothers, of Bogota, Colombia. Supreme will be shipped after the Royal at which he will be shown. Weighing close to 2,700 lbs., he will be one of the largest bulls ever carried by air. Supreme has three times been named All-Canadian and twice All- American. He was Grand Champion at the recent Brantford Championship Show and for the past two years at the C.N.E. His sire is the noted Sovereign.

FEDERATION BRIEF

Canadian Federation of Agriculture proposes to the federal government economies in operation and elimination of unnecessary duplication of services in the two transcontinental railway systems.

This brief deals with the national railway problem and freight rates affecting Canadian agriculture. It was prepared by Dr. H. H. Hannam, president, and Dr. E. C. Hope, the Federation's economist, Ottawa.

The Federation does not propose nationalization of the railways, nor the complete amalgamation of the two competing systems. It states that the economies effected under the 1933 Canadian National-Pacific Act appear to have been almost negligible, due largely to the apparent reluctance of the two systems to carry any real economies into effect, or to the inability of the two corporations to get together voluntarily for this purpose. Federation urges appointment of a tribunal with real authority.

It is emphasized that the earnings of railway management and workers are shown in top brackets in the Dominion government records. The railway average is $2,611 a year; in iron industry, $2,352; in non-ferrous metal industry $2,295; in textiles, $1,712, compared with the net farm income of $2,101 in 1948.

The Federation's brief is a lengthy presentation. One of its recommendations advises that the interest bearing debt of the CNR should not be larger "than can be serviced by average annual earnings of $2.2 million."

WIREWORMS IN SOD

Prof. H. W. Goble of O.A.C. has confirmed suspicions of the local agricultural office that wireworms were the cause of some sickly looking areas in several fields of fall wheat in Otonabee.

In a letter to Robert Bell, assistant to Frank C. Paterson, who visited the fields and took samples of the soil. Prof. Goble wrote in part: "I have little doubt that it is wireworm injury. I found about ten wireworms in one basket of soil, and probably there were more had I sifted it. There appeared to be enough to cause the damage, and also your first [illegible]

I would suggest tl at the grower be careful about the crops to be planted in this field next year, as many of these wireworms are only partly grown. If the wheat is good enough to leave, I might suggest seeding it in the spring to clover or alfafa. Be sure and keep potatoes off this field until all the wireworms have left.

Soil fumigants could be used but they are expensive. The new chemical benezine herachloride might be used before planting another crop, provided potatoes, roots and vegetables do not follow for probably two years.

Benzine hexachloride is available as a type containing about 6% of the active gama isomer You would require about eight pounds of the 6% material to give the required amount. We do not recommend the hexachloride unless farmers ars sure of what their rotation will be because of possible tainting of certain crops."

GREAT CORN CROP

W. W. Dawson of Otonabee says Bert Armstrong's hybrid corn was a great crop "the best I have seen this year.' He agrees with his son's rating, and they both say "It was better than our own." Cobs were big, stalks tall, and the general quality was exceptionally good. Mr. Dawson mentioned that Mr. Armstrong had done some row dressing with nitrogen that was reflectd in the corn's notable growth. He believes that more Otonabee farmers will plant some hybrid acreage next season.

CHEESE WEEK

National Cheese Week, Nov. 7-12, is somewhat of an admission that Canadians do not appreciate the merits of their own Cheddar cheese.

G. A. Gillespie stands by his [illegible] That is [illegible]

Cheese is just about the best in the world, possessing food values that recommend it to every table.

Hon. Paul Martin, advocating Cheese Week quotes nutrition officers of the federal Department of Health: "Cheese contains the most important nutritive elements of milk-protein, riboflavin Vitamin A and a good supply of minerals, especially calcium and phosphorus. Canadian Cheddar is known in many lands for its quality and high nutritive value at relatively small cost. It should have a prominent place in our own meals."

Whole wheat bread, butter, cheese and honey are all excellent products of Canadian agriculture.

National Dairy Council estimates Canadian consumption of cheese at four pounds per capita

Trenton Fliers Discover Missing Plane; 2 Dead, 3 Others Safe

Dakota Crew Locates Plane In Quebec After Spotting Two Survivors; Lost Aircraft Flying Out Prospectors

TRENTON, Nov. 7—(CP)—The RCAF here reported today that an airplane with five persons aboard missing since Nov. 3 was located at 12:10 p.m. EST today 100 miles northeast of Rouyn, Que. First reports said two of the plane's occupants were dead, two injured, and the fifth uninjured. An Air Force official said the missing plane was located by an RCAF Dakota from Trenton. The Dakota's crew located the plane after first seeing two persons walking along the ground carrying a wooden panel on which was written the letters "BSG".

A man, parachuted into the area, subsequently found the missing plane and made a report on its occupants.

The RCAF said they had no information regarding identity of the occupants.

From other sources it was learned the occupants were bush pilot Frank Hawkridge and prospector William Wiltsey of Noranda, Que., Gaston Lavallee of Amos, another prospector, Val Clements of Matachewan, Que. and Elizair Potvin, Amos garage mechanic.

British Warship Stands By Intercepted Ship

HONG KONG, Nov. 7 (Reuters)—A British warship was standing by off the Yangtze River mouth today as the intercepted British freighter Tsinan, outward bound from Communist-held Shanghai, negotiated with a Chinese Nationalist warship.

The Nationalist warship, blockading the Communist port was reported to have told the Tsinan she would be released only on condition she returned to Shanghai and discharged her cargo.

The Tsinan, on her way to Hong Kong, refused and deadlock resulted.

A British naval spokesman in Hong Kong today admitted that a Royal naval ship was present but declined to comment.

A delayed dispatch from the Nationalist base in Chusan Islands quoted Chinese naval commander Ni Yue Si as saying that the British Frigate Alacrity on Saturday defied a National warning to "keep outside Chinese territorial waters."

The report said Alacrity was then waiting to escort the Tsinan from the mouth of the Yangtse.

Ni Yue Si had given an assurance that the Tsinan would be safe but asked the British warship to "keep off."

The Alacrity's captain was reported as replying:

"I consider this area outside your territoial waters and shall consider my self free to move as I like."

Widow Reports $28,000 Robbery

SARNIA, Nov. 7—(CP)—Police continued their investigation during the week-end into the reported theft of $28,000 from the Lake Shore home of Mrs. J. F. Morrison, elderly widow of a former hotel owner here.

Mrs. Morrison reported late Friday that the money in bundles of $100, $50 and $20 bills had disappeared from "a deer hunting box" in the basement of her home, seven miles northeast of here.

She told reporters Sunday she is not certain how much cash was in the box. She had kept "several thousand dollars" there, she said, together with some jewelry.

Mrs. Morrison is the widow of J. F. Morrison, former owner of the Colonial Hotel, who died three years ago. The hotel was sold less than a year ago by Mrs. Morrison for a price reported at the time to be about $200,000.

Weatherman Mixed Up It's June Out West

CALGARY, Nov. 7 (CP)—It's June in January, or very near it, in western Canada.

Lilac bushes and columbines are leafing out in some southern Alberta districts; strawberry plants are blossoming; pussy willows are budding, and the bees, reacting to the unusually high temperatures, are buzzing.

The thermometer at Calgary registered 71 degrees Sunday for the second time this month. It was the highest November reading since the weatherman opened his book in 1885.

Lethbridge basked in 73-degree sunshine. At Medicine Hat the high was 71, Regina 69, Saskatoon 62, Edmonton 63 and Prince Albert 65. Winnipeg, at 60, recorded the highest Nov. 6 temperature in 75 years.

Leaves Russian Army Heads Polish Defence

WARSAW, Nov. 7 — (AP) — Marshal Konstantin K. Rokossovsky has left his post as head of one of Russia's major armies to become Poland's Minister of National Defence and Marshal of the Polish Armies.

His appointment was announced here today after Moscow radio revealed that Rokossovsky, a native of Poland, had been released from Red Army service for duty with the Polish Army.

The 53-year-old Rokossovsky has been chief of the Soviet Western armies, with headquarters in Legnica in Poland.

Give Noronic Findings In Ottawa Nov. 21

TORONTO, Nov. 7 (CP)—Mr. Justice R. L. Kellock, federal government-appointed commissioner, said today findings of a 17-day inquiry into the disaster will be made in Ottawa Nov. 21.

The commission's report on the Sept. 17 fire which gutted the cruise ship with the loss of 119 lives was scheduled to be given here today.

"It has not been possible to get it ready," said the commissioner when the inquiry met and adjourned here today. "Perhaps I was too optimistic," said his lordship.

QUASH CONVICTION

TORONTO, Nov. 7 (CP)—The Ontario Court of Appeals today quashed a murder conviction against George Szendry sentenced at Welland last Sept. 23 to hang for the weiner-roast murder of Harold Sneztsky, 18-year-old high school student from Buffalo, N.Y. The Appeals Court found him guilty of manslaughter and sentenced him to 20 years in penitentiary.

Toronto Mayor May Take Post With TTC

TORONTO, Nov. 7 (CP) — Mayor Hiram McCallum said today "from a personal point of view" he would prefer the lesser responsibility of the position of Commissioner of the Toronto Transportation Commission to that of Mayor of Toronto.

Commenting on reports that he might offer himself for the post made vacant by the death of Commissioner William Croft last week, Mayor McCallum said he was considering the matter.

Mr. McCallum said he would not resign as Mayor, regardless of his decision, until after the last city council meeting of the year Nov. 28. Civic elections will be held Jan. 1.

If Mayor McCallum accepts the TTC post, it will mark the second time in two years that a Toronto Mayor has resigned to accept an outside position. Robert H. Saunders resigned as Mayor in March, 1948, to accept the post of Chairman of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission. Council named Mr. McCallum to succeed him and he was re-elected in 1949.

Two Controllers said today they might contest the mayoralty if Mayor McCallum does not seek re-election. Controllers John Innes and Allan Lamport said they would run for mayor if council appoints Mr. McCallum to the TTC post.

Keep Troops In Japan

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7 (AP)—The United States intends to keep troops in Japan for many years after the end of the allied occupation. Diplomatic authorities said that decision has been reached by officials who, in trying to draw up a draft of a Japanese peace treaty, faced this tough problem: How can Japan be given full political independence, while still keeping some protection against a growing Communist menace in Asia?

Hundreds Kiss It At 25c But Is It Blarney Stone?

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 7 (AP)—Hundreds kissed it at 25 cents a smack, but the question is: what was it?

The 15-pound chunuk of limestone was flown here from Ireland with advance hullabaloo that it was a chip off the real Blarney Stone. You know, the one in Ireland that imparts the gift of gab. Or so they say.

It disappeared early Sunday, shortly after a St. Mary's Church festival crowd had paid $472 for the privilege of smearing it with lipstick. Women, the custodians reported, were by far the best customers.

But only minutes after its disappearance, the stone's origin was challenged.

James Cummins, past president of the United Irish Society, and custodian of the stone, groaned:

"The worst thing is that the London Daily Mail's New York correspondent called and said the rock wasn't the real thing."

With that Cummins said he has documentary evidence that it was the real thing—still is as far as he is concerned.

"A friend of mine—Pat Collins—who lives in Cork, sent it and assured me it was from Blarney Castle."

But the cops were inclined to view the whole case—Blarney stone and disappearance—with a stony eye.

The City Health Director, Dr. J. C. Geiger, had frowned on the whole thing from the start. Such mass kissing, he said, was unsanitary—germ spreading.

UE Tempers Boil, Fists Fly

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 7—(AP)—Tempers boiled over and fists flew Sunday as two locals voted to bolt the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America—recently expelled by the CIO. At meetings in Sharon, Pa., and Fairmont, W. Va., employees of the Westinghouse Electric Corporation voted to affiliate with the CIO's newly-formed International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers.

A 10-minute uproar was quelled by 34 policemen at Sharon as U.E. Local 617 got into a fist-tossing free-for-all. About 1,500 of the local's 5,000 members attended the meeting.

At Fairmont, W. Va., the local's retiring president got a punch in the nose. Sheriff James D. Cain said Clarence Keener, a member of UE Local 627, paid a $5 fine, and costs, after striking John Everhart at the start of the meeting.

The Fairmont disturbance began after Everhart refused to receive a motion that a neutral chairman be named to preside. He declared the meeting adjourned and started to walk out with about 30 others.

After the meeting had been returned to order, the remaining group named State CIO Chairman John B. Easton as temporary presiding officer and disaffiliated from the leftist union.

Hold Own Meeting

At Sharon, President Stanley Loney of UE District Council Six and Julius Emspak, international secretary-treasurer of the UE, led 200 out of the session and went to nearby Farrel for a meeting of their own.

Those remaining then voted to join the new CIO union.

Police said the Sharon trouble started as several members tried to upset the chairmanship of Guy Grable, right wing president of the local.

As Loney attempted to reach the stage, the punching started. Sheriff William Courtney said no one was injured.

As the tension increased across the country, a big segment of the electrical industry said it wants no part in the fight.

Confesses Kidnapping Hoax Says Child Died In Fall

UTICA, N.Y., Nov. 7—(AP)—A remorse-stricken mother has confessed that her six-week-old son was killed in a fall from her arms and that her story of kidnapping was "made up" out of fear of what her husband would say. "I dropped my baby," Mrs. Stella Komorek blurted out at a coroner's inquest Sunday night.

The sobbing admission from the plump, 29-year-old mill worker's wife came 11 hours after the body of her son, Stephen, was found in a millpond, 500 yards from the modest Komorek home in nearby Clayville.

Coroner Preston R. Clark gave a verdict of accidental death. Authorities said no charge would be placed against Mrs. Komorek.

During hours of steady questioning by police Sunday, she had clung to her story that the infant was snatched from its bassinet in the kitchen late Friday night by a strange man.

"Now, Stella, tell us what happened," Dr. Clark said to her.

"I dropped my baby," Mrs. Komorek blurted out. "He wiggled right out of my arms. I was feeding him. He fell on his head. His eyes rolled back and he wasn't breathing."

Feared Husband

Police, noting the absence of a ransom demand or other kidnap motive, privately had expressed doubt of Mrs. Komorek's story since she reported the child kidnapped.

Pressed at the inquest for details of the baby's fall, Mrs. Komorek said "I picked him up quickly. I though he was dead and put him on the kitchen table."

Mrs. Komorek said she then got a burlap bag from the basement, wrapped the body in two blankets, and tore a strip off one to tie the top of the covering bag.

"Then I took him down by the pond," she said.

She denied however, that she had placed the body in the water.

"I left him on the bank," she said.

She related that her 34-year-old husband was extremely fond of the baby. Their only other child, a seven-year-old boy, was struck and killed by an automobile four years ago.

Find Fire Set In Seven Places

TORONTO, Nov. 7 (CP)—William Blucker, 38, a former dairy employee, was charged with arson following stable fires today at Findlay's Dairy which resulted in the death of five horses. Seven horses were saved.

Police said, Blucker, a former Findlay employee, was under the influence of liquor.

Firemen said the fire was set in seven places and an eighth place had been prepared for ignition. Police arrested the former employee after he was reported to have been seen near the stables before the fire.

86 Wade Ashore On Ocean Beach

VANCOUVER, Nov. 7 (CP)—Fifty-one passengers and the 35-man crew of the 1,134-ton steamer Chelohsin Sunday night walked to shore over 500 yards of barnacled ocean bed when the coastal steamer grounded in fog at the entrance to Vancouver harbor.

Inbound from up-coast Powell River, the 175-foot vessel scraped up onto the beach at low tide.

Some reports said the ship was holed, taking water and may break up, but these could not be confirmed.

Passengers, carrying their luggage and some of them toting dogs in crates, climbed down Jacob's ladders to the beach, and trundled across the soggy ocean bed to shore. The tide was about a mile out at the time.

From the shore, the passengers scaled cliffs leading up to Vancouver's Stanley Park. Buses and taxis whisked them to homes and hotels from there.

3 Quebec Children Die In House Fire

JONQUIERE, Que., Nov. 7 — (CP). — Three children lost their lives on Saturday when fire believed to have been caused by an overheated stovepipe swept the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Edmond Lessard in the parish of St. Marie de Jonquiere.

Victims were: Georges Lessard 5, Luc Lessard 3, and Germain Lessard 3 weeks.

Their mother escaped from a second-storey window with a fourth child, Marcelin 7. Mrs. Lessard was severely burned.

The fire broke out in the Saguenay district home shortly after Mrs. Lessard had prepared breakfast for her husband who then set out for work. Provincial Police said Mrs. Lessard went back to bed and was awakened shortly after by smoke. She attempted to go downstairs, but fire blocked her path.

McGregor Says Industries Tried To Control Prices Through Canada 11 Years

Garson Says Firms Won't Be Prosecuted, Though In Certain Periods Pacts To Maintain Prices Were Effective

OTTAWA, Nov. 8—(CP)—F. A. McGregor, resigning Combines investigation chief, today accused 11 firms of being parties to a combine which "sought to control prices" of flour, rolled oats, mill feeds and coarse grains in every province from 1936 to 1947. "During many periods," said the controversial report tabled in the Commons by Justice Minister Garson, "agreements to maintain price uniformity have been completely effective."

The 60,000 word report that prompted Mr. McGregor's resignation charged that the history of the firms' activities "is a record of a series of agreements which were broken at times, only to be followed by renewals of or modifications designed to bring the parties back into an agreement."

The report was submitted to the government Dec. 29, 1948.

Won't Prosecute

Mr. Garson said Friday the 11 firms will not be prosecuted.

Mr. McGregor said the firms were members or associates of the Canadian National Millers Association. He listed them as:

Lake of the Woods Milling Company, Ltd., Montreal; St. Lawrence Flour Mills Company, Ltd., Montreal; McDonald and Robb, Ltd., Valleyfield, Que.; Quaker Oats Company of Canada Ltd., Peterborough; Lakeside Milling Company Ltd. Toronto; Maple Leaf Milling Company Ltd., Toronto; Purity Flour Mills, Ltd., Toronto; Robin Hood Flour Mills Ltd., Moose Jaw, Sask.; Ogilvie Flour Mills Co., Ltd., Montreal.

Ellison Milling and Elevator Company Ltd., Lethbridge, Alta., the Brackman-Ker Milling Company Lt., New Westminster, B.C.

Government "withholding" of the report for 10 months was one of the major reasons for the resignation of Mr. McGregor as Canada's anti-monopoly chief. He also said there were differences of opinion on the basic policy" over the report.

Mr. Garson said Friday facts given by Donald Gordon, wartime head of the prices board, "would seem to indicate that the government should not prosecute the industry under the Combines Act in

Oshawa Plant, Union Resume Conference

OSHAWA, Nov. 7 (CP)—Negotiations between top company and union officials to settle the 13-day strike of 5,500 workers at the General Motors of Canada, Ltd., plant here are "proceeding amicably," a union official said today.

The talks, started last Saturday, were adjourned at noon and will be resumed tomorrow. Pressure of company business was given as the reason for the inability of company officials to continue today.

There was no official statement following the two-hour session today. Company and union officials agreed Saturday that neither side would issue a statement indicating the trend of the talks.

Devaluation Brings Change In Tourist Industry—Dolan

OTTAWA, Nov. 7 (CP)— Devaluation, both in Canada and abroad, will bring about changes in Canada's tourist industry which for the fourth consecutive year is breaking all records, D. Leo Dolan, Chief of the Government Travel Bureau at a press conference Saturday.

This problem is expected to come under discussion today when federal and provincial officials get together here for the fourth annual Dominion-provincial tourist conference.

The conference, also attended by representatives of the transportation industry, will review the records of 1949 and the progress made in improving tourist facilities and seek a co-ordinated 1950 program.

Some improvement may be in store for Canada's tourist industry through devaluation of the Canadian dollar, Mr. Dolan said, particularly this winter. The U.S. tourist's dollar goes 10 per cent furthter since devaluation in September.

However, it will mean a bigger advertising outlay for Canadian interests advertising in U. S. periodicals, since advertising will cost 10½ per cent more.

Meanwhile, however, the United Kingdom and other European countries have devalued their currencies between 30 and 40 per cent, and this may have a drastic effect on the summer tourist trade in Canada. The U. S. dollar in Europe will be so much more than before that many vacationers are expected to take advantage of this fact and tour Europe instead of Canada.

Believe Britain Losing Coal Exporting Lead

LONDON, Nov. 7—(Reuters)—Britain is in danger of losing her traditional place as one of the world's great coal-exporting countries, some experts here believe. They suggest the present trends presage a crisis which may develop as early as next summer and which will present the British coal industry with its biggest problem since it came under state control nearly three years ago.

Devaluation of the pound gives Britain some advantage over Polish and German producers, but cannot solve the problem.

Before she can take full advantage of her new opportunities, Britain must get higher production from her pits. Progress in that direction is slow. The immediate problem is to cut costs so that additional production is taken up by importing countries as it becomes available.

Sir Hubert Houldsworth, chairman of the East Midlands division of the National Coal Board, sounded a warning in a recent speech to chiefs of the industry. He said that unless coal prices could be reduced speedily there is little chance of Britain's survival as a first-class industrial power.

"A reduction of £1 ($3.10) a ton should be regarded as the present minimum challenge," he added. Sir Hubert pinned his hopes on a "revolution in mining methods."

E. L. Hann, chairman of the Powell Dffryn Company, before nationalization one of the largest British mining combines, gave this warning: "Unless much more and much cheaper coal can be produced in the very early future, there will be little left for any British coal exporter in markets which were once his virtual monopoly."

U.S. Attitude Worries Reds

NEW YORK, Nov. 7 (CP) — Russian diplomats have been questioning diplomats of other countries as to United States intentions in case of a Russian or satellite invasion of Yugoslavia, the New York Times says today in a dispatch from Berne, Switzerland.

This questioning of persons believed by the Russians to be informed of United States policies reached its peak just before the statement by Dean Acheson, United States Secretary of State, that the United States would halt short of war in aid to Yugoslavia in the event of aggression, the Times story says.

The Times correspondent adds: "That, as one diplomatic source here (in Berne) said, is what the Russians wanted to know. But Soviet curiosity has not been wholly satisfied and the probings continue."

Leaves Accident Scene One Dead, 2 Injured

KINGSTON, Nov. 7—(CP) — Alex Emery, 25, had been charged with leaving the scene of an accident and driving without a licence following a fatal automobile accident Saturday, police said today.

Ernest Hughson, 68, former member of Kingston City Council, was killed and two other persons were injured in the two-car, head-on crash.

Coroner Dr. J. E. Kane said today he believed Mr. Hughson was "either dying or dead" of a heart attack when the vehicles collided.

Politburo Chief Warns A Third War Will See Capitalism's End

Russia's Red Officials Lead Celebration Of 32nd Anniversary of Revolution, Hold Spectacular Parade Of Army Forces

MOSCOW, Nov. 7—(AP)—Russia's Red leaders today led celebrations marking the 32nd Anniversary of their 1917 revolution. Top political and military Chiefs accused the United States of fomenting a new blood bath of war designed to make the world an American colony. The main attack was made Sunday night by Georgi M. Malenkov, Communist politburo member, who claimed that such a war would mean an end to capitalism in the world.

It was echoed today by Marshal Alexander M. Vasilevsky, minister of the Soviet Armed Forces, at the spectacular and traditional military ceremonies in Moscow's historic Red Square. Vasilevsky spoke briefly from atop the tomb where the Russian revolution's chief hero, Nikolai Lenin, lies in state in a glass coffin.

Vasilevsky accused "warmongers" of pursuing a "policy of aggression and unleashing of new wars." He called on the Russians to "fight still harder for the further growth of the might of our state."

Vasilevsky reviewed thousands of Russian foot soldiers, tanks and motorized weapons streaming for hours through Red Square. The aerial parade over the marching soldiers was led by Premier Stalin's son, Gen. Vassily Stalin, flying in a fighter plane.

Plots Enslavement

Malenkov hurled his charges at the United States Sunday night as the principal speaker in ceremonies at Moscow's Bolshoi Theatre, inaugurating the anniversary celebration. He charged the United States was plotting "to enslave the entire world."

Malenkov vigorously said that the Soviets "do not want war and we shall do everything possible to avert it."

"In the hands of the imperialists," he said, "atomic energy is a means for the production of lethal weapons, a means of intimidation, an instrument of blackmail and coercion.

"But in the hands of the Soviet people," he continued, "it can be and must be a mighty instrument of technical progress on a scale never witnessed before, an instrument for the further rapid development of the productive forces of our country."

Malenkov called for "unconditional outlawing" of atomic weapons, establishment of "suitable" international control, and "condemnation of the preparations being conducted in certain countries, and in particular in the United States and Britain, for a new war."

Malenkov continued

"If the Imperialists unleash a third world war, this will not only be the grave of individual capitalist countries, but of capitalism as a whole."

Tremendous Ovation

More than 2,000 persons, including Premier Stalin and United States Ambassador Alan G. Kirk, heard Malenkov's address. Stalin was given a tremendous ovation as the ceremonies Sunday night opened in the elegant, ornate, red velvet and gilt theatre.

Malenkov's choice as speaker confirmed him as a rising Soviet political star. Former Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov made the speech the two previous years. In Politburo photographs published for the anniversary, Malenkov was placed at Stalin's left. But Molotov's photo still appeared at Stalin's right.

Molotov attended the ceremonies Sunday night, apparently in fine health and spirits.

Send Greetings

Communists around the world joined Russia today in celebrating the Soviet Union's 32nd birthday.

Bulgaria's Communist Foreign Minister Vladimir Poptomov on Sunday used Sofia's celebration to hint his government soon might try a former Communist deputy minister, Traicho Kostov, for alleged plotting with agents of Yugoslavia's Marshal Tito, the United States and Britain.

But Marshal Tito's Yugoslav government, though the target for some of Russia's severest recent criticism, sent birthday greetings to Moscow along with the satellites still high in Kremlin favor.

Argentina contributed a jarring note to the anniversary week-end Federal police in Buenos Aires arrested 705 persons at a Communist party celebration. They were accused of disorderly conduct for refusing to disband their meeting.

Natural Centre For New Hospital

Peterborough has geographical support of its application for one of the mental hospitals recently announced in prospect stage by Hon. Russell Kelley, Hon. Harold R. Scott commented to the Examiner Saturday.

"It is a fact that we are the natural centre of a wide area, and with the roads that are now built and in use, it would be convenient motoring for a large number of people," Mr. Scott said. "Governments are finding an increasing need for adequate care and new treatment of mental patients. It is both a present and future problem, because I know there is an extended waiting list. Peterborough would be a much shorter trip for people in this part of central Ontario who would otherwise have to go to Kingston or Brockville. Coming here, they could get back to their homes the same day."

Ald. Dick Raine said he mentioned Peterborough's hopes in a conversation with Hon. Mr. Kelley at the hospital association convention last week.

"The Minister was non-committal," Ald. Raine said. "I did not expect anything definite because this matter is going to be discussed with Mr. Kelley by a committee from the council."

OTTAWA, Nov. 7 — (CP) — Trades and Labor Congress unions may seek new wage increases as a result of higher rents and a possibly higher cost of living resulting from dollar devaluation.

T.L.C. President Percy Bengough said today that member

But any increase in living costs "automatically makes them think in that direction," he told a press conference, held to introduce Gordon C. Cushing, new secretary-treasurer of the Congress, to Ottawa reporters.

Mr. Cushing, 36, was formerly Secretary of the Calgary Trades and Labor Council and Secretary-Treasurer of the Alberta Federation of Labor.

Mr. Bengough said provincial labor federations and district labor councils had been following up "quite rapidly" a resolution passed at the T.L.C. annual meeting recommending that Communists be removed from executive positions.

The Winnipeg district Trades and Labor Council had already asked approval of a by-law which would make delegates from affiliated unions sign a declaration that they are not members of the Communist party.

Regrets Resignation

The proposed by-law must first be approved by the T.L.C. executive. Mr. Bengough declined to speculate whether it would be approved.

Mr. Bengough also said he "regretted" the resignation of F. A. McGregor, Federal Combines Commissioner and said Mr. McGregor had done a "good job" in the post.

Mr. McGregor resigned last week after a dispute with Justice Minister Garson over a report he made into alleged price-fixing by the flour-milling industry during the war.

Predict Fight PC Presidency

TORONTO, Nov. 7 — (CP) — Possibility of a fight for the presidency loomed today as the Progressive Conservative Association of Ontario opened its annual convention with some 800 delegates expected to attend.

Highways Minister George Doucett was reported a possible candidate to oppose re-election of A. D. McKenzie as president. Mr. Doucett has given no indication whether he intends to run for the office.

An open battle for the presidency of the Young Progressive Conservative Association of Ontario was shaping up as two candidates campaigned openly for the office. Wally Nesbitt, 30-year-old Woodstock lawyer, and Jack McNie, of Hamilton, are seeking the post, now held by Ted Conover, of Brampton.

THOMAS ARMSTRONG

Thomas Armstrong, one of the oldest residents of South Monaghan, died on Sunday at his home after a very short illness. Mr. Armstrong was born in South Monaghan township 90 years ago and has spent his life in that municipality, operating a general store at Bensfort. A son of Thomas Armstrong and Martha Scott he was a member of the Centreville Presbyterian Church.

Mr. Armstrong leaves several nieces and nephews. His wife predeceased him some years ago.

The body is resting at the home of his nephew William Morrison, lot 18, concession 3, South Monaghan until Tuesday at 1.00 p.m. when it will be taken to Centreville Presbyterian Church where the casket will lie open until the commencement of the funeral service at 2.00 p.m. The service will be conducted by the Rev. Walter Paterson of Millbrook and burial will be in Centreville Cemetery.

Denies Taking Money On False Pretences

Faced with two charges of false pretences, Leslie Abraham pleaded guilty to one and not guilty to the second in police court today before Magistrate W. R. Philp, KC. He was remanded to Tuesday.

Abraham pleaded guilty to a charge of passing a bad cheque to Enid Smith, a Smith township grocer Sept. 10. The cheque was reported to have been signed Gordon Abrams.

The second false pretence, to which he pleaded not guilty, was alleged to be obtaining $5 from Nobel W. Montgomery while posing as a Canada Packers inspector.

Albert J. Fitzgerald, left-wing president of the UEW, is dispatching telegrams to right-wing UEW officials telling them they are fired. His 450-000-man union was expelled on grounds of leftism by the National CIO in its Cleveland convention last week.

A spokesman for Westinghouse which employs some 70,000 UEW members, emphasized it is taking no side in the battle.

In Syracuse, NY, a State Supreme Court Justice on Saturday issued a temporary injunction restraining officers of a local from holding a meeting to vote on a withdrawal from the UEW.

Blocked by the injunction against withdrawal, about 75 GE Syracuse employees staged an impromptu meeting. In a standing vote the workers expressed a desire to stay within the CIO.

In Toronto, C. S. Jackson, Canadian president of the UEW, said Friday that the expulsion of the union from the CIO does not alter the status of the union's agreements with Canadian employers.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Nov. 7—(CP) — Damage estimated at $20,000 was caused here Saturday when fire razed the David Walker boat works on the St. Mary's River at suburban Rankin. Three boats were destroyed in the blaze which, for a time, threatened the Air-Dale Flying Service hangar and store buildings.

Brief Urges Rail Economy Be Studied

Fear Radical Changes Upset Farming; Want Grain Rate Kept

OTTAWA, Nov. 7 (CP)—Establishment of a permanent Federal tribunal to probe the efficiency and economies of Canada's railway service was urged by the Canadian Federation of Agriculture in a brief made public Sunday.

The brief is expected to be presented to the Royal Commission on Transportation tomorrow by CFA president H. H. Hannam and Dr. E. C. Hope, economist for the federation.

The federation suggested that the tribunal investigate all possible ways of reducing duplication of services and 'wasteful competitive practices." The tribunal would report to parliament annually.

Declaring that "radical changes in transportation can very quickly upset long-established types of farming based on the natural factors of soil and climate," the brief called on the government to institute legislation that would compel railways to demonstrate efficiency of operation before getting rate increases.

Ask Grain Rate Kept

It also asked that low western freight rates on grain fixed by statute be retained and that the capital structure of the Canadian National Railways be revised to a "reasonable basis." The CNR now pays some $46,000,000 a year in debt interest.

The CFA urged closer adherence to the 1933 Federal Statute instructing the companies to effect joint economies but did not propose complete amalgamation of the two major rail systems.

The brief made three specific recommendations on the question of freight rates:

1. The railways should not be permitted to cancel "special" freight rates without prior permission from the Board of Transport Commissioners;

2. Federal financial help in the movement of feed grains should be incorporated permanently into the freight-rate structure. The Dominion now absorbs on a year to year basis a large share of the transportation costs of prairie feed grains moving to the east and to British Columbia;

3. The Railway Act should be amended to provide that full earnings of the railways and their subsidiaries be taken into account in determining need for freight-rate increases.

respect of matters" arising while it was under prices board control.

Follow Suggestions

The minister said the uniform level of a September, 1947, price rise by the industry was in line with suggestions by K. W. Taylor, Mr. Gordon's successor as prices board head.

Mr. McGregor said he recognized that the firms "greatly assisted" the wartime board as a "clearing house" for problems affecting the industry but he took exception "to the same practice to which exception is taken with respect to other times, that of agreements to remove competition in price."

The report says:

"In the war years regulations established maximum levels beyond which prices could not be increased. In this period concerted efforts were made to prevent competition by securing agreement as to the prices which the members would follow. Such joint action was neither required nor sanctioned by the Prices Board or any government agency. Board policy was definitely directed to the maintenance of competitive conditions with respect to prices."

The report added that the firms say the nature of their operations "required heavy capital investments, resulting in relatively inflexible overhead costs and that the determination of prices by independent action of individual companies would result in price wars leading to a state of chaos in the industry."

Want Competition Maintained

But, Mr. McGregor says, such considerations were placed before the Royal Commission on price spreads in 1935 — a year before the period encompassed in the report — at a time when the milling industry was "in extreme difficulty." The Commission had reported "that the public interest would be best served 'if price competition is maintained between milling companies'"

The report is based on evidence contained in more than 6,000 documents obtained from the companies and their association and on the testimony of their representatives who testified for a total of 26 days. It tells a story largely in the language of the firms themselves through extensive quotation from correspondence, minutes and oral evidence.

It painted a picture of agreements which sometimes broke down because of "recalcitrance" by some members, of frequent "recriminations" among them, of "efforts to keep within bounds the competition of independent mills." Sometimes the independent competition would be ignored; at other times "joint measures" were taken to meet it.

The report said diplomatic approaches were made by C.N.M.A. members to representatives of the small mills designed to induce them to keep close to association levels. It recorded threats of reprisals if the small mills did not comply. In one instance, in Vancouver, a small mill whose competition had been "troublesome" was bought out by five association members and dismantled.

Control Competitors

In a 10-page chapter of conclusions, the report led off with these observations:

"This report follows another on a related subject, an alleged combine in the bread-baking industry in western Canada. Both reports disclose developments of much the same character—control of the industry concentrated in a few very large corporations and the efforts made under the leadership of the dominant groups to control competitive activity.

"They describe measures which have been taken to link the two industries by means of the financial control of some chain bakery companies by some flour milling companies and how this limiting of competitive purchases by the baking industry has had its impact on the flour milling industry.

"Each group within its own field has sought in its own way to attain the objective of eliminating price competitions as a factor in business enterprise."

Legal action by the government against western bread firms now is spending.

Series of Agreements

The report continues:

"The millers have sought to create the impression that the period of their association has been marked by active price competition interrupted only occasionally by understandings which were intended to protect them from serious loss or bankruptcy. Actually the history of their activities is a record of a series of agreements which were broken at times, only to be followed by renewals or modifications designed to bring the parties back into an agreement."

The report says the evidence indicates no complete elimination of price competition among CNMA members but "it would be equally wrong to conclude... that the price agreements entered into were not effective at any time or in any area."

"During many periods agreements to maintain price uniformity have been completely effective. At other periods (some of them rather prolonged) and in some areas now in one and now in another), certain members have sold below the association's prices and have broken their own agreements to maintain them.

Restore Confidence

"Sometimes the break was so serious as to make it necessary for all the members to disregard the list prices until, as the documents say, confidence was restored. Efforts were made, and with considerable success at times, to prevent even isolated instances of price reduction.

"When recalcitrance of one or more members threatened to disrupt, or actually disrupted, the price agreement, every effort was made to restore harmony and re-established prices on a uniform basis.

Britain Plans Federation In Caribbean

LONDON, Nov. 7 (AP)—Britain plans to set up a new, near-independent state between the two Americas—a West Indian federation of six Caribbean colonies and nearly 3,000,000 people.

The blueprint for this long-published by Colonial Secretary Arthur Creech Jones. It will then be debated by each of the colonies concerned.

The blueprint has been designed by a "closer association" committee of West Indians from each territory. They have been working on it for two years.

West Indian colonial governors meet Monday in Bridgetown, Barbados, to discuss the report. The Earl of Listowel, minister for colonies, has flown to the Caribbean for the talks.

According to responsible informants, the committee report urges federation of Barbados, British Honduras, Jamaica, the Leeward Islands, Trinidad and the Windward Islands into a single state.

It wants the federation to have full internal self-government. On matters except defense, some financial questions and foreign affairs, the new state would be virtually self-governing.

American-leased military bases in the West Indies would remain unaffected by these plans.

Says War Dead Stemmed Tide Of Militarism

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 7 — (ENS)—"The men who made the supreme sacrifice gave use a clear comprehension of our own duty," said the Rev. J. D. Laird of Knox Presbyterian Church, Toronto, at the Remembrance Day service in the Aron theatre Sunday.

"[illegible]

of aggressive militarism which threatened to engulf the world. They preserved and perpetuated our personal liberties and safeguarded our way of life.

"We think of them as living ramparts," he said. "Their sacrifice was not in vain. Often we hear it said by pacifists that war never settled anything. This is a fallacy", he asserted. "War has changed the course of history and tyranny and slavery have been destroyed by the shedding of blood."

He said that prospects for world peace were better today than at any time since the close of the war. Russia did not appear to be so bellicose. The United States was taking an active part in world affairs which was a drastic departure from her former foreign policy. "The signs of peace are real," he declared.

"Remembrance day brings sadness and suffering to many of you," he said. "Let this sadness and suffering be borne with with the pride which comes to you through their sacrifice in saving the world for those who follow.

The first part of the service was held at the Cenotaph where wreaths were placed by several individuals and organizations and the last post was sounded. The Citizens' Band was in attendance and the local clergy took part.

47 Men Enlisted In Second War From Alderville

ROSENEATH, Nov. 7 (ENS)—"Of a male adult population of 70 on the Alderville reserve, 47 enlisted in World War II" said Mr. H. Lander of the Alderville United Church at a Remembrance Day service in the United Church on Sunday.

The quaint Church, the place of worship for the residents of the Reserve since it was officially opened and dedicated in 1870, was filled to capacity with relatives and friends and members of Cobourg Legion, Post 133 and Cobourg Regimental Bugle Band.

On the walls at both sides of the chancel were the honor rolls of World Wars I and II.

Mr. Lander was in charge of the service and introduced the guest speaker, Rev. Major A. E. Larke, Gore's Landing. Major Larke's subject was "Man's Finest Hour" and spoke of the comradeship of men in the service, men coming from different home environments, facing the ordeal of battle together, of the spiritual and mental tests, of learning to pray on the field of battle and of the sacrifices made in their loyalty one to another.

Remembrance Music

Alderville choir of 20 voices, under the direction of Mrs. Norman Marsden, organist, sang two anthems, "With banners waving" and "On the victory side".

Two minutes silence was observed and the benediction pronounced by Rev. J. N. Lovelace, assistant pastor.

After the service Cobourg Regimental Bugle band led members of the Legion in a parade, under the command of Col. Bassinger, to the cenotaph, where a brief service was held.

Last Post and Reveille were sounded by Bugler Sidney Merry. George Taylor and Harvey Hillier of Cobourg formed the color squad. Wreaths were placed on the cenotaph by Robert Franklin of Cobourg in memory of his father Robert Franklin; by Stuart Comego in memory of his father, Peter Comego; by Mrs. Minnie Beaver in memory of her son, Arthur Beaver, by Mrs. Moses Smoke, Jr., in memory of her brother, Robert Tobico; by Mrs. Albert Crowe in memory of her brother, Sampson Comego; Mrs. Thomas Marsden in memory of her cousin, Wilburn Chubb; Mrs. Louis Gray in memory of her father, William Stevenson; Ross Beaver, Toronto, in memory of his father, John Beaver; Alfred Simpson in memory of his brother Archie Simpson; Gordon Blaker, Baltimore, in memory of his father, Sam Blaker; George Beaver, in memory of his cousin, Austin Beaver. There was also a wreath from the Province of Ontario.

Continued Training Corrects Two Officers

VICTORIA, BC, Nov. 7 (CP)—Inexperience of executive officers aboard two Canadian destroyers involved in "incidents" early this year "has disappeared through continued training and service," says Capt. H. F. Pullen, senior officer, Pacific Command.

Commenting at a press conference Friday on the Navy Commission report tabled in the Commons Tuesday, which mentioned the executive officers of the Athabaskan and Crescent, Capt. Pullen said the officers had gone on to serve capably and to the satisfaction of commanding officers and himself. His statement was not to be construed as an attempt to excuse the two officers.

The Canadian Press erroneously had reported Capt. Pullen as saying that incidents aboard the destroyers did not result from the lack of experience.

Young Children Are Immunized

COBOURG, Nov. 7 (ENS) — Immunization of children is switching to the younger age groups, it is revealed by the report of the Northumberland and Durham Counties Health Unit. It is being realized, that the proper time to have children immunized is under the age of one year.

When the health unit first started immunization, many parents still had the impression that the correct thing was to wait until the children started school before having them immunized, the report pointed out. For example, in 1946 almost two thousand school children required the initial three doses of diphtheria toxoid. By 1947, this figure was reduced to 310. This year, there are very few children in school who require their immunization. Most merely require reinforcing doses.

The result is that there is a relatively large attendance of infants at immunization clinics in rural schools. There are also many more infants and young children being vaccinated against small pox.

A sanitary inspection of each school is completed during the autumn, including examination of the water supply, heating, ventilation system, lighting and all other features that influence the health of the school child. At the beginning of the term a visit is made by the nurses to every school to ensure that no children return suffering from communicable disease or any condition requiring urgent treatment.

A public health veterinarian, Dr. D. F. Damude, has been appointed to the health unit staff. He will direct his attention parcilularly to investigation of problems associated with those diseases which may be transmitted from animal to man. This is a field of public health which has been receiving particular attention in recent years.

IT ISN'T COMPULSORY
...but Wise Men are doing it!

In our way of life a man is allowed to manage his own affairs. He can choose his own job and live where it suits him. He can spend his earnings in any way he pleases. He can set aside as much of his income as prudence dictates to safeguard the future of his loved ones through life insurance and at the same time provide for his own declining years.

That is why life insurance is so vital to the economic needs of our people. It is so adaptable it can be planned to the exact requirements of individuals and families under the most widely varying circumstances.

Why take the future of your loved ones for granted? Wise men seek expert advice. How recently have you reviewed your own life insurance needs? We suggest you talk it over with a representative of the Manufacturers Life.

Varying The Curriculum

The most important and potentially most beneficial change proposed by the Minister of Education in his provincial school plans is to make the curricula regional and variable. Unless we are misreading the outline plan—teachers and parents are anxiously awaiting clarification and details—the freeing of the course of studies from prescribed text-books and fixed courses of studies has more than a merely practical purpose.

The down-to-earth purposes are plain. Pupils in an onion-growing area will study onion culture in its relation to home finance, agricultural economy, and the wealth of the nations; those in a mining area will not concentrate their studies on bees and business. Pupils in industrial sections will study mechanical stresses not soil conservation. A school's curriculum will include basic studies essential to the learning process; these will be prescribed provincially. Other subjects will be left to the discretion of local authorities, so that they may suit local conditions and needs.

The less rigid system of studies will, we hope, break the standardization and uniformity which have marked and in some ways marred Ontario public education. A whole generation all across the Province was raised on the same French words, the vocabulary of the old Ontario High School French Grammar. It studied the poets and their work contained in Alexander's Shorter Poems. It read certain Shakespeare plays in the Stevenson edition, and none others. It knew the geography outlined in the old blue Ontario Public School Geography, and nothing else. Good as these books were and are, the standardization which resulted from their exclusive use throughout the Province was restrictive. No pupil passing through the system knew anything outside them, except by chance. People stuffed with the same mental fodder cannot think and talk individually, nor learn from each other. The province's pupils suffered from a paralysis of knowledge.

It is better to avoid standardization and to seek variety even at the risk of trusting the individual teachers to choose good text-books, and local board and school directors suitable courses of studies. The process of freeing the schools from strait-jackets was begun when the old "Readers" were discarded. If the Department's new plans are adequately put into operation, the freedom will be as complete as society and the universities can permit. Actually, it will be a return to the methods of a century ago when local school masters and school inspectors were so free from centralized authority that experts of fifty years later thought them scandalously unorthodox, haphazard and even lax. Egerton Ryerson (appointed first superintendent of education in 1844) systematized the schools so as to raise the standards. Then developed the "science" of pedagogy, and the pupils and teachers were almost lost as individuals. Now a return to the earlier freedom, with the safeguards which experience has shown to be useful, should make our school system more liberal, foster the art of teaching rather than the science of pedagogy, and yet keep minimum standards high.

Dulles Isn't Saying "Me Too"

An interesting current political event in the United States has been the campaign for the vacant United States Senate seat in New York State. Seldom have two abler men that John Foster Dulles and Herbert Lehman opposed each other in a senatorial campaign, and the state is assured experienced and excellent representation. Nor have the voters any choice in the matter of attitude toward international affairs, for both candidates support the present Administration's foreign policy. In domestic policy, however, the candidates' views are widely divergent.

The Republican Party, in the last Presidential campaign, was accused of saying "me too", and the accusation was obviously accurate. The Republicans promised to do everything the Democrats were doing to provide social security, among other things. Mr. Dulles isn't saying "me too." He is telling the voters that they cannot get something for nothing, that the Government's farm plan is "economic jabberwocky", and that the Government was "pretending a great love for human welfare that can find expression only by giving more and more power to the all-powerful central government."

Mr. Lehman, of course, as the Democratic candidate, supports the Fair Deal, the farm plan, and all the Government's social security measures. He [illegible] such action denotes indifference to human welfare. It is an absurd charge, but it is good political ammunition for a candidate telling the people how much he approves what is being done for them. And Mr. Lehman provided himself with some additional ammunition by lifting a sentence from a speech made by Mr. Dulles.

The latter had recalled that Mr. Lehman received 435,000 American Labour Party (Communist) votes in 1946, and told an audience: "If you could see the kind of people in New York City making up this bloc that is voting for my opponent, if you could see them with your own eyes, . . . you would be out, every last man and woman of you, voting on Election Day". Mr. Lehman and his supporters grabbed this gleefully. They accused Mr. Dulles of setting class against class and of stirring up animosity against foreign-born and second-generation citizens, and they pulled out all the stops along this line.

Again the charge was absurd—and again it was good political ammunition. Along with the tremendous effort made by the Democrats it may prove sufficient to elect Mr. Lehman to the Senate this week.

Dollar-Pound Card In China

An important conference of British diplomats in south-east Asia has been meeting in Singapore. It is not a routine affair, for the capture of Canton by the Chinese Communists makes the determination of British policy in Asia, and particularly toward Communist China very important. The British Government, like the Canadian and American, must consider giving official recognition to the new republican (Communist) government now in control. The possibility of the survival of the Kuomintang Government is now dismissed. Even its last stronghold in the island of Formosa is very shaky.

Whether or not the new Chinese Communist government will get recognition depends to some extent on its attitude to China's international obligations and commitments. China's capital debt to Great Britain is some £53,500,000 for Government and railway loans. China owes the United States about $29,500,000. This is apart from American private business in China, and American war-aid. Even Canada has a financial stake in Chinese government, for it extended post-war credits which made a total Chinese governmental debt to Canada of $52,200,000 by the end of 1948. If the present Chinese government decides to honour these debts and to accept the Anglo-Chinese treaty of 1943, or if there is a possibility that it will, western powers are likely to give it official recognition. Under the 1943 treaty Britain gave up extra-territorial and other special rights in China; in return, British subjects were promised freedom from discriminatory taxes, and to travel and trade.

13,636,000 Canadian Heads

The increase in Canada's population in the last forty years has been exactly as great as the total population at the beginning of the period. In 1909 there were 6,800,000 inhabitants of this country; now there are 13,636,000, according to a new estimate of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. Despite the recent influx of immigrants and war-brides, there has been no phenomenal increase in population. Throughout the forty-year period the growth has been remarkably steady. If Canada's population is to grow by leaps and bounds, as some expect, emigration will have to be reduced, and immigration increased to something like the pre-Great War levels. The biggest year in the decade of largest immigration 1904-1914 was 1913, when there were 400,870 arrivals. Annual immigration since the recent war has been at a much smaller rate. In the first two post-war years only 110,500 entered Canada to live. Last year the total number of immigrants was about 100,000.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Mr. Bevan, British Minister of Health, says that his Health Service "has made a great deal of silent suffering articulate". We would have thought that the five and a quarter million spectacles provided free in the first year would have improved the sight of the silent, rather than their articulation.

Musical Notes

By PETER PIPER

HERE is news for budding composers. The CBC is sponsoring a Canadian song-writing competition. This is an action of far-sighted generosity and should bring to light much talent. A nation is known very largely by its songs, and the most perfervid patriot would be forced to admit that apart from the abundant folksongs of French Canada the voice of Canada has been somewhat silent. This is not the place to enumerate in detail the rules of this competition, which may be [illegible] Service, Box 160, Station H, Montreal. There are ten prizes of $250 offered for the ten best songs entered. The closing date is January 6, 1950. Such a competition is no new thing. They have been frequently run by newspapers in different countries. So far as I can remember the BBC has not sponsored a competition, but they have from time to time commissioned works by established composers, such as William Walton's Symphony and a Symphony by Elgar (which he failed to complete owing to illness and old age). It is to be hoped that this venture of the CBC will be but the first of a series of competitions designed to foster the work of Canadian composers.

FEW people realize how precarious is the livelihood of a composer in this year of grace. It is virtually impossible for him to live on the royalties from his works. A few of them with private means have been able to devote their whole time to this most exacting and unrewarding career. Others, like Sibelius and Grieg have been the recipients of annuities from governments (usually of small and poor countries!). Some, like Tschaikowvsky, have found a wealthy patron. A few composers have starved rather than deny the flame within them, but most composers of today combine composition with the studio, the concert platform or occasionally the organ loft. This is a sad waste of human resources. It is particularly hard on Canadian composers. Owing to the small size of the population and its enormous dispersal Canadian composers have nothing like the same "home market" for their wares as their American, British, or French colleagues, and even they are, as I have shown, very badly situated.

LEST we should be led to jump to the other extreme by the parlous condition of the Bard in modern capitalistic society let us take a peep through the Iron Curtain. At first sight it would appear that Soviet composers are in clover compared with the rest of the world. They are given every financial encouragement to compose, free from the distractions that harass all but a small fraction of "bourgeois" composers. They enjoy a high measure of popular esteem and are accorded various privileges and advantages which are denied to the vast mass of the population. BUT.... the composer has become a salaried civil servant of the most rigid bureaucracy in the world. He has had to sell his birthright of song for a "mess of pottage". The Soviet government quite rightly appreciates the enormous importance of music in the life of the community, but like Plato it strives to harness it to its own dogmatic conception of society. Music has become a function of politics, and any deviation from the accepted line is stigmatized as "bourgeois formalism" or "mess instead of music". Soviet music must, we are told, display a "close bond between the artist and contemporary life", an "optimistic joy of living". An appeal to the "heroism and greatness of the Russian people" is always a safe move, and an occasional Ode to Stalin is sure to attract favourable attention. This uneasy partnership of the State and the Muse has led to the public reprimand of Russia's two most gifted composers, Prokofief and Shostakovitch, and their humiliating recantations of their errors. It is not surprising to find the stream of Russian inspiration drying up under these unhealthy conditions.

LAST week I spoke about broadening one's musical sympathies. I intend to follow this up from time to time with a few suggestions. Pianists should get to know some of the fascinating treasure of Elizabethan keyboard music. It gives me quite a thrill to think that Shakespeare himself knew and heard much of these lovely works. They are mostly fairly easy to play. Some of the best and most characteristic were written by Giles Farnaby, and bear quaint titles such as "The New Sa-Hoo", "Giles Farnaby's Dream" and so on. There is a freshness and charm about them which makes it hard to believe that they were written nearly four hundred years ago. Stainer and Bell of London publish an admirable series of selections from these composers.

Wit and Repartee in Parliament

Ivor Thomas, who once wrote leaders for the London Times and who left the Labour Party when he thought it got too Marxist, got this off last week on Sir Stafford Cripps:

"He reads the lesson, preaches the sermon and takes the collection as well—eight shillings out of every pound."

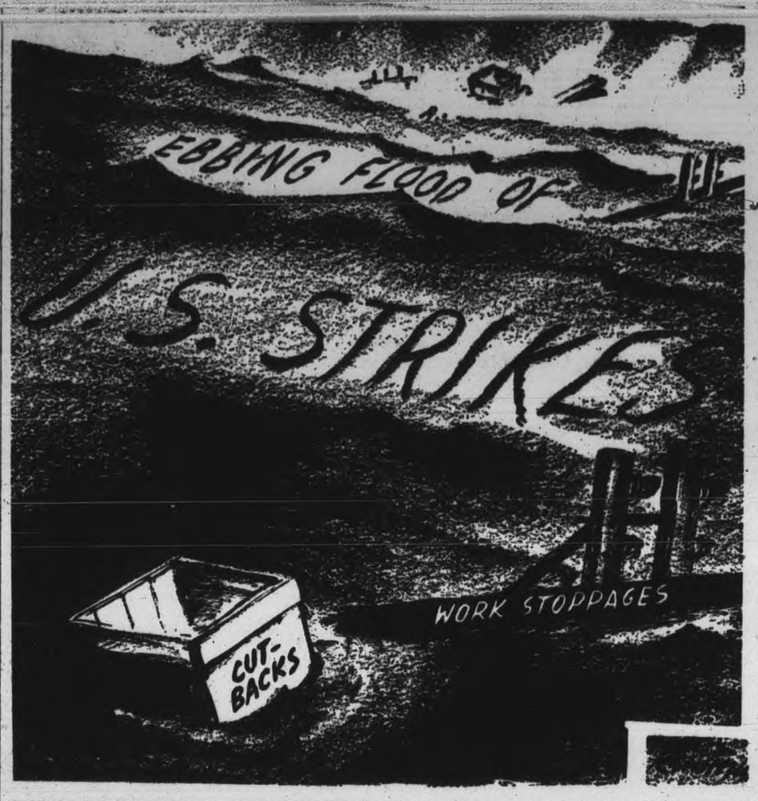
Not bad; yet not quite up to the best Westminster tradition. Certainly not up to Sir John Russell's retort to Sir Francis Burdett (which Gladstone said was the finest repartee he had ever heard in the Commons) who, after turning Tory and joining the Carlton Club had sneered at "the cant of patriotism". "I quite agree", replied Lord John, "that the cant of patriotism is a bad thing. But I can tell him a worse, namely, the recant of patriotism."

And not up to the retort of Sir Robert Peel to Fergus O'Connor, who, charged with being a Republican, had denied it and said that he did not care whether the Queen or the Devil was on the throne. Peel replied:

"When the Hon. Member sees the Sovereign of his choice on the throne of these realms, I hope he will enjoy, as I am sure he will deserve, the confidence of the Crown."

Gems such as this are rare now in Parliament; rare at Westminster, still rarer in our own Houses of Commons.—Ottawa Journal.

OUT WITH THE TIDE



Some Pension History

(NEW YORK TIMES)

PENSION history contains some curious chapters. An Encyclopaedia Britannica article recalls that in the year 1676 King Charles II of England granted to his illegitimate son to whom he had given the title Duke of Richmond a perpetual pension consisting of a duty of one shilling a ton on all coal exported from the Tyne for consumption in England. This was to be a "welfare fund" for the Duke and his heirs in perpetuity. It must have provided a very comfortable income, since, when it was commuted by the Government more than a hundred years later (in 1799), the Duke's heirs got a tidy annuity of £19,000, and when the pension was finally redeemed the Government paid the heirs £633,333—still in the days when the pound sterling was worth nearly five pre-Depression dollars.

SOME 270 years later when a tax on coal mined was introduced in the American economy, appeal was not made to this royal precedent but the tax was usually referred to as a "royalty." John L. Lewis, a student of history, may have been familiar with the tax imposed by an almost-absolute monarch and, being an almost-absolute monarch in his own field, he may have felt that he was on sure ground. He seems, however, to have failed to take into account the fact that when no coal is mined no "royalties" can be collected. Strikes would not have been allowed to interfere with the Duke of Richmond's perpetual pension but they have badly upset this modern revival of an ancient custom.

WHEN the British Parliament finally got round to investigating its hereditary pensions in 1887 it found that the heirs of the Duke of Marlborough, the hero of Blenheim (1704), had collected £4,000 per annum for 180 years (say six generations) and had finally surrendered their claim for ten payments of £12,796 per annum in 1884. The heirs of Lord Nelson were collecting £500 a year "in perpetuity" and the heirs of another naval hero, Lord Rodney, £200 a year. Numerous permanent pensions beginning at this time were gradually bought up for cash and cancelled by the Government.

THERE are many examples of pensions paid as salary for sinecures which were also hereditary. A very pleasant post was created for the Duke of St. Albans, another illegitimate son of the Merry Monarch, in 1684, when he was appointed "Master of the Hawks." The perquisites of this office were as follows: salary £391; four falconers £50 per annum each; "provision of hawks" £600 (three times as much as the four falconers got); "provision of pigeons, hens and other meats" £182 10 shillings. Total, £1,373 plus some shillings. As the years passed and falconry became less important to the state the income of the Master of Hawks was reduced to £965 but the sinecure was not abolished until 1891 when the "salary" was commuted for £18,335.

HEREDITARY pensions, associated with monarchy, were never a problem for our republic, but the pension rolls at Washington contain their own commentary on our republican ways. Last year, for example, the Veterans' Administration was paying monthly pensions to thirty-six widows and other dependents of veterans of the Mexican War, successfully concluded just over one hundred years ago. There were 2,800 pensions still being paid in settlement of claims for Indian wars. The War of 1812 did not engage a great many Americans, but when the year 1912 rolled around there were 238 widows drawing pensions for the War of 1812. Sixty-three years after the war Congress had removed the limitations on the date for marriage to establish pension rights. Many veterans seem to have taken advantage of this law to marry young wives. There may have been a few cases where young women took advantage of the law to marry aged veterans.

THE last veteran pensioner of the Revolutionary War died in 1869 at the age of 109. As a boy of sixteen he probably heard the Declaration of Independence read in his native village and as a patriarch of 103 he might have heard Abraham Lincoln begin a speech with "Fourscore and seven years ago our fathers brought forth." His life and the life of the last survivor of the Civil War armies would together span the entire history of the republic. Next year, 1950, fourscore and seven years will have passed since the Gettysburg Address. Lincoln will thus stand as the central figure in our history and his noble ideal of "government of the people, by the people and for the people" as the capstone of the great edifice we have built.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

There was a man of the Pharisees, named Nicodemus, a ruler of the Jews: the same came to Jesus by night, and said unto him, Rabbi we know that thou art a teacher come from God: for no man can do these miracles that thou doest, except God be with him.

Jesus answered and said unto him, Verily, verily, I say unto thee, Except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God. Nicodemus saith unto him, How can a man be born when he is old? can be enter the second time into his mother's womb, and be born?

Jesus answered, Verily, verily, I say unto thee. Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God. That which is born of the flesh is flesh: and that which is born of the Spirit is spirit.

Marvel not that I said unto thee, Ye must be born again. The wind bloweth where it listeth and thou hearest the sound thereof, but canst not tell whence it cometh, and whither it goeth: so is every one that is born of the Spirit. (John 3: 1-8.)

The Spirit itself beareth witness with our spirit, that we are the children of God. (Rom. 8: 16.)

Why Taxes Are High

A few years ago when the suburbs about Toronto were not so flush with public funds, police cars in those municipalities received instructions concerning stolen cars and escaping criminals direct from the short wave transmitting station of the Toronto police.

When local funds became available, however, each of these separate municipalities installed their own transmitters. As a result of this absolutely unnecessary expense, warnings must now go out over a dozen different stations giving the law-breakers extra precious minutes to make their escape. This needless duplication of costly equipment and this overlapping of authority certainly have been factors in the rise of unsolved serious crime in the Toronto area.

And this sort of waste in municipal services is not confined to police departments nor to the Toronto area. There is similar duplication and confusion in practically every service each separate municipality provides in the built up sections of the country.

—Toronto Financial Post.

Flying Mail Van

The first night delivery of mail by helicopter in Britain began recently. On the initial flight bags of letters and parcels were flown from the Midlands to the North covering a distance of 100 miles in 45 minutes. This compares with the usual three-hour train journey and allows much later clearance of postboxes for delivery next morning. The flying night mail van will in future supplement the daytime services.

Looking Ahead In Ottawa

$9,000-a-Year Job Open Must Take Headaches Too

OTTAWA, Nov. 7—(CP)—A $9,000-a-year job with large powers to probe multi-million-dollar corporations is open in the Federal Civil Service but the government doesn't expect any great flood of applications. It's a tough one and it can open wide the channels of unpopularity. It the job of Commissioner of the Combines Investigation Act, centre of the current controversy over flour prices.

Gregor because of differences with Justice Minister Garson over an investigation of the flour-milling industry.

Open, too, is the $5,700-a-year job of deputy commissioner I. M. McKeigan. The two resignations mean that two of the three top men in the government's anti-monopoly section are quitting next month.

A. S. Whiteley is the other deputy commissioner.

Tough Job

Unknown to the consuming public he seeks to defend, the commissioner has complete power to initiate investigations into what he thinks may be price-fixing activities by any industry Mr. McGregor has launched at least six since the war. He still is working on reports of two of them.

The others have caused considerable controversy in Parliament and activity in the courts.

The Commissioner can launch any probes he wishes and then he places his reports in the government's lap to act on as they see fit. It was what they did with his report on the flour firms—submitted 10 months ago — that prompted Mr. McGregor's re-resignation.

Although Mr. Garson has said flatly that the flour industry won't be prosecuted, he will table the report on it Monday. Some form of a rebu tal on its facts is expected to emerge from or through Donald Gordon, Deputy Governor of the Bank of Canada and former Price Board Chief.

Mr. Garson's opinion against prosecution was based on Mr. Gordon's advice affecting assurances given the flour industry and other industries in their wartime co-operation in maintaining price ceilings and rationing.

Statutes

The heavy job of revising the Statutes of Canada will go on for ment-appointed commission has been at work for months in the largest periodical revision of the country's laws, bringing them up to date since 1927.

Job of the commission is to consolidate all changes in the laws made over the last couple of decades, wrapping them together in a series of volumes for easy reference. Most of the basic work now has been done, but it will be a year before the job has been finally okayed by the commission and is ready for presentation to Parliament.

Net result will be a stack of books about two feet thick. It will have to be approved by Parliament, but the whole mass of changes will not be submitted to the lawmakers. A simple bill approving the revision will be introduced, probably at the 1951 session.

MINISTER AND HOSTS — Defence Minister Brooke Claxton (centre) who addressed the McGill University Contingent, COTC, is here seen flanked by his dinner hosts. Left is commanding officer Lt.-Col. Hamlet Of Cavan Requests Street Lightning

CAVAN, Nov. 7 — (ENS) — A petition from the hamlet of Cavan requesting the municipal township council to ask the Hydro Commission for an estimate of installation and yearly rate for six street lights was presented to the council last week. The required number of signatures was on the petition and the council decided to approach the Commission.

After Ray Dilling, township auditor reported the accounts from January to Oct. 31 it was decided to have them published for distribution at the nomination meeting.

The Baptie scholarship and $25 will be presented at the nomination meeting.

After Sydney Connell had told the council that he had not possessed a dog for the past year and a half, he was granted a $2 refund on his dog tax.

No action was taken on a request for a refund on property taxes made by D. White.

A. Breckenridge was appointed clerk in polling division one after it was stated that George Thorne declined to act.

The clerk was instructed to make out an agreement with Gordon McIntosh in settlement for land taken for construction on 14th line.

Fred Brown addressed the council about sheep killing.

Immigrant Likes Chance Home

HAMILTON, Nov. 7 (CP). — William Meikle, 25-year-old Scottish immigrant, knows now where he is supposed to be. But he is not going there.

He told police Thursday that he could not find his way back to a rooming-house where he rented a room and left his baggage, clothes and money the day he arrived from Bellshill, near Glasgow, Scotland. He said he hadn't jotted down the address, and the street layout confused him. Police made a check of rooming-houses. They found Meikle's belongings at a rooming-house on Park Street South in South-Central Hamilton.

But Meikle, who has been staying since Thursday at a Salvation Army hostel, says that, for the time being, he plans to remain at the hostel. It appears as good a place as any from which to study local geography.

HASTINGS, Nov. 7 (ENS) — Mrs. J. S. Stevenson entertained at four tables of euchre to honor Mrs. John Veals, who is leaving Hastings to live in Brantford, where Mr Veals has been transferred to The Royal Bank of Canada.

Prize winners were: Ladies' first, Mrs. L. W. Humphries; second. Mrs. J. Mulholland. Men's first, J. Mulholland, second John Veals. Consolation Alton Thompson.

Mrs. Alton Thompson read an address and Mrs. J. S. Stevenson presented a tea pot and two cups and saucers.

The hostess served lunch.

Reporter Now Mayor

MOOSE JAW, Nov. 7 (CP) — A newspaper reporter who covered meetings of the Moose Jaw City Council for 10 years, has given up his seat at the press table to take over the Mayor's chair. Louis H. Lewry, Moose Jaw correspondent for the Regina Leader-Post, has resigned his position, effective Dec. 31 to become the city's full-time mayor. He was elected Mayor this week after a two-year term as Alderman.

Services For Jasmin

MONTREAL, Nov. 7 (CP) — Funeral services will be held here Wednesday for Guy Jasmin, editor-in-chief of the Montreal newspaper Le Canada, and his mother, Mrs. Rachel Jasmin, both killed in the crash of an Air France Constellation in the Azores Oct. 28. Mr. Jasmin and his mother were among 48 persons aboard the airliner en route from Paris to New York when it crashed into the side of a mountain near Ponta Delgada, Sao Miguel.

ADULT INSURANCE AT BABY RATES

$5,000.00 PROTECTION and a lifetime Retirement Income
FOR LESS THAN $1.00 A WEEK

Insure your son now—for, say $1,000. You pay a Baby Premium. When your son reaches the age of 21, the amount of insurance payable becomes $5000 (5 times the original $1,000) yet the baby rate you pay at the start remains the same sum.

And note this—
The increased protection to $5,000 is automatic—no medical examination is required, so that at no time under this plan will your son become uninsurable by reason of unforeseen illness or accident.

THE SAME YEARLY BABY RATE CARRIES ON TO RETIREMENT AGE—NO INCREASE

60 YEARS OF SERVICE TO THE PUBLIC

This I Remember

When Franklin D. Roosevelt first became President, his wife Eleanor had definite ideas about making a family home of the White House. And she set about her household and social duties in no uncertain manner. Among her recollections are the holiday gatherings with her husband, children and grandchildren, and her mother-in-law's disgust at Franklin's decision to recognize Soviet Russia — in "This I Remember" by Eleanor Roosevelt, an EXTRA 8-page roto-gravure section in The Standard this week.

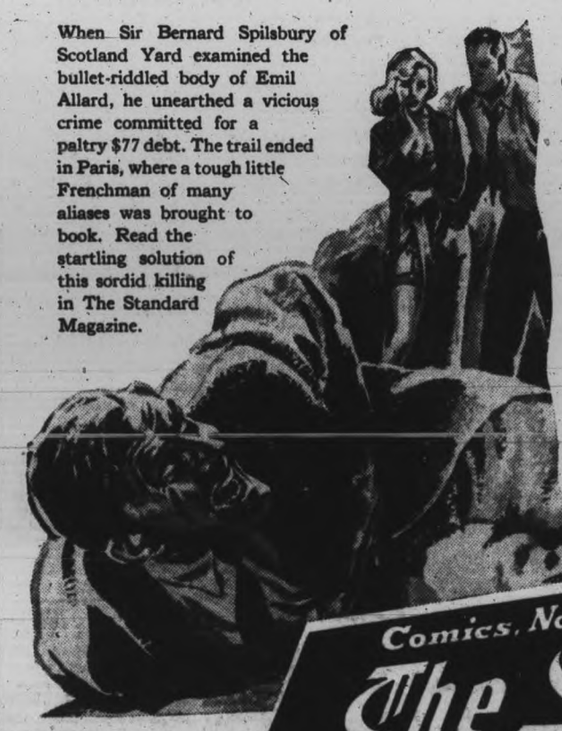
THE 77 DOLLAR MURDER

When Sir Bernard Spilsbury of Scotland Yard examined the bullet-riddled body of Emil Allard, he unearthed a vicious crime committed for a paltry $77 debt. The trail ended in Paris, where a tough little Frenchman of many aliases was brought to book. Read the startling solution of this sordid killing in The Standard Magazine.



LUCIO IS NO LONG HAIR

Radio listeners who dial Canadian dramatic shows are bound to hear the colourful music of Lucio Agostini. This dynamic composer-conductor, who earns $50,000 a year, amazes experts by the speed he turns out musical scores. But Lucio is no long-haired dreamer, as you'll find when you read the interesting career story of Lucio Agostini in The Standard Magazine.

Collegiate Junior Champs Of Lakeshore Grid District

Peterborough Collegiate juniors are champions of the Lakeshore District Football League. In Port Hope Saturday they showed their supremacy in the league as they ran the Oshawa Collegiate juniors ragged in a sudden-death game at Trinity College, 33-6. Oshawa had previously taken Cobourg Collegiate to earn the right to meet the locals.

One and a half minutes after the starting whistle PCVS scored their first touchdown and went on [illegible] second they rolled to a third [illegible] three plays after the kickoff in the second half [illegible] 23-6 at the three-quarter time. Two more touches were added in the fourth quarter by PCVS.

Oshawa had only one running play to compare with the plays of PCVS while their passing just wasn't. Stewart, playing his first game at the quarter position for PCVS, flipped five out of 11 successfully, two being touchdown passes. One passing play was tried by the Oshawa squad and at that the last of the game. It was incomplete.

Heavier Line

PCVS line was heavier than that of the Motor City which allowed them to break through leaving large holes for the plunging halfs to stream through. Several times in the second half the Oshawa line managed to seep through into the PCVS backfield to stem plays. Facendi at inside for PCVS played his usual steady game at that position while the defensive work of McIlwraith, Harrison and Galley was good. As for the pick of the offensive players Reg Fowler had an edge on Bill Stewart. Fowler averaged about seven yards per plunge for the afternoon while Stewart on the passing completed five out of 11. "Beetle" Craw and "Spin" Hope covered plenty of ground on their end skirts.

After six plays which carried the ball from the PCVS 43 to the OCVI 14 Craw zipped through centre for a major score which went unconverted. Minutes later Stewart booted for a point from the Oshawa 18. Plunges by Fowler and Craw took the ball from the PCVS 45 to OCVI 41. Here Stewart tossed seven yards to McIlraith who beat his way the rest of the way over for a touch. Fowler's kick was good for a point.

Midway through the second quarter Beaton booted from the Oshawa 45. Langhorne received and shook off three tacklers breaking into the clear and going for a [illegible] ed to a boil by this touchdown tore back up the field resulting in Hope at the 3-yard line scurrying around right end for a touch. Taking over again in the fourth Langhorne, Craw and Fowler took the ball to the three-yard line. Fowler easily completed the rest of the journey for the five points. His kick was again bad. On the third play from the end of the game Stewart threw a touchdown pass of 30 yards to Langhorne to finish the scoring.

OCVI — Flying wing, Cirka; halves, Varga, J. Kellar, Walsh; quarter, Langmaid; snap, Beaton; insides, Black, Vickery; middles, Scott, Colder; outsides, Sciuk, B. Kellar; alternates, Clark, Armstead, Bunner, Blasko, Hart, Matthews, McEachran, McTavish, Parry, Pratt, Richards, Riseborough, Sutherland, Valintine.

PCVS — Flying wing, Langhorne; halves, Hope, Craw, Fowler; quarter, Stewart; snap, Howe; insides, Facendi, Grafstein; middles, White, Forbes; outsides, McIlwraith, Galley; alternates, Outram, Clapper, Buckland, Ward, Ferguson, Scriver, Fortner, Floyd, Harrison Young Jameson Johnston.

PCVS Seniors Gain First Over Belleville

Bev Goulding's PCVS seniors defeated Belleville CVI 18-11 Saturday as COSSA semi-finals began at the Oval before a fine young crowd of rabid football fans.

Although outplayed in the first quarter and down 11-0, Red [illegible] thereafter, scored two touchdowns and made a good [illegible] it, though PCVS [illegible]

"Army" 'Good

Roy Armstrong, who played a smashing game, scored mid-way in the first as he gained 25 yards on an off-tackle plunge to Belleville 13 where Sergeant sneaked for yards. Brown gained two and "Army" charged for a major. He also converted from placement. Later, he and Jensen combined on two beautiful passing plays, the latter clutching a 35 yard toss to the rival 20 and another to the two. Brown then carried over but the convert failed. Armstrong kicked a single to Allen early in the second.

Belleville fought hard to offset PCVS' early margin but Goulding's well-balanced squad were not to be denied and stubbornly resisted the best CVI could show with the front line good and the alternate squad outstanding. A single near the half as Knox and Gary Robinson nailed Allen behind his line on Armstrong's kick made it 13-0.

Quinte Score

Belleville scored in the third as a PCVS fumble gave McBride possession on his 45 and after running it to PCVS 18, he tossed to Doran on first down for a major which Buchanan converted. PCVS added the winning score early in the fourth as an interference penalty ruled a local pass good to the rival 20 where Sergeant again made yards on a quarterback sneak and Brown recovered Armstrong's pass on the five, then scored unconverted on next down. Belleville clicked on a beauty at the 10 minute mark to wind up the scoring as McBride ran all the way around left end from PCVS 45 past the king row. The convert failed.

Belleville—Flying wing, McMillan; halves, McBride, Walmsley, Massey; quarter, Locke; snap, Mayzer; insides, Brown, Green; middles, Varley, Burley; outsides, Faulkner, Ketcheson; alternates, Galbraith, Doucett, Allen, Irwin, Culbertson, Moore, Buchanan, Doran, Ewald, Rose, Coughlin, Connolly.

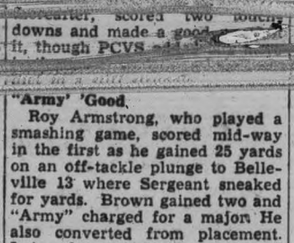
PCVS—Flying wing, Grafstein; halves, Armstrong, Evans, Brown; quarter, Sergeant; snap, Killingbeck; insides, Grant, Jopling; middles, Knox, Lowes; outsides, Ward, Jensen; alternates, Wood, Taylor, Gandy, Golaska, J. Burns, Telford, Curtis, Grainger, Coon, G. Burns, G. Robinson, Northey.

Officials: D. Worton, D. Duncan and J. Kirkwood.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC PERDUE, Sports Editor.

PCVS juniors mopped up Oshawa at TCS on Saturday aft to the tune of 33-6. A sudden-death for lakeshore group honors, Alex Londry's large Garnet and Gray gridders now moving into COSSA playdowns 'gainst the Quinte victor. They started early against the young Motor Citizens and rolled right along, but for one setback, to earn the duke handily. Galley, Harrison, McIlraith and Facendi went well defensively, with Fowler good on the attack. Others who really aided the cause were Stewart, Hope and Craw. Stewart completed five of 11 passes. [illegible]



At the [illegible] defeated [illegible] COSSA semi-finals. Next one is this coming Saturday and we believe it'll be here, too. The Quinte crew made it a real scrap all the way with McBride, Allen, Doran, Galbraith, Buchanan and Locke standing out for them. Armstrong was real good for PCVS with Sergeant, Brown, Lowes, Jopling, Jensen, Killingbeck and Coon all turning in a neat effort. Brown of Belleville suffered an injured back and Knox of our Collegians had more tough luck to bump into a slight case of concussion. PCVS clicked on six of 12 passes. They were minus Northcott.

Puckists Plan Games

Local OHA clubs are training hard these nights and getting in some exhibition games as they prepare for group play later this month. Legion are off tonight for Stouffville, the Petes meet Lindsay Meteors here Wednesday, and the Oddfellows have North York here on Friday. Legion may arrange a tilt in Kingston shortly, too. Frank Buckland will be lining up an OHA senior "B" meeting of this area any day now, and no doubt the juniors are doing something toward getting a grouping in action ere too long. As long as we have artificial ice, the puck clubs here might as well be using it.

Four of the PMHA officers took in the OMHA meeting of refs, coaches and managers the other night in Omemee, under chairmanship of Bert Hick of Lindsay. Two dozen of the district attended and Pat Patterson—of the OHA refereeing staff—outlined rule changes and policy for this season. The refs are under orders to be tough on boarding and high-sticking penalties, even if it means throwing off two dozen or so a game. These OMHA meetings are to get uniformity in refereeing and to prepare minor officials for future work in the OHA. The OMHA residence rule is one year before Nov. 1 of the playing season, unless with special permission, so teams can't be packed for playdowns.

* * * * * *

Red Wore It Anyway

An OHA rule this year permits the wearing of a small mask in the case of a player having an injured eye or if he wears glasses during play. Pat Patterson explained that this rule was finally passed as a result of an argument in Kingston several seasons back when Red Creighton—who suffered an eye injury at work—came out on the ice for the Petes with a mask to protect that eye. The Kingston squad (always great kickers) squawked about the pad, but eventually permitted Creighton to continue with it. Now, it is legal. Goalies have worn masks before in hockey as in lacrosse and there has been talk of making it compulsory for net-minders, in order to prevent eye injuries.

Menzies, Sr. Plenty of activity ahead in sporting and social functions for this large shop association. The bowlers and hockeyists are hard at it now, the latter getting away last week and playing each Saturday a.m. in the arena.

PMHA To Open Schedules Next Monday

At the meeting Friday night the P.M.H.A. schedule committee announced that the opening of the 1949-50 schedule would be Monday Nov. 14 instead of Nov. 7 as previously announced. The four [illegible]

(Midgets) Marines vs. Trojans; 7-8 p.m. (Juveniles) Oddfellows vs. Clappers.

All players are asked to be dressed and ready to start on time To avoid misunderstanding the league decided that the season tickets now on sale for one dollar would be good for 15 admissions and that more than one person could enter on one ticket The ticket, however, would be punched once for each person admitted. The northend bantams have been scratched from the schedule and will not be a member of P.M.H.A. this season. Any boys from this team who wish to play hockey should contact Mr. F. Lundy of the Trojan bantams at the Turner Park Clubhouse, Monday night Nov. 7. The clubhouse is located on the corner of High St. and Chamberlain. The following exhibition game will be played: Monday night, Nov. 7, 6.00 p.m. (Midgets) Marines vs South-end.

All teams are getting in shape for the opening schedule and any boys not playing should show up at the practices and see the coach of the teams, giving him their names. Only certificate can be signed by each boy and any boy found signing more than one certificate without first getting a clearance from his coach will be dealt with by the P.M.H.A. executive.

Following is the practice schedule for the week. Monday, 6-7 p.m., Marines Midgets; 6-7 p.m., Clappers Juveniles. Tuesday no practices. Wednesday, 6-8 p.m., Keene. Thursday, no practices. Friday, 6-7 p.m., Trojan Midgets; 7-8 p.m. South-End Midgets; Saturday 5-6 p.m. Trojans Juveniles, 6-7 p.m. Oddfellows Juveniles.

The next meeting of the league will be held at the Y.M.C.A. Thursday Nov. 10. There has been no change in the meeting place. But the time has been changed to 8.00 p.m. All coaches and managers are asked to be at the next meeting which is the last one before the regular schedule begins.

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

Leo Dandurand, fiery president of Montreal Alouettes and next in line for presidency of the Big Four, is pressing for an "independent" to head Canada's top football operation.

Dandurand was one of the central figures in last week's squabble betwee the Als and Ottawa Roughriders over Bib Four playoff dates.

[illegible] at Montreal Saturday that he will refuse the Interprovincial Rugby Football Union presidency at the annual meeting next January and revive his two-year-old motion for an outsider without team affiliations to head the league and serve without salary.

Under the Big Four rotating system, heads of the various clubs take turns at presiding over the IRFU and Dandurand, now the league's first vice-president, will have his turn next year.

He said football's best interests "can be served by bringing in as president an individual free from any prejudicial ties within the league."

Amid reports of a possible gambling "deal" the Michigan Boxing Commission Saturday at Detroit cleared two suspended officials in the Kid Gavilan-Lester Felton fight.

The Commission, exonerating referee Morrie Sherman and a suspended fight judge, closed its investigation but a police inquiry continued.

Police Commissioner Harry S. Toy said the fight still had an "aroma" and that he would go on with an inquiry until "satisfied" all anges had been covered.

At the same time Toy reported evidence obtained in a gambling club raid led to further suspicion of a betting deal in the Oct. 21 bout.

One hundred and eight—three bonus players will be tossed to major league baseball club owners—along with approximately 6,000 others—when the annual draft meeting is held at Cincinnati Nov. 17.

A bonus player is one who is paid to sign a contract by a particular club and he is so designated throughout his career. They come from every league classification in baseball—from the American Association and International League—the AAA circuits—down to class D.

Freddie Mills, British holder of the world light heavyweight boxing championship, will defend his title against Joey Maxim in London Jan. 24 next, it was announced at London Saturday.

The contest will take place at Earl's Court Stadium, which has a seating capacity of nearly 20,000.

The fight is being presented by London promoter Jack Solomons in conjunction with Harringay

At St. Adele, Que., the Canadian Ski Instructors' Alliance Sunday re-elected Louis Cochand, of nearby Ste. Marguerite, as its president and announced that its annual school for professionals would be held at Mount Tremblant Dec. 1-6.

Travelling ski schools with personnel from the Laurentian region would operate early in 1950 at Huntsville and Fort William, Ont., and possibly La Riviere, Man.

A new $125,000 community arena in the Toronto suburb of Weston opened its doors Saturday to a capacity crowd of more than 3,000 persons.

Owen Sound's entry in the Midget National Hockey League put the rink's sports activity under way with a 7-4 victory over Stratford. Free skating was held after the game.

Frank Skaff, of Baltimore, was signed Sunday to a one-year contract as manager of the International Baseball League's Buffalo Bisons.

Skaff, a former Baltimore Orioles infielder, managed the Savannah club in the Class-A Sally League last season. He succeeds Paul Richards as manager of the Bisons.

Curling News

By Herb Martin

Tonight we begin our 1949-50 curling season, and no doubt many anxious members will be on hand. It's always that way the first few days.

Many will be taking the ice for the first time, and especially to these do we give a hearty welcome. The old timers are quite capable of taking care of themselves.

There is no special program for the first few days and the committees are hoping that the experienced curlers will come out and give a hand to the new players. We were all beginners at one time and it makes a green curler feel at home, at once, if the old boys walk up with a firm clasp of the hand, or a slap on the back and say, "Mighty glad to see you here."

This game of curling is giving recreation and entertainment to thousands of enthusiasts throughout Canada and part of the U.S.A. every winter; it's a great game and produces good sportsmanship. Let's leave it at that. Let's all dig in this season and have a good time. Let's make all the best shots we can and hope for some of the breaks as well.

Yukon Eric To Appear On All-Star Mat Card

Professional wrestling resumes, after a week's layoff, Thursday night in the Brock Arena with Seelie Samara clashing with Sky Hi Lee in the main bout. The colored Seelie, in his one previous appearance here, proved a popular, capable and colorful grappler. He is strong and fast, with a flock of holds applied in a flash, and Samara has his own steel-trap system of breaking grips. The Negro also likes to use his hammer-head on rough opponents. Towering Hi Lee is one of the biggest and roughest wrestlers to show in Peterborough, and this main match between him and Samara should be the tidbit of the season.

Wladesk Kowalski, hard-hitting Pole is put up in the semi-final spot against speedy Joe Christie in what shapes up as another fine fracas. The prelim features Red O'Malley, the unmasked Red Devil, and a newcomer in lumberjack Yukon Eric. He has been a sensation in other Canadian bouts and is sure to thrill a large local and district crowd of mat fans here Thursday night.

Belleville Man Heads Ontario Lawn Bowlers

TORONTO, Nov. 7—(CP)—H. Clifford Argue, of Belleville, was elected president of the Ontario Lawn Bowling Association at the Association's annual meeting Saturday. He succeeds Lloyd T. Spalding, of Hamilton.

Matt W. Telfer, of Parkhill, was elected vice-president and Ray R. Knight was returned secretary-treasurer.

On the question of awards, the Association decided to present sets of bowls instead of another blazer to repeat winners of championships. Players involved were Jack Knowles, of Beamsville, who retained his 1948 singles title, and John Blackwood and William Lang, both of the Ontario Hospital Club of Hamilton, who kept their doubles honors.

A. A. Langford, of London, was presented with a past secretary's medal by Dr. W. Krupp, of Woodstock, the organization's first president, who will attempt to bring Canada the British Empire Games single lawn bowling championship from New Zealand next February.

St. Paul Saints Blast Minneapolis 4-3

By The Associated Press

St. Paul defeated Minneapolis 4-3 on Gus Schwartz's dramatic goal at 19.09 of the final in the United States Hockey League Sunday night.

The Saints blasted at the Minneapolis net so furiously Goalie Harry McQueston had to make 47 stops, 20 of them in the last period. McQueston didn't have a chance to stop Schwartz's winning shot, however, as it came from directly in front of the goal.

Kansas City downed Tulsa 5-3 to gain some revenge for two previous defeats by the Oilers. The game was peaceful enough through the first period, but got rather rough thereafter. A fight between Johnny Harms, Kansas City, and Tulsa's Nick Knott climaxed the rugged stuff.

Tulsa tripped Omaha 5-1 and Minneapolis defeated Kansas City 5-4 in Saturday games.

Optimists Win

The Optimist bantams defeated Lakefield Lions 6-1 in an exhibition puck tilt Saturday in Civic Arena, as Southend midgets won 6-0 from Optimists. The bantam tilt was clean and saw some good hockey for so early in the season. Kane counted early with Wasson tying it up. Weir and Davis put the Optimists in front 3-1. Innes and McDougall added goals in a close-checking second period and Roberts counted in the third to end it. Kane, Stewart and Roberts looked good for the winners, with Wasson the pick of the visitors.

Hockey's Big Seven

By The Canadian Press.

Sid Abel of Detroit and Doug Bentley, Chicago, matched strides during the week-end to come out on top of the National Hockey League scoring parade, each with 12 points. Deadlocked in second place—each with six goals and five assists—are Metro Prystai, Chicago, Paul Ronty, Boston, and Ted Lindsay, Detroit. Another point behind with 10 points, are Bill Mosienko and Roy Conacher, Chicago, and Cal Gardner, Toronto.

The leaders:	G	A	Pts
Abel, Detroit	5	7	12
Bentley, Chicago	3	9	12
Prystai, Chicago	6	5	11
Ronty, Boston	6	5	11

Car Racer Killed

DEL MAR, Calif., Nov. 7—(AP)—Automobile racer Rex Mays, 35, one of the country's leading speedsters, was killed in a race here Sunday. Mays, who was named national champion by the American Automobile Association for 1940-41, was fatally injured on the 13th lap of a 100-mile A.A.A. race. He was running second to Jim Davies, of Los Angeles, when his car was hit by one driven by Johnny Parsons on the south turn. Thrown onto the middle of the track, he was hit by two other cars.

Millbrook Loop

MILLBROOK, Nov. 7 (ENS)—Following is the standing of the local bowling teams for the week ending Nov. 5: Bank of Toronto 5, Winslow 5, McDowell 5, Chek R. Chin 5, Medd 4, Wright 3, Farr 2, Sanders 2, Fickling 2, Deacon 2, Lancashire, Ball. Ladies high triple went to Nancy Richards with 640 as Mrs. Vanderburgh led in singles with 300. L. Winslow led men in singles with 324 and in threesomes with 714.

Attention, All Boxers!

I have been instructed by the Peterborough Administrative Boxing Council to announce that Ashburnham Half on Hunter Street East, has been made available as training quarters for our new Peterborough Boxing Club. The Local Administrative Boxing Council, made up of representatives from fourteen service clubs in this city, and operating as a non-profit community service, intend using Ashburnham Hall throughout the Winter on Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings from seven to nine o'clock.

A cordial invitation to make use of our training facilities is extended to all persons interested in this sport. To parents of the younger lads, may I suggest that you signify your consent to their participation by accompanying them on their initial visit. There, it can be seen that our training methods constitute an attempt to develop character and true sportsmanship in ALL—rather than championship material in a FEW.

While only part of our previously ordered training equipment has arrived to date, it has been decided that the Peterborough Boxing Club will open on Monday evening, November 7th, as originally planned.

Sincerely Yours,
A. RON MENZIES,
Secretary,
Peterborough Administrative Boxing Council

Wings Come Up Swinging Grab 2 Games, Take Lead

By JACK MITCHELL,
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

Jolly Jack Adams made it clear his own Detroit Red Wings were included when he reflected aloud that anyone betting on National Hockey League games should be measured for a strait-jacket, what with the absence of anything like form.

So what did the Red Wings immediately do? They came up with the most form-full showing of the season with two week-end victories that put them all alone on top of the standings.

Montreal now have played nine of their 70 games. Those two each have played 10.

Wings Look Good

The Wings looked good in their hard-hitting game against Toronto. Between trying to dodge thumping body-checks tossed indiscriminately by wild Bill Ezinicki, they played a 1-1 stalemate in the first period went ahead 3-1 only to see Leafs tie it up with two third period goals and finally went ahead with seven minutes remaining.

Ted Lindsay fired the winning [illegible] crowd of 13,795 to break their first place tie with the Leafs. Then they went back home and blanked New York Rangers 7-0 Sunday night before a Detroit crowd of 12,254.

Coach Hap Day's Leafs kept two points behind the Wings meantime by going on to take the fourth place Black Hawks' measure 4-2 before a Sunday night Chicago crowd of 17,018. In the other Saturday night game, Boston Bruins tied the third place Canadiens 3-3 before 12,603 Montreal fans and thereby climbed into a last-place tie with Rangers.

All six clubs except Boston and were scored by Abel, George Gee and Pete Babando, with Gee also getting an assist in Babando's. Captain Ted Kennedy netted two Toronto goals and Cal Gardner the other.

Goalie Harry Lumley turned in his second shutout as the Wings looked even better against Rangers. They scored four in the first and three in the second, then coasted home in a scoreless finale.

Jerry Couture started the scoring early in the first period with two tallies within 17 seconds on the harrassed Chuck Rayner. Lindsay netted his sixth of the season, Gord Howe made it 4-0 and Max McNab, Marty Pavelich and Jimmy Peters completed the runaway. Though Abel didn't score, he picked up two assists to tie Chicago's Doug Bentley for the individual point-scoring lead with 12 points.

Snap Winning Streak

The Leafs snapped the Hawks' three-game winning streak at Chicago. The Hawks led on two occasions before Toronto went ahead on Howie Meeker's second period goal and clinched it on Joe Klukay's third-period tally. The opening period ended in a 2-2 draw after Bill Mosienko and rookie Bert Olmstead scored for Chicago and Gardner and Harry Watson fo Toronto.

Ed Harrison's third period goal gave Boston their tie at Montreal. Outside of that, all the scoring came in the second period when Canadiens took a 3-2 lead on two tallies by Maurice (Rocket) Richard and one by Elmer Lach. Johnny Peirson scored twice for Bruins.

Lewicki Helps Marlies Whip Barrie 5-1

By The Canadian Press.

Coach Syl Aps of the Toronto Marlboros has had hockey's No. 1 problem child—Danny Lewicki—thrown in his capable lap. He's happy about the whole thing.

Lewicki, a 19-year-old product of Fort William was placed on hockey's black list before [illegible] soh started when he failed to [illegible] up to C form commitments to [illegible] last week, he made his first hockey appearance Saturday. He aided the Dukes to a 5-1 victory over Barrie Flyers and first place in the Ontario Hockey Association junior race.

Apps had reason to be happy. Although Lewicki didn't score any goals he picked up an assist as he teamed up with high-scoring George Armstrong and Jack McKenzie in veteran-like fashion.

In three other junior games during the week-end, Galt Black Hawks moved into a fourth place tie with Toronto St. Michael's College by defeating Guelph Biltmores 6-1, St. Mike's gained a 3-0 victory over the lowly Stratford Kroehlers and Oshawa Generals moved into a sixth-place tie by beating Windsor Spitfires 6-5.

Edge Dutchmen

In two senior games, Toronto Marlboros whipped Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen 3-2 at Waterloo to protect their three-point hold on first place and Owen Sound Mercurys remained in second place with a 3-1 win over Hamilton Tigers.

At Toronto the Dukes piled up two goals in the first period with George Aitken, a first-year man in Junior A company, and Armstrong the marksmen.

The Lewicki-Armstrong-McKenzie line started clicking in the second period but not until the third did their efforts pay off when Lewicki and Larry Regan set up Amstrong's second goal. It was McKenzie from Armstrong at the nine-minute mark and fyles four minutes and 37 seconds later.

Jerry Toppazzini soloed through Marlies to beat netminder Don Lockhart for the lone Barrie marker.

The Irish presented goaler Lorne Howes with his first shutout of the season as they defeated the Kroehlers.

St. Michael's took the lead late in the first period when Rod Roy scored from Bill Dineen. Red Ingoldsby came back seconds later to put Toronto ahead 2-0. Willie Marshall tallied at 16:23 of the final session.

Make It Close

At Oshawa, the Spitfires made it close when they came from behind a 5-2 count to score three goals in the third period and tie the game before the Generals tallied the winning marker.

Reg. Campbell broke up the heated game when he scored on a pass from Don Hall in the third period.

Other Oshawa marksmen were Doug Towers, Louie Jankowski, Reg. Campbell, Pollard, O'Connor and Samolenko. Earl Riebel tallied two for Windsor, followed up with singles by Joss, Grosse and Glen Skov.

The Black Hawks found their scoring legs shortly after Guelph took a 1-0 lead on Don Oberholtzer's goal in the second period.

Dick Wolstenholme tied it up minutes later and Galt took the lead on a goal by Ken Green while the Biltmores were shorthanded. Jack Green and George Ford followed up with one apiece before the period ended.

Norm Prest and Warren Godfrey added a goal in the third period.

Cobourg Goes Into Final As Orillia Out

COBOURG, Nov. 7 (ENS)—Defeating Orillia by a score of 14-12 in Cobourg on Saturday, the Cobourg Galloping Ghosts qualified for a berth in the Ontario ORFU Intermediate "A" finals against Dundas. The win was Cobourg's second of the two-game series with Orillia, giving the [illegible] found on total points, [illegible] Although they were [illegible] lead into the first [illegible] Silver Bombers appeared to be on the verge of handing their opponents their first loss in two seasons of play. Orillia enjoyed a big margin in territorial play for the first half as a result of the excellent passing arm of halfback Jim Milligan. Milligan almost passed the Ghosts out of the playoffs, throwing both long and short spirals with uncanny accuracy to his teammates.

The Ghosts opened the scoring early in the first quarter when Cooper kicked a single from his own 45 yard line that bounced behind Orillia's goal where White was downed.

Orillia scored their first touchdown following a series of passes by Milligan which culminated in a long 25 yard heave from the Cobourg fifteen to Street who took the ball on the run behind the line to give his team their first major. Milligan converted with a clean placement to make the score 6-1.

Orillia Ahead

Early in the second quarter the Ghosts made it 6-3 when they pounced on Bond behind his own line following a fumble, on an attempted kick for a safety touch. Milligan accounted for Orillia's second and final touchdown midway through the second stanza, heaving another perfect pass, this one to French who took the ball, going over the line for a major, Milligan again made the conversion to give his team a 12-3 halftime lead.

The Ghosts staged a comeback in the last half which saw them score the winning touchdown with but minutes of play remaining. Cooper made it 12-5 early in the third quarter on two successive kicks that went for singles.

Cooper set the stage for Cobourg's next scoring play with an interception of a pass by Milligan to give the Ghosts possession on the Bombers' 35. A few plays later Art Jones split the uprights with a perfect placement from 16 yards out to pull the Ghosts within four points of a tie. With seven minutes of play remaining disaster struck the Ghosts in the form of a broken finger received by playing coach and quarterback Bob Cooper who picked up the injury in knocking down a pass by Milligan. However the Cobourg drive was not to be denied as halfback Bob Bevan intercepted Milligan's next pass to give Cobourg the ball on their own 30. Glen Connor then skirted the end for a 34 yard gallop to put the Ghosts inside Orillia territory. Bevan plunged for another first down and when two plays failed Hamilton kicked to Orillia's one. Orillia failed to make yards, in three plays and the ball reverted to Cobourg 18 yards away from a touchdown. Quigley, Connor, Hamilton and Medhurst each carried the ball in that order to account for Cobourg's game winning touchdown which Jones converted to make the score 14-12.

Alouettes Crush Argos; Stampeders Win

(By The Canadian Press)

While the east still talks playoffs in both Grey Cup and Senior Intercollegiate divisions, Calgary Stampeders are figureatively half way to Toronto to defend their Canadian football title.

Coach Les Lear's Stampeders showed their power in defeating Saskatchewan Rough riders 18-12 at Regina Saturday in the opening game of the Western Interprovincial Union playoffs. The winner of the two-game, total-points series will represent the West in the Grey Cup classic at Toronto's [illegible] Calgary on Friday, Remembrance Day.

With nothing much at stake, the East's schedule windups ran fairly well to form. The size of Alouettes' 35-2 victory over Toronto Argonauts at Montreal was a surprise. In the other Big Four game, Hamilton Wildcats again put up a stiff fight but lost 19-11 to the Riders at Ottawa to finish with a pointless record in 12 starts.

In the Ontario Union, Tigers made sure of first place by drubbing the tail-end Toronto Balmy Beach 39-7 at Hamilton as Halfback Jackie Stewart scored all six Tiger touchdowns. Sarnia, Hamilton's playoff opponents, meantime lost 11-1 to the third-place Windsor Rockets.

Queen's Tie Mustangs

The Intercollegiate Union provided most of the East's football thrills as McGill defeated University of Toronto 12-8 at Toronto and Queen's tied Western Mustangs 18-18 at London, Ont. The tie eliminated Queen's title chances but, with the schedule winding up this Saturday, the other three all are still in the running.

The only bright spot of Argonauts dismal season came with the announcement that Royal Copeland had won the Jeff Russel trophy as the player deemed most valuable to his Big Four team on the basis of playing ability and sportsmanship. Similarly, Hamilton Wildcats were [illegible] in Toronto Sunday. The winners were crosen by vote of the four clubs, who all nominated candidates.

Wagner Stars

In the other Big Four game at Montreal, import Virgil Wagner clinched eastern scoring honors again by racking up two touchdowns and a convert against Argos to bring his 12-game total to 77 points. McCance converted two of Alouettes six touchdowns and kicked a single to take second place with 63 points.

Stewart's six-touchdown game at Hamilton, believed a record in modern Canadian football history, still didn't win the Tiger half top scoring laurels in the Ontario Union. He finished with 45 kicking expert whose points were points in 11 games, two less than team-mate Joe Capriotti, a place-all made by his toe.

McGill Redmen played a near-perfect game to topple Toronto's Blues before a Varsity Stadium crowd of more than 20,000. They tried only four forwards and completed four compared to Varsity's eight of 28, fumbled the ball only once to Varsity while recovering three Blues bobbles, and made good with majors on their only two real scoring chances.

Queen's almost snared the victory over western that would have kept their title chances alive, leading 18-12 as late as the last quarter. But Mustangs, even without the injured Jack Parry and Bob McFarlane, again showed their famed closing drive when Blake Taylor plunged for a major and Doug Gray converted to tie the score.

An Odd Situation

The tie caused an odd situation in the Intercollegiate title race, due to the rule that says a post-season playoff is held only if the first-place team has been beaten or tied twice by the second-place club during the regular schedule. Western now is one point ahead [illegible] previous meeting. Should McGill win, they would meet Western in a sudden-death playoff for the crown. But if Western should beat McGill, Varsity then would have a chance because, by beating Queen's, the Blues would tie McGill for second place.

The Blues, who beat Western once, then would play off with McGill for second place and if they win would play Western for the title. A McGill victory in this game would automatically make Mustangs champions.

Diesbourg Resigns From Dutchmen Club

KITCHENER, Nov. 7—(CP)—Art Diesbourg has resigned as an executive member of the Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen Club, Ontario Hockey Association Senior League entry.

Diesbourg sent his resignation to President Walter Weber in a letter Saturday. Diesbourg told reporters the move follows a series of differences with other executives.

He said the matter came to a head following an alleged statement by another executive on the signing of Goalie Bev Bentley. Diesbourg says he arranged the deal.

He voiced no criticism of the coaching and management of the team on the ice.

Find Missing Hunter

TIMAGAMI, Nov. 7 — (CP).—Five days after he wandered from a bush trail here, 50 miles north of North Bay, Robert H. Blacklock, 19, of Nanton, Alta., was found Sunday by a hunting party. He had been without food since Wednesday. In his wanderings he almost wore out the soles of his shoes. For four nights he sleep in the open, warmed by brush fires. Blacklock was married three weeks ago.

Barons Leading Race To Title

By The Canadian Press.

"Break up the Barons" is the cry of opposing teams in the western division of the American Hockey League today.

For even at this early stage of the schedule Cleveland Barons are showing unmistakable signs of making it strictly a one-team dash for the league crown this season.

[illegible] dianapolis Capitals 4-3 and Sunday they held Cincinnati Mohawks to a 3-3 tie. It was their fifth consecutive game without a defeat.

They now lead their closest rivals, Indianapolis and St. Louis Flyers, who are deadlocked for second place, by six points. The Flyers moved into second place Sunday with a 3-2 decision over the Caps.

Meanwhile, in the league's eastern section there was a closer scramble for top billing.

New Haven Ramblers vaulted over Buffalo Bisons into first place with a pair of week-end wins.

The Rams outscored Pittsburgh Hornets 3-1 Saturday and hung a 4-2 loss on the Bisons Sunday at New Haven.

Scott Reeve Dies

UXBRIDGE, Nov. 7 — (CP)—E. Bertwin Blackburn, 63, Reeve of Scott Township, near this Ontario County community, died from a heart attack Sunday. A graduate of Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph, Mr. Blackburn was well known as a breeder of prize Aberdeen-Angus cattle which he displayed at cattle shows in many parts of the United States and Canada.

Medical Council Reconsiders Vitamin E Use

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON, Nov. 7 —(CP)—Britain's Medical Research Council is to reconsider claims made on behalf of a Canadian-developed therapy for heart diseases.

Cyril Dumpleton, Labor, told the House of Commons he will submit new information regarding Alpha-Tocopherol, a vitamin E treatment developed by Dr. Evan Shute of London, Ont.

Herbert Morrison, Deputy Prime Minister, said Research Council tests did not confirm suggestions that vitamin E should be used in "routine treatment" of Angina Pectoris. But he promised to forward Dumpleton's informa-

Sir Henry Morris-Jones, National Liberal, said "highly reputable" investigators in a Canadian clinic obtained spectacular results with the treatment.

Obtains Evidence

Dumpleton said later in an interview that he is obtaining evidence on the Canadian treatment for a Menzies Sharpe, Director of a Hertfordshire Laboratory specializing in hormone and vitamin products.

Sharpe told The Canadian Press he believes the Research Council has been unable to obtain good results because it used synthetic instead of natural vitamin E, and possibly because the required dosage was not given.

Sharpe said he has countless letters from patients as testimonials for the pill patients had asked him to propose Dr. Shute as a Nobel Prize candidate.

"As far as I am concerned," he said, "I regard this new treatment as the greatest advance in medicine since the introduction of insulin in 1922."

Recognition by the Research Council would pave the way for its use in Britain's National Health Service.

Andrews Thinks Television Field For Actors

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 7 (AP)—Here is how one movie star looks at the impending menace of television.

The star is Dana Andrews. His views aren't the snap judgments thinking about TV. He was part of a Screen Actors Guild group that went east to discuss plans for unionizing T. V. talent. He has studied the field and comes to this conclusion:

"Hollywood doesn't have to worry about television for another five years. Even after five years, Hollywood need not worry —if it can continue making good pictures."

The actor foresees that the majority of T. V. entertainment will eventually be on film. "Programs on films will be much more economical than those televised live," he said.

He predicted this would prove a boon for film actors.

Movie actors preferred

"Even now, men in television tell me that they much prefer to work with people with movie experience. The reason is that film actors are accustomed to working with cameras; they know how to stay within the camera's range."

He added that video can never successfully invade the movies' realm of feature pictures.

"There are a few good pictures available to telecasters, but the big studios will never let their pictures go."

Poet Lariat

The many admirers of the famed poet lariat will enjoy reading the newly - published "autobiography of Will Rogers." edited by Donald Day. I most enjoyed Will's suggestions on how to improve the movie industry. They were written in 1920, but might apply today.

Some of them:

Use your audience for a press agent intead of hiring one.

Don't tell your audience what your picture cost, they know what they were stung by the price of admission.

There is only one thing that can kill the movies, and that is education.

If the movies want to advance, all they have to do is not get new stories but do the old ones as they were written.

Ask Rent Control

TORONTO Nov. 7 (CP) — The Ontario CCF party Sunday asked Ontario's Progressive Conservative government to take immediate action on rent control powers: In a statement released Sunday, the CCF said that partial decontrol by the federal government last week—which allowed rent increases up to 25 per cent—has permitted rent increases totalling almost 45 per cent in about two years.

Anglican Guild Meets At Mrs. Shea's Home

WARKWORTH, Nov. 7 (ENS) —The Guild of St. John's Anglican Church held the October meeting at the home of Mrs. Roy Shea.

Several finished articles were sold and the ladies made plans to make a dresden plate quilt. A box of food was packed for England. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Hunter.

The hostess served a lunch and Mrs. A. Menellley moved a vote of thanks.

YOU'LL ENJOY THE FRESH COOL FLAVOUR OF A BUCKINGHAM

The year was 1835 ...

. . . young Canada trudged off to school with a stick of firewood under his arm! For in that year an enterprising schoolmaster named John Holmes opened one of the nation's earliest schools. He called it "The Nursery of Science," with Mrs. Holmes in charge of the "Female Department." In addition to a fee of from 12s 6d to 20s per quarter, each pupil was required to supply his share of the fuel!

Holmes had made a start toward our present educational system—but it was many years before schools were free to all in Canada. Through those years it was public opinion expressed by vote that finally forced action.

When YOU cast your secret ballot at every election—municipal, provincial, federal—you exercise a duty and privilege planned, worked and fought for by your forefathers. Your vote protects the future of your children. To fail in this duty is to be less than a good citizen.

Great Heritage Ignored By Men, Women

Members of branches 52 and 452 (Elizabeth Smellie) and the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Canadian Legion joined with the congregation of St. Luke's Anglican Church Sunday afternoon for their annual Remembrance Day church parade.

...alling in at the Legion Hall at 2:30, the veterans were paraded to the church by the CGE Pipe Band. Following the service they paraded back to the hall. The Ladies' Auxiliary of branch 52 joined the veterans at the church...

...vice Rev. Walter Gilling, MBE, chaplain of Branch 52, Canadian Legion, formerly Principal Chaplain (P), Canadian Army Overseas and now rector at St. Luke's Church, officiated at the dedication of the colors to the Elizabeth Smellie branch of the Canadian Legion.

Mr. Gilling told his comrades during the sermon that each one of them owes a great debt to the past and has a great responsibility for the present as well as a great obligation towards the fallen of both world wars.

What Has Been Accomplished?

Reminding them that it is four years since the second great conflict ceased and 31 years since the First World War ended, he asked them what has been accomplished in the years between. Mr. Gilling admitted that some material progress was made in the line of better jobs, homes and other living conditions but questioned what had been done for the debt to the past and the obligation towards those who did not return. He summed up the accomplishments for these two in the words that became the watchword of the Canadian Army after Germany's defeat, "I couldn't care less."

"This democracy to which you and I belong has emerged from a profoundly religious civilization," explained Mr. Gilling, "and although our communist friends may say that it could have grown as well from irreligious roots, the fact is that it did not."

Mr. Gilling added that some of the most formative institutions go back in the unbroken tradition to the Catholic Middle Ages, and a religious atmosphere clings to them to this day.

Mr. Gilling explained that this is an age in which the cult of success, the cult of power, of the huge, of the dominant, have all been successfully incorporated in political parties and programs. Even into society the cult of success has swept as thoroughly as any other, he added. Yet, he asked, can there be a genuine democratic society unless the rights of the weak, the unhappy and the unsuccessful are cherished as those of the able and the confident. From the faith in God came the sense of pity, the sympathetic understanding of the weak, the acceptance of failure as a part of life, possibly as a redeeming and constructive part of life. If that faith is lost, he questioned whether a profoundly human society could be preserved.

The Christian church does not fear communism," said Mr. Gilling. "Communism is not the greatest evil in our midst nor the danger that many imagine it to be. The greatest evil is indifference, apathy, the "couldn't care less" attitude of the majority of men and women who live only for the present and the material gains ignoring the heritable of the past and unconcerned about the price paid for their freedom."

Mr. Gilling added that the age through which most of the people of today have lived is an age of great faiths, faith in national socialism, faith in communism, faith in corporate state. He warned that if faith in God drains out of society, faith in lesser gods will flow in. By some way people could survive without Christian faith, he added, but history gives no proof of it.

"We cannot meet the demoniacal evil which is arrayed against us with nothing more dynamic than vague good will. We must have resources of goodness more dynamic and vital than mere general benevolence and must show nothing less than that which we see in the life of Jesus Christ, the Saviour of mankind, Who said: "He that is not with Me is against Me." Comrades, you have nothing to lose but your indifference, your apathy, but you have the world to win."

The Regimental Association of the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders will hold a church parade to St. Peter's Cathedral at 10.30 a.m. next Sunday. The speaker will be the Rev. (Padre) C. McCarney.

FRACTURES BACK

Russell Poff, 38, of 605 Stewart Street, is in Civic Hospital as the result of a car accident Sunday. He is reported to have received a fractured back and other injuries. Medical attention was given to him by Drs. S. Y. Walsh and C. F. Cahill.

ESCAPES INJURY

Jan Wiazowski of Albert St., Oshawa, stepped unhurt from his car Saturday night after it had left the Hastings and Westwood Rd., and snapped a telephone pole. The car went out of control a mile west of Hastings. There was about $150 damage to the vehicle. Provincial Constable Arthur Kellogg investigated.

FEDERATION SPEAKER

Rev. Walter Gilling, rector of St. Luke's Church, is the speaker of the luncheon meeting of the Federation of Agriculture at the Empress Hotel Tuesday. This is the first of the proposed monthly meetings during the winter. Mr. Gilling will diseuss the operations of some of the organizations set up by the United Nations.

MAYORALTY CANDIDATE

Major John Peterson, DSO, member of the St. Thomas city council, has announced that he would seek election to the mayor's chair. Ald. Peterson's opposition will be Ald. Robert Richardson, who headed the polls in the municipal election two years ago, while Peterson headed the polls last year. Peterson served overseas with the S.D. & G. Highlanders.

LET CONTRACTOR PAY

City Council has declined to pay a $613 extra incurred by the Robertson Construction Company in buying tile in the United States for the nurses' residence at Civic Hospital. The contractors faced the prospect of being unable to get any Canadian tile until spring. Opinion of the council was that the supply of tile was one of the chances a contractor took.

ELK STORY CONFIRMED

Friday's story of the elk which had taken up residence in the only bush area remaining in the city limits, south of May's School, has brought to the Examiner a host of confirming statements. For instance, Mrs. W. K. Masters of 689 Lansdowne Street reports that she noticed the animals as long ago as two months. She must have been among the first spotters of them.

OUT TODAY

Hubert Knox, a starry light middle of the PCVS senior football team, was admitted into the Civic Hospital Saturday afternoon with a possible head concussion. He was hurt during the COSSA semi-final game with Belleville at the Oval. Knox left hospital today. This is the second time he has spent a week-end in the hospital this season having a stay in Toronto East General Hospital a month ago. He had received a kick in the groin in the PCVS-East York encounter.

Apsley Youths Plead Guilty Stealing Beer

Two Apsley youths pleaded guilty to charges of breaking and entry and theft of a case of beer and were remanded until Tuesday for sentence by Magistrate W. R. Philp, KC, in police court today.

The two were Melville Monahan, 22, and Gerald Whitmore, 20. They were arrested by Provincial Constables Roy A. Feeley and Arthur A. Kellogg Sunday in Methuen township near Oak Lake, north of Havelock.

The police reported that the ...ing an old house ready for use as a base for deer hunting.

Saturday, on the verandah of a nearby cottage owned by William Saunders, Toronto, they saw a case of beer. Police said they broke through the screening on the verandah and took the case of beer.

Almost immediately Mr. Saunders arrived from Toronto and seeing them with the beer accused them of taking it. A scuffle followed. Mr. Saunders is expected to arrive on Tuesday to act as a witness.

Church Birthday Observed At George St.

The 114th anniversary of George St United church was celebrated Sunday. Congregations filling the church to capacity welcomed the Rev. Dr. J. E. Todd, who was the minister from 1925-29, and Mrs. Todd. G. C. Staples, a former clerk of sessions now living in Ottawa, was another visitor welcomed at the morning service by the minister, the Rev. Dr. James Semple.

Dr. Todd, who is now living in retirement at Guelph after 10 years at St. Claire Ave. Church, Toronto, preached at both services.

Inescapable Circumstances

Speaking about the inescapable unwanted circumstances of life, he warned the congregation against running away from unpleasant responsibilities, from adopting a cynical outlook and from meek submission.

"If you do not become master of the situation, it will gain mastery over you," he said. "You cannot get along without God in your program. Put the spirit of Christ into that unwanted thing."

"Blessed are the peacemakers, not the peace keepers," he explained. A peacemaker had to be dynamic, full of action and not submissive. Some people sat back when they met adversity, meekly submitting to it as the will of God. But that attitude was not Christianity.

Cynicism was not the answer. It did nothing to enrich life and life was essentially an enriching process.

Nor was it a satisfactory solution to turn away from a situation and pretend it did not exist.

Union Choirs Sing

The title of Dr. Todd's sermon in the evening was "Where do you live?"

The intermediate and junior choirs sang an anthem at the morning service and Mrs. S. Saunders and H. Batten sang a duet. Mrs. J. B. Kilpatrick of Belleville was guest solosist in the evening

BROUGHT FREE SCHOOLS

Since the education act of 1870 there has been a free educational system in England.

GOOD SAMARITAN Ed Hill, 137 Dublin St., tried to save the life of a 2½-year-old buck deer which he found caught in a wire fence on Highway 7, one mile east of Indian River, to-day. With the help of passing woodcutters Ward and Jim Martin, 263 Townsend St., the deer was freed and taken to the Filtration Plant Zoo. The beast had a badly dislocated shoulder and broken left hind leg. Manager Jim Harrison advises that the veterinary gave orders to have it destroyed. Examiner Staff Photo

UE Left Wingers Confirm New Provisional Executive

An interim executive headed by T. P. Davies, was chosen from the provisional committee of the left wing remnants of the UE by some 800 CGE workers at a membership meeting Sunday night. The executive consisted of a slate drawn up for recommendation to the meeting by the provisional committee set up Thursday night by those who stayed behind after John G. Morton, president of the former UE, CIO adjourned the meeting and left the hall.

Gathering Quiet

In contrast to Thursday night's meeting, the gathering Sunday night was quiet with little enthusiasm for and no opposition to the provisional committee's list of recommendations.

In the same motion which named the interim executive, there was a clause stating a general election could be held 30 days after a request for it had been passed by a membership meeting. The purpose of the interim executive and the provisional committee is to have a bargaining agent to continue contract negotiations with the CGE, C. S. Jackson, president of UE in Canada declared.

Said Unconstitutional

The meeting declared the Morton led meeting of Thursday night unconstitutional. The meeting held after Morton left, of which T. P. Davies was chairman, was judged constitutional. Last Thursday night, Morton said the left wingers' meeting had no meaning.

Speaking to the motion that Morton's Thursday meeting be declared unconstitutional, a woman said it was of no concern to the UE what Jackson's political beliefs were, as long as those political beliefs were not brought into the direction of the union.

A short time later Jackson said he did not think it was anyone's business whether or not he or anyone else, was a Communist. "I have taken two oaths that I am not a member of the Communist party," he declared.

Circulate Petition

Jackson brought a petition to the meeting to be presented to the management of the CGE stating that the UE is a united and solid union local ready to carry on negotiations.

I am asking with a great deal of confidence that at least 2,500 names be put to that petition in the next few days, Jackson said.

Jackson accused Morton of sabotaging the UE's negotiations with the CGE every year since 1946. He said each time when the union was putting on the pressure, Morton had given in, not only wrecking the chances of his own local, but of other locals negotiating with the CGE as well.

Jackson said the UE had been successful in getting an injunction against Morton and other right wing executives preventing them from acting in any capacity as a representative of the UE. This meant, Jackson said, that they were being restrained from using UE funds amounting to about $17,000, and that they must take the padlock off the door to the office of Local 524.

Parks and Recreation Costs Up $57,776 In Nine Years

Peterborough's expenditure on parks and recreation in 1948 was $64,994.19 as compared with $7,217.25 in 1940.

Subtraction of an $18,000 grant to the Recreational Commission in 1948 left $46,994.19 spent on the parks. Of that sum the expenditure on wages to employees working on parks and rinks was $31,334.19.

In the years between 1940 and 1948, increases in wages bulked largely in municipal departments showing employment costs.

The figures quoted from the audited financial statements for those two years may be of general interest relating to recent discussions of recreation, proposed parks commission, and other phases of those loosely related departments.

Wages in 1940 amounted to $5,578.73 of the expended $7,217.25 as compared with $31,334.19 of the $46,994.19 spent on parks and rinks in 1940.

Edward Humpage, city auditor, shows that parks and recreation cost the city in the three years 1938-40, respectively; $7,483.59; $6,742.16; $7,217.25; and in 1946-1948: $45,906.30, $42,458.45 and $64,994.19.

Expenditure on parks in 1940 amounted to $6,922.08, and on bathing beaches $295.17; total $7,217.25. Estimated expenditure was $7,500, leaving a surplus of $282.75.

Details of expenditure were:

Wages, parks	$3,216.20
Wages, rinks	1,761.19
Wages, tourist camp	324.00
Wages, beaches	277.34
Trees, plants	1,056.10
Truck expense	425.76
Wood	96.66
Repairs to buildings, etc.	781.42
Sundries	100.16
	$8,038.83
Less credits	821.58
	$7,217.25

In 1948, expenditure on parks and recreation was $64,994.19, which was $5,994.19 more than the estimataed $59,000.

The Recreation Commission grant was $18,000, and outlay on parks, rinks and bathing beaches was $46.994.19 as against the estimate of $41,000.

Details of expenditure on parks, rinks, etc., were:

Vages, parks	21.636.50
Wages, rinks	9,697.69
Tree trimming	4,306.16
Trees, plants	1,368.90
Truck expenses and new tractor	1,661.51
Repairs to buildings, etc.	1,085.63
Light, insurance	799.65
Bleachers and arch	3,413.55
Sundries, etc.	4,533.42
	$48,503.01
Less receipts	1,508.82
	$46.994.19

Rightist Officers Prevented By Injunction From Speaking For Union

The factional struggle between the left wing UE and the right wing UE-CIO was carried to the air waves Sunday afternoon. A radio speech outlining the position of John G. Morton and the executives of Local 524, was to have been made at 1 p.m., by Cyril O'Donnell over Station CHEX. Eight minutes before broadcast time, C. R. Sullivan, UE representative, served him with an interim injunction which would prevent him acting as an officer of the Local.

Russ Baer, CHEX manager, told the Examiner today that due to the last-minute service of the in... was delayed until four o'clock. This legal notice, as he understood it, would prevent Mr. O'Donnell and four other right-wingers who have broken with the UE from acting or speaking on behalf of the Local.

The difficulty was resolved, however, when Joseph Grierson, a member of the steering committee of the UE-CIO and not named on the injunction notice, read an address.

A right-wing leaflet issued today had this comment: "Just before Cy O'Donnell was to give a radio speech two of Jackson's hirelings arrived at the station armed with a notice of an injunction which was to be served sometime in the future. They persuaded broadcast operators not to allow O'Donnell on the air at one o'clock. However their Commie treachery did not quite succeed. Though O'Donnell did not go on the air Joe Grierson went on at four o'clock and gave a true picture of events in our union."

Sponsor Petition

Four points were made on the petition sponsored by the left-wing UE, and which will be circulated among CGE employees. The pre-amble calls on the workers to sign it "to show the CGE that they have to get down to business and settle on a decent contract."

1. We stand by our United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America (UE), Local 524.

2. We stand together in the UE with all other UE-GE Locals through the Joint UE-GE Conference Board for a united campaign for better wages and working conditions.

3. We condemn the minority splitters in our ranks.

4. We inform the company through this petition that we are more united and determined today than ever before in our demands for a speedy and decent settlement on our contract proposals.

The UE has accused the new UE-CIO of circulating blank CCL application cards, not naming the union the signer would be expected to join. This, the left wingers say, is in the face of the fact that the UE is still affiliated with the CCL.

Neither right nor left wing believes that the CCL will take long in ousting the UE faction under Canadian president C. S. Jackson. In doing so they would be following the identical course of the CIO in Cleveland.

New Slate of Officers

Here are the temporary executive officers elected at Sunday night's meeting: T. P. Davies, president; Art Hunter, vice-pres.; Flo Farrance, recording sec'y; Alec Seppala, financial sec'y; C. H. Harvey, treasurer; Art Chandler, floor guard. All offices are acting. Those officers, according to the left wing, are empowered to act until negotiations are completed, or until the membership gives notice they want a general election.

In reply the right-wingers un... porary committee to handle the organizing of the UE-CIO. Following is the list: Mr. Morton, Teresa O'Brien, J. Coss, F. Watkins, J. McCliggott, Joseph Murphy, R. McLean, William Whibbs, J. Wilson, Georoge Niles, Mr. O'Donnell, D. Taylor, Mr. Grierson, Jack Lewis, W. Shaw, Keith Chiles, Phyllis Pond, S. Agnew and Muriel McQuade.

A meeting has been called by the right-wingers for Tuesday night at 7.30 p.m. in the Brock Street Summer Gardens.

"All those interested in securing information and facts regarding the International Union of Electrical Radio and Machine Workers (CIO) and the future of this Local are urged to attend," Mr. Morton told the CGE workers today.

Driver Fined $15 After Truck Wrecked

A $15 fine was imposed on Norman Rendell, 726 Chamberlain St., found guilty of careless driving by Magistrate W. R. Philp, KC, in police court today.

The charge arose from an accident in which Rendell's truck overturned on High St. a short distance south of Chamberlain St. The truck was reported to be almost a total wreck. A power saw mounted on the back was nearly torn loose.

Constable Claire McGillen testified Rendell's truck had turned over on its side while Rendell was turning a corner.

Constable McGillen said Rendell had been drinking.

While questioning Constable McGillen in court, Rendell said his front wheel had hit a hole in the road and a piece of the wheel broke out throwing the truck over.

Constable McGillen said although the truck was badly broken, there was no hole in the road large enough to break a wheel.

Remand Kilbon Without Plea For Second Week

COBOURG, Nov. 7—(CP)—Ralph Kilbon, 56-year-old farmer, today was remanded a week on a murder charge in the rifle-slaying of his wife Nov. 1 in their Bailieboro farm home, 15 miles northwest of here.

He was not asked to plead to the charge on which he was formally arraigned last Tuesday after police found Mrs. Kilbon's body with bullet wounds in the abdomen and head. Neighbors at the time described the shooting a mercy-killing.

5 Youths Remanded On Various Charges

Five youths appeared in court today, one on a charge of carrying a knife with a 10-inch blade, one or carrying knuckle dusters and three on charges of vagrancy. All were remanded to Tuesday with no evidence being heard.

Gerard Clancy, 21, 200 Antrim St., pleaded not guilty to carrying a knife and was remanded on $1,000 bail.

Norman Howard, 19, 144 London St., pleaded guilty to carrying knuckle dusters and was remanded. Ted Bosley, 17, 96 Lynch St., and Ronald Gilmour, 20, 132 Maude St., both pleaded not guilty to charges of vagrancy and were remanded.

Albert O'Dell, 17, 352 Armstrong Drive, pleaded guilty to a charge of vagrancy.

Spend On Unessentials

PRESTON, Lancashire, England, Nov. 7—(Reuters)—Herbert Morrison, Deputy Prime Minister, said Sunday night that Britons "are spending a very large sum indeed on different types of fun and games and things that are not essential." He told a public meeting that of the £8,000,000,000 ($24,800,000,000) spent last year on personal consumption, a little more than a quarter went on food "and not far short of a quarter went on alcoholic drinks, tobacco, cinemas, racing and other private fun and games."

Football Pools In Great Britain 7th Largest Business In Country

By BEN PHLEGER

LONDON, Nov. 7 —(AP)— A fortune for a penny! A life of luxury for the price of a postage stamp!

Ten million Britons have such dreams every week. Football pools are the seventh-largest business in the United Kingdom.

Yearning for fantastic prizes—last year individual awards ran as high as £73,795, then worth $294,180—one in every five Britons bets his small change once gambling on the country's soccer games.

Although in theory anyone anywhere can bet in the pools, the time element and currency export regulations in practice confine participation to residents of the British Isles.

The pools are private businesses, relatively free from government controls and entirely separate from and frowned upon by the soccer clubs.

From an obscure beginning 27 years ago the pools have mushroomed until last year 135 firms handled £70,000,000 (then worth $280,000,000) in bets.

In recent years taxes have risen [illegible] per cent of his income to the government.

Prizes Tax Free

Pool prizes are tax free. If you win £500 every penny of it is yours.

The football pools are taxed, but it's at the source where the government now gets 30 per cent of the gross receipts.

Two events stand out in the rapid growth of pools which promoters now claim are supported by one family in two in the United Kingdom.

The first was the Betting and Lotteries Act of 1934, which made them legal. Then there was the Second World War. That brought heavy taxes that made the pools more attractive than ever as avenues to quick money in huge amounts.

Football pools were legalized as games of skill. By law they are strictly a credit business, carried on entirely by mail.

The bettor indicates how much he wants to wager—the maximum ranges from £5 to £10—and he sends his money the following week, win or lose. If he doesn't, he is blacklisted by all pools. The average bet per entry is a little less than 5s. The minimum bet allowed is 1s.

The government actually takes a two-way split on the football pool business. Since it's carried out entirely by mail and bets are submitted by postal money orders, the government gets about £8,400,000 in post office revenue each season.

Scotland Continues Moves To Get Canadian Plants

By THOMAS A. BOYNTON

NEW YORK, Nov. 7 (AP)—Sir Steven Bilsland of Glasgow, chairman of the Scottish Council, says a continuing effort will be made to get Canadian and American industries to do part of their manufacturing in central Scotland.

Already, he says, 15 United States plants are in operation there and at least eight additional industries have shown an interest in Scottish locations for production.

That manufacturing in Scotland can be successful for industrialists for other countries is shown in the current plan of the National Cash Register Company to double its plant size there, Sir Steven said at a press conference. This firm now has 1,300 employees in its plant in Scotland and plans to employ 2,500 after the enlargement is made.

Tied in with a general plan to make Scotland a key industrial country, the council chairman said, is an effort to get Scottish industries to make more of the type of goods that have a ready market in Canada and the United States. "Our technicians should come over here, find out what Americans want to buy and for what price, and then go home and make it," he said.

Several Lures

Sir Steven told the press conference Scotland has several lures to attract American industry, particularly the so-called Scottish industrial estates. Under the estate plan, factories are built according to a manufacturer's requirements and are leased at a low annual rental—averaging 14 cents a square foot.

(An industry source in New York said the yearly rental for new factories in the United States now averages be ween 45 and 80 cents per square foot.)

Sir Steven said these industrial estates are located in a broad circle around Glasgow, including cities in Lanarkshire, Dundee and Ayrshire.

The Scottish Council is a non-governmental organization devoted to the growth and success of Scottish industry.

Saves Child 3

OTTAWA, Nov. 7 (CP)—Patricia Nolan, 16, of Ottawa, jumped into the icy water of the Rideau River Saturday to save the life of three-year-old Shirley Desens. Miss Nolan ran two blocks to the river's edge, jumped in and pulled out the youngster after a little girl called out that Shirley was in the water.

Two-Alarm Fire

TORONTO, Nov. 7 (CP) — A $15,000 two-alarm fire last night gutted the Heydon House in northwest Toronto. Known in pre-prohibition days as a favorite spot for sleigh parties, the building has been occupied in recent years by two industrial firms.

Canada's Big Population Proves Aid To Prosperity

By FORBES RHUDE,
Canadian Press Business Editor.

When you are looking for reasons why conditions have remained so generally good in Canada this year, give a thought to increase in population.

Only a few years ago Canada was a country of 11,000,000, and not so long before that, $9,000,000 or 7,000,000. Now we seem to have breezed through the 12,000,000 mark almost without noticing it, and here we are at an estimated 13,500,000 and hitting a fast pace towards 14,000,000.

That makes a big difference in the demand for bread and butter coats and what not; for the machinery needed to make them; and for employment of people.

For all that prosperity is, is having people busy making things for one another, and seeing that they can exchange them through the various channels of business and trade.

True, population alone doesn't mean much. It wouldn't mean much to put 13,000,000 more people in China; except, probably, that more people would be hungry.

Greatest Gain

When 1951 census time rolls around, Canada will have made the greatest popuation gain of any decade in her history.

It comes at a strategic time, at a time when her resources are in demand, and when, unless world economic conditions go to pieces they will remain in at least considerable demand. It comes at a time when Canada is embarked upon a number of expansions which are not likely to be halted even if world conditions do deteriorate.

And under the impetus of the good conditions of the last few years, the increased population is in itself a means of softening the blows of a reasonable amount of set-backs.

The United States for years was ing economic unit because of the consuming powers of her own large and growing population We probably are a long way from being in such a self-sufficient position, but 13,000,000 or 14,000,000 people with Canada's resources at their command have a much better chance of riding out storms than would the smaller Canadian populations of preceding years.

The most notable previous population increase was in 1901-11, which played a big part in opening up the west agriculturally. The increase of this decade corresponds with the beginning of

Directions

I had not seen a double-crust meat pie for over 20 years, when I happened to walk into the home of one of my friends right at dinner time and there was one being carried to the table. My mother told me you need at least 2 cups of ground meat to make a proper filling, but that 3 cups are better. To these 3 cups meat add 1 small onion which has been put through the grinder with it. Add 1 or 1½ cups raw or cooked potato, plenty of salt and pepper, and, if there is not much fat left on the meat, add a little butter to it. Pour this into a rather deep pie plate which is lined with rich pastry and pour and mix in over about ¾ to 1 cup hot stock, or boiling water seasoned with a meat cube. Cover with top crust, pinch edges, glaze top and bake at 475 deg. Fahr. for about 15 minutes, then reduce heat to 375 to finish baking. Serve very hot with hot chili sauce and a generous salad.

The Shrimp and Potato Fricassee is a name that I coined, but I did not invent the dish. I ate it in Vancouver and thought it was worth repeating to you.

Fry ordinary potatoes raw in the old-fashioned way, but use more butter than lard. When they are half-way tender, and have been salted and peppered and turned over often, add 2 cups drained, canned shrimps — just laying them over the potatoes. Put on cover, reduce heat, and cook until potatoes are tender through. Lift out onto hot platter carefully, and sprinkle top with chopped parsley.

The Tutti-Fruitti whipped cream is merely thick unsweetened whipped cream, to which you add shredded Brazil nuts or almonds and sliced candied pineapple or red and green cherries. This is also good with nutmeg and chopped preserved ginger as a topping for angel food cake.

Miss Agnes Grant Reports To Diocesan Council

Second quarterly meeting of the Diocesan Council CWL was held Saturday afternoon in St. Mary's School. Miss Grant, Diocesan president gave an interesting account of the three-day Provincial convention which she attended at Chatham.

Members were cautioned the cause of Christ is not advanced by force of arms but by prayer and good example.

In the field of Social Action much work has been done in every diocese on local welfare boards, providing assistance to those in need, promoting the health of the community Sisters of Service etc. Ten thousand dollars has been distributed across Canada in school prizes, public speaking contests, scholarships, providing films for children from the National Film Board, conducting libraries, arranging catechetical instruction for children and in other educational pursuits. Immigrants have been entertained, helped with English classes, and employment problems. Seamen's clubs have been given donations of ditty bags, money and clothing.

New foundation of Our Lady's Missionaries will look to the CWL for support during their organization years. It is suggested where possible each subdivision have one event during the year and contribute the entire proceeds to this missionary work.

Co-operation was asked for the Parent-Teacher Organization.

As some Displaced Persons have had various situations arise in connection with their work, a

Ladies Auxiliary to Police Stages Successful Tea

Poppies for remembrance, and flags of the nation, were appropriately prominent at the Poppy Day tea in the YWCA Green Room Saturday afternoon. It was the annual entertainment of the Ladies' Auxiliary to the Kawartha Police Association, which has been organized only three years. Proceeds will be used to further welfare work in the city which includes providing clothing for orphaned children and assisting the needy whenever called upon. A donation of $100 is being made to the new Civic Hospital this year.

Their table of hand-made miscellaneous articles was proof aplenty that any work these women undertake will be well done. Mrs. Wm. Scott was convener of this table which offered stuffed toys, aprons, fancywork and knitted articles. Mrs. K. Mackay and Mrs. J. V. Wilson assisted with the sales.

Mrs. W. Aggas convened the home-baking table and had a splendid selection for eager shoppers. Mrs. W. Amos, Mrs. J. Morrow and Mrs. L. Murphy were assistant salesladies.

At the candy table Mrs. A. Dalton and Mrs. V. O'Donaghue had little trouble disposing of the attractive parcels.

Two draws were a feature of this tea; one on a heaped-up hamper of groceries, and the other on a decorated Christmas cake. Mrs. H. C. Bradley of Toronto was winner of the hamper, and on being notified she asked that everything suitable for sending overseas be taken out and shipped, the remainder to be forwarded to her. Winner of the cake was David Fife, small son of Constable and Mrs. Stewart Fife. The winners' tickets were selected by Miss L. Brownscombe of the YW staff.

Mrs. G. Gillespie and Mrs. E. Beatty were selling the hamper tickets at the tea, and Mrs. D. Farthing and Mrs. A. Grayling sold the cake tickets.

The lace-covered tea table was arranged by Mrs. Jos. Hanson, co-convener of the tea with Mrs. L. T. Keeler. Poppies formed the centrepiece with flanking white tapers, and large silver trays at either end held handsome silver services. Mrs. W. R. Philp, Mrs. Garnet Samis and Mrs. Price Morris presided during the afternoon. Mrs. A. Poulter, Mrs. E. Crough, Mrs. Berwick, Mrs. C. Keliele and Mrs. R. Pope assisted the conveners as hostesses in the tea room. Mrs. L. McClure supervised replenishing of the plates.

Mrs. Harold Mosley, president [illegible] art Fife, secretary-treasurer, received at the door. Mrs. W. Johnston was at the treasurer's table.

Serve Salmon Cross Buns When Cook Out of Afternoon

By MARY MOORE

Most discerning housewives know that, ounce for ounce, canned salmon is an economical protein, when compared to meat, for all of it may be used. There is no waste to canned salmon.

We recommend Salmon Cross Buns for a dinner when the cook is out for the afternoon. These may be prepared well ahead of dinner time, and held in refrigerator until 10 minutes before serving. Then place them high in a hot oven under the brôiler to heat through and toast a little. Serve at once. An attractive accompaniment is diced carrots in parsley sauce, and chopped, buttered spinach.

Salmon Cross Buns

Two large sandwich buns (for four) or three hamburg buns (for six), 1 1-lb. can salmon, 2 tablespoons melted butter, salt and pepper, 3 or 4 eggs, 2 tablespoons cream or milk, 8 or 12 strips pimiento. Split buns in half. Flake the salmon and arrange around edges of cut side of salt and pepper and drizzling the butter over the salmon. Mix the eggs with the milk or cream and beat well and season and scramble these by stirring over boiling water until creamy. Place heaping spoonful of the scrambled eggs inside salmon circle on bun, garhish with crossed strips of pimiento. Place under hot broiler until bun and salmon are heated through and top is toasted a little.

Groom, Late of Roseneath On CP Staff, London, Eng.

ROSENEATH, Nov. 7 (ENS)—A pretty wedding was solemnized at Putney Presbyterian Church, London, England, when Annick Francine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marcel Miel, of St. Malo, Brittany, became the bride of Alan Harvey, University of Toronto graduate, and now parliamentary correspondent of The Canadian Press, London staff. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Percy E. Harvey, Toronto, formerly of Roseneath.

The Rev. Malcolm McAra, pastor of the church, officiated.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a powder blue silk gown with large black picture hat, and carried an arm bouquet of pink and white carnations. Miss Margaret Roge of St. Malo was bridesmaid, and Mr. H. L. Jones, news editor of the CP London Bureau, was the groomsman.

A reception was held at the Twickenham home of Mr. and Mrs. Don Gilbert. The guests were received by the bride's mother, assisted by the groom's mother, who went to London for the ceremony.

Later the bridal couple left on a wedding trip to Paris and the French Riviera.

The groom met his bride in France while reporting the United Nations sessions in Paris early this year.

DOROTHY DIX

Public Display of Affection Labelled 'Very Bad Taste'

DEAR MISS DIX: We are two young couples, still in college, who have been going together for two years. We are very much in love and intend getting married as soon as our education is completed. Our trouble is that the parents of both girls object and frown on all evidence of affection between us, even though they realize that we intend to get married. Is there any way of coping with parents who have been married so long that they do not believe in a display of affection, whose own lives are just a cold companionship? Do you feel that all affection and devotion should be suppressed before marriage, or do you feel, as we do, that it only strengthens our love and holds us together more permanently?

TWO PERPLEXED COUPLES

ANSWER: A cynic said once that there were certain things that were worse than immoral. They were bad taste.

Nothing so utterly marks a boy and girl as having no social background and no knowledge of the world as to make a display of their emotions for every grinning Tom, Dick and Harry. I never see a girl with her head pillowed on a young man's shoulder in the movies, or a young couple hugging and kissing in a car, that I do not think that if they only knew what figures of fun they looked they would rather die than put themselves in such a ridiculous attitude.

Should be Private

There is something sacred about the love between a man a woman, and the expression of it should be as private as possible. To make a public display of this feeling is to vulgarize it and rob it of its finest appeal. [illegible] affection promoting love, that is also a mistake. You can get as much fed up on petting as you can on a steady diet of chocolate creams. And don't make the mistake of thinging that because a married couple do not advertise their affection for each other, they have ceased to love each other. Their love has become so much a part of their lives that they take it for granted, and under their quiet attitude toward each other is a devotion that is as much stronger than your boy and girl love as the current of a deep river is stronger than that of a babling brook.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX We three sisters are almost distracted because our father, now 67 years old, is about to marry again. The lady is a fine woman, 52 years old. Has a good home. So has father. And we three girls make our living, but we want our dad to stay with us. He is active, fills a position every day, but we think his is too old to marry. He has been so good to us. Sacrificed everything to give us an education. We are now from 21 to 30 years old. Surely he is wrong and would be happier with us. Let that old maid stay where she is.

THREE SISTERS

ANSWER: Don't forbid the banns. Believe me, children have even less right to interfere in their parents' marriages than parents have in their children's you don't want your father to marry and thereby secure a companion for himself, but I wonder how many dates you turn down because you have a standing date with your father?

It is pretty lonesome for father, sitting up evening after evening by himself, with nothing to do after his eyes have got tired reading. And it is no great pleasure to him to know that one of you three girls is taking her turn at staying with him as a matter of duty. Nor does he look forward with any pleasure to having to give up his own home someday and going to live with one of you when you get married.

And perhaps it never occurred to you that young people bore old people just as much as old people bore young people. What old people want is the companionship of someone who is of their own age, who knows the things they know and to whom they can say: "Dont you remember?"

Let your father go along and marry if he wants to. He will be a lot happier with that nice old maid than he will be with you.

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a young man hopelessly in love with a girl whom I expect to marry early next June. My family object to my marrying any girl because of the financial loss to them in being deprived of my earnings. If I marry her, shall I take her to live with my people?

H. L.

ANSWER: Never. Because if you do, they will make her perfectly miserable and you will be in a continual fight trying to keep the peace between them. Marry your girl and go and live in one room, if necessary, and let that be far from your mother.

DOROTHY DIX cannot reply personally to readers, but will answer problems of general interest through her column.

ORCHIDS TO PREMIER'S WIFE—In recognition of mutual respect between the US and Canada, the Allied Florists Association of America decided to compliment Mrs. Louis St. Laurent, wife of the prime minister, by presenting her with an orchid. Shown presenting her with the flower is A. Ray MacDougall, CNR district passenger agent.

ENQUIRY COLUMN

By MARY MOORE

NOTE: In November homemakers start their Christmas preparations.

Mary Moore anticipates the outbreak of special baking and will give us special fruit cake, cookie, pudding and candy recipes.

But, if you are thinking that you will make up something new for which you need the recipe, write to her now, and give her time to print it in her column before "the night before Christmas."

Write to Mary Moore in care of this paper. If you would like a private reply enclose a stamped self-addressed envelope.

QUESTION: Some time ago you printed a recipe for icebox cake—alternate layers of graham wafers, whipped cream and crushed pineapple, which I tried with great success. However, I have lost the recipe, so would you please reprint it, or send it to me?—Mrs. J. W. M.

ANSWER: In the recipe which follows you may use Graham cracker crumbs instead of lady fingers.

Pineapple Icebox Cake, Serves 16

One cup sugar, one 20-oz. tin crushed pineapple, 1 tablespoon cornstarch, ½ cup butter, 2 cups icing sugar, 2 dozen lady fingers (or cookie crumbs), ½ pint whipping cream, 1 tablespoon gelatine, ¼ cup cold water, and if desired more whipping cream and nuts and cherries for garnish.

Cook sugar, pineapple, cornstarch together until thickened, stirring. Line a buttered dish mould with halved lady fingers or fine cookie crumbs. Cover this with a layer of the butter which when melted is creamed with the icing sugar until very soft and runny (adding a little milk to make it thin enough to spread without disturbing the lady fingers or crumbs). Add a layer of the pineapple mixture. Repeat the three layers. Whip the cream, sweeten it and flavor it a little, add the gelatine which has been soaked in the cold water and heated over hot water to dissolve it. Put the cream mixture over the rest of the dish and chill overnight.

For special occasions an additional ½-pint of heavy cream may be whipped and sweetened and piped through icing tube onto cake when turned out of mould, and garnished with alternate whole pecans and halves of maraschino cherries. For Christmas use green and red cherries.

QUESTION: (Recipes for Vancouver-Chinese dishes).—S.

Fried Won Tons

(These require noodle dough squares. Buy them at Chinese bakery in Chinatown—they are more economical and satisfactory than homemade noodle dough. There are 18 seven-inch squares to the pound. Keep them in their original wrapper, covered with wet towel until needed, and keep in refrigerator—best used in three days.)

Cut each 7-inch square into 4 squares 3½ inches square. Place one rounded teaspoon meat filling (see below) on each, brush edges with beaten egg and fold over to form triangles or fold over to form rectangles and twist ends in opposite directions to look like a bow tie. Fry in deep peanut oil at 350 deg. Fahr. until golden, turning over when necessary. Serve with Pineapple Sauce: Cook together ¼ cup pineapple juice, 2 teaspoons cornstarch, and ½ teaspoon salt. Stir until it boils, then lower heat to cook it for 5 minutes.

Meat Filling: Combine ½ pound finely ground lean pork with ¾ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, 1 tablespoon finely chopped water chestnuts (these are optional), 1 teaspoon cornstarch, ¼ teaspoon MSG (monosodium glutamate—called white powder by the Chinese), 1 tablespoon chopped fresh green onion, 1 teaspoon soya sauce. Blend these very well before using. Shrimps may be used to replace pork, when lemon juice is used in place of onion.

Complete Plans For Annual Bazaar

Mrs. J. V. Gallivan presided at a general meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary of St. Joseph's Hospital held Friday evening at the Nurses' Residence. Final plans were made for a bazaar which is to be held Wednesday, November 1. Conveners for the various booths reported good response in contributions of fancy goods, home cooking, candy and other articles to be featured.

Mrs. J. F. O'Brien gave an excellent report on the Ontario Hospital Association convention which she had attended in Toronto last week. Her report described the activities of other auxiliaries throughout the province and contained much valuable and interesting information. Mrs. O'Brien also announced that Mrs. Gallivan had been appointed to the advisory committee of the Ontario Hospital Association.

Miss Louise Letellier also spoke briefly of the convention.

Wear Two Million Worth of Jewels In Fabulous Show

FORT WORTH, Tex., Nov. 5—(AP)—Look, men, this is what women are interested in.

That's what a fabulous fashion show was designed to tell members of the Associated Press Managing Editors Association.

It was a collection of 10 Paris couture designs, flanked by an array of $8,000,000 worth of gems, that previewed 1950 spring styles.

Phil R. North, assistant [illegible] Telegram, welcomed appreciative wives of the editors Friday but made it clear the show was designed for their applauding husbands—to show why their women readers are keenly interested in fashion news.

The gems were from the collection of Harry Winston of New York. Some models wore as much as $2,000,000 worth of diamonds and other precious stones at one time.

Skirts were higher and necklines lower on many of the dresses.

Paris designers favored a skirt length about one inch longer than the mid-calf styles of American designers.

Bernice Smith Wed In Toronto

MILLBROOK, Nov. 7 — (ENS) —The marriage took place in St. Paul's Avenue Road United church, Toronto, Friday evening of Margaret Bernice, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Smith of Millbrook, to William Stuart, son of Mr. and Mrs. James MacDonald of Toronto. The Rev. Gordon Porter, cousin of the bride, officiated

The bride wore an afternoon dress of teal blue taffeta with burgundy accessories and a corsage of Amazon lilies, sweetheart roses and bouvardia.

Her only jewellry was a gold broach, worn by her mother on her wedding day. Her attendant Miss Audrey Keen of Cavan was dressed in coral with brown accessories and wore a corsage of Queen Mary roses, pansies and forget-me nots.

The groomsman was Robert Morrison of Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. MacDonald will live at 56 Ronald Avenue, Toronto.

"What's Right?"

SITUATION: A friend comes into your kitchen while your maid is working.

WRONG WAY: Ignore the maid, as though she weren't there.

RIGHT WAY: Tell the maid the name of your guest.

6—In Memoriams

HAMLIN—In loving memory of Lenna Hamlin who passed away two years ago, November 7, 1946.
There is still a husband who misses you sadly,
And finds the time long since you went.
And I think of you daily and hourly
And try to be brave and content,
But the tears that I shed in silence,
And I breathe a sigh of regret
For you were mine and I remember
Though all the world may forget
Your last parting wish I would like to have heard
Only those who have lost are able to tell
The pain in the heart at not saying farewell.
—Sadly missed by her loving husband and family.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, Nov. 7 (CP) — Cattle trading continued in a dull vein on the Toronto livestock market this morning. A few selected grades of cattle sold at steady prices, receipts reported by the Dominion Marketing Service were: Cattle, 1,800; calves, 730; hogs, 800; sheep and lambs, 1,860. Left from the previous close were 2,200 cattle.

Plain to medium weighty steers sold from $18-$22. Medium to good light steers were $18-$21.50. Good heifers brought mostly $18.50. Medium to good cows ranged from $13-$14.50, with a few good western cows at $15. Good export bulls sold from $16.50-$17.25. Fed yearlings were $19-$24. Good stockers brought $18.50-$19.50 with plain selling downward to $15.

Calves were firm at $27-$29 for choice quality vealers with plain to medium from $17-$25. Grass calves for slaughter ranged from $13-$16.

Hogs were steady at $29 for grade A and $28.60 for grade B1. Sows were steady at $19 dressed.

Lambs strong to 50c hundredweight higher at $23.50 to $24.00 for good ewes and wethers. Bucks sold at the $1 discount. Sheep were firm at $11-$12 for best light ewes.

Dictatorship Bobs Up In Greek Vote

By L. S. CHAKALES

ATHENS, Nov. 7 (AP)—Greece is groping toward a general election in the spring with the word dictatorship bobbing up often in spoken and written speculation.

When the Greek situation was darkest—in 1947 before President Truman announced his doctrine to contain communism, and again in 1948 when an army offensive a draw—both Liberal and Royalist politicians privately said a strong man was needed to lead the country.

However, as is the case always in Greece, there were at least a score of such strong men who insisted they, and only they, could lead the country out of its misery. They never agreed on one.

Last January the frightened politicians lured Marshal Alexander Papagos out of his palace sinecure as grand chamberlain, giving him complete authority over the armed forces. Papagos, Greece's greatest living military hero, achieved his fame as generalissimo when the Greek army threw back the Italian invasion from Albania early in the Second World War.

Strongest In Greece

With that authority, plus a stringent military censorship and the control of courts-martial, Papagos is the strongest man in Greece. He has fired, retired and shifted his generals and officers around so that he is assured of personality loyalty in every key position.

Friends of Papagos insist he has no notions of seizing control of the country. This is echoed by British officials and members of the American Embassy who should be well informed.

However, veteran Greek politicians unfriendly to the Marshal insist he has too much power. They recall revolutions, coups de'etat and seizures of government that started with considerably less influence than Papagos commands.

There is an old saying in Greece that you must have either the palace or the army to seize the government successfully. Papagos has access to both.

U.S. Finishing Jap Peace Treaty

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7 (AP)—The State Department Sunday neared completion of the first full US draft of the proposed Allied peace treaty with Japan. It would provide for ending the military occupation.

Separately, the United States intends to make a military treaty which would retain US bases in Japan after the occupation ends.

The US version of the peace treaty may be ready for opening consultation with Britain and other Pacific War Allies, who include Canada, about December 1, as a preliminary to a peace conference next year.

Under the proposed treaty, the Japanese Government would take full control over the country's internal and foreign affairs, subject only to provisions designed to make Japan a peaceful member of world society.

One or more separate American economic agreements covering aid to Japan's deficit economy are expected.

Gobs Have To Get Up Other Insulting Names

OTTAWA, Nov. 7 — CP). — Canadian sailors are called "lime-juicers" and other fighting names by American gobs in foreign ports and they get in scraps for that reason.

So, they told a three-man commission, they would like to have something to identify them as Canadians so the Americans wont have any doubts they are not British tars.

They suggested a "Canada" badge for their uniforms, and, it was learned on Saturday, they will get one. A design has been worked out at headquarters.

That won't mean there won't be any more scraps with gobs. It just means the gobs will have to think up other nasty words.

GAS TO LIQUID

A factory is being built in the Southern United States to process natural gas into gasoline and chemicals.

Iron Workers Said In U.S. BeforeColumbus

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7 (AP)—Evidence that people skilled in iron work migrated to North America long before Columbus' arrival was claimed today by A. H. Mallery, Washington engineer.

Metallurgists of the National Bureau of Standard and Archaeologists of the Smithsonian Institution said they could neither confirm nor discount Mallery's claims at this time.

It is Mallery's contention that people "from the Scandinavian countries and the Danish king-

Claiming evidence of the existence of an iron-working people in pre-Columbian Virginia and Ohio, Mallery says it is his belief that they were wiped out by the same "black death" plague that scourged Europe in the Middle Ages.

For one thing, he says he has discovered near Clarksville, Va., an iron-smelting furnace which he estimates was constructed "some time before the year 1 AD."

The engineer made his claims in a statement he distributed and in talks to reporters invited to view exhibits he said substantiated his claims. The exhibits included iron nails, tools, implements and fragments described as having been found at sites near the Clarksville area and in Ohio.

Mallery said that he had discovered several "hearth-pit iron smelting furnaces" and various iron objects in certain "pre-Columbian" mounds in Ross County, Ohio.

Toronto Taxi Drivers Up In Arms At Mayor

TORONTO, Nov. 7 (CP)—Toronto's taxi drivers are up in arms over Mayor Hiram McCallum's suggestion that some of them look like thugs. The mayor made the comment at a police commission meeting during which he suggested a distinctive uniform for cabbies.

In a statement Sunday night, the Taxi Drivers' Union said that if thugs are seen in cabs, they are probably not behind the wheel. Records show that drivers held up by passengers outnumbered passengers robbed by drivers, said the union.

And the question of uniforms already has been taken up. The statement said:

"Taxi drivers, by signed agreement between the union and the (member) companies, agreed to pay 50 per cent of uniform cost, but due to excessive change of personnel carried on by the companies, this has not been effected."

Logan Chairman

MONTREAL, Nov. 7 (CP) — L. H. Logan, of Pembroke was re-elected chairman of the Class "A" Weeklies of Canada, an organization of Canadian weekly newspaper publishers which ended its two-day annual meeting here Saturday. All members of the present board of directors were returned to office. The executive decided that its next annual meeting would be held in Toronto, in February, 1951.

Firemen Rescue Nine In Apartment Blaze

BARRIE, Nov. 7 (CP)—Firemen rescued nine persons from a three-storey apartment building during a week-end blaze. Eight persons were helped down fire department ladders when dense smoke prevented them from leaving by the exits.

A seven-year-old boy was carried from the building by a fireman wearing a gas mask.

Cause of the fire was not known and damage has not been estimated.

Rent Increases Said No Reason For Wage Boost

MONTREAL, Nov. 7 (CP) — Finance Minister Abbott said Saturday the rentals increase of 20-25 per cent authorized by the government "represents the best judgment of the rentals administration."

"These are the increases they recommended to the government," he said, "and I certainly think they are qualified to know. My own view is that increases would be substantially greater if rent controls were removed altogether.

"Tenants," he added, "should not be surprised at the short notice given. It's been building up on them for some time. All along they have been faced with an equitable adjustment of rental ceilings. After all, when the previous rental increases was authorized in 1947, it was on short notice."

He expressed the opinion further wage demands would not be justified—"it must be understood that in recent years wage rates have gone up very much higher than rental costs."

Dec. 15 had been chosen as notification day for the increase to give the government enough time to prepare thousands of forms. The increases were not automatic. Landlords must go through certain steps before obtaining the increases.

Th minister said he "fully expects" many questions in the Commons on the move and is prepared to answer them.

Boy Saves 11 People From Asphyxiation

TORONTO, Nov. 7 (CP) — A three-year-old boy is credited with saving 11 persons from possible death by asphyxiation early Sunday in their downtown home. His scream aroused them before they were overcome by coal gas.

Firemen worked 40 minutes with inhalators to revive five persons, including Mr. and Mrs. A. Berlel, parents of Hyman, who gave the alarm.

Five other persons in the building were only slightly affected.

Mass In Catacombs

PARIS, Nov. 7—(Reupters)—Several hundred Parisians Sunday attended mass about 100 feet below street level, surrounded by millions of human skulls and bones. It was the first religious service in the catacombs since part of them became a repository for human remains in 1787. The service commemorated the killing during the French revolution of thousands of Roman Catholics.

OBITUARIES

JAMES GIFFORD, SR.

One of Ennismore's oldest and most respected residents, James Gifford, Sr., died at his home Saturday after a short illness. He was in his 84th year.

Mr. Gifford was born in Ennismore, son of the late William Gifford and Ellen Twomey. He lived all but 20 years of his life in that township. At the age of 20 he left to reside in Chinook, Montana.

He leaves his wife the former Mary Garvey, and four daughters —the Rev. Sister M. Alfreda (Nellie) of Ottawa, Mrs. Samuel Killen (Eugenie) of Ennismore, Mrs. C. B. Young (Eva) of RR 10, Peterborough, and Mrs. Thomas Harrington (Loretto) of Ennismore; three sons—James, Jr., Thomas, and David of Ennismore.

Mr. Gifford was a member of St. Martin's Roman Catholic Church, Ennismore.

The funeral will be from the residence of his son, James, Jr., RR 2, Ennismore, at 10 a.m. Tuesday, thence to St. Martin's for solemn Requiem Mass at 10 20 a.m. Burial will be in St. Martin's Cemetery.

MRS. GEORGE CUFF

A resident of Peterborough for the past 36 years, Mrs. Flora Jane Cuff of 143 Morow St., died suddenly at her residence on Sunday. She was in her 67th year.

Mrs. Cuff was born in Dorsetshire, England, daughter of the late Samuel Loder and Christiana Marton. She was the former Flora Jane Loder.

She received her education in England and then came to Canada, settling first at Brandon, Manitoba. For the past 36 years she has lived in Peterborough.

Left are her husband, George, a son Gerald Ivor of Peterborough; three sisters, Kate, Rose and Minnie of England, and four brothers, Will, Edwin, Charles, and Maurice, also of England. She also leaves a grandson, Bob Cuff.

Mrs. Cuff was prominent in church work at St. James' United Church. She was a life member of the Woman's Missionary Society and also a member of the Woman's Association.

The funeral will be at the Comstock Funeral Home on Wednesday at 2 p.m., the Rev. F. W. Craik of St. James' United Church officiating. Burial will be in Little Lake Cemetery.

THIS BEIGE wool tweed dress is buttoned and belted in gold. Note the flare on cuffs.

Radio Station Aids N. Ontario

TORONTO, Nov. 7 — (CP) — A 500-watt short-wave radio station is operating at Maple, a few miles north of Toronto, to help administer Ontario's northern areas, Lands Minister Harold Scott announced today.

The station is connected by teletype with Toronto headquarters.

At present the department operates ground stations located in areas from Toronto to Pickle Lake in the north and Pembroke to Kenora near the Quebec and Manitoba boundaries respectively.

There are also radio installations on department patrol boats operating on Rainy Lake, Lake Abitibi, Lake Superior, Lake Huron and Georgian Bay.

A new-type portable radio, weighing 22 pounds including batteries, has been developed by the Forest Protection Division of the department and worked satisfactorily on forest fire communication during the summer, Mr. Scott said in a statement.

Peterborough Salvation Army band, under conductor Routley will head the parade to the Cenotaph for the laying of wreaths and will provide the music for a service of worship in the arena. Canon C. R. Spencer, padre of the branch, will be in charge of the service and will be assisted by the Rev. N. Cole.

Reeve A. Orr will read out the names of those who fell in both wars. Branches from Norwood, Havelock, Warkworth and Campbellford have been invited to attend the service.

The branch will hold a banquet and social Friday when catering will be by the Ladies' Aid of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. Guest speakers will be the Hon. W. A. Goodfellow, MPP, and Dr. F. G. Robertson, M. P.

Seven Days Jail For Drunk Driving

Found guilty on a charge of drunk driving, Harold Frost, 550 Sherbrooke St., was sentenced to seven days in jail by Magistrate W. R. Philp, K.C., in police court today.

Constable Dennis Traymor testified he had stopped Frost about 4:45 a.m. Oct. 9 after he had seen him drive through a red light and zig-zagging along the road.

Constable Traynor hailed a passing American car and followed Frost for some time before he stopped. He testified that Frost did not have his lights on. He said when Frost reached to turn on his lights, he reached for the choke instead of the light switch. Constable Traynor testified Frost staggered when he walked and smelled very strongly of liquor.

Frost said he had been drinking in a beer parlour most of the evening and had had drinks about two hours before being picked up.

"I think this man is very honest," Magistrate Philp commented. He said he would give Frost the minimum sentence. His car was impounded and his licence suspended for three months.

Humane Killing Of 15 Skunks During Month

Monthly meeting of Peterborough Humane Society was held in the Chamber of Commerce rooms Thursday evening.

In his report for October, Inspector G. Dunford listed 60 dogs, 64 cats and 15 skunks humanely destroyed, three dogs killed by city traffic and 14 dogs and one cat returned to owners.

Mr. Dunford also reported on periodic inspection of probationary cases under his supervision. In this connection readers will be interested to learn that the two [illegible] attraction at the Pines Chemong Lake are now getting proper treatment at the owner's farm. When first brought to the attention of the Humane Society, during the hot weather, these animals were found in emaciated condition due to insufficient and improper feeding.

There have been many cases of ill-treatment and neglect of animals in these so-called tourist attractions reported to different humane societies throughout the country. For this reason a suggestion was approved to contact the authorities with a proposal for more stringent regulations in regard to licensing and operation of these small wayside menageries."

More Distemper

According to reports received there is a considerable increase this fall in the number of distemper cases among cats and dogs. Immunization against distemper by inoculation has proved effective in the treatment of dogs but no serum has as yet been discovered to successfully immunize cats against feline distemper.

Many complaints have been received with regard to dogs upsetting and scattering garbage. Owners are therefore respectfully asked to keep their dogs tied up until after garbage collection has been made in their district.

Fire Truck To Be Kept In Garage For Winter

HASTINGS, Nov. 7 (ENS)—The fire truck is to be moved to Iden Bonds' garage for the winter, the village council decided Friday. The council also decided to make application for a subsidy for the Fire Department.

Members stated that they were in opposition to the proposed increase of telephone rates.

GOOD CITIZENSHIP IS A LOT OF LITTLE THINGS

GOOD CITIZENSHIP

is a lot of little things

"PLEASE" AND "THANK YOU" ARE MAGIC WORDS

"Please" and "Thank You" are little words . . . words that everyone knows. It's a shame they are heard so seldom in our daily conversation! They are magic words, too . . . they often earn a friendly smile. They bring quick service . . . they make life happier. A gracious "Please" . . . a sincere "Thank You" will get results —just try them and prove it! Politeness in conversation is "Good Citizenship".

Believe Next British Government Will Last Only 18 Months

By FRASER WIGHTON

LONDON, Nov. 7—(Reuters)—Political quarters in Britain believe that this next government, whatever its political color, may have a much shorter life than the present Labor administration, now more than four years old.

In all party circles there is a growing fear that the forthcoming general election, whenever it is held, may produce a political stalemate which would result in a further dissolution within some 18 months of the new government taking office.

The major issue of the election next July when the government's present mandate expires, is clear out. The electorate has to decide whether the Socialists or Conservatives are best fitted to extricate Britain from her present economic difficulties.

It is, however, recognized that some last-minute political bogey, such as has produced a landslide in the past, may again influence the swing to left or right.

Weigh Less

But political quarters feel that such considerations as the government's record of achievement, or "next-five-year plans" from either Socialist or Conservatives, are likely to weigh less now than they would in normal circumstances.

Socialist and Conservative official quarters are optimistic of victory. There is no general expectation of a spectacular reversal of the present balance of opposing

A view widely held among political observers is that if there were an election now, Labor would probably "scrape back" into government with a much reduced majority.

Feel Devaluation

Many government opponents—and a proportion of its supporters—predict that if Labor waits another six months, until the full effects of devaluation have become apparent, the party's chances will be considerably reduced.

Labor has a majority of nearly 200 in the present parliament. No party is expected to achieve a majority of more than about 60 in the next.

It is calculated that a swing of between seven and eight per cent in the total vote would be sufficient to turn the scales against Labor. That is to say, if seven to eight per cent more of the electorate voted Conservative, and the same proportion fewer voted Labor, the government would be defeated.

No political quarter is prepared to predict the outcome of an election deadlock. Parliamentary circles carefully avoid the word "coalition," through sections of the general public speak increasingly of a national situation calling for "a combination of the country's best brains."

STORAGE BINS FOR UNCLE SAM'S CORN — At Winterset, Iowa, the government is building storage bins to receive about 740,000 bushels of corn acquired by the Commodity Credit Corporation. Eighty cylindrical steel bins, like those above, hold 3,380 bushels each, 15 wooden wooden bins will hold 60,000 bushels and six Quonset type buildings will hold another 60,000. As each storage unit is completed, it is filled with corn from the 1948 crop, freeing farmers' own bins for this year's big crop.

Canada Answers Polish Charge

LAKE SUCCESS, N.Y., Nov. 7 (CP))—Canada Friday answered Poland's charges about kidnapping 123 refugee children with the implied suggestion the Polish government cannot conceive of any government acting in a purely humanitarian manner.

Senator Cairine Wilson of Ottawa denied "firmly and categorically" the accusation levelled in the 59-member social committee of the United Nations Assembly by Henry Altman of Poland.

Senator Wilson said that no one "Perhaps the representative of Poland cannot understand why a government does something for no other reason than that of kindness and pity and an impelling desire to help without thought of gain," she added.

Altman, who has attacked Canada at previous assembly sessions on the question of refugees, said the Polish children are at Contrecoeur, near Drummonville, Que., where they are kept in two camps "strictly supervised by the Sisters of the Order of Our Lady of Good Counsel."

PeterboroughRealtors Win Downes Trophy

With representation from seven of their twelve associate firms, Peterborough realtors were awarded the Downes Trophy for the largest proportionate attendance at the recent convention of Dominion and Ontario associates of real estate boards in Montreal.

E. N. Rhodes of Ottawa said the outlook in Canadian realty for the next 15 to 20 years looked favorable. He urged upon the members the realization that their work had reached the qualities of a profession with relations of trust between realtor and client that demanded outstanding personalities, apart from the expert knowledge of realty values. He urged that a strict code of ethics and system of licensing should be adopted.

Injured Men Four Days Without Food

Lie Beside Plane With Dead Pals; Keep A Fire Going

ROUYN, Que., Nov. 8—(CP)—From a hospital bed today, a badly-burned mechanic told of four "horrible" days he and two prospectors spent marooned and hungry beside a wrecked plane in which two of their companions lay dead.

Elzear Potvin, of Amos, Que., suffering from burns to hand and foot, facial cuts and bruises, said the four days "are like a nightmace to me now. All I remember is that Bill Wiltsey was a hero."

Wiltsey, Potvin and Gaston Lavallee survived the plane crash, 90 miles north of here last Thursday, which claimed the lives of the pilot, 34-year-old Frank Hawkridge, of Rouyn, and Val Clements, Matachewan, Que., prospector.

Lavalle has a fractured clavicle and possible skull injuries and burns. Doctors say his condition is not good. Wiltsey, Noranda, Que., prospector, was badly bruised and shaken.

Keeps Fire Going

Potvin said "Wiltsey lit a fire and kept it going the whole time. He looked after Lavallee and I like a mother, trying to keep us warm, building a shelter out of the plane's debris and telling us to sleep. All they had to eat were two cans of cold meat and a can of burnt sausages which had dropped out of the plane."

Potvin said the trio "all prayed for rescue like we had never prayed before. I felt all the time that our prayers would be answered. At 11:50 a.m. Friday we spotted a fleet Canuck circling low over bush near us. Twice it came past, but he never saw us.

"It snowed and rained and then became misty, and once or twice we thought we heard airplane engines. But it was not until Monday that we were finally spotted by the RCAF."

Of the circumstances leading up to the crash, Potvin said: "We left Bachelor Lake on our way back to Amos at 7:30 Thursday morning. Just before noon, I noticed that the clouds were forcing us lower and lower. Ice was beginning to form on the wings, we soon began to lose height. . . I could see that the pilot was worried and was looking for some water to land on.

"The pilot banked the plane gently to the left and said he was

Brave Gunfire To Elect Their President

40 Towns Under Police Control As Disorders Rock Philippines

MANILLA, Nov. 8—(AP)—Fillipinos braved gunfire today to elect a president.

By 6 p.m., when the polls closed, 19 had been killed and 16 injured. Many more deaths were feared in outlying sections.

Forty towns were under contabulary control.

Disorders were widespread. The National Commission on Elections was flooded with complaints. Ballots were stolen and the chairman of the rival province election commission was kidnapped.

At Ormoc, Leyte, supporters of one candidate reported their poll inspectors chased into the hills and the situation out of hand. Cavite Province reported six towns terrorized by followers of President Elpidio Quirino, leading in the few scattered returns received here.

Only in the Hukbalahap country, where fighting is almost constantly going on, was there quiet. Thousands of armed men patrolled highways and the polls, keeping the Communist led Huks in the hills.

The voting will determine if Quirino and his Liberal party will remain in power through the next four years.

His opponents are Dr. Jose P. Laurel, Nacionalista party candidate who has made an amazing political comeback since he was puppet president during the Japanese wartime occupation, and third party candidate Jose Avelino, former Liberal party chairman who split with Quirino this year and became the dark horse in the race.

Manila itself was quiet. The capital was expected to roll up a big vote for Laurel in keeping with its tradition as anti-administration.

Reports On Combine Conflict

OTTAWA, Nov. 8—(CP)—The Commons Monday heard conflicting views on alleged price-fixing activities in the flour-milling industry. Justice Minister Garson tabled a 60,000-word report in which F. A. McGregor, chief Combines Investigator, charged Canada's 11 main flour and milling companies with agreeing from 1936 to 1947 to fix common prices for their products. The bulky document hit members only a few minutes before Trade Minister Howe started a four-hour debate in which Prime Minister St. Laurent and Mr. Garson joined to defend the government's decision not to prosecute the companies. They also defended the government's action in not tabling earlier the report, dated Dec. 29, 1948.

The ministers said the flour-milling industry was assured during the war that uniform price-fixing would not be subject to prosecution under the Combines Investigation Act. In fact, they said, the government's Prices Board encouraged uniform prices to facilitate administrative problems in the complex field.

The government's actions were sharply criticized by opposition spokesmen — John Diefenbaker (PC—Lake Centre); M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader; Solon Low, Social Credit leader, and Angus MacInnis (CCF—Vancouver-East).

Breach Of Act

Mr. Diefenbaker charged the government with a breach of the Combines Investigation Act, which required that reports be tabled in parliament within 15 days after they are received by the minister.

Mr. Coldwell said that regardless of the four-milling industry's activities during the war, it should be prosecuted for alleged price-fixing prior to the war.

Hancock's Right-Hand Man Arrested In Swindle Case

The second arrest in the Hancock $100,000 swindle was made in Toronto today. The arrested man, Jack Douglas, 37, of Toronto, believed to be Hancock's right-hand man, is being brought to Peterborough today by Detective W. A. Clarke. Douglas will be arraigned in police court Wednesday morning either on a charge of false pretences or of being an accessory after the fact.

Police said Douglas was an employee of Aubrey S. Hancock, formerly of Toronto, and Paul Imming, Peterborough, who are charked with false pretences and forgery.

Hancock and Imming who are still at large, are accused of forging agreements of sale and obtaining car loans from the Colonial Finance Company, Toronto, using real and fictitious names with fictitious addresses in the Peterborough area.

Detective Clarke has been in Toronto for some time carrying on his investigations there while additional checking and investigating goes on in Peterborough.

Spent Summer in City

Douglas spent the summer in Peterborough playing ball for the Uniteds, the team of which Hancock was playing manager. He was Hancock's constant companion.

The first arrested man was Richard O'Brien, also an employee of Hancock and Imming. He was charged with being an accessory after the fact. His case is now under adjournment after it was decided he need not put up bail for his freedom.

Everybody Happy At Glittering Vishinsky Party

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8 (AP)—Fireign Minister Andrei Vishinsky of Russia says the Soviet Union and the United States ought to be better friends.

The honor guest at a glittering Soviet Embassy reception Monday night, Vishinsky talked informally with newspaper men on this general theme—but put his specific observations "off the record."

His general line: The common feeling of Russian - American friendship has fallen asleep but some day it will awaken and confound the enemies of freedom.

Smiling amiably, Vishinsky shook hands with more than 1,000 dignitaries. They jammed the Embassy for the annual celebration of the anniversary of the 1917 Revolution.

Vishinsky came from the United Nations General Assembly session at New York for the occasion. He had a private 14-minute talk with State Secretary Dean Acheson in the afternoon, shortly before Acheson left by plane for the Big Three Western foreign ministers' meeting at Paris. Both he and the State Department declared it was merely a social call.

Then for about three hours, the East-West cold war went into a state of suspension. The envoys of most of the countries in the Western Hemisphere and Western Europe which have rejected Communim chatted briefly with Vishinsky and with Soviet Ambassador Alexander S. Panyushkin.

One envoy missing was Yugoslav Ambassador Sava N. Kosanovic, whose government is on dinstinctly bad terms with Moscow at the moment. He was not invited.

2 Steel Plants Come To Terms

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8—(AP)—A strike-ending agreement at Jones and Laughlin Steel Corporation today spurred efforts to wind up both the 49-day steel strike and the 50-day stoppage in the United States coal fields.

Government mediation officials, now hard at work seeking a coal settlement, greeted with satisfaction the news that fourth largest U.S. steel producer had signed a contract with the CSO United Steelworkers.

At Pittsburgh, Republic Steel Corporation and the United Steelworkers (CIO) today signed a pension and insurance agreement which ended a strike of 45,000 union employees against the third largest steel producer in the United States. The strike started 39 days ago.

Reds To Give Answer On Atomic Controls

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., Nov. 8 (CP)—A Russian-bloc country was expected today to reply to a plea by Canada's External Affairs Minister that all the countries of the world mutually agree to renounce part of their sovereignty needed to make international control of atomic energy possible.

Such international control, Canada's L. B. Pearson said, would prevent a future "atomic Pearl Harbor."

Pearson told the committee on Monday that the door must not be closed to any possible basis of agreement on international control of atomic energy and prohibition of atomic weapons.

Acheson In Paris For Big Three Meeting

PARIS, Nov. 8.—(Reuters).—State Secretary Dean Acheson of the United States arrived at Orly airfield today for the meeting of the Big Three western foreign ministers.

Acheson declined to comment on any subjects he might discuss with Foreign Secretary Bevin of Britain and Foreign Minister Schuman of France. The three-power meeting begins tomorrow.

"Our plans are not yet firm," Acheson said.

"I am delighted to come here to Paris for one of my periodic meetings with my British and French colleagues," the secretary said. "I am hopeful for frequent meetings in the future because our last was so successful."

Assizes Trial For Mrs. Pitre

QUEBEC, Nov. 8 (CP)—Judge Alphone Garon today ordered a criminal assizes trial on an attempted suicide charge for Mrs. Arthur Pitre, key witness in a murder case arising from the death of 23 persons in a plane crash Sept. 9. Mrs. Pitre's trial will be held at a date to be fixed later. Judge Garon accepted a request by the Crown for increased bail on Mrs. Pitre and raised the amount from $500 to $950.

Expect Ballot Changes After Regina Vote Report

OTTAWA, Nov. 8.—(CP).—An official report that may lead to modification in election ballots is expected to be presented to the Commons next week.

It is the report of Chief Justice J. T. Brown of the Saskatchewan King's Bench Court who was appointed to investigate the appearance of mysterious numerals on some of the ballots polled during the voting in Regina city constituency during the June 27 Federal election.

Last month Chief Justice Brown said that the secrecy of the ballot might have been violated because heavy black printing on ballot papers could, under some circumstances, act as carbon paper.

Chief Justice Brown said that if the poll book had been open to public scrutiny, the numbers of the rejected ballots could have been used to learn a voter's name and how he voted.

Evidence given before him indicated the numbers got on the ballot this way

The Election Act requires that the poll number was written by a deputy returning officer on the back of the counterfoil of each ballot. The counterfoil is detached before the ballot is put in the box.

The front of the counterfoil is jet black. If a D.R.O. turned over the ballot and used a book of unissued ballots as a writing pad, the black ink on the front of the counterfoil could act as carbon paper, producing the poll number on the next ballot to be issued.

If, for example, the number he wrote was 20—and it was reproduced on the next ballot, the person who cast the next ballot could be identified when the vote was counted.

Dinner For A King? Doesn't Ruffle Sam

KANDAHAR, Afghanistan, Nov. 8.—(AP). — Construction camp cook Sam McGee of Everett, Wash., had an extra guest for dinner recently—His Majesty, the King of Afghanistan.

Sam, who cooked from Ketchikan, Alaska to Saudi Arabia, usually feeds Morrison-Knudsen construction workers. But when he was asked to prepare the royal dinner for touring King Mohammed Zahir Shah, Sam went right to work.

The table he laid looked strage to Afghan eyes—roast turkey and pie with a flaky crust. His Majesty and his couriers did not hesitate.

'Real nice fellow, that king, and a good eater," Sam said later. "Durned if he didn't eat four drumsticks and three pieces of pie."

Buy Weapons In Britain Plan Of M.P.

Labor Party Feels Dominions Need To Share Part Of Load

LONDON, Nov. 8—(CP)— A left-wing Labor member of parliament suggested today that Canada should increase her defence budget and "Buy British."

"We have some pretty nice jet bombers, you know," said Richard Crossman who represents Coventry East in the House of Commons.

The suggestion that Canada increase her military purchases from Britain arose during a discussion of Canada's relationship to Britain—in a crisis in which Crossman stressed the need for increasing British exports to Canada.

He said that many Labor members of parliament feel that the government talks too much about exports to the United States and too little about exports to Canada.

In the course of a largely off-the-record interview, Crossman authorized these other statements for direct quotation:

"I am convinced of two things.

"One is that it is impossible for Britain to continue to carry the Canadian dollar deficit which last year totalled $448,000,000.

"The second is that Britain cannot conceivably earn sufficient American dollars by sales in America to bridge the dollar gap."

Unofficial Spokesman

Crossman, 41-year-old organizer of the wartime leaflet raids on Europe, once was considered the leading spokesman of Labor's left wing on foreign policy matters. His statements are generally considered to reflect more or less the unanimous sentiments of a large group of Socialist backbenchers.

The former Oxford don told The Canadian Press he considers Britain's military commitments overseas constitute one of the biggest factors in creating the sterling area's dollar gap.

He said that by the end of the fiscal year of 1949 Britain will have spent eight per cent of her national income on defence. Canada, on the other hand, will have spent—"as far as I can calculate" —only about 2½ per cent.

"Thus, it seems to me, there should be some redistribution of defence costs with a view to fairer shares," he said.

In implying that Britain may be bearing too large a part of the defence costs of the western world, Crossman echoed what seems to be an increasing trend of thought on what is known as "the Labor left."

An article in the left-wing Tribune, a weekly publication, reviewed defence commitments among the Commonwealth and other countries and concluded that "the responsibility of the United Kingdom for over-all Commonwealth defence can no longer be determined on the same basis as before the war."

Expect One Baby But Get Three

TORONTO, Nov. 8 — (CP) — Triplets—all boys—were born early today to a Toronto couple who said they weren't even expecting twins.

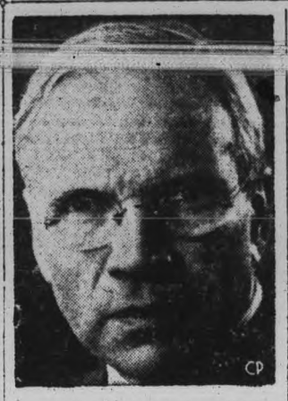
Mr. and Mrs. Edward Cook, the surprised — but happy — couple, had planned to have a big family and bought a six-room house seven years ago. They already have one child, Donald, seven.

Edward Cook, a 33-year-old photo-engraver, said not until late last night did he hear that he might be the father of twins even. "We hadn't even got together a complete outfit for one baby," he said.

The triplets, all born within the space of 15 minutes, weighed five pounds, 11½ ounces, six pounds 1¾ ounces, and four pounds 10¾ ounces.

Nehru Visits London

LONDON, Nov. 8—(Reuters)—Prime Minister Nehru of India today arrived in London from his North American tour, flying in President Truman's private plane, The Independence. He is in Britain at the invitation of the British government and will return to India Sunday.



COMBINE-CHASER QUITS—F. A. McGregor, 61-year-old federal combines commissioner, has resigned with a warning that price-fixing combines have been developing to an "alarming degree" since the war. In correspondence with Justice Minister Garson tabled in the Commons, he indicated disapproval of government policy in combines investigations.

UEW Faces Loss Of 107,000 In Membership

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 8 (AP) — The United Electrical Workers, expelled from the CIO only last week for its left-wing policies, was threatened today with the immediate loss of more than 107,000 members.

Most of these a survey showed, intend to string along with the right-wing CIO.

At the same time the CIO announced that the new union of electrical workers—organized to supplant the UEW—had won its first employer recognition in a contract signed with two firms employing 1,075 workers at Yonkers, N. Y.

The survey covered scores of locals in 12 States—California, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Missouri, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

Vote To Secede

It showed that 107,482 UE members have voted to secede from the parent union or have otherwise indicated strongly they intend to do so in the less than a week since the UE was expelled by the National CIO for left-wingism.

Most of those who have voted for secession have also announced their intention of going into the CIO. A few have made no statement of their intent. One small local joined the CIO-United Auto Workers.

A total of 68,608 UE members in other locals have voted to stick by the parent organization or have announced that is their intention.

This total of 176,090 who have said what they intend to do compares with a total UE membership estimated at 40,000 to 450,000 Previous tests of strength in the locals and on the national convention floor indicate that about half the membership is left-wing, half right-wing.

The survey does not include 25 Chicago locals, 24 of which voted to stay with the UE, as membership figures of this group are not yet available.

Armed Guards Jam Walls As Firemen Battle Fire At Kingston Penitentiary

Gibson Blames Fire On Defective Wiring, 150 Prisoners Marched To Safety In Other Section Of Building

KINGSTON, Nov. 8—(CP)—Armed guards, provided with extra ammunition, were stationed around the walls of Kingston penitentiary early Monday night as firemen fought a blaze in the east cell block of the prison. There was no indication of incendiarism, however, and all prisoners were marched into another section of the building. Jail officials said that all 150 prisoners bedded in the east cell block were outside the section when the fire broke out and there were no injuries.

The Kingston fire department joined with the prison's fire department to fight the fire for almost five hours and bring it under control. Clouds of grey smoke poured from the roof of the building but damage was limited to the roof and rafters in the old stone building.

Cause of the fire was given by R. B. Gibson, federal penitentiary commissioner, as defective wiring.

City and Provincial police joined prison guards to guard against any attempt of a mass break during the excitement. The wing 30 years ago was the scene of one of the most sensational prison breaks in the prison's history when the Meekham brothers led a large group of convicts from the block, slugged the guards at the main gate and obtained short-lived freedom.

Officials took all precautions against any similar break and motor traffic and pedestrians were kept moving past the Limestone Block Penitentiary.

The east block where the fire broke out was originally a workshop and was later used for isolation cells, but was rebuilt into a modern cell block.

Great volumes of water were poured on the blaze. Water was supplied from the prison water system as well as from city mains, which connect up with the water system in the prison but are only used in cases of emergency.

Firemen reported that the fire started in the south end of the attic, in the east block.

Prison authorities said that about 1,500 gallons of water per minute were poured into the building in a 10-hour period. The north section of the attic was saved through the efforts of the firefighters.

Breaking of a window in the south end of the attic resulted in great volumes of smoke being forced into the north section, making it difficult for the firemen to get up the only entrance leading to the attic, located at the north end.

UK Will Recognize Chinese Communists

LONDON, Nov. 8—(AP)—Diplomatic officials reported Monday night Britain is planning to give full recognition to the Chinese Communist regime within weeks.

They said Foreign Secretary Bevin is expected to tell State Secretary Acheson and Foreign Minister Schuman so formally when he meets with them in Paris Wednesday and Thursday.

Garbett Asks Party Leaders Unite On Dollar Danger

YORK, England, Nov. 8.—(Reuters) — Dr. Cyril Garbett, Archbishop of York, today called for a "no-party declaration" by political leaders on the facts of Britain's economic crisis.

In an address to the York Diocesan Conference, the Archbishop warned Britons that they were "confronted with a crisis comparable with months after Dunkerque."

He urged leaders of all parties to issue an agreed "downright statement on the extreme gravity of the present position." When the people knew the stark realities of the position they would rise to the occasion, he said.

Unless there is a radical change, Britain will have no money for overseas food or raw materials and countries will be afraid to trade with her for fear "that all they send to us may be lost in the general crash without any hope of repayment."

"Our position as a great power would go," Dr. Garbett said. "We should sink to a third-rate bankrupt state."

The government is trying to avoid bankruptcy by cutting imports, increasing exports and reducing expenditure.

"I am, however, sure that the government will not obtain the necessary support of the nation as a whole for these various measures unles the extreme gravity of the crisis is brought home to all.

"I know it is impossible now to advocate a coalition government neither party would consider it for a moment. But it ought to be possible for the leaders of all parties to issue an agreed downright statement on the extreme gravity of the present situation," Dr. Garbett said.

Farm Brief Says Cheap Food Noose For Necks

TORONTO, Nov. 8 (CP)—The Ontario Federation of Agriculture suggested in a brief submitted today to the Provincial Legislature's Select Committee on Conservation that consumers are "fitting a noose about their own necks" with demands for cheap food.

The 2,000-word brief, read by R. W. Morrison, Federation president from suburban Long Branch, asked the government to set a price level for farm products that will make it unnecessary for farmers to mine their soil.

"Mined soil" may in the future produce only enough food to support the farmer and his family, not enough to send surplus products for the urban consumer market, the Federation said.

It recommended that "most, if not all, soil research should be carried on at the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, and suggested that the OAC be established as an independent university administered by an independent board of governors instead of by the Ontario Department of Agriculture."

The brief also recommended inclusion of studies on conservation in the curricula of primary and secondary schools.

The brief asked the government to continue its conservation research and experimental program. It described soil conservation as of "greater importance to urban farmers" whose surplus products made "life in the city possible."

100,000 Tickets Seized By Police

MONTREAL, Nov. 8—(CP)—Two men were arested and more than 100,000 lottery tickets confiscated here Monday following two raids by provincial police on an alleged lottery ring.

Police described the "ring" as one of "the biggest in operation in Quebec province."

Arrested were Leon Dupont, 50, of Ile Bourdon, Que., and Louis Joseph Bergeron, 37, of Montreal. Dupont, said by police to be the "main organizer."

Police officers swooped down on Dupont's home and seized more than 100,000 tickets, an electric stitcher to seal them, two addressograph machines and 100 cases of plates bearing ticket numbers and weekly hockey schedules.

Barbara Ann's Mother Has Rift With Manager

EDMONTON, Nov. 8 (CP)—T. A. Shandro of Edmonton, agent for Tommy Gorman, promoter of "Skating Sensations 1950" starring Barbara Ann Scott, said Monday night there is a rift between Gorman and Barbara Ann's mother.

Shandro made the statement in an interview following an incident in which Miss Scott failed to make an advertised personal appearance at a downtown department store.

He charged that Mrs. Clyde Scott changed plans for a personal appearance after she and Miss Scott arrived in Edmonton.

Miss Scott told a reporter that the appearance, at which she was to have autographed dolls, had been cancelled on orders of a Calgary doctor.

4,000,000 Canadians Hit By New Rental Ceilings

By HAROLD MORRISON

OTTAWA, Nov. 8—(CP)—The boost in rental ceilings which comes into effect 10 days before Christmas may hit some 4,000,000 Canadians living in rented rooms, flats, apartments and houses, government officials estimated today. The officials based this estimate on a rental survey which showed that approximately 1,500,000 flats, apartments and houses across the country could be the target for the 20 and 25 per cent increases in rents.

Other government estimates:

1. That at least 90 per cent. of leased accommodation in the large urban areas is rented on a month-to-month basis. Tenants in this category will be among the first to receive the new rental increases.

2. Some of this type of accommodation is rented on a weekly and not a monthly basis and that means that only a week's notice—not a month—need be given by the landlord. If a tenant doesn't pay, he can be pushed out the day before Christmas.

3. In most cases, however, the rental increases will not go into effect before Feb. 1, 1950. Tenants renting on a monthly basis will have to receive a month's notice as from Dec. 31.

Avoid 100% Increase

4. If the government had lifted the controls completely to meet the wishes of Canada's landlords, urban rentals in the big cities would have increased by approximately 100 per cent.

5. Taking into consideration both rural and urban areas, the new ceilings generally are considered to be about 25 per cent below the level which would prevail if the regulations had been removed completely.

6. In some areas landlords may not be able to get the tenants to pay the full 20 and 25 per cent hikes. In these areas, such as Kirkland Lake, Ont., the supply is slightly higher than demand, and it appeared likely that the landlords in these areas "will have to be satisfied with whatever they can get."

Star May Find Missing Father

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 8 (AP).—Actress Ann Rutherford today said there is a "possibility" that an elderly man who died last Saturday in Seattle may have been her father.

"I am so bewildered and confused by the whole thing that I don't know what to think," she said. "I have not seen my father in years."

The elderly man, whose illness of cancer made him mute, penned a death bed note for hospital attendants in which he identified himself as John Dufferin Rutherford, 68, former Metropolitan Opera singer and father of the screen actress.

The Toronto-born Miss Rutherford, when first informed, discounted the dying man's statement. She said her father would have been about 55 years of age, not 68. She added that her parents separated when she was a child and that she toured with her mother, Lucille Mansfield, before entering the movies.

However, Mrs. H. P. Lang, of Vancouver, sister of Rutherford, said her brother was a former tenor with the Metropolitan Opera during the First World War "and the father of Ann Rutherford, Hollywood star."

She later said her brother was divorced from Lucille Mansfield many years ago.

Jackson's Stand

and undeviatingly followed the "party line."

As a result the UE was expelled from the CIO and the split in the union ranks began. Those wishing to remain in the CIO started up a rival electrical union, known as the International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers (CIO).

As leader of the right-wing revolt against Jackson's leadership John G. Morton and Local 524 have been the centre of attention in Canada. Morton has declared the Local affiliated with the new UE-CIO and denies the validity of the UE to speak for the workers.

Similar View Taken

A similar view has been taken by the left wingers and Morton and other top right-wing union members have been expelled. To take their places an interim committee under vice-president T. P. Davies has been set up.

Jackson has informed the Examiner also that use of the name International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers, UE-CIO or any other designation likely to cause confusion between the rival unions has been ruled out as a result of a court order Monday in the United States.

Information received by him indicated that Federal Judge Bard of the Federal Court in Pennsylvania issued a temporary restraining order against Harry Block, a top right-winger who has seceded from the UE.

They are thus enjoined from using these names "or any name similar." A further hearing is set down for Wednesday.

This applies to all the United States, Jackson said, and to Canada as well.

"The injunction applies against the parent organization, therefore any or all agents of that organization, regardless of where they reside, may not use the name."

A legal authority consulted by the Examiner denied this. United States injunctions have no legal claim on Canadian citizens, he said.

23 Hurt In Riots

SANTIAGO, Chile, Nov. 8 (AP)—Police said 23 persons were injured in Monday's violent outbreak of shooting, bottle throwing and stoning between police and a group celebrating the anniversary of the Soviet revolution. The Communist party is outlawed in Chile.

Detroit Couple To Be Held For Slaying

DETROIT, Nov. 8 — (CP) — Detective-Sergeant Bruce McCannell of Calgary is on his way here with warrants for the arrest of Mr. and Mrs. William L. Wallace on a charge of murder.

The warrants accuse the couple of slaying Yvonne Levesque, 23-year-old Calgary waitress, whose nude and battered body was found last Aug. 11 in a Calgary auto camp.

Detective John Morin of the Detroit homicide squad said Monday night that Wallace, 42-year-his investigators a statement in which he told of pounding Miss Levesque's head with a bottle of beer while his wife held the struggling girl. Mrs. Wallace, 32, insisted she had no part in the slaying and knew nothing about it.

Wallace said in the statement that while Miss Levesque lay dying in the bedroom of the overnight cabin his wife assured him she could "fix it up to look like a sex crime."

Wallace told police that a fourth person was in the bedroom at the time, Donald W. Henderson, 33, of Clive, Alta. He said Henderson "passed out" on the bed during a drinking party to which Henderson and Miss Levesque had invited the Wallaces, friends of only a few hours.

Police quoted Wallace as saying he was going through the unconscious Henderson's pockets when Miss Levesque yelled at him to stop. He then hit her with the beer bottle, police said.

Police reported finding Henderson bent over the limp form of the girl from Pincher Creek, Alta., whom he had introduced as his bride-to-be. While police tried to revive Miss Levesque, Henderson disappeared. Calgary police still hold a murder warrant for him and say that he now may give himself up.

U.S. Lost Its Big Ace On Revealing Report

NEWARK, N. J., Nov. 8 (AP)—The wartime head of the Manhattan project says the United States lost its "biggest ace," secrecy of the atom bomb in 1946

Maj.-Gen. Leslie R. Groves, said Monday night the atom bomb gave the "ability to bargain with the Russians."

The United States lost that in 1946, Groves added, "when Dean Acheson, then Undersecretary of State, released a report made to him by David Lilienthal, head of the Atomic Energy Commission.

"The Russians got their hands on that report—and we lost our bargaining secrecy.

going to head for the river ahead of us and try to land. But we lost height too rapidly, in a last effort to save us, 200 yards from water, the pilot tried to pancake the plane on the tree tops.

Brush Tree Tops

"We brushed the tops of the trees, then nose-dived into the ground. I only have a hazy recollection of what happened next, but I remember that flames burst around us as the engine exploded when it dug into the ground. Then I followed two men out of the rear of the plane. . . we stumbled towards the water's edge expecting the gas tanks to explode. When they didn't we went back to try and help the other two men. We found they were burnt to death."

Lt. Dan Mayer of the Quebec Provincial Police was the first outsider at the scene of the crash. He said after landing on the semi ice-bound river within a hundred yards of the missing men, he saw a man trying to help pole the plane towards the bank of the river.

"That man was William Wiltsey who although crippled by an earlier crash, badly shaken, and in need of food and rest, kept the little party of survivors alive by his efforts," Lt. Mayer said.

"It was a miracle, we did not even expect to find them alive. When the injured men saw us, they stumbled towards us crying and laughing almost delirious with joy, and talking like children who haven't seen their parents for weeks. Yet these men were brave men," Lt. Mayer said.

Bride Of Three Hours

At Matachewan, Ont., Mrs. Val Clements said in an interview today she was a bride of three hours when her husband left on a prospecting trip in northwestern Quebec's mining country where he died.

Now she is waiting for his burned, lifeless body.

Mrs. Clements said she didn't know her husband was on the plane until told Sunday by a reporter. She learned of his death Monday night through a phone call to Gold Belt Airways, Rouym, owners of the plane.

"We were married Aug. 8 at 8 a.m. and left on the 11 o'clock train for the trip," she said. She received a letter from her husband at the beginning of October, saying he expected to return at the end of the month.

Gets Caught In Pulley Has Mangled Arm

HASTINGS, Nov. 8 (ENS) — While working at the residence of Father Garvey, Monday afternoon Raymond Chrysler of Campbellford had his arm caught in the pulley of the well digger. It was bady mangled.

He was taken to the office of Dr. W. N. Campbell who dressed his arm, he was then taken to the hospital in Belleville.

Arrest 4 Red Officers

BERLIN, Nov. 8 (Reuters) — The British-licensed Berlin newspaper Telegraf reported today that four Soviet officers had been arrested and all troops confined to barracks at Rosslau, after anti-Stalinist leaflets appeared there. Western allied intelligence officers Sunday reported the existence among Soviet occupation troops in Germany of an anti-Stalinist movement known as "N. Tms. (Death to the tyrants.)"

Cow In Well 24 Hours, Put To Bed

LONDON, Ont., Nov. 8—(CP)—After standing on her hind legs for more than 24 hours, Daisy May now refuses to get up at all. Stanley Kwiatowski, farmer of RR 2, Wilton Grove, said today he fears for her life.

Daisy May, a two-year-old, registered purebred Holstein, disappeared and eventually was found at the bottom of an abandoned well on Kwiatowski's farm.

The well had been used as a dump before it was closed. [illegible] filled the bottom. The heifer was down a total distance of about 15 feet with her hind legs well into the refuse and cold water. She was standing upright.

Stanley McPherson, neighbor, assisted in going down to put a rope around the animal and slowly but surely she was brought to the surface. A veterinary was called and Daisy May was put to bed for treatment from shock and long exposure.

"We don't know if she is going to pull through or not," one of the family said today. "There is no change to report." If all goes well Daisy May will become a mother next month.

Girl 8 Stricken With Leukemia

TORONTO, Nov. 8 (CP) — An eight-year-old girl, stricken with what is believed leukemia, was brought to hospital here from Niagara Falls, Ont., today.

Preliminary diagnosis indicated Linda Mitchell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Mitchell, of Niagara Falls, was suffering from leukemia.

Her case is said to be similar to that of former hockey star Richard Porter, 21, who has been kept alive, six months after all hope seemed gone. The youth has been given many blood transfusions.

Doctors, however, declined to speculate on Linda's chance of recovery, pending further tests and observation.

REVIEW COUNTY'S GRANT

That the Board of Governors of Civic Hospital be requested to try to arrange a meeting with the county council for the purpose of reviewing their grant of $150,000 made in June, 1944, was the substance of a motion by Aldermen Grant Miller and Adam Sands at the city council meeting Monday night.

"Tom's letter opened my eyes..."

". . . You remember Helen, of course. Everybody thought that, with the estate left by her husband, she was comfortably fixed for life. But yesterday, she came to me for a job.

"Seems that the family friend who had been appointed Executor of the estate was inexperienced. Everything was muddled from the start. Some investments turned out badly. By the time Helen got experts to straighten things out most of the property was gone.

"It's a sad story, Bill. But it makes me thankful that my affairs will be managed by National Trust Company. After all, it's their business to administer estates — and their experienced Trust Officers will always be on hand to protect the interests of my family.

1948 Production Biggest For Canadians

OTTAWA, Nov. 8 — (CP). — Canada's growing manufacturing industries had their biggest year in history in 1948.

They turned out products with a gross value of $11,800,887,000—nearly $950 for each man, woman and child in the country.

The value of production was 17 per cent higher than in 1947, itself a record year.

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics, reporting the figures on Monday, said the increases were shown by all nine groups of industries. The largest actual increase was in the non-ferrous metal group, but non-metallic minerals showed the biggest percentage increase.

During the year, iron and iron products replaced wood and paper as the biggest group of manufactures.

The total value of the iron group—comprising 18 individual industries— was $2,2251,392,000, an increase of 21.4 per cent. The biggest increases were shown in farm implements, automobiles, machinery, primary iron and steel, railway rolling stock and sheet metal products.

The wood and paper group had a gross production value of $2,207,361,000, compared with $1,953,243,000 a year earlier. There was higher output in all but one—the cooperage industry—of the 27 individual industries in the group, with substantial production gains in pulp and paper, sawmills, printing and publishing planing mills, sash and door factories and paper boxes and bags.

Henry Haryett Buried At Maple Grove

HAVELOCK, Nov. 8 (ENS)—The funeral took place today of Henry Haryett, 83, who died on Saturday at Mrs. McCabe's nursing home.

The service in Havelock United Church was conducted by the Rev. F. R. Vanderburgh. Burial was in Maple Grove Cemetery and pallbearers were members of the local Masonic order.

Born in Rockingham, Ontario, Mr. Haryett was a son of the late William Haryett and Mildred Heesman. When about 20 years of age he went to live at Port Stewart where, until his retirement in 1939, he operated the leading business in that part of the country serving his community as general merchant, stock drover, grain and hay dealer, undertaker and also catered to the lumber camps of the district.

He was always prominent in municipal affairs, serving as reeve of the township of Carlow for 15 years. In 1927 he was elected warden of Hastings county.

Active Church Man

He was an active member of Fort Stewart United Church (formerly Presbyterian) and was a life member of Bancroft Lodge A.F. and A.M. No. 482. Shortly after disposing of his business in 1939 he made Havelock his home.

He has been a bed patient since December, 1941, the result of a motor car accident.

Surviving besides his widow, formerly Mary Anne Armstrong of New Carlow, there are three daughters, Mrs. Harry Scott and Mrs. William Goadsby of Havelock, Mrs. J. E Finnigan of Frankford; five sons, Dr. Ronald Haryett of Bancroft, Henry of Montreal, Garnet of Chalk River, Claude of Norwood and Bert of Havelock; a sister, Mrs James Maddock of Moose Jaw, Sask.; a brother James of Peace River, Sask.

2 Young Adventurers Bed Down In School

LINDSAY, Nov. 8 (CP).—Two 17-year-old adventurers decided to "return" to school and as a result landed in Lindsay Police Court Monday. The pair, Ron Murphy, Peterborough, and Jim Davis, Minden, while hiking to Haliburton, pried open a window of a school, north of nearby Fenelon Falls, and bedded down for the night. The two new "students" were awakened by frightened young pupils as they entered the little red school house Monday.

Provincial Constable Lloyd Lyle of Fenelon Falls was called and the two were charged with vagrancy. After a warning by Magistrate E. A. Gee, about the wrong way to enter school, the pair was released on suspended sentence.

Abolish County Councils Reeve Says Use Outlived

COBOURG, Nov. 8 (ENS) — Reeve W. G. Bowles of Cartwright Township suggested Monday at the opening of the November session of Northumberland and Durham Counties Council that county councils were obsolete, frankly admitting that he didn't earn his council pay and presuming that others were also getting paid for services that could be dispensed with.

Members of the council gaped wondering whether the facile vocabulary of the reeve from Cartwright was being devoted to a little kidding among the boys or whether he was in earnest.

Reeve C. B. Jandrew countered by saying that counties could not do away with local assessment forming part of the general picture of equalized assessments. The committee urged appointment now of a county assessor. His job and office expenses would be approximately $6,000 a year.

Reeve Bowles said that the standard assessment sheet appeared confusing to him. It was fine in theory but would require a great deal of education and he would like to see the kinks ironed out by some other county before these counties took it on.

Foresees More Appeals

Reeve Alex Stephen of Haldimand Township said that if council didn't act now, it would face more assessment appeals.

Reeve Doy Dodge of Cobourg also urged prompt acceptance of the plan of a county assessor. It was not fair to the urban municipalities to have to absorb the extra assessment granted on urban appeals.

Warden A. J. Runnalls commented that the county assessment would not be used as a basis of equalization for four or five years yet, as it would take time to put it into effect. Reeve Dodge said that when Cobourg was reassessed there were revealed some instances of peculiar assessment situations. Reeve Woodyard said that the assessment department of the Dept. of Municipal Affairs felt that Cobourg's new assessment would save a lot of work for a county assessor.

Reeve Frank George of Brighton Township suggested that the report be received and filed and no action taken. His motion was carried.

Usefulness Outlived

"We as county councillors have outlive our usefulness," declared Reeve Bowles. He went on to point out that he received $70 for attendance and mileage at the session and he didn't feel as if he had earned his money. Most of the business done was of a trivial nature, including a decision once to adjourn in order that the members could attend some horse races.

"Give me one good reason why county council should exist," demanded Reeve Bowles.

"I can give a reason," declared Reeve C. B. Jandrew. "If you do away with county councils you weaken the whole system of our democracy."

"You will still have your township councils," said Reeve Bowles.

"If you eliminate county council the next thing will be township councils go," contended Reeve Jandrew.

"Move we adjourn," came from one member of council. Carried.

Council decided to take no action in regard to a recommendation of the special committee on county assessment that a county assessor be appointed. Reeve E. R. Woodyard of Clarke Township, chairman of the special committee on county assessment, reported that the committee had consulted with the county assessor at Peterborough to see how the work was carried out. They learned that there was a standard work sheet for all municipalities and all the local assessors would work in co-operation with the county assessor.

There would be a record of appeals, record of purchase prices of property and the benefits would be a fair and uniform assessment with open local assessment forming part of the general picture of equalized assessments. The committee urged appointment now of a county assessor. His job and office expenses would be approximately $6,000 a year.

Reeve Bowles said that the standard assessment sheet appeared confusing to him. It was fine in theory but would require a great deal of education and he would like to see the kinks ironed out by some other county before these counties took it on.

Reeve Alex Stephen of Haldimand Township said that if council didn't act now, it would face more assessment appeals.

Reeve Doy Dodge of Cobourg also urged prompt acceptance of the plan of a county assessor. It was not fair to the urban municipalities to have to absorb the extra assessment granted on urban appeals.

Warden A. J. Runnalls commented that the county assessment would not be used as a basis of equalization for four or five years yet, as it would take time to put it into effect. Reeve Dodge said that when Cobourg was reassessed there were revealed some instances of peculiar assessment situations. Reeve Woodyard said that the assessment department of the Dept. of Municipal Affairs felt that Cobourg's new assessment would save a lot of work for a county assessor.

Reeve Frank George of Brighton Township suggested that the report be received and filed and no action taken. His motion was carried.

Has 2,680 Majority

BROCKVILLE, Nov. 8 (CP)—The official count of votes in the Leeds Provincial by-election shows a majority of 2,680 for Hugh A. Reynolds, Progressive Conservative, 113 less than reported earlier, Returning Officer J. S. Willis announced Monday. Mr. Reynolds polled 10,627 votes and Liberal Ernest I. Miller polled 7,947, he said. Mr. Miler's total was reduced by 16 votes in the official count.

Trees And Shrubs Beautify Home Farmers Advised

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 8 — (ENS)—Methods of beautifying the farm house were discussed by Assistant Professor J. A. Weall of the Ontario Agricultural College at a Rotary Club banquet Monday. A large number of farmers were also present.

He said that the government provided trees free of charge to farmers who wanted to grow a wind-break. He warned that the trees forming the wind-break needed special care during the first few years.

"Evergreens planted in front of the house made it more attractive," he said. The lawn should be small and surrounded by a suitable hedge. Basswood, Horse Chestnut and Linden trees scattered around the house did not only provide beauty but furnished shade and attracted birds," he said.

"An elm and a golden weeping willow planted near the drive shed will have an imposing effect. Do not crowd the home grounds with too many things. Use simplicity and practice restraint," he added.

He stressed the importance of flowering shrubs in beautifying the farm home. "They can be used effectively on corners," he said. "A row of lilacs along the fence and rose trees in front of the verandah replace ugliness with charm and beauty.

Mix Colors

"Flower borders, on curving patterns, of pink, white and red along the hedge and walks break the montony of the green of shrubs and trees. The verandah," he stated, "would be hideous without blue morning glory. Blue is a cool color," he added.

"A series of arches, constructed of poles, cross rails and covered with wild grape vines over the path to the barn will add an interest that is lacking on most farms. A beautiful home is a joy forever," was his closing thought.

Mr. Weall punctuated his address by decorating with colored chalk a farm home and grounds previously drawn on a portable blackboard.

Entertainment, arranged by Rotarian Leo Doherty, included a solo by Ross Richardson; tap dancing, Gaele Meyers and Nancy Island with Donna Sharp at the piano; solo in dutch, G. L. Van Klaveren; and violin solo, Gerald Young accompanied by his brother Donald. Ross Richardson led a sing-song with Don Bennett at the piano.

Mayor H. M. Donald proposed a toast to the farmers and it was responded to by Lindsay Anderson. W. A. Hogle introduced the speaker. Vote of thanks was moved by H. N. Carr.

Dinner was served by the ladies of Christ Church Parish Guild. President Charlie Calver was master of ceremonies.

New $60,000 Wing Planned For Old People's Home

COBOURG, Nov. 8 (ENS) — Decision to call for tenders for building a new wing at the counties home for the aged, followed a query from Reeve Roy Dodge Monday at the November session of the Northumberland and Durham Counties Council about the delay in getting an inmate into the counties' home.

Referring to a resolution in the June session in which it was ruled that a medical examination would have to precede admission to the home (in order to cut down on the number of bed patients who should be in hospital) the Reeve of Cobourg asked why it took so long in one particular instance of which he knew after the medical o.k. had been given.

"We just didn't have room at the time," explained the Warden.

Reeve Dodge said that the case concerned a man who was using a needed bed in Cobourg Hospital and he had been passed as able to become an inmate of the counties' home.

"We have 17 in there from Cobourg alone. We will soon need a special counties home for Cobourg alone," quipped Reeve G. A. Walton of Newcastle.

It all boiled down to the fact that there were bed patients in the counties home who should be in the hospital. Drastic action should be taken but the question was where to start," added Reeve Walton.

"Let the province assume care of our aged people. If a half million dollar home can be built for alcoholics, surely the old people can be looked after," declared Reeve Bowles.

Province Pays Half

"The province will pay 50 per cent" said William Barr, counties clerk and treasurer.

Reeve Woodyard recalled that some years ago the Department of Welfare asked a meeting of the reeves of these counties for suggestions. Perhaps the counties council should 'holler' for some attention, he said.

"If the bed patients were elsewhere and no more bed patients came in, I think we could handle the situation," observed Reeve Walton.

There were young people, old people, sick people, well people, people with money and folks without a cent, in the counties home for the aged, Reeve Walton said. However, it would be too much of an outlay to build a new home.

"We can ask that the government take over the whole thing," suggested Reeve Bowles.

"The minute the government took it over entirely, we would have nothing more to say about the operation of the counties home," warned Reeve Jandrew.

"How about the $60,000 wing which was suggested when we had the architects last year. Our half would only be $30,000," said Reeve Bert Lingard of Port Hope.

Reeve Dodge suggested that it would do no harm to lop $30,000 from the road appropriation. Reeve Stephen pointed out that the last debenture would be paid off this year and this saving plus a half mill boost in the tax rate would take care of the $30,000.

"What about the bed patients?" asked Reeve Bowles.

"They could go to the hospital where they belong," replied Reeve J. W. Wright of Millbrook.

On motion council authorized the Board of Management to call for tenders and present a report at the January session.

HANDS IN TRAINING...FOR ONTARIO

Learning Business Practice

IN Ontario the wheels of industry turn for the benefit of every single one of us. Our lathes, dynamos, drill presses, farm combines, tractors, business machines, etc. are producing goods and services which earn dollars. These dollars provide food, clothing, medical care and other necessities which contribute to our security and high standard of living. Every single one of us, therefore, has a very personal interest in the flow of a steady supply of trained workers to industrial plants. These workers will operate machines which are important to our way of life.

We should appreciate, then, the co-operative efforts of government, industry and labour in the field of employee training. In schools and in factories our workers, young and old, are given the opportunity to develop new and specific skills in every field of business and industrial activity. For instance, every effort on the part of office workers to become proficient in typing, filing, shorthand and secretarial work, will mean greater business efficiency—will help to make Ontario a finer place in which to live and work.

Our Way of Life Rewards Trained Hands

Ontario workers know they can earn more, have executive responsibility and enjoy a higher standard of living in direct ratio to the skills they acquire and the way they make use of them. That's always true in a free economy—that's why our competitive system will continue to make Canada great and a great place in which to live.

Those who are disposed to be wise too late, are apt to be valiant too early

[illegible] Our New [illegible]

It is high time that the men who propose to stand for election to the City Council made their names known, and gave some indication of their views on city affairs. Peterborough is growing rapidly, municipal business is increasing, heavy municipal commitments are being undertaken and the need for wise guidance is apparent. Peterborough needs its best men on the Council, and in particular it needs men who have had some experience of finance; at a time of heavy spending, men who can figure closely, but who also understand the difference between real and temporary economy, are imperatively needed in the municipal service.

We understand the problem of many men who would like to be Councillors. They have businesses of their own which demand close attention, and they know that a Peterborough alderman today must spend a considerable portion of his time each day in city business. They know that Council meetings, committee meetings and preparation for both demand many hours each week. They feel, quite honestly, that they lack the time for this work. It is this consideration, more than any other, which keeps many of the ablest of the younger business men of the town from seeking a seat on the Council.

Although we are not fully convinced of the need of a City Manager for Peterborough, we are sure that such an official could cut hundreds of hours every year off the time demanded of Aldermen under the present system. The School Board, since appointing a Superintendent of Education, has found that its detail work is cut in two, and the efficiency of the Board has benefitted. An executive official who had the power to do jobs which are now done by Aldermen, which have nothing to do with policy, could save the Council endless effort, and would make it possible for more men to take on Council work.

• • •

After all, the Council is a body to make decisions not to carry them out in detail. The Cabinet Ministers are not expected to be their own Civil Servants. Peterborough has grown too big for its present system of civic government.

Is Canada A Drunken Nation?

Dr. Charlotte Whitton, the well-known Canadian sociologist, says that Canada is spending too much money on liquor, and in support of her assertion she produces some impressive figures. Dr. Whitton does not, however, take into account the money which is spent on liquor within Canada by people who are not Canadians, but occasional visitors; we think that this would amount to a considerable sum. Nor does she, as the Ottawa Journal points out, allow for the very high taxation on liquor which exists in all parts of this country. Ontario, for instance, is reported to spend $125,000,000 a year in liquor. But of this sum approximately $75 millions is made up of federal and provincial taxes, which leaves an actual liquor bill of $50,000,000.

This greatly reduced sum would still be too much, of course, if Ontario were a drunken province, but we do not believe that it is so. There are drunkards, and there are people who spend more on liquor than they can afford, but they do not comprise a large part of the population. The abuse of liquor is less common by far than the moderate use of it.

The liquor question has been argued backward, forward, upside down and sideways for many years in this country, and it is unlikely that it will ever be exhausted. People who are old enough to remember conditions fifty years ago are sure that liquor is used more moderately now than it was in their young days. Moderation and discretion in the use of liquor are all that a nation is entitled to ask of its people. The present system of government monopoly and high taxation has its evils, but they do not compare with the evils of unrestricted sale, or the evils of prohibition and bootlegging.

A New Crest For Peterborough

The Mayor's statement that Peterborough is to seek a new crest is good news. The present crest is an unsightly and old-fashioned affair, and has no heraldic validity whatever. It does, however, embody something of the spirit which has built up the city and its motto, "Nature Provides and Industry Develops", is by no means a bad one. What the crest needs is a thorough overhaul by a competent authority, and the College of Heralds, in London, is obviously the place to appeal for help; its authority is unchallengeable and it is sympathetic to the special needs of such communi- [illegible] Knights wore over their armour heavy cloth coats upon which were painted or embroidered devices by which their friends could know them in battle. Each family had a device of its own, and as families intermarried these devices were put together in complicated patterns. It was the job of the heralds to keep track of the knights, and this meant that the heralds had to know these devices thoroughly, and were the authorities on the way in which the devices could be used. Thousands of families still treasure such devices, called "coats of arms" or "achievements", and many people even today apply to the College of Heralds for distinguishing family marks, which they put on their silverware, and other treasured and lasting possessions.

Cities, also, had their distinguishing marks, which were granted to them by the heralds, and these marks appeared upon the city seals, and upon city possessions. It is for a coat of arms of this sort that Peterborough would apply.

The reason for applying to the College of Heralds, instead of getting a design from any willing artist, is that heraldry is a science, and the heralds are experts. Also, they can design a city device which will look as good, and mean as much, in three or five hundred years as it does now, and that is something which no one ignorant of heraldry can do.

The old city crest has had its day, and should be laid aside. Let us get a new one which we will never have to change. Next year—our centenary year—is the time to do it. But may we add one word of warning: the College of Heralds moves rather slowly, and if we are to have the new crest before the end of next year, now is the time to apply for it.

Caribbean Federation?

Following closely on the actual establishment of the new Dutch East-Indian federation The United States of Indonesia which is virtually independent of The Netherlands, comes the British Colonial Office's plan for a West Indian federation of six Caribbean colonies and nearly three million people. The six are Barbados, British Honduras, Jamaica, the Leeward Islands, Trinidad and the Windward Islands. Bermuda and the Bahamas are not included.

Whether there is enough in common among the six to make amalgamation into a single state feasible, and whether the present-day native leaders are sufficiently malleable and co-operative to make it work, remains to be seen. The possibilities are being actively explored by colonial governors now meeting in Barbados. If these colonies are to be given self-government and Dominion status, they certainly have a better chance of maintaining independence and prospering if they are united. The day has gone when a tiny country can swim by itself, politically or economically. Even in Europe important states like Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg have united for trade and commerce. Newfoundland found it better to join the Canadian federation rather than maintain her island isolation.

That the Bahamas and Bermuda are not included in the plan gives some basis to the talk of their eventually becoming Canada appendages.

End Of Ontario Immigration Offices

The Hon. William Griesinger, Minister of Planning and Development, has recommended to the Ontario Government that it close its immigration offices in London and Glasgow. They were opened by Mr. George Drew, then Premier, who believed that Ottawa was not doing enough to encourage Britons to emigrate, and to show Ottawa how it could be done. It was a reduplication of effort, and although a success for a time in helping Britishers to come to Ontario, occasionally the offices promised more milk and honey than they could provide. The offices will now be closed, and immigration to Ontario will fully revert to the Federal authorities who have their own offices in London. It is to them that immigration matters properly belong.

The C. I. O. Breaks With Communists

By NORA BELOFF
(In Cleveland, Ohio)

IN a mood of jubilant excitement, with a hundred men and women rising to their feet, cheering and hurling bundles of paper into the air, American trade unionism finally split with the Communist Party. The scene was the giant public auditorium of the city of Cleveland, Ohio; the occasion the eleventh annual convention of the Congress of Industrial Organizations. Delegates of six million American trade unionists assembled here last week to represent the dynamic militant unionism of the C.I.O. against the older and more conservative American Federation of Labour. They can look back at a record of [illegible] effort to discover a [illegible] present [illegible] without regrets.

DURING its early years the C.I.O. majority held firmly to the belief that workers everywhere, Communist or not, must share the same fundamental aims: riddance from exploitation, freedom from want, and equality of opportunity. Today that belief has vanished: the overwhelming majority, on the contrary, believe that the aims themselves are not only different but also irreconcilable. The present cold war, in which Russian interests require a weak, divided and impoverished America, has exposed Communist allegiance to non-American interests where persistent newspapers progaganda, political oratory and organized anti-Soviet campaigning had failed.

EXPERIENCED C.I.O. leaders have long been aware that the Red wing of their own movement was using the unions to mask pro-Russian political activity. They found no difficulty in establishing the perfect identity between the Moscow "party line" and the current policies of the Communist faction in their midst. Nevertheless, in earlier conventions they had contented themselves with making anti-Communist speeches and submitting anti-Communist resolutions. Communists who clung to the C.I.O. as a valuable platform and instrument were quite willing to vote for such platonic resolutions: unanimous decisions were passed last year and the year before against Communist exploitation of the trade unions — with the Communists voting "aye" and acting "no" as soon as the convention dispersed.

THIS time things were tougher: in advance the C.I.O. leaders had prepared a resolution to permit the Executive Committee to revoke its charters and suspend from membership unions which followed the Party instead of the C.I.O. line. This would give the anti-Communist executive a chance to form new unions in industries where the Communists had otained the upper hand, and to ensure loyalty to common trade union aims.

THE strategy had been decided under the guidance of the pugnacious red-headed leader of the Autoworkers' Union, Walter Reuther, Chairman of the Resolutions Committee of the present C.I.O. convention. He and his colleagues believed the time had come where riddance of the Communists would no longer mean a split down the middle of the C.I.O. forces, but only the disappearance of a noisy minority—"the elimination of a cancerous growth on the body of the C.I.O.," to use Reuther's own picturesque phraseology. Reuther's resolution was acclaimed by the convention with an overwhelming enthusiasm which suggests that his calculations were sound.

IT is still too soon to know how the Communists will react to a decision which cannot fail drastically to reduce their scope of action. The largest Communist-dominated union—the Electricians', third largest in the C.I.O.—immediately they saw that the resolution would be adopted, seized the initiative and announced that they were withdrawing from the convention and suspending payment of dues to the C.I.O. On the other hand, the pro-Communist leader of the Longshoremen, the Australian Harry Bridges, not only attended the convention meeting but bluntly declared his intention of staying inside the C.I.O. until forcibly ejected. The Party line itself has probably not yet been fixed.

ALL delegates with experience of Communist tactics expect the Party to continue political and progaganda work inside the unions under one form or another. Commenting on the general assumption that the Communists may "go underground," the veteran Scottish-born C.I.O. President, 63-year-old Philip Murray, earned the laughter and applause of the convention with the comment: "I don't know where that hole in the ground is that they are talking about getting into, but I'm going to make quite sure that it isn't under the C.I.O."

Princes' Purses Relatively Small Now

A comprehensive account of the "bloodless revolution" as a result of which 500 odd states have been integrated with the rest of India leading to the achievement of the ideal of geographical, political and economic unification of India was given by Deputy Minister Patel in the Constituent Assembly.

In a long statement Sardar Patel said that by the elimination of centuries old autocracy India's democracy has won a great victory of which the Princes and people of India alike should be proud. This was an achievement which was bound to go to the credit of any nation or people. Sardar Patel said autocracy in the Indian States had gone forever and the dream of centuries had been fulfilled.

Explaining why it had been found necessary to guarantee privy purses to the Princes Sardar Patel said that the sum of 45 million rupees to be paid annually on this account was a very "small price" for the complete "unionisation" of the country. This sum was one fourth of the amount spent by the Princes themselves previously.

Letters To The Editor

A WORKER'S POINT OF VIEW

Sir: It seems quite evident to me that the United Electric Workers' Union which we have belonged to in the past is dominated by the Communist party. There have been no denials of it that I have read by the parties concerned.

We, of Local 524 have heard quite a bit about it, but how many of us know exactly what it means to our local, or for that matter, to our country, which our boys so willingly gave their lives to keep free and democratic.

I decided it was time to dig into the matter and find out exactly what the Communist party policies are. I found information in the Standard American Encyclopedia Vol. IV.

The following are some of the Communist policies which I found outlined there:

1. Abolition of property in land, and application of all rents of lands to public purposes.

No one would own their own home or business. You people who own your own home or business, which you have bought or built, to suit your own wishes and needs and which you may have struggled for years to pay for, would have them taken from you by the government and would be in the same position as the people who have not had the ambition and courage to save and stint themselves to have a home in which they would raise their children to be decent law abiding citizens.

2. A heavy progressive income tax.

We think we are paying enough income tax now.

3. Abolition of all rights of inheritance.

You would be be unable to give your children the start in life they would otherwise have.

4. Confiscation of the property of immigrants and rebels.

Anyone can be called a rebel as you must have seen in the past few days in the way that Jackson has expelled our negotiating committee and other key members of our local, because they did not see fit to agree with something which they knew was not to the best interests of the membership, to which they were elected as officers.

They were elected by a membership of about 3,200 members, but they were expelled by a handful of men, led by Jackson.

Let me tell you, that our negotiating committee and their so-called followers have worked night and day, lots of times without as much rest in a week as most of us have in two days. Because they refused to fall in with the plans of the District representatives, to monopolize the strike vote, so that the Joint Board could pull this plant out at any time they saw fit, without consulting the membership, they are Rebels.

The union is here and it is here to stay. It is a wonderful asset to the working man. It has raised our standard of living to the extent that everyone enjoys a reasonable amount of security. I will say that our local officers with Mr. Jackson's help have done much in this respect for us. But we can not let gratitude influence us to such an extent that it would endanger a democracy which we have always cherished and fought for.

Democracy is government of the people, by the people, for the people. That is what our local is supposed to represent. Jackson preaches democracy but he does not practice it, as may be seen by the high handed way in which he has attempted to dictate to this and other locals of his district.

A short time ago, at a meeting of the membership, which dealt with the arbitration case of the Induction Motors Winding, we had the photographer from the U.E. News with us. Most of us saw the pictures which were in the U.E. News a few days later. I would like to know just how it happens that, although there were a great number of speakers that day, the only people whose pictures appeared in the U.E. News, are the same (20) people who were picked on Thursday night, after the groups had split, to take the place of the legitimate, duly elected officers and key members of our local.

We must have a union that is respectable, decent and law-abiding. A union that will look after the best interests of the membership and in which the members have full control, including the deciding vote on all matters, be they large or small, having to do with Local 524.

With the District leadership that we have had in the past, we have lost the respect and sympathy of the public, the press, and every other decent law-abiding and patriotic body.

We will not put up with the dictatorship and revolutionism. We will clean up our union just as Guelph, Cobourg and Brockville have, and regain the respect that is due us as a respectable labour organization.

We can do nothing better now than accept the opportunity that has been offered us by affiliating to the International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers, affiliated to the Canadian Congress of Labour and the C.I.O.

MURIEL McQUADE,
Small Motors.

291 Stewart Street.

IMPORTANCE OF A DEMOCRATIC UNION

Sir: The lack of a first-hand and factual public report of the position of 'right-wing' leaders in the factional dispute in C.G.E. prompts me to request some space in your letters column.

While true that our desire to remain within the C.I.O. and the Canadian Congress of Labour and to stay with the new International Radio and Machine Workers CIO is based partly on our differences with the Communist leadership of the now defunct U.E. that is not the whole picture.

It is the parent body of unions which is the Parliament of Labour and regulates the jurisdiction of various unions. The Auto Workers are in an auto union, Textile Workers in a textile union, Electrical Workers in an electrical union etc. When these units are banded together (under CCL-CIO) then each must organize within its own field and cannot 'raid' the jurisdiction of a sister union on threat of expulsion from the Congress. Similar action is taken as we have seen when leaders of one Congress union attack or vilify leaders of sisters organizations.

Thus you may see that if we allow the Peterborough workers to be led by left-wing District organizers outside the confines of the CIO and CCL their union will be wide open to raiding and uncontrolled attacks from other unions.

Similarly it is evident that as an outlaw union we could expect no help either financial or otherwise in the event of strikes or lockouts. Such a union will be an easy 'prey' to large corporations who could force them on strike and then just sit tight while that union exhausted its meagre resources and folded up.

With its depleted membership of about 15,000 among the nearly one million organized workers in Canada this expelled U.E. will not in my opinion be able to stand up against its increasing difficulties. The resulting break-up will mean the loss of all bargaining power of its members and the worsening of their wages and working conditions.

This opinion is substantiated very forcefully when we consider the fate of the Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers Union and the Canadian Seamen's Union. Mine, Mill, expelled from the Congress of Labour because of its policy of organizing units of the Communist Party rather than building trade unions for the northern miners, has declined from a membership of 25,000 (in 15 locals) to a mere handful of 3,000 to 4,000 in 2 locals. Canadian Seamen's Union expelled from the Trades and Labour Congress because of playing left-wing politics with the needs of its members has declined from a membership of 15,000 to a meagre 1,500.

Statements of C. S. Jackson about the right wing leaders of Local 524 (O'Donnell, Murphy, Morton, Chiles, O'Brien, Williamson etc.) will not frighten us from doing what we consider right for the man we represent 'the man in the shop'.

Remarks of Jackson, quoted in your Friday's paper charging "bloody Fascism", "misuse of funds", "packing of meetings" are utter nonsense and cannot be substantiated. Such tripe serves only to create confusion in the minds of the C.G.E. workers.

It is regrettable that this swing in our local could delay by a few weeks any decision on a justified wage increase plus the 40 hour week. However the importance of maintaining a militant, democratic, free trade union surpasses these immediate needs.

Another point to remember in this regard is that the General Electric Co. in the U.S. which has always helped to set the pattern for Canadian G.E. wage settlements has not yet settled. G.E. in the States commenced their negotiations with the same union three months ahead of their start with the union here.

Time, I believe, will demonstrate the correctness of the position taken by right-wing (non-Communist) leaders in Peterborough in maintaining their membership within the UE-CIO.

I sincerely believe we are taking a conscientious and correct position without regard for personal advancement. I sincerely believe we are acting in the best interests of the workers in the C.G.E. and of this community.

Yours very truly,
KEITH CHILES.

And the Lord God caused a deep sleep to fall upon Adam, and he slept: and he took one of his ribs, and closed up the flesh instead thereof; and the rib, which the Lord God had taken from man, made he a woman, and brought her unto the man. (Gen. 2: 21, 22.)

Now the serpent was more subtil than any beast of the field which the Lord God had made. And he said unto the woman, Yea, hath God said, Ye shall not eat of every tree of the garden? And the woman said unto the serpent, We may eat of the fruit of the trees of the garden: but of the fruit of the tree which is in the midst of the garden, God hath said, Ye shall not eat of it, neither shall ye touch it, lest ye die.

And the serpent said unto the woman, Ye shall not surely die: for God doth know that in the day ye eat thereof, then your eyes shall be opened, and ye shall be as gods, knowing good and evil. And when the woman saw that the tree was good for food, and that it was pleasant to the eyes, and a tree to be desired to make one wise, she took of the fruit thereof, and did eat, and gave also unto her husband with her; and he did eat....And the Lord God said unto the woman, What is this that thou hast done? And the woman said, The serpent beguiled me, and I did eat.

And the Lord God said unto the serpent, Because thou has done this, thou art cursed above all cattle, and above every beast of the field; upon thy belly shalt thou go, and dust shalt thou eat all the days of thy life: and I will put enmity between thee and the woman, and between thy seed and her seed; it shall bruise thy head, and thou shalt bruise his heel....

And unto Adam he said, Because thou hast hearkened unto the voice of thy wife, and hast eaten of the tree, of which I commanded thee, saying, Thou shalt not eat of it: cursed is the ground for thy sake; in sorrow shalt thou eat of it all the days of thy life....In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread till thou return unto the ground; for out of it wast thou taken: for dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return. (Gen. 3: 1-6, 13-15, 17, 19.)

Greek Sculpture

The unique examples of early Greek sculpture which adorned the Parthenon at Athens known as the Elgin Marbles are now on display again at the British Museum. They have not been exhibited since the outbreak of the war when they were immediately transferred to a place of safety. The original sculptured frieze which ornamented the four outer walls of this renowned Greek temple was 520 feet long. It represents a procession held each year in honour of the goddess Athene by the citizens of Athens. These great sculptures were carved in the fifth century before Christ, under the direction of Pheidias, and constituted the Parthenon's chief glory. When the temple became a ruin, they were rescued from deterioration and vandalism by the then British Ambassador to Turkey, Lord Elgin.

Louis Calhern has abandoned the stage for at least a couple of years. Now playing Buffalo Bill Cody in "Annie Get Your Gun," he has bought a home here and will settle down.

Humphrey Bogart says he doubts if Warners will lend Lauren Bacall. "If she ever got out of her contract, she'd probably work for my company, Santana," he added. "She might as well — she owns half of it under Community Property Law."

Bogie said he'll have a homey Christmas this year for the baby (Stephen, not Lauren). He admitted Hollywood softens up at Christmas.

"Why, Hollywood people are the most sentimental in the world," he said on the set of "In A Lonely Place." "I don't know where people get the idea we're hardboiled and tough. We're just like anybody else."

Drop Word Not Have Libel Suit

GORE BAY, Ont., Nov. 8—(CP) The word "not," dropped from a newspaper story through a typographical error, formed the basis for a libel action for unstated damages which was dismissed here Monday in Ontario Supreme Court.

The plaintiff, James O'Neill, of Little Current, did not appear in court to press the action he had brought against W. J. Patterson, publisher of the Manitoulin Expositor. O'Neill's counsel, O. A. Lauzon, of Sudbury, told the court his client had promised to be present.

Evidence was that O'Neill pleaded innocent to a theft charge in July, 1948. A news story about the case, published in the Manitoulin Island Weekly July 29, 1948, said that he had "pleaded guilty," although the words "not guilty" appeared in the story as written by the reporter. A correction and an apology were published by the paper as soon as the error was brought to its attention.

3 Soldiers AWOL Plead Guilty To Taxi Holdup

COCHRANE, Nov. 8 (CP) — Three soldiers, absent without leave from Camp Borden, Monday pleaded guilty to charges of armed robbery in the holdup of a North Bay taxi driver, Oct. 30.

Edward Hyder, 22, of Jarvie, Alta., was sentenced to 2½ years in penitentiary. Robert Macdonald, 22, of Slave Lake, Alta., and Weldon Connors of Stellarton, N. S. were given [illegible] less a Western Canada.

The taxi driver, Frank Demarco testified he picked up the three [illegible] three miles north of the city, he asked for his fare and Connors and Hyder drew guns and told him to keep on driving.

Demarco said they drove north for the remainder of the day. At Driftwood, 20 miles west of Cochrane, he was taken into the bush, forced to change clothes with Connors, and left bound by the roadside.

Police arrested the men the next day near the taxi, which they found abandoned east of Cochrane with a flat tire.

Captain H. J. Hynes, assistant adjutant at Camp Borden, told the court that pistols found in possession of the three men had been stolen earlier at the army camp.

Capt. Hynes said the army was willing to take Connors back if he were placed on suspended sentence in view of a previous good record. Magistrate E. H. Tucker declined to suspend sentence. He said he saw no reason why Connors, who had originally engaged the cab, should be treated differently from the others.

Slammin' Sammy Snead, who barely missed scoring a grand title slam, was selected the golfer of the year in a country-wide poll conducted by the Professional Golfers' Association of America.

Snead's selection was announced Monday at Chicago by George Schneiter, manager of the PGA, Tournament Bureau.

Runner-up to Snead in the poll conducted among sports writers and sports casters was the man who beat him out of golf's most coveted crown, nation open champion Cary Middlecoff. Third was [illegible] championships among his six tournament victories to date.

With still the Miami Open (Dec. 8-11) to be reckoned in official PGA money-winning for the year, Snead has a top grab of $30,893, followed by Middlecoff with $24,604.

Toronto Wanderers, recently formed to revive English Rugby Union football in Ontario, was formally organized as a club at Toronto Monday night.

At its first general meeting, Norman Fawdry, of Toronto, chairman of the original temporary working committee, was elected chairman of the new executive committee.

The club plays McGill University Saturday in the semi-final playoffs for the McTier cup—awarded the best club team in Eastern Canada. If they win, they have hopes of playing St. Francis Xavier University, Antigonish, N.S., at Sydney, N.S., Nov. 19, in the cup finals.

Among points discussed at the meeting was the active encouragement of English rugby in Ontario schools. It was decided, if possible, that club members tour schools before next season with rugby educational movies and to lecture on the game's principles.

The London, Ont., city council Monday night gave some support to the stand of the Gazette, University of Western Ontario's twice-weekly newspaper, that any senior football playoff this year should be held in London.

A letter will be sent to the president of the Intercollegiate Football Association asking that London be "considered" as the playoff site. According to the rules, a playoff must take place on neutral grounds unless agreed upon by both teams.

It was pointed out that the two playoffs involving the Western Mustangs in recent years were held away from home—in Toronto last year and in Montreal in 1938. The local stadium holds about 12,000.

Western already is assured of a playoff spot this year.

Hockey fans watching Toronto Maple Leafs practise today will be helping European students.

Conn Smythe, president of the National Hockey League Club, granted the International Students' Service permission to charge admission of 25 cents a person, with proceeds going to the I.N.S. campaign for $7,000 to help restore bomb-damaged universities in Europe and to bring European students to take up studies in Canada.

The Eastern Canada junior football championship will be held [illegible] evening at Hamilton [illegible] Hamilton Wildcats and Montreal Notre Dame de Grace, junior champs of the ORFU and QRFU respectively, will play the sudden death game for the title.

At Toledo, O., Sandy Saddler, former world's champion featherweight boxer, won a unanimous decision over Leroy Willis, of Detroit, in a 10-rounder Monday night.

The New York ex-champ, who weighed the heaviest of his fighting career at 130½, had the fight all to himself after the fourth round, although there wasn't a knockdown in the fight.

All-Star Mat Card At Brock Thursday

When Yukon Eric enters the ring at the Brock Arena Thursday night wrestling fans will see one of the most colorful matmen of the present era. This big, strong lumberjack is really something to see in action. His opponent, Red O'Malley is well known here and will give the big fellow a real test. This pair meet in the opening match.

The main bout between Sky Hi Lee and Seelie Samara is also attracting widespread attention as it will give fans a chance ot see just how Seelie stacks up against the giant Lee. The colored boy is fast and has shown a greater variety of holds than any other wrestler this season. He is a real stylist.

Wladesk Kowalski, one of the main contenders for the British Empire title takes on Joe Christie in the semi-final of this all-star card.

Close Competition In Men's 'Y' Loop

Close competition featured last night's bowling in the YMCA Men's Five-Pin League, all decisions being 4-2. Aberdeens, Artists, B'nai B'rith and Quakers scored wins over Jay Bees, Commercials, Tip Tops and Canada Packers. Just two or three pins separated the teams in some games.

George Logan turned in the best individual performance with a smashing 791 for three games. He was followed by Bill Saunders 758, Charley Orr 722, Ray Bennett Jr. 723, Mike Doris 722, Aaron Black 714 and Reg Kingdon 708. Doris had the best single game of 307 and Saunders had 301.

Quakers and Tip Tops tied for high team score of 3255 and the latter squad had best single of 1246.

Veteran Abel Commands Scoring Lead

MONTREAL, Nov. 8 (CP) — Veteran Sid Abel of Detroit Red Wings commands the National Hockey League scoring race following a whirlwind week in which he picked up seven points —four goals and three assists.

League statistics released today show that Melville, Sask., born Abel leads the high-point snipers with a total of 12 points, one ahead of the runner-up spot which is [illegible] Chicago's Metro Prystai and Doug Bentley, Boston's Paul Ronty, Detroit's Ted Lindsay and Toronto's Cal Gardner—all with 11 points. In the next spot, in a three-way split with 10 points each, are Johnny Peirson of Boston, Gordie Howe, Detroit, and Roy Conacher of Chicago.

Top goal producer in the six-team circuit is Montreal Canadiens Maurice (Rocket) Richard who has earned his total of seven points through goals, not having so far been credited with an assist.

Cal Gardner leads in assists with nine.

Holds Spotlight

Canadiens' Bill Durnan continues to hold the spotlight in the goal-minding division. In 10 games, big Bill has allowed 15 goals to escape him for a 1.50 goals-against average. Harry Lumley of Detroit is tied with Durnan for shutouts with two each.

New York Rangers' Dunc Fisher leads the penalty parade with 24 minutes spent outside the oval. Canadiens with 114 minutes are the most penalized club.

Red Wings are in first place in the circuit with a two-point edge over Toronto Maple Leafs. Wings have 15 points, Toronto 13 and Montreal Canadiens are third with 10. Chicago Black Hawks follow with eight while Boston Bruins and New York follow close behind with seven points to share the league's cellar spot.

Showdown Near For Teams Still In Grey Cup Race

By JACK MITCHELL,
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

The showdown draws near in Canadian football and executives of most of the six clubs still in the running for the Grey Cup are showing their strength with the customary mighty flexing of vocal muscles.

While players beat their brains against stonewalls to toughen them for the big games, the sideline athletes carry the barker ball. It's hard to say which group will be more exhausted before the Nov. 26 east-west classic in Toronto ends it all.

Montreal Alouettes and Ottawa Rough Riders started it with their Big Four sunlight serenade. But it didn't take long for Calgary Stampeders and Regina's Saskatchewan Roughriders to decide they could use some of that thunder in the west.

So far, Sarnia Imperials and Hamilton Tigers are the only playoff contenders still playing their football on the field. But there's no telling when these Ontario Union opponents will get into the act.

Command Performance

Listen to the latest drumbeats from the six corners:

1. Montreal Alouettes are advertising Wednesday's Big Four playoff opener in newspapers as a "command performance"—a command by the league to play in the afternoon instead of under floodlights. That one might help enough workers find sick grandmothers to build the Delorimier Downs crowd well over 20,000.

2. Ottawa, its daylight argument won, is switching to different tactics. Manager Jim McCaffrey warned his charges Monday night—for publication—"we're going to have our hands full with Montreal. . . The Als are powerful and plenty tough." James even looked far ahead in his softening-up speech and said neither Sarnia nor Hamilton could be taken lightly in the eastern final.

3. Coach Les Lear, despite his Stampeders 18-12 victory over Regina in the first game of the western final, took time out from practice in Calgary to say publicly: "I'm sick and tired of this situation where we have to play four officials as well as the opposing team. . . Those same officials had better be on their toes here Friday or the fans will come down out of the stands and throw them into the Bow River where they belong."

4. Regina, surprisingly, didn't bite too hard on this bait. Roughriders president S. D. Tibbitts merely said he thought Calgary "got off very nicely on the refereeing. Riders hadn't complained of the officiating all season and weren't going to start now, despite their six-point loss.

Full of Fight

5. Coach Merle Hapes pronounced his Hamilton Tigers full of fight for their Friday-Saturday playoff with Sarnia and said he planned to play himself full-time "as long as tape will hold my knee together." Hapes said even his two injured stars, quarterback Tommy Waldon and half Boris Tipoff may get into the series.

Sarnia, the only all-Canadian team still in the running, announced that the injury jinx had struck again. Veteran half Gus Scheiers, carried off in the schedule's windup against Windsor on Saturday, is a doubtful starter. He joins a casualty list including Don Konwlea, Jack Soper, Jack Lewis and Doug Passmore.

In the football way, Ottawa announced that Joe Asquini will definitely miss the opening game of their two-game, total-points series with Montreal through his groin injury.

Alouettes, who went through a light workout Monday night, also reported in top shape with no injuries.

Even though Delorimier Downs can hold 22,000, Alouettes officials said they expect only 12,000 at the game because Wednesday is not a holiday in Montreal.

Barons' Les Douglas Continues Lead Field

NEW YORK, Nov. 8 (AP)—Les Douglas, centre on Cleveland's powerful Barons, continued to lead the field this week in the American Hockey League's individual scoring race.

Douglas, the top scorer since the season opened, added two points during the week to boost his output to 20.

Another centre, Ab DeMarco of Buffalo Bisons, trailed Douglas by two points. Douglas topped the loop in assists with 13 and DeMarco in goals with 10.

Cliff Simpson of St. Louis Flyers, Norm Larson of Hershey Bears and Johnny Denis of New Haven Ramblers were tied for third place in the scoring derby at 16 points each.

Terry Sawchuk, 19-year-old goalie of Indianapolis Caps, was the circuit's No. 1 netminder. Sawchuck has turned in the most shutouts two, and sports the best goals-against mark, 2.23 for 13 games.

Jack McNie Advertising Official Elected President Of Young PC's

TORONTO, Nov. 8—(CP)—A fight for the Presidency is expected today at the annual convention of the Ontario Progressive Conservative Association. James Allen, Dunnville dairy proprietor, will oppose re-election of A. D. McKenzie and other starters may be put forward by nominations from the floor of the convention hall.

George Drew, national leader of the party, and Premier Frost of Ontario are scheduled to speak during the forenoon, with Mayor Hiram McCallum welcoming the 600 delegates to Toronto and Mr. [illegible] address.

[illegible] were given over to meetings of the Association's women's and youth sections.

Mrs. R. B. Downing of Toronto, chairman of the Women's Advisory Committee, told the 500 women delegates that Ontario Progressive Conservatives in the last five years have won three provincial general elections and all five provincial by-elections. She said reasons for their success included an increase in workmen's compensation benefits, old age pensions and mothers' allowances.

Premier Frost urged women delegates to go into riding meetings and express their views.

"I find the women are usually right," he added.

Heads Young P.C.'s

Jack McNie, 29, Hamilton advertising executive, was elected president of the Young Progressive Conservatives by a two-vote margin over Wallace Nesbitt, 30, Woodstock lawyer, who was chosen later as first vice-president. Mr. McNie succeeds Ted Conover of Brampton.

The three-hour election meeting for the association's slate of officers was full of campaign fireworks and heated verbal battles. The Nesbitt delegates staged a noisy, placard-waving campaign. The McNie forces displayed only lapel badges.

The election of Mr. McNie was immediately challenged by Margaret Scales of Toronto who charged "someone used a ballot book from a riding of which he is [illegible] who polled the votes settled the issue by moving

Later, during the election of vice-presidents, Otto Lindsay of North Bay rose to a point of order and charged northern Ontario delegates were not being given a fair deal in the voting; that it was "all Toronto." Chairman David Fulton, Progressive Conservative Federal member for Kamloops, B.C., suggested announcing the hometown of each candidate might straighten out the situation and Mr. Lindsay concurred. He was elected sixth vice-president.

Of the 14 positions, 12 went to southern Ontario delegates, including four Toronto members.

Other Officers

Other officers included: Secretary, Mary Skeans, Toronto; treasurer, George Hogan, Toronto; vice-presidents, Wallace Nesbitt (acclamation); Fred Peel, South Waterloo; Edward Hueston, Renfrew; Frank Green, Port Arthur; Alf McAllister, London; Otto Lindsay; Mrs. Rosemary Harris, Toronto; Gordon Stewart, Windsor; A. J. Stewart, Ottawa; auditors, John Jasperson, Essex South, and Dr. William Butt, Toronto.

Premier Frost, addressing the youth section, urged delegates to take an interest in public affairs through their party and to undertake the organization of an association in every riding.

"Give your country the benefit of your personality, your vision and your ideals," he advised. "I asked you to go out and interest people far and wide in your cause."

A resolution asking that the liquor laws be amended to prohibit sale of liquor in dining lounges was defeated but 10 other resolutions were adopted. They included raising the salaries of school teachers, co-operation with the federal government in providing scholarships for needy university students, asking for establishment of an historical sites commission, calling for enlargement of the Department of Public Information and for a distinctive Canadian flag.

BARS ERASED—Some 287 European refugees, held behind bars in Halifax immigration headquarters for nearly two months, have been admitted to Canada. The refugees arrived aboard crowded ships after a perilous Atlantic crossing. Admission of the refugees, chiefly from Estonia, came after the federal government had announced it planned to curb the entry of such illegal immigrants to the Dominion.

Combine Conflict

Mr. Low said he wished to protest strongly against the "reprehensible withholding of the report of a responsible officer so that the people would not know what the report contained."

Mr. MacInnis said there was ample evidence in the report to indicate the companies manipulated prices.

Mr. St. Laurent said the government had given the undertaking that if the companies did their best during the war they would not be pilloried after the war and be subjected to prosecution under the Combines Investigation Act.

The Prime Minister said he had experience with prosecutions under the Combines Investigation Act. He recalled one case in which questions arose over whether a case could be prosecuted in the courts when the original needs had taken place more than two years previously.

Ceased Under Controls

The continuity of alleged price-fixing had been broken in the case of the milling companies because if there were price-fixing activities, they had ceased when controls were imposed at the start of the war.

Mr. Howe, who served as Minister of Munitions and Supply during the war, said he was familiar with the undertakings given to industry, although flour-milling did not come under his jurisdiction.

He objected to the contents of the McGregor report only as it applied to the period when the industry was under the control of an administrator of the prices board and the decontrol period immediately thereafter.

"I have no comment to make about the report of the commissioner on the conduct of the industry prior to that period or subsequent to that period as I have no knowledge of the fact," said Mr. Howe.

Holds Up Publication

He had been asked by Mr. Garson some months ago to read the commissioner's report. He had asked Mr. Garson to hold up its publication pending further investigation because he was "amazed to find that the flour-milling industry was being condemned for carrying out policies that were obviously those" of the prices board and common to all control administration.

The industry had given the government "full co-operation throughout the war years and willingly accepted profit control more onerous than that applied to any other industry."

Mr. McGregor's report presented a 'violation" of the government's undertaking not to prosecute the industry under the Combines Investigation Act for wartime agreements on prices.

As enforcement officer of the Prices Board, Mr. McGregor had not called attention to administrative practices which would be objectionable under the Combines Act.

"It was a shock to me to discover that, having failed to take objection at the time, he subsequently would attack the industry for its practices during the control period in his other capacity as Commissioner of the Combines Investigation Act," said Mr. Howe.

Reads Memorandum

He read a memorandum from Donald Gordon, wartime chairman of the Prices Board, who took issue with several of Mr. McGregor's statements.

Mr. Gordon said the Prices Board had meetings with the flour-milling industry on the question of uniform prices. The Board 'found the idea of uniform prices attractive as it offered simplicity in a very complex pricing field."

Serious Disagreement

Mr. Garson said there was serious disagreement in the Cabinet with what should be done about the flour-milling report in view of the wartime undertaking in the industry when he first put it before the Cabinet.

Later, another factor arose. In Ontario courts the government lost a case against an alleged com[illegible] body blow to the [illegible]

He had been told by an Ottawa lawyer that if the government tabled the flour-milling report it would immediately be challenged to prosecute. If the prosecution had been undertaken before the combines legislation had been amended the government would had been faced with another "debacle" as in the dental-supply case.

Legislation, prepared by Mr. McGregor and his associates, now was before the Commons to plug the loopholes in the Combines Investigation Act. It would reverse the former procedure. Under the new legislation, documents seized in a company's offices would be considered as evidence of conspiracy in a combine unless the accused could prove otherwise.

Had Honest Purpose

Mr. Garson said the government may have been guilty of an error in judgment. But the government action had been carried out only after searching investigation and with honesty of purpose.

Mr. Diefenbaker charged the government with a "flagrant disregard of Parliament." Mr. Garson had broken the law by not tabling the report within 15 days after Parliament met last January.

"Laws passed by Parliament should be observed by all, particularly members of the Cabinet" said Mr. Diefenbaker. Parliament had the right to expect ministers to live up to the laws. If they fail to discharge this duty it would mean the end of parliamentary responsibility.

He described the action as "contempt of parliament that should not be left uncensured."

Mr. Coldwell objected to the way in which the discussion was brought about on a motion to go into supply. It would preclude discussion of the whole matter at a later date in the session. He, too, felt the government should be censured for "concealing" the report 10 months.

He agreed it was likely that if Mr. McGregor had not resigned the report would not have been made public yet.

Price-Fixing Report Quotes Local Firm's Letters To Flour Milling Associates

By BOB BUCHANAN

OTTAWA, Nov. 8—Charges that eleven major Canadian flour-milling companies, including the Quaker Oats Company of Canada Limited of Peterborough, have participated in the operation of price-fixing combines were reported to the House of Commons Monday afternoon. Tabled in the House was the report of Combines Commissioner F. A. McGregor, who resigned last week with protests and charges that the government had "delayed" making the report public. The report was dated December 29, 1948.

[illegible] their productive capacity in the products concerned: flour, mill feeds, rolled oats and coarse grains.

In the furore in government circles over the resignation last week, Federal Justice Minister Garson had indicated that the companies would not be prosecuted. Commissioner McGregor had locked horns with Wartime Prices Administrator Donald Gordon over the "withholding" of the combines report.

Confidential Memoranda

Running to more than a hundred pages, the report quotes extensively from confidential memoranda of the companies' association and from letters among members. The Commissioner spent more than two years in his investigation, which covers the period from 1936 to 1947. From this study of the companies' operations, he concludes:

"There have been continuing efforts on the part of the principal milling companies to secure and maintain agreements amongst themselves and with others which would fix common prices."

Linking his investigation with another combines probe into the bread-baking industry, McGregor stated: "Both reports disclose developments of much the same character—control of the industry concentrated in a very few large corporations, and the efforts made under the leadership of the dominant groups to control competitive activity.

"Each group within its own field has sought in its own way to attain the objective of eliminating price competition as a factor in business enterprise."

The ten companies listed with Quaker are: Lake of the Woods, Ogilvies St. Lawrence, McDonald and Robb, Lakeside Milling, Maple Leaf Milling, Purity, Ellison Milling and Elevator of Lethbridge, Robinhood of Moosejaw, Brackman-Ker of New Westminster, B. C.

Only four of the companies were also involved in "agreements" to fix prices and other marketing factors in rolled oats and oatmeal says the report. The four are Quaker, Ogilvie, Purity and Robinhood. These four accounted for more than ninety-five per cent of the total Canadian production of these products in 1946.

Peterborough Plant Involved

Quaker's plant at Peterborough, with a daily capacity of four thousand barrels, is fifth largest of the nineteen flour mills in eastern Canada named in the report The Quaker plant at Saskatoon half the size of the Peterborough unit, is also included in the investigation. Quaker has been a member of the Canadian National Millers Association through which the alleged combines operations were conducted—since CNMA's organization in 1920.

R. R. Faryon, president and general manager of Quaker at Peterborough is listed as a member of the board of directors. Chairman of the western division.

The pages of the report are studded with lengthy excerpts from the minutes and memoranda of the association concerning discussions and conclusions on "direct fixing of prices (and indirect methods) to prevent individual mills from reducing prices of flour, mill feeds or rolled oats."

"It was unanimously agreed—this will confirm instructions (from the executive of the Association)—it will certainly be necessary to come to some agreement—would you agree to adhere. . ." are typical of expressions used in the "agreements," which the Commissioner charges to be operation of combines.

Wharry Letter

A letter from J. G. Wharry of the Peterborough plant to a Saskatoon executive is quoted:

"The mills have an arrangement in the east to cover bakers' business, but with (various cost factors). I think you can figure out the agreement doesn't mean very much because if we went much lower we would be selling under the price of the wheat. The unfortunate parts of the whole thing is that most of these mills are very badly in the excess profits brackets and they do not care if they sell flour at two dollars a barrel." The letter is dated May 18, 1945.

"Although there is record of agreement on prices for all rolled oats since early 1934, there were intervals in which the major price agreements. . . were not operative," the report states. Other sections of the report point to dissension in the ranks of the companies and record sharp rebukes for deviations from the agreements reached.

In 1947, the Commissioner finds agreement was reached among the four companies on rolled oats prices shortly after the Prices Board had authorized an increase. A letter between Robin Hood executives states:

"After permission was received from Ottawa to put in the advance, Quaker were inclined to only go up sufficient to bring their prices in line with ourselves. However, we persuaded them that it would not look good at Ottawa to only go up twelve cents a case compared to thirty-two cents per case which was authorized and they finally agreed to the advance of seventy cents per eighty pounds and thirty-two cents per case, the same as the rest of us."

Faryon Letter

A letter from R. R. Faryon, president of Quaker Oats in Canada, to an associate in England, dated September 30, 1947, is quoted as follows: "We finally completed a manoeuvre which I have been working on ever since I came here—that is, we have both Robinhood and Ogilvies selling rolled oats at the same price as ours. This should have been done many years before." The letter went on to state: "Today Robin Hood, according to all the surveys we have been able to buy or make have a nice, big, healthy chunk of the total business. My strategy in getting them up to our price is to threaten them with Tiffson's (a Quaker brand) at forty cents under their price. I did this once and they have been good boys ever since."

"Threats of Reprisals"

The report further accuses the eleven companies of "threats of reprisals" made against small, independent millers "if they did not comply" with efforts to "induce them to keep close" to the big eleven's agreed price levels.

Eastern firms—of which Quaker is one—kept a "double set of minutes" on meetings, the report says. One of these sets makes "practically no reference to the frequent agreements and understandings on prices," the other discusses them "in confidential memoranda." Among western firms only one set of minutes was kept, but the secretary of the Association there admitted destroying his copy shortly after the combines probe started two years ago.

Further, said the report, "the same sort of activities have been going on in the milling and bread-baking industry in the west and "measures have been taken to link the two."

Greater Understanding Needed Of South Africa's Problems

A. A. Roberts, High Commissioner to Canada from South Africa, made an appeal for a greater understanding of the problems of his country while speaking to the Rotary Club Monday in the Empress Hotel. His topic was to be "The Political Situation in Regard to South Africa" but at the last moment he changed it to "The Problems of South Africa."

South Africa has more problems than any other country in the world and therefore it is in need of more understanding than any other country, Mr. Roberts told the club.

Born in the Orange Free State Mr. Roberts said that three generations of his forefathers had helped to build up the state to what it is today. He added that he grew up knowing how the bitternesses between countries could develop into world catastrophies.

A former Rotarian himself, Mr. Roberts reminded the Rotary members that the fourth object of Rotary is to promote international understanding. Their aim, he explained, should be world understanding without which there would not be peace among men.

Golden Rule

Paraphrasing the golden rule to "love your fellow men," Mr Roberts said that the rule was the foundation of all religious movements and only through complete understanding between peoples would the world be able to reach universal peace. The same peace will never be had until all people are Christian in thought, he added.

South Africa, explained the speaker, is a small poor country with a population density four times that of Canada while the income of South Africa is only one-quarter. Although the country produces wool and diamonds and other goods, the lack of inland waterways and good harbors along the seaboard hinders the country in providing sufficient needs for the people.

Problem of Race

The biggest problem in South Africa, he said, is the problem of races. There are not only English and Dutch but Germans and other peoples of all religions and all cultures mixing with all the hates of Africa and Asia. Explaining how the population became such, Mr. Roberts said that as yet 4,000,000 of the inhabitants are still quite primitive. The mass of the people cannot be given responsible government until they are beyond the adolescent stage, he added.

The high commissioner was introduced by program chairman Gordon Monkman and thanked by chairman of the international service committee, Harold Deeth.

Mr. Monkman told the club that Mr. Roberts was born in the Orange Free State and was educated at the University of Pretoria and Cambridge University to be a lawyer. He practised for 10 years. For another 10 years he was legal advisor to the government and was five years secretary of the Union's Department of Education (similar to the deputy minister here in Canada).

Prior to being appointed high commissioner to Canada Mr. Roberts was leader of three delegations from the Union to UNESCO.

COUNCIL'S SYMPATHY

City council's sympathy for Reeve James Gifford in his bereavement by the death of his father in Ennismore township is to be conveyed by City Clerk Outram. It was directed in a motion by Aldermen Waddell and Raine. "We have had many dealings with Reeve Gifford," said Mayor Swanston. "He has been head of the township for many years, and we have always got along well together."

SMITH TWP. REQUEST

On behalf of its suburban residents, Smith council is asking the city to reconsider its recent decision to terminate at Dec. 31 existing agreements with municipalities for the service of the city's fire department. They request that this question be considered further and that a meeting for that purpose be arranged. The letter was passed on to the fire and light committee.

DISMANTLE FOUNTAIN

Parks Department workmen have been busy today dismantling the old fountain in Confederation Park. The rebuilding of this civic landmark will likely take place in the spring. Design for a new one has already been drawn up utilizing the metalwork of the present one. It will probably be topped with an ornamental figure and will have a constant stream of runing water. Present plans also call for its being illuminated at night.

NO RENT INCREASES

Tenants of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation are concerned about rent flurries. They read press reports about permission "to hoist rents," and recognize their own position as removed from the attitudes of landlords. "Head office has not even mentioned rents to us," John W. Wocker, Peterborough manager, said today. "We have not been giving this matter any thought at all."

HOSPITAL COSTS

Civic hospital costs to the end of September totalled $1,547,620.08. Some of the items for the month were: Robertson Engineering and Construction Co., $20,483; Eastwood Construction Co., $30,743 and for the east wing, $28,447; Leonard & Son, $5,500; Matthews Conveyor Co., $4,465; W. and W. R. L. Blackwell and Carig, architects, east wing $742, main building $954, nurses' residence $614, clerk of the works, salary $602.

Price Of Butter Jumps Two Cents

Retail price of butter jumped two cents to 66 cents a pound here today and a dairy source predicted it will go up another cent "in the near future."

The source said the hoist was due to a normal, seasonal drop in production and the Federal government's announcement last week of plans to unload its stock of about 60,000,000 pounds at 60½ cents a pound. Previously, the government's price to wholesalers was 59 cents a pound.

He said wholesalers were unable to stock up during the summer when the government bought surplus butter at 58 cents a pound in order to keep the price from dropping.

Month's Meters Fetch $2,471

Parking meters collected $2,471.07 in October, increasing to $66,920.40 their total receipts since May 12, 1947. City Clerk Outram also reported to the council Monday that motorists had paid $229 into the treasury for parking infraction, at the levy of one dollar each.

Total receipts through his office last month were $4,756.07, including licenses $866; police court $966; miscellaneous $453.

New Street Lights Results Of Survey

Mayor Swanston expressed appreciation Monday night of the substitution of new lamps in the street lighting system, especially the improvement in the central area.

"Most people may have forgotten that we had a survey made three or four years ago of our street lights by CGE lighting engineers," His Worship said. "The report was prepared with recommendations, but there was a shortage of materials. Now they are becoming available, and the Utilities Commission have been carrying out the report.

The lights are up Water St. nearly to the border of the city, and they are out Charlotte St., and I think we ought to say that the Commission is doing a fine job."

Appreciation Voiced For Floral Tribute

A letter from Mrs. Vera Mitchell, Riverside, Ont., to the council Monday night expressed appreciation of "the beautiful flowers and the understanding letter which helped us so greatly."

Mrs. Mitchell is the widow of Frank Mitchell, head of the Peterborough bus lines, who died suddenly in Windsor some weeks ago. She wrote that the helpful cooperation her husband had received in Peterborough was always a great happiness to him. "You were all part of that good feeling he had toward Peterborough."

Mr. M. J. McAuliffe, one of the bus drivers, recently told the Examiner that Windsor had named one of its parks after Mr. Mitchell since his death. He was a former mayor of the city.

Jackson's Stand On Communism Now Big Issue

By DAVE WHITE

The issue of whether or not C. S. Jackson is a Communist looms large on the agenda of tonight's Local 524 membership meeting called by John G. Morton and his fellow right wingers.

Jackson says he has twice taken an oath that he is not a member of the Communist party. But the right wingers have a different story, and tonight they intend to [illegible] president in this movement.

"True Confession"

M. J. (Mike). Fenwick, district United Steelworkers of America organizer (CIO), is the man who will indulge in "true confessions." Fenwick earlier this year appeared before the Allied Labor Council by invitation and charged that the UE was "Communist dominated."

Fenwick broke with the Communist party in 1939 but prior to that he had been a reporter on the Daily Clarion, a forerunner of the present Tribune.

A leaflet issued to the workers of CGE at noon by the right wingers states there is no record of Jackson's ever leaving or breaking with the party.

"As a Commie Jackson must follow the party line which in turn is dictated by the Cominform in Moscow," the leaflet charges.

Counter charges of "red baiting" will not be a sufficient answer, it contends, and it tells the workers not to expect any reply to this charge.

Charge Irrevelant

Top UE officials, often labelled as "reds" by their opponents, claim that this charge, even if true, is irrelevant.

The Congressional sub-committee which in the Fall of 1948 examined top UE officials on the subject of Communism and wound up almost exactly no[illegible]ere.

Here is a sample with Congressman Kersten and James J. Matles, UE director of organization, locking horns. The testimony was obtained in Washington, D.C.

Mr. Kersten —"...would you say that under the interpretation of your constitution, Mr. Matles, that a Local, one of your Locals, if it so desired, could bar a member of the Communist party from holding office"?

Mr. Matles—"A Local in our organization, under the constitution, cannot bar any worker in our industry, no matter what his religion, politics, sex, creed, skill, or nationality..."

Mr. Kersten—"Well, could it bar a member of the Communist party on that ground, if the majority of the membership so desired?"

Mr. Matles—"No more than Congress could bar you from running for Congress on that basis."

Unites All Workers

The constitution of the UE adopted in 1936 includes the following: "...we form an organization which unites all workers in our industry on an industrial basis, and rank and file control, regardless of craft, age, sex, nationality, race, creed or political beliefs, and pursue at all times a policy of aggressive struggle to improve our conditions."

And in Convention proceedings, Albert J. Fitzgerald, International president of the UE, re-iterated this policy, but in a more cutting manner:

"we are opposed to domination by the Communist Party. We are opposed to domination by the Socialist party (comparable to the Canadian CCF). We are opposed to the Republican or Democratic Parties dominating this union.

"And as a fair sort of Catholic myself, I am opposed to the Associated Catholic Trade Unionists dominating this union.

"I would be opposed to the Elks or the Moose or the Oddfellows dominating this union.

"As far as the UE is concerned since its inception it has been opposed to domination by anyone, anyone but the rank and file."

Opposed Marshall Plan

Opponents at the CIO convention stated, however, that the top officers opposed the so-called Marshall Plan, the Atlantic Pact,

Maintaining Equal Rentals In 1948 and '49 Projects Aim of Central Mortgage

A proposal of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation to maintain equal rentals of the local houses of their 1948 and 1949 projects did not receive Monday night the approval of the city council. "Why not wait until we know definitely more of the details," Ald. Grant Miller suggested, and that course of withholding assent for the present was adopted.

Unit costs of the two projects may be different when the final expenditure is known, with the possible result that similar houses on the same street might have to be rated at [illegible] for each type of house and charging the tenants the same monthly amount.

Briefly, that was the solution suggested by Central Mortgage, represented by F. J. Spry of its Toronto office and J. W. Wocker, manager in the Peterborough area.

175 Houses Occupied

Of the 1948 project of 226 houses, 175 are now occupied. About 25% are not yet completed. The 1949 project of 100 houses is in the basement stage. Two types of houses are being built with tentative rentals of $34.50 for the four room house and $37.50 for five rooms.

Mr. Spry said the Corporation could not determine fixed rentals until all the costs of each project were compiled.

"Costs of the 1948 project houses to date indicate that the rents for both types may not exceed the rates mentioned in the agreement," Mr. Spry said. "It might turn out that they would be a little less. But, we can't tell exactly until we have the complete details of cost."

"We would not like to have a five-room house of the 1948 project on one side of the street renting at something less than a similar five-room house of the 1949 project on the opposite side."

Mr. Spry said that difference was contemplated as a possibility, and, to avoid that discrepancy, the pooling plan recommended itself.

Final cost of the houses of the 1948 project might not be known until next spring, Mr. Spry said. "We are hoping that the 1949 costs will not be greater than the 1948, but less."

Ald. Doug Miller expressed doubt that if, for example, another 100 houses were undertaken here in 1950, the rentals would be the same as 1948 and 1949.

"If we accept this proposal," Ald. Miller said, "it might be that the 1948 rents would have to be raised one or two dollars a month to bring about the equalization of the pool idea. I think we would be leaving ourselves open to that possibility."

Building No More

Mr. Spry remarked that Central Mortgage did not intend to continue the present project system next year.

"I'd like to know how much we are talking about," Ald. Hugh Waddell said. "It might be that the 1948 houses would be renting for more than 1949 if there was no equalizing adjustment."

"That is something I can't enlighten you on," Mr. Spry answered. "The same contractor is carrying on both projects. He had to come within certain limits before his tender was accepted. Our feeling is that there should not be much difference, but things might happen. It might be that more landscaping cost would be incurred in one section than in another."

Ald. Adam Sands said he understood the contracts were let on firm bids. If landscaping was the only variant, the difference in cost should not be much, as between the two projects.

Ald. H. Dodds said he did not like the possibility of the council giving approval to something which result in the rents of the 1948 houses being raised one dollar a month.

Mr. Spry said that tenancies were accepted on the definite condition that the rents might be altered, depending on the total cost of the houses comprising their project. "The tenant knows that when he leases a house."

That explanation applied to the houses of the present incompleted projects.

Hit By Train At Park Hill Road

A car-train accident at the corner of Park Hill Rd. and Benson Ave. at 7:05 p.m. Monday sent E. David Northey, 24, Lakefield, to the Civic Hospital here with a broken collar bone, a broken left jaw and several cuts about the face and neck.

Hospital officials today reported his condition was "satisfactory." They said X-rays had not been completed.

Northey was driving east down the steep Parkhill Road hill. A CNR yard train operated by engineer Fred Saville Lindsay, was backing southwest across the intersection pulling three full cars and an empty one.

Almost Over Tracks

The train and car collided, with the left side of Northey's car taking the full brunt of the smash. Police said the car was almost directly over the tracks when hit according to the skid marks.

The rear of the car was swung around by the force of the collision and the car ran backwards 98 feet down a slope to the south, colliding with a parked car owned by Bill Carter, 8 Benson Ave.

The left side was torn out of the car and the windshield smashed.

Police reported Yard Foreman Michael Doherty told them the train bell was ringing. He said when he saw the car, he blew the whistle and applied the brakes but could not get the train stopped in time.

Northey was the only one in the car. Police said the train had one back[illegible] up light. There is no automatic signal at the crossing.

TWO CENTURIES OLD

The British national anthem, "God Save the King," took its present form about 1740 to 1745 and has been attributed by tradition to Henry Carey.

Give 2nd Reading To Women's Inheritance Bill

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON, Nov. 8 (CP)—The House of Commons Monday night gave second reading to a bill designed to free married women from inheritance restriction.

The married women (restraint upon anticipation) bill would relieve married heiresses of restrictions imposed by will on inherited estates.

Under

ished, but that bill did not apply to restrictions in force before 1935.

The bill is retroactive, abolishing all restraints whether in force before 1935 or not.

Attorney-General Sir Hartley Shawcross said the bill would pevent further application of a legal device which prevented married women from dealing with property as their own.

He said the device, which enabled a testator dying before 1935 to prevent a married woman from anticipating the capital of a trust fund, was "an unjust and anomalous anachronism."

Medieval Law

Sir Hartley said the matter the Commons was discussing had roots in medieval days when under common law the property of a wife belonged to her husband. By the end of the 18th century the courts of chancery had established that property could be settled on women, subject to restraint upon anticipation.

In 1934 the law revision committee decided that however useful restraint might have been more than a century ago, it was no longer consistent with the changing position of women.

"In 1935 parliament passed legislation with that effect (of removing restraint) but the legislation has left this curious result namely, that the older married women whose affairs were regulated by deeds taking effect before 1935 are left in the totally changed circumstances of today without being able to use their property as they think best, while their younger and less experienced sisters can do as they like," Sir Hartley said.

The attorney-general said the government had decided to introduce the bill because a personal bill dealing wil the estate of Lady Mountbatten had been brought up in the House of Lords. The government had decided that the relief Lady Mountbatten was seeking should apply to all women.

FINDS ATOMIC AID—Dr. Robert W. Pringle, 29-year-old Scot, heads a University of Manitoba scientific team credited with two new atomic research devices. Both are gamma ray spectrometers, one a portable instrument said superior to the Geiger counter in detecting radioactive materials. Dr. Pringle came to Winnipeg last January from Edinburgh University.

$5 Painting May Become Valuable Work

TORONTO, Nov. 8 (CP), — A painting which sold for $5 at an auction 50 years ago has been identified as the work of a pupil of the great 16th-century Italian artist, Titian.

The value and importance of the 400-year-old canvas was recognized recently because of the persister[illegible] Betty close

Miss Tothe, who is a dress designer, finally submitted the painting to George Chapellier of New York, an art restorer. His decision: It was done by a Titian pupil. He told The Canadian Press he is unable to estimate its value.

The painting was given to Miss Tothe by her friend, Hedley Pentland, also of Brantford but now living in Toronto. Miss Pentland's mother bought it for $5 at an auction in Maine 50 years ago. Although its value went unrecognized, it never was discarded or sold. Finally it was brought to the Toronto apartment shared by Miss Pentland and Miss Tothe.

Three years ago, says Miss Tothe, she saw a reproduction of the painting in a magazine. That confirmed her belief that the canvas was valuable. Her friends weren't nearly so impressed.

"I was so excited," she admits, "that I took it down and hid it." Miss Pentland made her a gift of the canvas.

Follows Up Hunch

With her friends still skeptical, Miss Tothe set out to determine once and for all whether her hunch was right.

She went to New York and visited art galleries and dealers' shops to determine how many Titians there were in that city. She found no copy of hers. On future New York trips, she had no luck on identification of her canvas.

But last Sept. 23 Miss Tothe took it to Chapellier, the man who cleaned and restored Gainsborough's famous "Master Buttal" (The Blue Boy). Without hesitation, Miss Tothe says, Mr. Chapellier realized her painting was valuable.

After careful examination, he said he was convinced it came from Titian's studio. "He now is restoring it; Miss Tothe expects it to be returned soon.

The canvas, still on the original stretcher, Mr. Chapellier says, is a 20-by-25-inch portrait of Lavinia, Titian's daughter.

ALLEGED MERCY KILLER—Ralph Kilbon, right, 56-year-old farmer, charged with the .22-rifle slaying of his wife, is led to court in Cobourg by Provincial Constable Don Nicol. Kilbon was remanded to Nov. 14 for preliminary hearing on a charge of murder. Neighbors quoted him as saying before his arrest that his wife was suffering from a mental disorder and that he "put her out of her misery" after she tried to commit suicide.

Liberal Changes His Mind As Vote Comes

OTTAWA. Nov. 8 (CP) — A British Columbia Liberal said Monday he "wholeheartedly" agreed with a CCF proposal; then he surprised the Commons by voting against it.

James Byrne (L-Kootenay East), a miner and union member from Kimberley, B.C., said he favored the proposal that union dues be made deductible for [illegible] purposes.

[illegible] line when the House voted 108 to 48 against the measure.

But that didn't stop two other Liberals—Matthew MacLean (L-Cape Breton North Victoria) and J. S. Sinnott (L-Springfield)—from voting with the opposition which included the Progressive Conservatives, Social Credit and two Independents along with the CCF.

The two Independents were J. L. Gibson (Ind.-Comox Alberni) and Paul-Edmond Gagnon (Ind.-Chicoutimi).

The formal vote—forced by the CCF—came on an amendment to a government motion that the House go into committee of supply.

The amendment, introduced a week ago by Stanley Knowles (CCF-Winnipeg North Centre), asked for government consideration of the proposal to introduce "legislation amending the Income Tax Act so as to make it possible for taxpayers to deduct trade union dues from income before computing the amount of income tax to be paid."

Aid For Children

TORONTO, Nov. 8 — (CP) — Canadians are to be asked for help to feed upwards of 6,000,000 hungry children in war-ruined countries of Europe. The United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund announced Monday night that it plans to seek funds through campaigns sponsored by organizations already set up in Canadian communities.

Surpluses Aid Needy

OTTAWA, Nov. 8—(CP)—A big chunk of Canada's dairy surpluses, bought by the government, is going out in the form of relief to feed distressed fishermen in Quebec villages near Labrador, it was disclosed Monday in an Agricultural Department report tabled in the Commons. The report made public for the first time the government's exact holdings of creamery butter. At Oct. 1 it was 47,094,658 pounds, out of a total 72,222,000 pounds in storage at that date.

Pope Warns Judges Not Grant Divorces

ROME, Nov. 8—(AP)—Roman Catholic judges throughout the world have been told by Pope Pius to beware of granting divorces which would break up marriages "valid before God and the church."

The Pontiff referred to his remarks, made to a group of Italian Roman Catholic jurists unday, as a statement of "fundamental norms." Thus, legal sources said, the Pope meant his words to be taken as guidance, rather than as a statement which would carry the weight of Roman Catholic law.

Competent observers said that whether Roman Catholic judges were considering Protestant or Roman Catholic marriages, the Pope's words would carry the same moral force. These sources said that the Roman Catholic Church, while it rules that its communicants must be married in their faith, considers marriages of non-Roman Catholics valid when performed in other faiths.

Legion Men Attend Funeral Of T. Guerin

A funeral service for Tennice (Buff) Guerin, who died Friday after a long illness, was held Monday morning, from the Anglesey Funeral Home to St. Alphonsus Church.

Celebrant of the requiem mass was Rev. R. Macdonald, CSsR. Eight members of the Canadian Legion acted as a guard of honor. These men were Arthur Wagstaff, George McNabb, L. LeClaire, J. Airriess, A. Mason, C. Telford, Harry Lee and Albert Milligan.

Burial will be in St. Peter's Cemetery, probably on Thursday. Pallbearers are Joseph and Jack Flagler, Fraser Watson, Charles McCoy, Vincent Anthony and J. Thiebeault.

Two New Members Welcomed To Rotary

The Rev. Ivan C. Morgan of Murray St. Baptist Church and Major Cyril Everitt of the Salvation Army were welcomed as members into the Rotary Club Monday by President Harley Keefer. Mr. Morgan was introduced to the club by Clare Collins, while Major Everitt was introduced by Ernest Braund.

V. J. McElderry, KC, was officially welcomed back to the club as a full member. He was a charter member of the club but was forced to retire from the club some years ago. Fred Roy introduced him to the club.

T. J. Carley, KC, led the induction group who were: E. L. Sackville, Ross Dobbin, Jack Arnott, Gordon Monkman and the Rev. Dr. James Semple.

TORONTO, Nov. 8 (CP)—The Ontario Retail Feed Dealers' Association is "perturbed" at the high cost of feeding ingredients and plans a brief asking the Federal Government for assurances that a market for their products be guaranteed, Muray H. McPhail, association secretary, said Monday. The brief will be prepared at the association's meeting here Dec. 8.

The Lost Find Lost Finally Reach Safety

NORTH BAY, Nov. 8—(CP)—Haggard, hungry and cold after being lost for three days in dense bush country 30 miles north of here, Dean Vaughan, of Montreal, got a new lease on life Sunday when three North Bay hunters accidentally came across him.

Vaughan's joy was short-lived—his "rescuers" were also lost.

However, the story had a happy ending. Monday morning, the quartet walked out of the bush after being found by two district residents.

Times Reporter Shot By Gang

DAMASCUS, Syria, Nov. 8 — (AP)—The Syrian government announced Monday night that an armed band critically wounded Michael Sterling, Times of London correspondent who served as a British Army colonel under Lawrence of Arabia in the First World War.

The government said it is taking all possible measures to catch the assailants who shot Sterling Monday night during a dinner party in his home. The brief announcement said three armed intruders broke into the house while two others stood guard outside.

Dr. Mounir Sadat, attending physician, said Sterling was "much better" this afternoon, although he still is in a serious condition.

Dispatches from neighboring Beyrouth, capital of Lebanon, said there were indications news of the shooting had been delayed by Syrian censorship.

The dispatches said Syrian newspapers reported recently that Sterling and Brig. John Glubb Pasha, British commander of Hashemite Jordan's Arab Legion, had been actively contracting tribal leaders in Northern Syria. These reports were unconfirmed.

Manslaughter Charge

SUDBURY, Nov. 8 — (CP) — John H. Balazs, 47, of Cleveland, O., was charged with manslaughter Monday following the fatal shooting of guide Albert Badgerow last Saturday while Badgerow was guiding a party of eight United States deer hunters. Badgerow was attempting to drive a deer, wounded by Balazs, toward the hunter when the fatal shot was fired, police said.

Thousands Of British Teachers Ready To Renew Wage Fight

By H. L. JONES, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Thousands of teachers in Britain's "State" schools are getting set to renew their fight for increased salaries and allowances. They mean to press the issue to a finish. Last July the National Union of Teachers, which embraces most of the estimated 200,000 teachers in schools run by local authorities, [illegible] flat increase of £52 [illegible] November.

Teachers in Britain's public (i.e., private) schools are not affected by these claims. There the masters work on a previously-agreed salary paid by the school.

Discontent In Ranks

The NUT claims to have a good case. It says a good many of its teachers are making considerably less than the national average minimum wage of £7 a week.

The unions says there is discontent in teaching ranks. It has not mentioned the possibility of a strike but in [illegible] two places city faces a crisis. Glasgow's more than 6,000 teachers, handling some 174,000 children, are discussing a strike unless they get a flat increase of £5 a week.

Keep Children Home

Thousands of parents in Glasgow are holding meetings threatening to keep their childen from school unless the Education Authority gets busy building new classrooms and modernizing existing ones.

The Authority is already paying out more than £6,300,000 annually on its services. It says it can't afford to pay teachers more and that it is doing all it can to improve school conditions. In addition, it claims, it needs more teachers.

Teacher salary scales in Britain are complex. They range from a starting rate of £300 a year for men and £270 for women, less five per cent for superannuation.

Pay For Degrees

There are increments for teachers with university degrees, ranging up to £60 for men with first-class honors. But teachers say these rates are not enough in the face of rising living costs.

In addition, teachers claim the Treasury should give them an income-tax concession to cover the cost of buying books, supplies and periodicals which they need to keep up to date.

OIL GIANT

The United States is the largest oil producer on earth, with an annual output of 2,000,000,000 barrels—about 60 per cent of the world's total.

INDUSTRIAL DISASTER—Pottery products like these stacked near ovens in a plant at Medicine Hat, Alta., are meeting stiffer competition in the Canadian market as a result of the devaluation of the British pound. Plant officials say the British products now can undersell Canadian output and as a result Alberta factories have cut production as much as 80 per cent.

United Kingdom Booklet Explains Dollar Shortage

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

The United Kingdom Information Office in Ottawa has issued a booklet stating "the A.B.C. of Britain's Dollar Shortage."

It prefaces it with a quotation from Paul-Henri Spaak, president of the European Consultative Assembly and former prime minister of Belgium. Speaking at Strasbourg, Aug. 25, he said:

"I think that all the world should remember that most of Britain's economic problems were born when she resisted Germany alone."

The booklet goes on in question and answer form, and says in part:

Does the dollar shortage mean the British are not working?

Industrial production in Britain still is rising, and now is more than 30 per cent above pre-war levels. Her exports in 1949 have averaged almost 50 per cent by volume above 1938. She now has approached a balance in her total overseas payments, expressed in sterling. It is only in dollar trade and payments that Britain shows a deficit.

Why must Britain balance her dollar payments?

Not Problem Then

Even before the war, Britain bought more from the United States and Canada than she sold to them. But the deficit with any particular country or countries did not matter as long as relatively free trading between all countries allowed deficits in one direction to be offset by surpluses in another . . .

The Second World War shattered this precarious balance . . . Since all non-dollar countries as a whole have a deficit with dollar countries, they cannot possibly earn enough dollars from each other to keep multilateral trade flowing by automatic means.

Consequently, until a world over-all trade balance can again be restored, every country has somehow to ensure that it itself earns enough dollars to meet its own dollar payments. That is why Britain can no longer be content to balance its "over-all" overseas payments.

What are the obstacles to Britain's achieving a dollar balance of payments?

Her dollar income from investments has been cut drastically because, during the war, she had to sell $1,712,000,000 of investments in North America to pay for food, planes, arms and other supplies before lend-lease.

The dollar price of gold has remained more or less stable since before the war, while dollar prices of United Kingdom imports from North America have roughly doubled. The value of gold as a means of payment for these imports has thus been greatly reduced.

GM Dividend Sets Record

NEW YORK, Nov. 8 (AP) — General Motors Corporation on Monday declared a year-end dividend of $4.25, payable Dec. 10 to holders of record Nov. 17.

This will bring payments for the year to $8, against $4.50 in 1948.

In March this year General Motors paid $1.25, continuing the rate in the June and September quarters. [illegible] a year-end [illegible] cember.

General Motors also announced it would retire next month its entire long-term indebtedness—an issue of $125,000,000 of notes it sold to eight life insurance companies in August, 1946, when it raised money for plant expenditures.

Directors also declared the regular quarterly dividends on the preferred stock—$1.25 on the $5 series, and 93¾ cents on the $3.75 series—to be paid Feb. 1, 1950, to holders of record Jan. 9.

General Motors' earnings were as a record high at the end of the third quarter.

The net profit for the first nine months this year was $502,414,029 far above any 12-month earnings figure in the company's history.

Farewell Party Held For Carter Couple

WESTWOOD, Nov. 8 (ENS).—A farewell party in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Carter took place in the town hall Friday evening.

An address was read by Alfred Reed and Mr. and Mrs. Carter were presented with a tri-light floor lamp and a Duncan Phyfe walnut table by William Renwick and Melville Scott.

Music for dancing was provided by Ronald Cameron, Dick Elmhirst, Bruce Warr and Leslie Cameron. Alfred Reid and J. Chapman were floor managers.

The ladies served refreshments.

Red Politics In Germany Disrupts Maid Service

By TOM REEDY.

BERLIN, Nov. 8 — (AP). — Russian politics in Germany is threatening the American community in Berlin with a severe dose of dishpan hands.

The United States Labor Office complains that it is running out of maids and housekeepers.

Some American families already have felt the pinch and the housewife who has been accustomed to plenty of household help is back in the kitchen again.

The Labor Office [illegible] released about 150,000 German prisoners of war, a big gesture to back up the new Communist government of Eastern Germany. Thousands of these men are from Berlin and have been in Soviet prison camps since as far back as 1942.

Wants Wives Home

Reunited with their wives for the first time in six or seven years, they want no more lonely nights. The wife must be at home where she belongs, they insist.

This means these women, who have kept the wolf from the door by serving the Allied communities as domestic servants, are picking up the threads of their own home life once more.

They no longer can be counted upon to work late in the day, over the important dinner hour, and certainly not to stay in the home where they work overnight. That just about destroys their usefulness as domestics, except for mornings and afternoons when the average American household does not need them anyway.

This is not to say that Berlin, with its 250,000 unemployed, lacks maids and housekeepers. There are quite a few available. But United States Army rules require some knowledge of English before a German applicant can join its labor pool. There are few domestics who can speak English, even a smattering.

Model Meeting Held For Sorority Rushees

A Model Meeting was held Monday evening by Alpha Theta Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi in the new club room at the YWCA. Eleven new rushees were entertained, Misses Laureen Doris, Joan Austin, Bette Fee, Barbara Cook, Mary Knox, Mary Scollard, Wilma Goodwin, Barbara Carter, Lee Connelly, Viola Davidson, Iris Sorenson and Miss Helen Foord who is transferring from Kenora Chapter. They were welcomed to the meeting by Miss Elaine Cook, rushing captain.

Current events were given by Mrs. Isabel Bianco and Miss Thora Rolfe gave a short talk on "What Beta Sigma Phi means to me." Miss Moria Whalon outlined the local history of the Sorority.

Plans for the pledge banquet were left in charge of Miss Cook. The Sorority Preferential Tea will be held at Miss Mary Bolton's home on November 27. It was reported that tickets for the annual Bib 'N' Tucker Ball are selling well.

After the closing ritual, members and rushees went to the home of Mrs. Maurice Holt, Water St. for refreshments.

Legion Auxiliary Makes Donation

It was decided to donate $10 to the Louis Braille Society for their Christmas party at the regular meeting Monday evening of Ladies' Auxiliary to the Canadian Legion. Also, the auxiliary will purchase a $300 savings bond.

A parcel of food is to be sent to Mrs. Waterman, former member, who has gone to live in England, and a parcel will be sent to the Ladies' Auxiliary in Peterborough, England.

The auxiliary will attend the Remembrance Day service on Friday and will meet at the Armouries at 10.15 o'clock. Members helped with Poppy Day at the schools on Friday and with the tag day on Saturday, when there was the largest sale of poppies yet recorded.

Mrs. T. Sarginson, sick and visiting convener, reported 44 calls, 2 cards and one lot of flowers for the past month. The Christmas party for auxiliary members was planned for December 8.

Mrs. W. Devall donated a pair of pillow cases for raffle and they were won by Mrs. H. Beresford.

Mrs. A. Mason, president, conducted the formal opening and closing of the meeting. A social half-hour was enjoyed with refreshments served.

Mrs. M. Kennedy Wins Chest At Sodality Tea

One of the most colorful events of this season was the autumn tea held Sunday afternoon by St. Peter's Senior Sodality. A capacity crowd was in attendance in the nurses' residence at St. Joseph's Hospital.

Prefect Miss Helen Strano was hostess. Receiving with her were Misses Catherine McTeague, Mamie Sullivan and John Hickey. The tickets were taken at the door by Misses Shirley McKenzie and Jean O'Brien.

Stocks were effective in pastel hues of blue, jade and orchid, and with lighted tapers centred the tea table on a white damask cloth. Tea was poured by Misses Delphine Halsmun, Margret Caravaggie, June Blodgett and Margaret Gorman.

Miss Ella Foley, social convener, was assisted in the tea room by Misses Agnes Sullivan, Mary Schiarizza, Mary McTeague, Ann Quinn, Mary Quinn, Marie Kieran, Ouldine Munroe, Pauline O'Brien and Josephine O'Brien.

Misses Bernice Greenan and Anne Zammers played delightful piano selections during the tea hours.

Scarlet gladioli and white baby 'mums banked the shrine in honor of the patroness of the Sodality, the Blessed Virgin Mary.

Main attraction at the tea was the hope chest and contests on which Sodality members had been selling draw tickets for several weeks. Reverend Mother Priscilla, introduced by the Rev. F. K. Malane, drew the winning ticket, and Mrs. M. Kennedy, 771 Water St., was winner. Proceeds of this draw are to be donated to sisters of St. Joseph's Hospital to furnish a room in the new wing.

Feminine Curves Will Remain

NEW YORK, Nov. 8—(AP)—Women may accept the boyish bob, the cloche hat and the short or long—skirt, but the Corset and Brassiere Association of America will resist to the death a return of the flat-chested silhouette of the flapper era.

So said Harold Kurzman, president of the association, on his return from a flying trip to Britain and France, to track down the frightening rumor that feminine curves are on the way out.

"There is no truth to the rumor that the sack silhouette of the 1920s is due for a comeback," he said. "Women would never accept it. And for the immediate future, I can assure you that the natural curves of the bust will be more important than ever in 1950 fashions.

Contrary to the disturbing report of a return to the boyish form, Kurzman found that the revealing neckline is slated for even deeper plunges next spring, and that many new dresses, with visible means of support, are being made, by corsetieres.

"The exposed bra, which is part of the dress, seems an important new trend," he said.

The only change in the silhouette of the bust, said Kurzman, is a trend toward less exaggeration and more natural but still rounded lines. He does not think the silhouette will interfere with the sale of "falsies."

As for the silhouette in general, he said:

"The straight silhouette makes proper corseting imperative, if women wish to wear the new skin-tight skirts they simply can't wear them without correct foundation garments."

Junior League To Resume Study Clubs

The Catholic Junior League regular meeting was held Monday evening in St. Mary's School. In the absence of the president, Miss Rita Young, vice-president Mrs. Collis presided.

Mrs. Ann Gannon reported that study clubs would be resumed on Monday, November 14. Miss Veronica O'Leary announced the rummage sale to be held in the Knights of Columbus Rooms, on Saturday morning, November 12.

Plans were made for the annual Christmas dinner at the Empress Hotel on Tuesday evening, December 13, with the social convener, Miss Gladys Costello in charge.

Miss Alice Krom, corresponding secretary, read a letter from Most Rev. Bishop Gerald Berry thanking the members for their gift on his departure for Rome.

Misses Marlene and Marie Guerin played a piano duet and each also played a piano solo.

The meeting closed with serving of refreshments by Miss Genevieve Murray and her committee.

Canvassers Guests Of Auxiliary At Meeting, Tea

Canvassers in the membership drive by Peterborough Civic Hospital Women's Auxiliary attended the general meeting Monday afternoon by special invitation. They were given a cordial welcome by Mrs. Eva Brackenridge, president, and entertained with a short musical program before the business session.

Piano duets were brilliantly executed by Mrs. W. L. McNeil and Mrs. Ross Moore. The numbers they chose were Il Trovatore by Verdi and Qui Vive by Danz. Mrs. A. McLaren, soprano, sang two selections, "When I Have Sung My Songs" and "I Know a Lovely Garden." Her accompanist was Mrs. Cecil Searles.

Appreciation of these contributions was expressed at close of the meeting by Mrs. W. Steinkrauss, who also spoke of the splendid efforts of the canvassers.

Tea was served under convenership of Mrs. S. J. Graham. Miss Evelyn Morrow and Miss Margaret English presided at the tea table, charmingly arranged with a centrepiece of yellow and white 'mums in a large silver bowl.

Provincial Officers Inspect St. John Brigade

Annual inspection of St. John Ambulance Brigade, nursing division and men's division, took place Monday evening at the Salvation Army hall. It was conducted by Dr. W. J. Bell, provincial surgeon, Mrs. G. R. Anderson, provincial nursing officer, Mr. E. R. Evans, district superintendent, and Mr. Cole, district officer, all of Toronto.

The divisions were asked to demonstrate the procedure in cases requiring first aid or home nurs- [illegible] tion he has always received in this city, and announced it was his last official visit as he is retiring the end of the year. He stressed the importance of continual practice in order to be ready to handle any mergency to which the brigade might be called.

Lunch was served with assistance of the Salvation Army League members.

Miss J. Campbell To Speak On World Fellowship

Miss Jean Campbell, National YWCA World Fellowship Secretary, who is spending this week with the Peterborough Association, announced that Canada will be very much in the international scene this coming year.

A European tour has been arranged for Canadian Y members, leaving early in June and returning late July. Miss Campbell has just returned from four months in Europe and has established contacts with associations and members of Y's there. The five or six European countries to be visited, as well as Britain, are planning to provide all-out hospitality, she says. The Canadian Group will be joined by Trinidad members on the tour.

Then in August, Canada will be hostess for the World Fellowship Conference, to be held at Whitby for ten days. At least half of the delegates will come from far distant countries.

Miss Campbell will speak at the International Membership Night on Thursday and tell of her recent experiences in other countries and of the special course she took at Geneva, Switzerland, this summer. Forty-six women taking the course were from 26 countries. Visits to UN headquarters and discussion of international affairs were on their schedule.

Later, she spent ten days in Antwerp, Belgium, and then went to Germany where she met a number of interesting would-be Canadians. She is most concerned about the group of widows with children who would like to come to Canada and she hoped their problem can be worked out in the coming year.

Bonneville-Pitt

Miss Mary Pitt, daughter of Mrs. Gordon Pitt, 221 London St. and the late Mr. Pitt, was married at St. Peter's rectory Saturday to Rolland S. Bonneville, of 381 Queen St. The Rev. F. K. Malane officiated.

Wearing a grey suit with wine accessories and a corsage of red roses, the bride was attended by Mrs. Paul Robb, who was dressed in a grey suit with navy accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

Paul Robb was groomsman.

At a reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ivor Outwater, 164½ Douglas Ave., the bride's mother received.

The couplet left for a honeymoon in Toronto and Port Severn, Georgian Bay, the home of the groom. On return they will live at 221 London St.

Of Interest to Women

DOROTHY DIX

Is Unwed Mother Justified In Refusing Adoption Offer?

DEAR MISS DIX: I am very much interested in trying to help a young girl re-establish herself. She is an unmarried mother with a perfectly beautiful little 2-year-old boy. The child is a great handicap to her, and I do not know how she will manage to support him. A splendid man and his wife, highly intelligent, with plenty of money, wish to adopt this child. They could give him a highly respected name and every advantage but the girl mother absolutely refuses to give up the child. Do you think she is right to shut the door of opportunity in the child's face?

Dorothy Dix

MRS. G.

ANSWER: I think she is a mother and acting as most mothers would. When it comes to giving up a child it isn't a question of ethics with them. It is primitive instinct and they think only of themselves, not of the child. How anything in life is going to turn out we cannot tell before hand, and perhaps the poor mother, who refuses to give up her child to a woman who could offer it greater advantages than she can, gives it something in love and tenderness and understanding that is better than anything money could buy.

Removes Stigma

The reason for giving up the child that has been born out of wedlock to be adopted is that it takes away to a large extent the stigma of its birth. The child that lives with its unmarried mother has its unfortunate status continually thrust on its notice, and it is tormented by the other children with it. I have many letters from people who have gone through this and they invariably tell me that it has embittered them and given them an inferiority complex that they cannot overcome. But, if a child is adopted, it takes the name and social position of its foster-parents and people either do not know or forget its birth.

Nor does the child miss anything of mother love in this arrangement, because only people who have a deep love of children will take upon themselves the burden and the expense of rearing an adopted child.

But it is too late to take the child away from the mother of whom you write, and you should not urge her further. Better try to get her occupation somewhere away from home, where she is not known and where she can enjoy her child in peace.

DEAR MISS DIX: I don't know whether I should continue my education and prepare myself to teach, or marry and settle down. I am not engaged nor in love, but I mean if I should happen to find the right man soon. Sometimes I believe I would enjoy a home and some one to love me, but when I think of how free a woman is if she doesn't marry and of the money she can make I hesitate. I am 19. What would you advise?

M. X.

ANSWER: If I were you I would go on with my education and prepare myself to teach. That's a good bet played from the middle to both ends. For, you see, if Mr. Right shouldn't happen to arrive on the scene, you would have all the resources of a trained mind to make your life pleasant and interesting and happy, and you would be able always to support yourself in comfort and to independent.

And then if you did marry you would be all the better equipped for it, for every wife and mother needs to know all she possibly can in order to manage her home properly and to bring her children in the way they should go.

Undoubtedly, the woman who stays single has much more personal liberty than the married woman, but she has also a lonelier life and a narrower one. But if you do happen to get a good husband, you have drawn the biggest prize there is, and that's what makes matrimony worth taking a chance on.

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a young married woman, a stenographer. My husband is a salesman in a real estate office. He requires me to pay all of our living expenses, while he puts all he earns in the bank. He even makes me give him spending money, although he has more than I have. Do you think this is fair?

WORRIED WIFE

ANSWER: Certainly not. If you pay half of the living expenses, it is all and more than he should expect of you, and you should have the balance of your money to do with as you please.

If your husband should tire of you and decide to leave you, he would have all the money and leave you destitute. A good husband who means fairly by his wife does not try to take all of her money away from her.

"What's Right?"

SITUATION: A friend has redecorated a room, and it is a great improvement over what it was.

WRONG WAY: Say, "It hardly looks like the same room. It was so drab before."

RIGHT WAY: Be enthusiastic about the redecorating job, without ever hinting that it didn't look well before.

Civic Hospital Auxiliary Given Well-merited Praise

High praise came from all sides for the work of Women's Auxiliary to the Peterborough Civic Hospital at the fall general meeting, held Monday afternoon at the YWCA. The organization was scored only for failure to publicize the good deeds. An oxygen tent and regulator were purchased recently and were immediately put to use. Miss A. L. Thomson, director of nursing, said a patient was in urgent need of the relief the tent could give, and in addition nurses were relieved and able to give more time to other duties.

Reporting for the buying committee, Mrs. W. G. Hall said the oxygen tent had been secured at a cost of $750, and the regulator cost an additional $52.50.

Miss Thomson said she would like the public to know more of what the Auxiliary is doing in the hospital and of the pleasure and cheer they bring to patients, particularly long-term patients who look forward to seeing the ladies as much as to the gifts, favors, books, magazines they bring. The travelling tuck shop, which amounts to a "shopping service" conducted by Miss Margaret English, is a boon to those who are cut off from the stores for a length of time. It is not operated for profit and in some cases articles needed are handed out without cost.

New mothers are amazingly pleased to receive a pair of boottees, provided by the Auxiliary, with the announcement of whether they have a son or daughter and how much it weighs. It seems that a good many new citizens make their appearance at the Civic Hospital, for although Mrs. J. R. Marshall handed in 47 pairs of boottees at the meeting, Mrs. F. Barrie's report for this committee showed the nurses get nervous when their supply is low. Baby wool in three colors and a knitting pattern were handed to those willing to knit at close of the meeting.

Peterborough's Auxiliary also stands out provincially as reports of those who last week attended the Ontario Hospital Aids Association and the Ontario Hospital Association meetings in Toronto stated. It has the largest membership, of nearly 4,000, proving widespread interest of citizens and the membership fee is lowest at 25c. Still it is in good shape financially, standing up well with other organizations, some of which receive gifts such as $500 from Ford Motor Co., television sets for auction and fashion shows put on by companies.

Mr. J. R. Marshall, chairman of the Board of Governors, commended the interest taken by delegates at the convention: Mrs. Eva Brackenridge, president; Mrs. W. T. Fanjoy, secretary, and Mrs. E. Braund, vice-president. He said the report of the three days which they presented was superior to any he had heard over a period of years. This Auxiliary is now being pointed out as an example and the new Civic Hospital will be a model for future building, he stated. Mr. Marshall added that there is possibility of opening the hospital by next June.

Miss Evelyn Morrow and Mrs. E. C. Braund of this Auxiliary were appointed to the provincial Advisory Board of the OHAA during the business of the convention. Registration totalled 1,600.

Mr. J. Hornal, superintendent of Civic Hospital, corroborated all of Miss Thomson's remarks in regard to fine services rendered by the Auxiliary.

Thirty-one decision have been made in the matter of contributing furnishings for the new hospital and 11 cheques received are in safe keeping, Miss E. Morrow reported. Gifts promised total about $12,000, she said. As corresponding secretary, she also reported a notice of motion to increase membership fees.

Mrs. R. Taylor's report on the recent drive for general membership was not complete. She had received 3,571 cards with fees amounting to $908.50. Life memberships were increased by one to 113.

Other reports given were: Mrs. F. Barrie, financial; Mrs. K. Sloane, visiting and Samaritan committee; Mrs. W. T. Fanjoy, library, acknowledging donations of books, and splendid assistance by Miss G. Sullivan of the public library staff; Mrs. S. J. Graham, nurses-in-training; Mrs. H. A. Mitchell, decorations and favors for trays on special occasions, and responsibility of ferns in hospital waiting room; Mrs. I. F. McRae, occupational therapy; Mrs. W. G. Ovens, transportation.

Montreal Actress Plans Dual Roles As Wife and Star

By FRED KERNER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Nov. 8—(CP)—For Avril Keiller, the big problem of her future is going to be how to combine two careers—stage and marriage.

"Not that I have any immediate intention of marrying," the Montreal-born actress said in an interview. "But that is my ultimate aim and yet I should not like to give up the theatre."

Currently on tour with the Broadway hit "Anne of the Thousand Days," Avril is most anxious to get back to New York and get into another play. "Anne" was her Broadway debut and it took three long years to convince directors she could act. Now she feels it will be easier to find a part in other plays in the theatre capital.

The pert, auburn-haired graduate of McGill University had a yen for the theatre as far back as she can remember. A member of Montreal Repertory Theatre classes when she was in her early 'teens, she soon was getting substantial roles with the MRT and later starred with the Canadian Art Theatre and the McGill Players' Club.

With an understanding nod from her parents, she headed for New York right after graduation from McGill in 1946. Then began the long trek from theatrical office to theatrical office in search of a part.

"I had lots of opportunity to read," she said, "but usually I wasn't the right age, the right height, or something just wasn't right. In any case I was'nt discouraged."

Photographer's Model

She took her attractive five-feet-five of womanhood to the famed Conover model agency and was able to earn enough to keep herself in New York. In between photographic modelling —you've probably seen her picture in dozens of fashion magazines—she kept hounding producers and was cast in a number of movie shorts for Paramount, the March of Time and Pathe. The latter job turned out to be making one-minute commercials for use in television.

Still the search for a stage part went on and the die was cast last year when the play about Henry VII and Anne Baleyn was being prepared. Avril read for a part which had already been filled. This year when a vacancy occurred in the cast, the director remembered Miss Keiller's reading and called for her.

What about this dual career?

"Well, I've always wanted to have a family and pretty soon it will be time for me to start thinking about it. The problem is going to be how to still stay on the stage—which I love dearly—and remain a good mother. I'm sure it can be worked out."

Is there anyone Avril has has thought of as the father of the family and husband of her household?

"That would be telling, wouldn't it?" she said with a soft laugh. "But I assure you it won't be long before I'll be starting on my double career and I'm looking forward to it."

What about Hollywood? "I've really never thought of it," she said. "Perhaps it would be interesting."

The consensus around Broadway is: "Watch Avril Keiller; she's going places."

6—In Memoriams

PATTERSON—In loving memory of Flight Sgt. Gerald W. H. Patterson, killed overseas, five years ago today, Nov. 8, 1944.
As one fares forth for just a while
No thought of staying in the mind,
So fared you forth and left a smile
Of hope and confidence behind.
You have not died; there is no death.
Your soul took flight in that last breath,
But well we know who closed your eyes,
We'll meet again in Paradise.
—Lovingly remembered by mother, dad, sisters Eleanor, Peggy and Margaret and brother Marwood.

TROTTER—In loving memory of Teddy Wallace Trotter, who died two years ago, Nov. 9, 1947.
"He was a flower, too sweet for earth,
Sent here but for a while,
God marked him when He gave him birth,
And took him with a smile."
—Sadly missed by mother, dad and brother Terry.

Five In Fracas Get 2 Years On Suspension

Five suspended sentences of two years each were handed out to four brothers and a friend, all of whom pleaded guilty to charges of assault and two of whom also pleaded guilty to charges of breaking and entry and theft of a case of beer before Magistrate W. R. Philp, KC, in police court today.

The men were Dennis Monahan, 28, Armour Rd.; Vern Monahan, 27, Charlotte St.; Wesley Monahan, 17, Melville Monahan, 22, and Gerald Whitmore, 20, all of Apsley.

Melville Monahan and Whitmore were also charged with the breaking and entry and theft.

Saturday Party

The charges arose from an incident Saturday afternoon in which it was alleged Melville Monahan and Whitmore broke through the screening of a cottage owned by Walter Saunders, Toronto, on Oak Lake, and stole a case of beer.

When Mr. Saunders arrived a short time later, he accused the pair of taking the beer and a scuffle followed in which all the party took part.

In a statement read out in court by Provincial Constable Roy A. Y. Feeley, the pair accused of stealing said they had shared a bottle of wine while other members of the party were away shooting ducks. They said they were tight when they saw Mr. Saunders' case of beer on his cottage porch. They took the beer and during the night drank it between them. They said the others did not have any of it.

20 Minute Fracas

They stated in the statement they became involved in an argument with Saunders and Saunders "plastered" Melville Monahan in the eye.

Mr. Saunders said the fracas lasted about 20 minutes. He said they threw a friend of his to the ground when the friend tried to intervene on Saunders' behalf. He said they also threatened John Woods, an Oak Lake neighbour who was at least 70 years old to stay out of the fight or they would beat him up.

False Pretender Gets 2 Months In Jail

Leslie Abraham was sentenced to two months in jail after pleading guilty to a charge of false pretences by issuing a cheque under the name of Gordon Abraham to Mrs. Allen Ross Smith, Fowler's Corners in Smith township, before Magistrate W. R. Philp, K.C., in police court today.

Mr. Smith testified Abraham had come into his store Sept. 10 while he was away and posed as a friend of his. Abraham had Mrs. Smith cash a cheque for $20 that bounced.

Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw said Abraham had been sentenced on a similar charge in Cobourg about a week ago.

Hope To Get Orders For Dutch Bells

MONTREAL, Nov. 8 (CP) — After having Dutch tulip blooms in its public gardens, Canada soon may have Dutch bells in many of its church steeples.

A. M. H. A. Fritsen, director of a 300-year-old bell factory in Holland, arrived here Monday en route to Kingston, where he will supervise the installation of a huge electrically-operated bell.

The bell will be installed in the tower of the Kingston Cathedral.

Mr. Fritsen said he hoped to pick up orders for more bells in Canada as well as the United States before returning to his country.

Westwood Institute Plans Short Course

WESTWOOD, Nov. 7 (ENS). — A short course on oven meals, sponsored by the Westwood Women's Institute and Home Economic Service will be held here later this month.

The demonstration of cooking will be by Miss Barbara Broadfoot of the Home Economics Service, part of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto. This two-day course will be Nov. 24 and 25 and will be held in the Westwood Town Hall.

Complete oven meals and numerous baked products will be prepared by the demonstrators. Later there will be an open discussion on meal planning, including the preparation of food and nutrition.

WI Starts Teen-Agers Homemaking Club

BETHANY, Nov. 8 (ENS) — A junior girls' homemaking club was organized in Bethany on Saturday, sponsored by the Women's Institute. The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Mansell Finney.

Mrs. H. L. Challice gave a demonstration on proper measurements of ingredients.

Officers elected were: President, Beverly Pomeroy; vice-president, Florence Smith; secretary, Marie Carr; assistant secretary, Joan Bristow.

Next meeting will be held Nov 26 at the home of Beverly Pomeroy. All teen-age girls in the district are invited to become members. This year's study project is the Cereal Shelf.

Ladies' Aid To Cater At Legion Banquet

HASTINGS, Nov. 8—(ENS)— The Ladies Aid of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church met at the home of Mrs. W. E. Wilson to make catering arrangements for the Legion banquet on Friday.

The meeting was opened by the president, Mrs. Basil Johnson.

Mrs. Walter Humphries invited the members to hold the next meeting at her home on Dec. 2.

The hostess served lunch.

Church Realizes $157 At Cold Meat Supper

SELWYN, Nov. 8 (ENS).—The cold meat supper held in the church hall on Friday evening was a financial success. The door receipts amounted to $136 and $21 more was realized from the sale of two quilts. Mr. Howard Miles was auctioneer.

The YPS of Bailieboro presented a three-act comedy, "Grandpa's Twin Sister."

Council Agrees To Accept Tile Payment

Rather than cause any delay in the progress of the work on the nurses residence of Civic Hospital, city council Monday night decided to assume an extra of $613 for tile which Robertson Construction and Engineering Co. have to buy in the United States.

The following clause was struck out of the report of the committee of the whole: "That the Board of Governors of Peterborough Civic Hospital be informed that the council accepted a firm contract price from the Robertson Engineering and Construction Company for the construction of the nurses residence, and that it is the opinion of this committee that the company should be required to adhere to its contract, and that the city should not be required to make up for any unforeseen contingencies incurred in the purchase of materials required for the building."

That was the council's response to the contractor also. Their reaction was indicated in a letter from A. Blake Robertson, in part: "We shall abandon our plan to secure material from the United States, for the interior partitions of the nurses residence, and wait delivery of the tile specified from Canadian sources."

Ald. Raine asked that the clause be left out of the committee of the whole report. He said the purchase of U.S. tile "means far more to us than it does to the Robertson Company".

Ald. Grant Miller recalled that he had proposed the motion to refuse payment of the $613 for tile. Since then he had discussed the item with some of the Governors of the hospital, and agreed with them that it was important to the construction program that the nurses residence should be carried along at its present pace.

The penalty of delay would greatly exceed the amount of this estimated bill. "I can only say that my subconscious desires preceded my sounder judgment in this matter. I move that we pay this sum of $613, but with the stipulation that the residence job be finished by June 1, 1950, or this money is forfeited."

Ald. Raine seconded the motion. Ald. J. E. Gillespie enquired whether there was likely to be any other such references of cost to the council.

"I think this tile matter is their last problem," said Ald. Grant Miller. "The Robertson people have been making wonderful progress up to this point, and there is a good chance that they will have the residence finished at the same time as the rest of the hospital."

Council divided evenly on the Miller-Raine motion. Mayor Swanston cast his vote for it.

It was previously reported that the contractor's difficulty arose out of the fire at the Cooksville brick and tile plant, an unforseen occurrence, that cut off their supply of tile. And, buying across the border was affected by the devaluation of the dollar. It was also said that the company had probably made a close estimate in their tender, which was accepted as lowest.

Zelda Bolton Heads Homemakers Club

WARSAW, Nov. 8.—(ENS). — The Homemakers' Club elected Zelda Bolton president at the first meeting held in the institute rooms Saturday.

Other officers elected were: Secretary, Barbara Cuffe; treasurer, Marlene Darling; pianist, Marie Drain, and press reporter, Marilyn Olver.

There was a discussion on posture, followed by a lunch.

Glasgow Professor Asks Self-Government

MONTREAL, Nov. 8—(CP) — J. Duncan Mackie, professor of Scottish History and Literature at the University of Glasgow, said Monday many of his countrymen are pressing for self-government "although few want complete severance from England."

"Scotland is being treated as a region," he said in an interview, "when, in effect, it is a kingdom."

"We don't want to be dragged at the heels of a centralized government in England," the noted Scottish historian added.

Prof. Mackie is visiting Canadian universities under the auspices of the British Council. He will lecture here Nov. 16 on Scottish nationalism. He has already visited the University of Manitoba and Queen's University, Kingston.

Encounter Difficulty

OTTAWA, Nov. 8 (CP)—The government is encountering difficulties in joint negotiations with Alberta to develop a huge muskrat and fur-farming project in the northeast corner of the province. Resources Minister Gibson said in a reply tabled Monday in the Commons for J. M. Dechene (L-Athabaska) that high water levels in the area planned for development were delaying surveys and investigations.

PLANS TO RETIRE—Hugh D. Scully, Canadian Consul General at New York since 1943, will retire at the end of the year. He was the first to hold this post and was appointed after a long career in government service. He will be replaced by Kenneth A. Greene, former Canadian High Commissioner to Australia.

5,903,570 Cast Votes In June

OTTAWA, Nov. 8 — (CP). — A record number of Canadians—5,903,570—voted in the June 27 Federal election, Nelson Castonguay, the chief electoral officer said Monday. That was roughly 600,000 more than voted in the 1945 election.

There were 7,893,425 eligible voters, about 900,00 more than in 1945.

A total of 54,600 ballots were rejected, 4,463 fewer than in 1945.

There was an increase, too, in the number of voters who actually voted. Nearly 75 per cent of the eligible voters cast their ballots, roughly 1 per cent more than in 1945 and slightly higher than the long-term average.

The number of ballots cast with the number of eligible voters in brackets for Ontario was 2,042,294 (2,718,118).

Son Celebrates Mass For Mrs. Edward Ruth

MARMORA, Nov. 8 (ENS) — The funeral was held on Saturday at the Church of Our Lady, Help of Christians, Watford, Ont. of Mrs. Edward Ruth, formerly Margaret Maloney daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Edward Maloney, pioneer residents of Marmora township.

Solemn High Mass was celebrated by her son, the Rev John Ruth with the Rev. J. R. Ruth, a nephew, as deacon and the Rev. Jerome Ruth, also a nephew, as sub-deacon.

Burial took place at the Roman Catholic cemetery in Watford.

Mrs. Ruth who was in her 81st year, was born in Marmora township and spent the early years of her life there.

Farmed In Warwick

Before her husband's death 14 years ago, they had farmed in Warwick township. The last six years of her life she had lived with her daughter, Mrs. G. A. O'Brien, Plympton township.

Surviving are two sons, and five daughters, the Rev. John Ruth, Toronto; Joseph, Warwick; Sister Leonissa, St. Louis Convent, Waterloo; Sister Marguerite, St Mary's Convent, Kitchener; Sister Cyprian St. Joseph's Hospital, Chatham; Sister Edward, Mearns, Alta.; Mrs. Gordon O'Brien, Plympton township.

Also surviving are three sisters, Mrs. L. Cook, Medicine Hat, Alta.; Mrs. T. J. Fitzpatrick, Sudbury, and Mrs. Leslie Ruth, Hepworth, Ont.

Miss M. Argue Funeral

Funeral service for Miss Minnie Argue, 73, of Lakefield, was held on Saturday at the Belleghem Funeral Home. The Rev. F. W. Craik, of St. James' United Church, officiated. Pallbearers were Earl and Walter Argue, Gordon and Oscar James, Alvah Rooke aond Lavorne McGill, all nephews. Burial was at Fallis Cemetery, Manvers Township. Miss Argue died in hospital last Thursday following a short illness. She was born in Manvers, daughter of the late Thomas Argue and Sarah Paton, and had lived in Lakefield for the past 12 years. Wallace Warns Danger Of Third War.

ST. THOMAS, Nov. 8 (CP) — The democracies must prepare themselves for a possible third world war, Dr. Robert C. Wallace, principal of Queen's University, Kingston, said here Monday night.

He told the 21st annual farmers' night program of the local Kiwanis Club that there is "real danger" or another conflict and "we must make sure that the Russians know we have the power to use, if we must use it."

"Fear creates tensions," he said "Tensions lead to incidents and incidents break out into war. Humanity has been on this plane we call earth for some half-billion years and during that period has settled its major tensions by war and may continue to do so.

"Is there some way of preventing war and all the troubles resulting from it? It can be done if we understand each other better and eliminate the original fear."

Dr. Wallace said that force negatives all that education teaches.

"If Communism cannot get what it wants by majority votes it takes it by force. We are not going to abolish Communism immediately, because it is too strong a force. We must never give up our point of view but we must try to understand. It has taken a long time to get as much peace as we have and it may be a long time before we eliminate strife as a way of handling difficulties."

Two Bands Will Lead Armistice Day Parade

MILLBROOK, Nov. 8 (ENS)— The parade of Branch 402 of the Legion on Armistice day will be led by the bugle band of Port Hope Sea Cadets and the local Continuation School band. Remembrance Day services will be conducted by the Rev. G. G. Husser, assisted by Major C. M. MacLean and the Rev. Walter Patterson.

All ex-service men are invited to join the Legion for this parade which will start from the Legion hall at 9:30 a.m. After the service in St. Andrew's United Church the parade will proceed to the Cenotaph where Major MacLean, Legion padre, will be in charge.

More than $150 was raised as the result of the sale of poppies last Saturday which is more than in any other previous tag day. The committee in charge were: Hugh Blair, convener; Fred Lowery and J. Blair. Mrs. E. C. Richards was in charge of the Women's Auxiliary taggers.

Truck In Flames

NEWTONBROOK, Nov. 8 (CP) —Three men escaped injury today when the truck in which they were riding collided with an automobile on north Yonge Street, overturned and burst in flames. Driver of the truck was Walter Wittle, 19, of Wilcox Lake. None of the occupants of the truck or car were injured.

Two Trains Collide

MADRID, Nov. 8—(AP)—Two electric trains collided near here Monday night, killing at least 14 persons and injuring more than 30.

Mother Gives Tip Off To Police; Son Fined

LINDSAY, Nov. 8 —(ENS)— Mother of a Fowler's Corners man who was fined $10 and costs Monday when he appeared before Magistrate E. A. Gee on a liquor charge, had tipped off police to be on the look out for his car.

Provincial Constable Lyle told the magistrate he found the car parked on the side of the road with the accused asleep in the front seat with his two-year-old child asleep on his knee.

A nearly empty beer bottle protruded from his pocket, the constable said and there were two untapped ones in the rear seat.

The accused claimed he did not know the liquor was there and a letter to the court written by his mother corroborated this evidence.

He had been to a wedding reception in Peterborough with other members of his family, he said.

Still In Market

AUCKLAND, N.Z., Nov. 8 (CP) —A. Rive, Canadian high commissioner to New Zealand, said on his arrival here today that Canada still is ready to buy more of New Zealand's primary produce than the Dominion could spare. Devaluation has made little difference to trade between the two countries, he said. Rive returned to his post here after a six-month leave in Canada.

Last Rites Are Held For Jack Collins

Funeral services for Mr. Jack Collins were conducted on Monday from St. George's Anglican Church by Rev. E. C. Moore. Friends, both from the city and Otonabee, filled the church to capacity, showing the high esteem in which Mr. Collins was held.

Before coming to Peterborough three years ago, he farmed in Otonabee where he was an active member of the community, being a former Rector's warden in St. Mark's Anglican Church.

Pallbearers were A. Bunn, B. Armstrong, F. Stillman, J. Grattan, H. Collins and F. Buckham.

Surviving are his widow, the former Agnes Beamish, and two brothers, Abner and James, of Ueterborough.

Burial was in Little Lake cemetery.

Aged Curve Lake Man William Taylor Funeral

Funeral service for the late William Taylor, 87, of Curve Lake, was held on Saturday from the Curve Lake Church. The Rev. Willard Day, of Burleigh Falls, and the Rev. Robert Coghill, Church of the Nazarene, officiated. Pallbearers were S. Irons, L. D. Taylor, Jr., R. M. and A. Taylor, and A. Johnston. Burial was at Curve Lake cemetery.

Mr. Taylor died last Wednesday at his residence following a lengthy illness. His wife, the former Mary Yellowhead, predeceased him in 1938.

He leaves two daughters, Mrs. M. Bigwind, of Alderville, and Mrs. L. Bell, of Burleigh Falls. There are five sons, Bill and Hiram of Curve Lake, Horace and Elijah of Burleigh Falls, and Sam of this city. There are also five sisters, Mrs. C. Simcoe, of Rama Road, Mrs. L. Irons, Mrs. M. Johnston, Mrs. E. Coppeway and Mrs. E. McCue, and two brothers, Charles and Tom, all of Curve Lake.

Fined $1,500

SACRAMENTO, Calif., Nov. 8 —(AP)—Automobile dealer Phil Davis was sentenced Monday to serve six months in prison and fined $1,500 for negligence in a speedboat accident at Lake Tahoe whic hmaimed Imogene Wittsche, 14. The girl, now back in school, was swimming with a companion in Lake Tahoe when she was hit by the speedboat, losing both her legs below the knees.

Police Ready To Drop Mystery Of $28,000

SARNIA, Nov. 8—(CP)—Police said Monday they were about to debunk the "mystery" of the $28,000 in cash reported stolen from the suburban home of Mrs. J. F. Morrison, elderly widow of a former local hotel owner.

The woman reported the loss last Friday, saying the money and some jewelry had been missing a week from a box in the basement. Over the week-end she reduced her estimate of the theft.

Monday, she said first that only about $1,400 was missing. Then, according to Provincial Constable Arthur Dymond and Sarnia Township Constable William Bishop, she "intimated" that she had found the money and the police investigation could end.

Mrs. Joseph A. Boyd Buried Emily Cemetery

Funeral service for the late Mrs. Joseph A. Boyd, Concession 14, Cavan Township, was held on Friday at her residence. The Rev. E. W. Rowland of Grace United Church officiated. Pallbearers were Melville Jones, Wilbert Gaynor, Aubrey Bland, Eldridge and Harry Shea and Austin Hayes. Flower-bearers were Donald, Bob and Jay Hayes, Weston Reid, George Shea, Tom Best, Harry and Stanley Tully. Burial was at Emily Cemetery.

Mrs. Boyd died at her home on Wednesday. She was born in Cavan Township, Mary Annie, daughter of the late William John Jones and Elsabeth Gardiner. She was married in 1906.

Besides her husband she leaves one daughter, Mrs. Aubrey Bland (Greta) of Mount Pleasant, and four sons, Ray and Russel at home, Harry of Emily Township and Kenneth of Peterborough. There are two sisters, Mrs. Wilbert Gaynor (Maud) of Lindsay and Mrs. Elizabeth Reid of this city, and two brothers, Melville Jones of Cavan and Elmer of Saskatoon. There are also six grandchildren.

Mrs. Boyd was a member of Mount Pleasant United Church and of its Women's Association.

School Magazine Editors Confer At Belleville

Editors and teacher advisors of the PCVS Echoes, the school's annual publication, attended a conference of High School editors in Belleville over the week-end. This is the second time since the Second World War they have met, both times in Belleville. Prior to the war they conferred annually in Toronto with the aim to better their magazines by discussing problems with each other.

More than 60 attended the conference from the high schools of Whitby, Bowmanville, Picton, Trenton, Kingston, Belleville, Napanee, Lindsay and Peterborough. Five representatives from PCVS attended: Miss Helen McGregor staff advisor for the Echoes and Elizabeth Rowell, George Gough, Joan Seymour, Kathryn Leslie, all editors of the school magazine.

After a banquet supplied by the Belleville Collegiate Professor B. C. Diltz of the Ontario College of Education spoke to the editors giving them new ideas on what their annual publications should be like. Following the address Donald Rose of Belleville led the editors in a panel discussion on school magazines. General chairman of the conference was Carol Wishart of Belleville.

Youth 17 Shoots Former Girl Friend

MONTREAL, Nov. 8 —(CP)— Provincial Police reported here today that a 17-year-old suburban Lachine youth will appear in court later in the day to face a charge of attempted murder.

Police said the youth shot and seriously wounded his 17-year-old former girl friend Monday night after her refusal to a reconciliation.

The girl was rushed to hospital where she underwent an emergency operation for removal of a bullet lodged just above her heart.

Her condition early today was reported as 's'atisfactory" by hospital authorities.

Child Dies Of Beating

NORFOLK, Va., Nov. 8—(AP) —Blonde, six-year-old Shirley Murray died Monday night only a few hours after her severely-beaten body was found in a wooded area near Norfolk naval base. Hospital authorities reported no indications of rape.

Make School Grant

OTTAWA, Nov. 8—(CP)—The government has allocated $52,500 to help Canada's social service schools function during the current fiscal year—but what it allocates in future is still under consideration. This information was tabled Monday in the Commons for Stanley Knowles (CCF, Winnipeg North Centre). The question of future financial aid will be discussed with school representatives at a meeting Nov. 22-24.

Teller Given Suspended Term

BUFFALO, N.Y., Nov. 8 (AP) —A government lawyer's recommendation Monday won a suspended sentence for Marshall Dwight Fry, 24, who admitted taking $5,000 from a New York City bank where he was a teller.

Fry, born in Dresden, Ont., surrendered to Toronto police Oct. 15 and turned over all the money except $800 he said he had spent on an automobile.

Fry was turned over to immigration authorities for deportation to Canada after Judge John Knight suspended a 2½-year sentence. Fry had pleaded guilty.

"I'm placing you on probation in view of the district attorney's recommendation," Judge Knight said. "I do so reluctantly because I see no excuse for what you have done. You were earning $48 a week and your wife was earning $35 per week. It should have been sufficient for your needs."

Henry W. Killeen, Jr., assistant U.S. attorney, in recommending leniency, told the court Fry had a "splendid war record" and was subject to deportation.

Officials said Fry was a flight lieutenant in the RCAF during the war.

24 Countries Send Men To Wool Parley

LONDON, Nov. 8 (AP)—Delegates representing 24 countries meet today to survey the world's wool situation.

In the three-day annual conference of the international wool study group they will exchange ideas and make recommendations for wool production and marketing.

Observers at the meeting are the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, the International Wool Textile Organization and the United Kingdom-Dominions Wool Disposals, Limited.

At Monday's organization session the wool experts selected as chairman A. E. Welch, head of the United Kingdom delegation.

Betty Stevens Wins County Speaking Contest

MILLBROOK, Nov. 8 (ENS) — Betty Stevens of Cairo School was winner of the county public speaking contest in Bowmanville Friday. Betty spoke on "Windows for the Blind."

Other speakers from this district who had won the right to represent their schools at the county contest were Luella Kellett from Millbrook, and Eva Lawrence from South Cavan school.

It is the second time in succession that a pupil from Cairo school has won top honors at the county contest. Last year Catherine Waterman from the same school, also the pupil of Mr. Reg. Sutton, came first with her speech on "The Cavan Blazers."

In the last five years the county honors have come to this section four times.

Mrs. Edith Seymour Is Widely Mourned

A great many friends attended the funeral services of Mrs. Edith Seymour on Monday. Rev. F. W. Craik conducted the service from the Funeral Home of A. Comstock and Sons, 305 Water St.

Mrs. Seymour passed away at Civic Hospital following a lengthy illness. She was born in Springbrook, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Burkitt. Her husband, the late James Seymour, predeceased her in 1937. She was an active member of Fairmount United Church, being a past-president and a life member of the WMS.

Pallbearers were Irwin McIntosh, Duncan Seymour, Everett Poast, Archie Brown, Harvey Hewitt and Ralph Thompson.

Surviving are one daughter, Mrs. Austin Poast (Sadie), of Peterborough, four sons, Percy B., of Hamilton, Harry I. of Ottawa, William J. of Cavan, Carmen W. of Ida, and one sister, Mrs. A. P. Williams, of Springbrook.

Burial was in Little Lake cemetery.

WA Makes $100 Donation To Church Fund

SELWYN, Nov. 8 (ENS).—Seventeen members of the WA of the United Church and three visitors met at the home of Mrs. Clayton Fitzgerald. Thursday. Rev. D. P. Morris led in prayer. Mrs. Clifford McIlmoyl presided.

The scripture and topic were given by Mrs. George McIlmoyl and Mrs. Evans Blewett.

Mrs. Grace McIlmoyl, who is now living in Peterborough, asked to resign from the WA, but it was decided to make her an honorary member.

One hundred dollars was voted to be given to the church funds. Mr. Morris thanked the WA for its co-operation and the help that the WA is to the church. One recent instance was the meat supper at which $150 was realized. The president gave a brief summary of the WA meeting held in George St. United Church, Peterborough, on Tuesday of last week, and which a few delegates from here attended.

Members planned to have a quilting in the church hall on Nov. 17, and a pot-luck dinner. Refreshments were served.

Mrs. Harold McIlmoyl offered her home for the December meeting and election of officers.

Dismiss Appeal

TORONTO, Nov. 8 (CP)—The Ontario Court of Appeals Monday dismissed an appeal by John William Christian, 27, sentenced at Welland, Sept. 17 to be hanged for the bludgeon slaying April 13 of Jacob Koabel, 68-year-old bachelor farmer. Christion is to be hanged Dec. 7.

Baldwin Asked Advice Once During Crisis

LONOON, Nov. 8—(CP)—The late Earl Baldwin asked the Archbishop of Canterbury's advice only once during the crisis which culminated in the abdication of King Edward VIII.

This was disclosed Monday with the publication of John Gilbert Lockhart's biography of the late Archbishop Gordon Lang who died in 1945.

The late Primate's diary of the abdication period reveals that the Prime Minister on Dec. 5, 1936—six days before Edward quit the throne and became the Duke of Windsor—asked the Archbishop's opinion on the King's proposal he make "morganatic" the marriage with Mrs. Wallis Simpson.

Under this proposal the King's wife would not have been crowned, nor would she have had the status of a queen. Both Baldwin and Lang said no.

The Primate was aware of Edward's attachment for Mrs. Simpson while he still was Prince of Wales. In 1935, the Primate had a "long and intimate" talk on the matter with Edward's father, the late King George V.

Later, when Edward became King, the Archbishop "made repeated suggestions about seeing him . . . but the King would listen to nobody but Mr. Baldwin, who had to speak to him and to advise him."

Not being able to get his views before Edward apparently troubled the Primate, but he feared a snub if he committed them in writing.

Had Good Weekend

HAMILTON, Nov. 8—(CP)—Cracksmen netted $3,000 in two week-end robberies, police said Monday. Nearly $2,500 was taken from a safe at the Robert Simpson Company garage and office and between $400 and $500 was stolen from a safe in the office of Golightly and Knight Ltd.

Will Revive War Methods To Handle Labor Shortage

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON, Nov. 8—(CP)—Under pressure of threatened labor shortages, war methods of mobilizing Britain's manpower are being revived in peace. As one of the first results of new economy measures, a 17-man team has been —appointed to advise the government on control and transfer of workers.

The committee, under chairmanship of Labor Minister George Isaacs, will consider whether Britain's manpower policy needs tightening. Longer working hours, joint factory consultation and recruiting of idle men will be other subjects for discussion.

The 17-man team marks a revival of the Labor ministry's joint consultative committee, which has not met since 1947.

The reconstituted committee has seven representatives each from employers and unions and two representatives of the nationalized industries. Isaacs is the 17th member.

Extend Power

The panel's first act was to extend for one year the government's authority to control labor "engagements," legislation which has governed job transfers for the last two years.

Only 29 workers have changed employment under the order, but many more transfers are expected to take place within the next few months as the dollar drive gathers momentum.

Within three days of the appointment of the Advisory Committee, a Labor Ministry spokesman in Manchester said that the workers in North-west England who lost their jobs in government ordnance factories will be offered employment with dollar-earning firms.

(Prime Minister Attlee announced October 24 that ordnance factory staffs would be trimmed as part of new retrenchment measures.)

Won't Be Directed

In London, an official said these workers would not be "directed" to new firms. But efforts would be made to ensure that employees could "step straight out of one job into another" without compulsory direction.

Whatever happens, Attlee and his Labor colleagues will make every effort to ensure that "full" employment continues. Its record in that field so far has been advanced time and again as the proudest achievement of the Labor regime.

In the economic debate in the House of Commons, Herbert Morrison, Deputy Prime Minister, boasted that labor had kept unemployment below 2 per cent of the population. But in the same debate Sir Stafford Cripps, Chancellor of the Exchequer, warned that planned full employment does not mean that any worker can be "guaranteed" his particular job, or even his particular trade.

Ontario Veterans Protest Medals Of Second War

TORONTO, Nov. 8 (CP)—Ontario command of the Canadian Legion reported that a large number of letters had been received from its members protesting the lack of identifying marks on Second World War medals.

The letters, asking that representations be made to the government to have the medals recalled and the recipient's name and number added, were forwarded to the Legion's Dominion headquarters.

Excellent Relations

TORONTO, Nov. 8—(CP)—A. R. Mosher, president of the Canadian Congress of Labor said Monday that Canada's industrial picture is remarkably good and that relations between industry and organized workers are the best in history.

Visitors To Peterborough Lose Everything As Home Burns In Oshawa

Father, Alone In House Escapes In Pyjamas Saves Only Son's Tricycle; Rouses Neighbors And Sleeping Children

OSHAWA, Nov. 9—(CP)—Clad in pyjamas, Clarence O'Connor, 59, roused his neighbours and their four children Tuesday night when a fire which destroyed his five-room frame house threatened to spread next door. O'Connor later rescued Harold Bezzant, who was overcome by smoke while trying to salvage furniture from the next-door house, owned by Norman Gillespie. O'Connor who was alone in his house when the fire broke out raced next door to warn Gillespie, his wife and four children. O'Connor's wife and three children were visiting in Peterborough at the home of her mother, Mrs. Wilbert Paul of 203 Rutherford Ave. The children are James, 5, Edward, 3, and Harvey, age two months. The family plan on staying with Mrs. Paul for the time being.

Idled by the strike at the General Motors plant O'Connor saved only the pyjamas he was wearing and a tricycle owned by his young son.

No estimate of the damage to O'Connor's house was available. It was insured for $2,000. Damage to Gillespie's house was estimated at $1,000. Cause of the fire is unknown.

Testify Demers Quarrelsome On Few Drinks

SHERBROOKE, Que., Nov. 9—(CP)— Relatives of Mrs. Anita Robert took the witness stand here Tuesday as hockey player Tony Demers went on trial for the murder of the 32-year-old woman from Coaticook, Que.

Mrs. Robert's father, John Laberge, testified that he had met the former national hockey league right winger the night before his daughter was fatally bludgeoned. Mrs. Robert died in hospital Sept. 16 at Magog, Que., after a drinking party with Demers, evidence at a preliminary inquest showed.

Laberge said he did not know that his daughter was a friend of Demers. He testified that Mrs. Robert had intended to leave this Quebec Eastern townships region on the day of her death to join her husband, a railway chef, at Lake Louise, Alta.

The murdered woman's father said that after he, his daughter and Demers had done some drinking in a Coaticook hotel, they went to Denis Laberge's home where they did more drinking.

Laberge, Mrs. Robert's brother, told how Demers "took off his shirt to show how strong he was."

Laberge said that during a later hotel drinkging session Demers became "quarrelsome" and added that two sisters of Mrs Robert, who were with the party had told their father to go home because they "knew Demers was bound to start a fight."

Inquiry Panel Studies Crash

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—(AP).—An inquiry panel was called together today to get the lone survivor's own story of the air collision between his P-38 fighter and a big airliner in which 55 persons were killed Nov. 1.

The story will be read into the record of a public hearing before a special six-man group appointed by the Civil Aeronautics Board. The session promised the first integrated telling of the events surrounding the worst tragedy in the 46 years of airplane flight.

The P-38 pilot, Erick Rios Bridoux, Bolivian director-general of aviation, told his complete story for the first time Tuesday in a private 90-minute session with air safety investigators in his room at an Alexandria, Va., hospital.

His two-engine fighter struck an Eastern Airlines DC-4 carrying 51 passengers and four crew members as both planes approached Washington National Airport for a landing.

Donald Duck Hero In Weston House Fire

WESTON, Nov. 8—(CP)—Donald Duck was the hero of a fire that destroyed a five-room bungalow in this Toronto suburb early today.

The 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Duck woke up to find the house afire. He roused his family and carried out a younger brother and sister while his parents led their two other children to safety before the flames swept the building.

Lost in the blaze was a watch depicting Donald's Hollywood namesake, presented to him when he extinguished a grass fire in Weston last summer.

Glamor Girls Fire Right Back

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 9 (AP)—Hollywood fired right back today at Lady Astor, who seeks an educational "backfire" against "the wretched glamor girls" of the movie colony and their impact on world thinking.

The British noblewoman appealed in London for a $1,120,000 fund to help pay for study in Britain by university women of other countries. Her plan, she said, is for education women from every land to understand each other and exchange their varying points of view. This, she indicated, might help offset the wide influence of American films.

Jane Russell, not exactly wretched looking, thinks Lady Astor should recall that most of Hollywoods glamor girls "wretched or otherwise—" did plenty to influence world thinking quite favorably during the late war.

"Their professional appearances on the screen," said she, "and their voluntary appearances in military hospitals and at charity functions continue to win worldwide admiration."

Said Virginia Mayo: "What's the matter with Lady Astor? Wasn't she a wretched glamor girl back in—well, quite a few years ago? Is she chagrined because wretched glamor girls command more attention than she?"

LONDON, Nov. 9 (AP)—The new Lord Mayor of London, wet with rain, took over his duties from his predecessor today at a centuries-old ceremony.

Amend Land Act

OTTAWA, Nov. 9—(CP)—Veterans Minister Gregg gave notice on the Commons order paper today that at this session of parliament he will bring in a bill to amend the Veterans Land Act to provide for the absorption by the government of "past abnormal building costs." The Act provides for settlement of veterans on farms or on small holdings.

Refuse Jackson Hearing At Cobourg Meet

COBOURG, Nov. 9—(ENS)—C. S. Jackson, UE leader, attempted to address the Local 534 in the Orange Hall last night but managed to speak only for about sixty seconds and then was drowned out in a howl of booing and razzing. As he and Phil Knibbs, along with three or four supporters, left the hall he was subjected to more booing and hooting.

The final sour note came when he went to step into his car to return to Peterborough and found that someone had let the air out of one of his tires. All in all it was a flop for Mr. Jackson and a good time for the right wingers, some 90 or more who attended, all workers at local CGE plant. A number were not able to be present because they were on the night shift. The meeting lasted only about 15 minutes.

When the meeting convened Mr. Jackson was on the platform with Mr. Knibbs in the chair, all of which did not suit the listeners. When Mr. Jackson commenced to talk, he was greeted with jeers and howls and the crowd demanded that their own union leader, Al Knippel, take the chair. Knippel stood up on a bench in the auditorium and suggested that the crowd give Mr. Jackson one minute to say his piece.

There was a meeting last Thursday night which was unconstitutional, began Mr. Jackson, but that was as far as he could get, for the moment, as more yells followed his remarks. Then he said no man can be in two unions. The men who signed cards for the new union are no longer members of Local 534. But he could get no further and stepped down. During the brief meeting a scuffle broke out between two in the crowd, but petered out.

Mr. Knipfel advised the union men that the right wing members should walk out of the hall and let the left wing stay. The crowd left their seats and stood up at the back of the hall. That left Jackson, Knibbs, two men who had come with him from Peterborough, a Peterborough girl and four Cobourg girls.

Britons Still Enjoy Little Spot Of Tea

LONDON, Nov. 9—(Reuters)—Britons, long famed for tea drinking, are consuming even more, according to figures released Tuesday by the International Tea Committee. In the first eight months of this year, consumption was 120,700 tons against 117,940 tons during the same period last year.

Only 2 Towns Close Up For November 11 Holiday

By The Canadian Press

Ontario citizens will pause Friday in Remembrance Day tributes to the men who fought and died in the First and Second World Wars.

Almost everywhere, public gatherings will be held around war memorials. The traditional two-minute silence for the fallen will be observed in town squares, in factories and offices and in thousands of homes.

At least two communities have declared an all-day holiday, while in most others virtually all business and commercial activity will cease for a brief period, mainly from 10:30 a.m. to 1 p.m.

At this year's service in Galt, the honor roll of Second World War dead, of which names were recently carved on the cenotaph, will be unveiled and dedicated. Canadian Legion branches and veterans' organizations in many communities will hold remembrance dinners. Other ceremonies include placing of wreaths and band parades.

Whitby and Sarnia are the two towns virtually closing down for the day.

Those communities in which stores, commercial activities and schools will close for a few hours are Galt, Sault Ste. Marie, St. Thomas, Cornwall, Woodstock, Owen Sound, Chatham, Kirkland Lake, and Brantford.

There will be no holiday or temporary closing in Oshawa, Niagara Falls and Peterborough, but the two-minute silence and services will be held. At Windsor and Kitcheher, there are mixed plans for holidays and partial closing.

New Increase To Be Based On 1941 Rent

Policy Not Clear In First Statement Government Declares

OTTAWA, Nov. 9 (CP)—General cross-country rent increases permitted since rent controls went into effect last year. Finance lowed to pyramid, it was learned today.

The new rent ceilings will be from 20 to 25 per cent of the maximum ceilings before the last raise of 10 and 15 per cent went into effect 2½ years ago, Finance Department officials said.

Finance Minister told the Commons Tuesday night the government had permitted increases of 30 per cent for unheated accommodation and 40 per cent for heated accommodation since November 1941. If the two separate increases had been allowed to pyramid it would have meant increases of more than 30 per cent and 40 per cent.

If, for example, a landlord was charging $100 a month for unheated accommodation and was permitted to increase his rent by 10 per cent he will not now be allowed to increase his rent by 20 per cent of $110.

The increase would be 20 per cent of $100, making a total new rent of $130.

Not Over 40%

Mr. Abbott told the House "the government has never intended to apply one percentage increase to the other, which would, of course, have resulted in more than an over-all general increase of 30 per cent or 40 per cent."

Officials said a simple procedure to calculate the new increases is being worked out and will be announced shortly.

The spokesman made this explanation:

1. The rental increases of 20 and 25 per cent will not be calculated on rents which resulted from the 10 and 15 per cent boost in November, 1948.

2. If there have been no other local boosts allowed the landlords since that time, the new hikes will mean a general increase of 30 and 40 per cent on rentals paid just previous to the general raise allowed a year ago.

3. However, in many towns and cities landlords have been authorized to charge higher rents because of local tax hikes, renovations, improvements in property and because the previous rent charged was lower than the general scale prevailing in the neighborhood. The new hikes will be on top of these authorized increases.

The spokesman gave this case as an example:

A tenant moved into a heated house when the rents were frozen in 1940. He then was paying $100 a month. Because the city taxes were increased sharply, the landlord was authorized to boost the

U.S. Has Plan For Nfld. Bases

OTTAWA, Nov. 9—(CP)—The United States government has indicated it will make a proposal to Ottawa in the fairly near future in an attempt to meet Canadian objections to certain civilian aspects of U.S. control of three military bases in Newfoundland, it was learned Tuesday.

The indication is understood to have been given by Defence Secretary Louis Johnson in negotiations arising out of discussions he had here in July with Defence Minister Claxton. So far, however, Canada has no inkling of what the proposal will be.

Canada has been pressing for months for solution to one of the major unsettled problems arising from her absorption of the island as a 10th province.

The Federal Government does not want to disturb U.S. military control of the bases but feels that Canadian sovereignty demands that the U.S. yield certain taxation exemption, customs and judicial rights awarded in a 99-year agreement negotiated in 1941 with the United Kingdom.

SMALL SIDEWALK SUPERINTENDENTS, on their way to afternoon classes at Central School on Tuesday, watched a crew from the City Parks Department dismantle the old fountain, a landmark in Victoria Park since 1885. The city proposes to replace it by a more modern structure which will retain some of the old fountain's fixtures, but will spout water and perhaps be illuminated. The old fountain had not played for a generation.

Chinese Problem Discussed By Big Three

PARIS, Nov. 9 (AP) — The Foreign Ministers of Britain, the United States and France met for 25 minutes today reviewing "a wide range of subjects," an American official reported.

There were indications that Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin raised the question of China and that Foreign Minister Robert Schuman brought up the problem of French Indo-China, on China's border. Bevin has been reported planning to tell the French and Americans Britain wants to recognize China's Communist government.

Bevin, Schuman and State Secretary Dean Acheson scheduled a second meeting for late afternoon to take up proposals received from Konrad Adenauer, Chancellor of the West German Government.

The Foreign Ministers of Britain, France and the United States began their talks, in the French Foreign Ministry on proposals from the new West German regime which might:

1. Lay the foundation for a Franco-German reconciliation — a turning point in modern European history.

2. End the technical state of war still existing between west Germany and the three western allied powers.

3. Give Germany a definite part in Europe's future political and economic co-ordination, including at least associate membership in the Council of Europe, the 12-country parliamentary body working for a united continent.

Call Police In Baby's Death

NORTH BAY, Nov. 9 (CP) — Provincial police are investigating circumstances surrounding the sudden death Monday night of Richard Merriman, nine-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Douglas Merriman of nearby West Ferris.

The baby died at its suburban tourist camp home while the mother was visiting at the home of her husband's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Merriman of North Bay. When the mother arrived home, she found the child dead. He had been left in charge of his 28-year-old father.

Police said they later arrested Merriman and lodged him in district jail under a nominal charge.

Police said the father, a veteran of six years overseas service will be given a mental examination before any charges, if any, are laid.

Police were reluctant to release details of the fatality, but they said it is believed the infant died from a blow or blows.

Lehman Sweeps Election Republicans Take Mauling

By The Associated Press

Smashing Democratic victories in New York's United States Senate race and in city elections in many parts of the country set President Truman and his party high command chortling today over the outlook for 1950. Republicans did not find much to crow about in Tuesday's off-year elections. They held on to the New Jersey Governorship they already had and tossed out a Democratic mayor here and there.

But they took a mauling in the day's feature political bout, in New York State. Democrat Herbert H. Lehman easily knocked out of the U.S. Senate seat Dulles has held down since last July on an interim appointment.

There was one, big, clear-cut issue: Lehman campaigned hard for the Truman home-front program; Dulles campaigned hard against it.

The President himself interpreted the result as a vote of confidence in his "fair deal." Truman said it would have a "very decided effect on the election in 1950" when control of Congress is at stake.

Direct Defeat

In New Jersey, Gov. Alfred E. Driscoll handed a direct defeat to his Democratic rival, State Senator Elmer H. Wene. And he gave an indirect drubbing to Frank Hague, the former Jersey City Mayor and boss of the State Democratic organization who backed Wene.

Boston voters tossed out the last old-time boss still in power in the United States when they refused a fifth term to Democratic Mayor James M. Curley. They picked another Democrat, City Clerk John H. Hynes.

Hynes was temporary mayor in 1947 while Curley did a five

Nationalist Planes Desert To Red Army

HONG KONG, Nov. 9.—(Reuters).—Planes of Chinese Nationalist companies were believed to have gone over to the Communists today when they left Kaitak airport in Hong Kong and failed to arrive at their scheduled destinations.

Nineteen of the planes were of the China National Aviation Corporation, while the other two belonged to the Central Air Transport Corporation.

The Nationalist Government has a majority financial interest in both corporations although Pan American Airways has a considerable holding in the China national aviation.

U.S. Steel Arranges Bargaining Meeting

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 9—(AP)—A United States Steel Corporation spokesman said today a bargaining meeting probably will be arranged by the company with the striking United Steelworkers (CIO) for tomorrow.

"I can't enlarge on that," the source said.

U.S. Steel spearheaded the industry fight against the presidential board's recommendations for free insurance and pensions.

It put out a feeler last week for a meeting with the Union after Bethlehem Steel signed a peace pact. There has been no move by the union for a meeting.

Sneezing Sufferers Make Good Canadian Tourists

OTTAWA, Nov. 8 (CP)—If you want to attract tourists, the Dominion-provincial tourist conference says, check up on your "hay-fever index."

This is not quite in the same class as the cost-of-living index; except that where either index is high, folks are likely to go some place else.

The problem came up before the conference on the suggestion of D. Leo Dolan head of the Canadian Government Travel Bureau. Mr. Dolan said it was not a problem to be sneezed at.

Mr. Dolan, affable salesman of what he stoutly claims is the "world's best product—Canada," is a hay fever sufferer from away back. His case, he told the conference, was so bad he was welcomed by doctors as a clinical example.

"Hundreds of thousands of tourists in the U.S.," he said, "just cry for hay-fever-free areas; for a place they can find a holiday without getting hay fever."

He brought to the conference's attention a booklet published by the Chicago Motor Club Information Bureau. The booklet had a "ragweed pollen index" and advised hay fever sufferers to steer clear of areas with an index of more than 10 per cent, prefer those with an index of less than five and described as "excellent" areas with an index of less than one.

The booklet, entitled "Holiday From Hay Fever," listed these as some of the Canadian indexes:

Winnipeg, eight; Brandon, five; Morden, 12; The Pas, Man., .05; Hamilton, 64; Kenora 10; Ottawa 11; Toronto 23; Port Arthur seven; Cochrane 2, Montreal 30; Quebec three; Gaspe, one; Matapedia, .06. Windsor had the worst listed index at 66.

Lewis Orders Coal Miners Back To Pits

Will Return To Work Till November 30 To Continue Talks

CHICAGO, Nov. 9 (AP)—John L. Lewis told his 380,000 striking soft coal diggers today to go back to work until Nov. 30, pending further efforts to reach a contract agreement in the industry.

The back to work order came immediately after a meeting of the United Mine Workers' 200-man policy committee.

It was termed by Lewis "an act of good faith designed to contribute to public convenience."

He hinted at resumption of the strike after Nov. 30 if a settlement with operators is not reached.

Generous Gesture

But, Lewis said, in suspending the 51-day strike "the United Mine Workers will again make another contribution of major magnitude to enhance the remote possibility of agreement being reached."

The miners will go back to work, he said, under terms of the U.M.W.'s contract which expired July 1, this year.

The back to work order was the most sweeping reversal of the union's traditional "no contract no work" policy to date. The first step in this direction was taken last summer when the miners were permitted to work three days a week after expiration of their contract.

Civilian Agency To Control Air

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9 (AP).—A Civilian United States Government agency today took over air control of military planes as a safety measure, hard on the heels of an airline pilot's report that he had almost collided with a B-25 bomber over National Airport here.

The Civil Aeronautics Administration announced the new safety move Tuesday night, a short time after disclosure of the near-collision between an Eastern Airlines Constellation and an instrument-flying Air Force plane. The airliner was carrying 54 persons on a flight to Miami.

The CAA did not relate its announcement to the airliner-bomber incident. It said the new regulation resulted from a series of air safety discussions with the US Air Force and Navy officials which started several weeks ago.

There has been heavy pressure on civilian and military aviation authorities to take new measures toward greater safety in the air—particularly against air-to-air collisions. In the last 14 months, all fatalities suffered by passengers on US airlines have resulted from aerial collisions.

Effective Immediately

National Airport was the scene of a disastrous crash last Tuesday, involving an Eastern Airlines DC-4 and a Bolivian P-38 fighter, in which 55 persons lost their lives.

In his statement last night, the CAA said the new move, effective today, applies to fair weather a procedure previously restricted to bad days.

Hint Russia Ready To Withdraw Troops

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9 (AP)—United States diplomats are studying seriously the possibility that Russia may be preparing the way for withdrawal of its occupation forces from eastern Germany.

State department officials long have believed the Russians would make such a move when they could realign their military position in eastern Europe so as to suffer no real loss of power.

They now may have moved to accomplish this, in the opinion of responsible officials here, through the appointment of Marshal Konstantin Rokossovsky as minister of defence in Poland.

Jump Fair To Landlords Abbott Declares; Coldwell, Fleming Object

Charge 500,000 Canadian Families Can't Afford To Pay Any More Than $30-A-Month For Rent

OTTAWA, Nov. 9—(CP)—The government, despite opposition in parliament and outside it, plans to stand by a decision to authorize 20 and 25 per cent increases in domestic rents. Finance Minister Abbott, amid a blast of criticism, told the Commons Tuesday that the government will not alter the rental-control policy outlined last Thursday. The government, he said, recognized that an authorized increase in rental ceilings would be unpopular. But it involved considerations of fairness to landlords who had been subject to controls for nine years while wages and salaries rose about 90 per cent.

"In centres where the shortage of rental accommodation is most acute, probably the majority of the landlords will take advantage of the maximum ceiling allowed," said Mr. Abbott.

"My estimate is that it will not be an across-the-board increase. This merely gives tenants and landlords the right to bargain within that range. My opinion, which is supported by the rental authorities, is that there will not be a horizontal increase of either 20 or 25 per cent."

Most opposition speakers disagreed and said they believe the landlords will take "every cent they can get." Many of the members quoted letters of protests from constituents and read newspaper editorials criticizing the government's action. Some suggested that the increases were tantamount to complete removal of rental controls.

Mr. Abbott, although applauded loudly by Liberal members, drew his only verbal support from his parliamentary assistant Gleason Belzile (L, Rimouski) and C. A. D. Cannon (L, Iles-de-la-Madeleine).

Voice Opposition

Eight of the 13 CCF members voiced their opposition, along with four of the 41 Progressive Conservative representatives. One of the 10 Social Credit members also spoke.

M. J. Coldwell, CCF leader, initiated the debate with a motion adjourning the regular business of the House to permit a discussion on the rental increases.

Describing the increases as a matter of urgent public interest, Mr. Coldwell said:

"This House must say explicitly to the government that the recent announcement by the Minister of Finance must be reconsidered, and that rental controls must remain until the provinces are prepared to step into the field and undertake the protection of the Canadian people, if it should prove to be their obligation to do so.

"Indeed until the menace of high rentals has been removed the government at least should provide, in the reconsideration of this policy, for appeals to rental-control boards across the country before rent increases are put into effect . . ."

In Parliament's Hands

Donald Fleming (PC, Toronto Eglinton) said rental controls should be taken out of the hands of the government and placed in the hands of parliament, which could decide what should be done after proper study. He suggested a committee be established to deal with the whole question of housing.

He added:

"It is amazing that while parliament is in session the thing that has happened which affected the lives and homes of Canadians more than any other since this session began was something done outside parliament and parliament is simply notified at a quarter to eleven one evening that it has been done."

C. E. Johnston (SC-Bow River) said his party believed this was not the time for rent controls to be lifted to the extent announced last week. Some landlords might forego the boosts, but it would not be the ones whose premises now rented for $40 and $45 a month to a class of people which could least afford the increases.

Mr. Abbott said the government had seriously considered letting rental control legislation expire next March 31, but then decided against such a step after careful study.

The combination of clear skies and clear polar air gave chilly temperatures in Ontario Tuesday night. Minimums were near or below freezing in the lower lakes district and as low as five above in Northern Ontario. Sunny weather and seasonable temperatures will be general throughout the province today. A cloud deck and some shower activity will move into Northwestern Ontario tonight and persist throughout Thursday. In the remainder of the province the weather on Thursday will continue sunny with somewhat higher temperatures.

Forecasts:

Central and Northern Lake Huron, Niagara, Lake Ontario, Georgian Bay and Haliburton regions: Sunny today and Thursday. Cooler today. Warmer again Thursday. Winds light today both 15 Thursday. Low tonight and high Thursday at Wingham, St. Catharines, Trenton 30 and 50, Muskoka 25 and 50, Killaloe 20 and 50.

Summary for Thursday—Sunny and warmer.

Western Oils Climbing Slowly On Exchange

TORONTO, Nov. 9 (CP) — Western oils climbed slowly upward into new high ground in the forenoon on the Toronto Stock Exchange today.

Golds also brightened in the moderate trading and industrials opened weaker but showed signs of continuing their advance. Base metals held firm against realizing sales.

Gains ranged up to 10 cents in the climbing western oils. Pacific Petroleum rose 10 cents at $3.95 and Atlantic Oil added eight cents at $1.38.

Imperial Oil attracted brisk buying in industrials, for a gain of ⅝ at a new high at 23¾. Walker's, Steel of Canada, Canada Malting and Canadian Vickers also touched new tops. Early activity pushed market leaders fractionally lower but demand appeared as the session progressed and prices turned higher.

Cheese, Produce And Livestock

TORONTO FRUIT

TORONTO, Nov. 9 (CP) — Wholesale fruit and vegetable prices were unchanged here today.

TORONTO PRODUCE

TORONTO, Nov. 9 (CP)—Produce prices quoted on the spot market this morning: Churning cream, No. 1, 62 cents fob; 66 delivered.

Butter prints were unquoted.

Supplies were ample for demand on the egg market this morning and prices remained unchanged. Country shippers quoted graded eggs, cases free: Grade A large 55-56; A medium 46-48; A pullet 38-40; grade B 44-46; grade C 34-35. Wholesale to retail: Grade A large 58-60; A medium 51; A pullet 42-43; grade B 42-43; grade B 49-50; grade C 39-40.

First grade butter solids were unchanged on a steady solids market this morning and were quoted at 60¼-60½. Second grades were quoted nominally only at 58-59½.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, Nov. 9 (CP) — Moderate commercial demand appeared at today's opening of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange, and coarse grain prices moved narrowly.

Demand was better in oats than in barley, while hedging also was more plentiful. Shippers were buyers in oats, locals in barley.

Only a few trades came into rye, with the May contract showing slightly higher. Flax is not yet open.

Prices:

Oats—Dec. ⅛-¼ higher at 81½-⅝; May ⅛-¼ higher at 80¾-⅞; July not open.

Barley—Dec. ⅜ higher at $1.47⅛; May ⅛-¼ higher at $1.44⅛-¼; July not open.

Rye—December not open; May ¼ higher at $1.53⅞; July not open.

Flax—Dec., May, July—not open.

Spend 30 Million on Surpluses

By HAROLD MORRISON

OTTAWA, Nov. 9—(CP)—Legalization of margarine and the effects of a shrinking United Kingdom market have combined to dig a hole in the government's money bags. In efforts to bolster dairy-product prices, the government has paid out more than $30,000,000 this summer to support Canadian cheese, butter and evaporated milk. Even this outlay of public funds has been insufficient to clear surpluses from factories, say government dairy experts.

In Eastern Canada, milk producers are howling that they no longer can find enough warehouse space to store unsold supplies of tinned milk.

The surplusses are not occurring during a period of unusually high production. Canada's cows have produced about 12,000,000,000 pounds of milk, slightly below the total a year ago.

However since that time two things have happened:

1. Margarine appeared on the Canadian scene.

2. The United Kingdom began reducing purchases of Canadian milk to conserve dollars.

Some former butter buyers began buying cheaper margarine to the tune of about 5,000,000 pounds a month.

Drastic Drop

United Kingdom purchase of Canadian evaporated milk dropped from a high of 35,000,000 pounds in 1945 to about 9,000,000 this year.

As a result, sheds are flooded with milk products. Production of evaporated and condensed milk is down, but the amount in storage has climbed to 56,600,000 pounds—almost twice last year's total.

Butter holdings have zoomed to 75,830,000 pounds—compared with 57,713,000 last year.

For the first time in many years a cheese surplus is beginning to show. The irony is that a year ago Canada was unable to produce enough to fill a 50,000,000-pound contract with the United Kingdom.

This year's contract now is more certain of a butter market this winter, than it is of cheese There is no certainty it won't take a big loss on both products as well as on holdings of $1,000,000 worth of skim milk.

Besides its outlay of more than $30,000,000 in initial purchases, the government has paid more than $350,000 in storage charges. More expenses are coming. The government will be responsible for shipping and grading charges if and when the storage holdings begin moving out.

Already it has announced a policy of selling more than 50,000,000 pounds of butter to anyone who'll buy it in carload lots The government wants no profit—just the average purchase price of 58 cents a pound, plus storage and shipping charges.

Government officials say one thing is certain this year—Canada will not have to import the 15,000,000 pounds of butter it brought into Canada last year to meet the butter shortage.

The government appears to be taking every step it can to develop new foreign markets for Canada's dairy surplus. With the United Kingdom market falling off, more and more attention is being given to undeveloped markets, such as South America. But here the government is meeting heavy competition.

Ontario PC's Re-elect McKenzie Pres.

TORONTO, Nov. 9 (CP)—A. D. McKenzie, Toronto lawyer, has been re-elected for his fourth two-year term as president of the Ontario Progressive Conservative Association.

In winning election at the wind-up Tuesday of the association's annual meeting, he headed off by a 25-vote margin a bid for office by James N. Allan, Dunnville dairyman. Mr. Allan drew support from Highways Minister Doucette and from some delegates who called for a "housecleaning" of the executive on grounds that it concentrated its activities in Toronto.

Several members of parliament were outspoken in their campaign on behalf of Mr. Allan, but most Progressive Conservative members of the Legislature at the convention backed Mr. McKenzie. The rank and file of the 800 delegates appeared about evenly divided.

George Drew, national leader of the party, told the gathering that he accepted full responsibility for the party's defeat in the Federal election last June. He added:

Learn Lessons

"I hope that we learned certain lessons and from those lessons we will strengthen the activities of the party not only to bring about a victory of the Progressive Conservatives but in order that we will be better fitted to carry into government those essential things we believe are best for the country."

Fred Cathorne, Toronto, was re-elected secretary and Walter McGibbon, Waterloo, was returned as treasurer. Vice-presidents are: R. A. Robinson, Port Arthur; Mrs. R. D. Cumming, Haileybury; Park A. Manross, London; Sybil Bennett, Georgetown; Ted Conover, Brampton; Mary Skeans, Toronto; Herman Rogers, St. Catharines; Harrison Corey, Petrolia; Mrs. R. B. Downing, Toronto; Dr. R. M. Mitchell, Sudbury; Al Lawrence, Toronto; and Irwin Hasket, Ottawa.

months' stretch in a federal penitentiary after being convicted of mail fraud.

Of particular pleasure to Democrats looking for clues to 1950 prospects was the fact that Democrats romped to victory in many a statewide and municipal election.

Back In Democratic Fold

And New York state once again is back in the Democratic fold. President Truman lost it to the Republicans last year in the presidential elections.

Actually, whatever push Truman's "Fair Deal" program gets out of Tuesday's balloting will be mostly psychological. The Democrats got no big numerical reinforcements in Congress.

Lehman's victory gives them an extra hand in the Senate. But at the start of the new sessions, the Senate line-up probably will be just what it was after the 1948 election: 53 Democrats, 43 Republicans.

And in the House of Representatives it will be 262 Democrats, 170 Republicans, one Democrat-Liberal, one American-Labor, one vacancy.

New York City itself gave Mayor William O'Dwyer an easy win in his bid for a second term. He licked Communist-supported Representative Vito Marcantonio, the American-Labor candidate who ran a poor third, and Newbold Morris, the Republican-Liberal-fusion hopeful.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, Nv. 9 (CP)—Plain quality cattle made up the bulk of supply on the Toronto livestock market this morning. Prices were unchanged. Receipts reported by the Dominion Marketing Service were: Cattle, 300; calves, 200; hogs, 430; sheep and lambs, 260. Left from Tuesday's close were 1,700 cattle.

Plain to medium light steers and heifers brought $15-$18. A few good heifers sold at $18-$18.50. Butcher cows were $12-$14. Canners and cutters sold from $9-$11.50. Good bulls brought $16-$17. Plain to medium stockers sold at $15-$17.50.

Calves were steady at 27-$29 for choice quality vealers with plain to medium from $16-$25. Grass calves for slaughter sold from $13-$16.

The hog market settled unchanged at $29 for grade A and $28.60 for Grade B1. Sows were steady at $19 dressed.

Good ewe and wether lambs were steady at $23.50. Bucks sold at $22. Good light sheep sold from $11-$11.50. Culls ranged downward to $6.

Garage Wrecked Store Damaged After Explosion

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 9 (ENS)—Staggering half dazed from a small room of burning gas fumes Tuesday afternoon, Bill Robertson, owner of a service station on the Hastings road, five miles west of here, suffered second degree burns on the arms and legs.

He was rushed to Dr. W. W. Baker's office, Campbellford, by Roy Oliver and after receiving medical treatment was allowed to proceed to the home of friends.

It appears that he was filling the gasoline tank of a small engine that operates the Delco plant when for some unknown reason a terrific explosion took place.

In an instant, flames, fanned by a strong west wind, swept through the frame structure and before neighbors could converge on the scene in sufficient numbers, the building was completely burnt.

A few tires were salvaged and a small amount of furniture saved in the rear where Mr. Robertson, his wife and five small children lived. The contents of the store in front were a total loss.

This was a severe blow to Mr. Robertson as he had only purchased the service station a little more than a year ago.

New Increases

rent five per cent. Before the 1948 general increases, the tenant was paying $105 a month.

The 1948 general hikes allowed the landlord to charge an extra 15 per cent, bringing the rent to $120.75 a month.

The new boosts to go into effect next month—25 per cent for heated houses, apartments and other self-contained dwellings—will be added to the 15 per cent previously allowed making for a total general increase of 40 per cent on the rent paid just prior to the 1948 hikes.

In other words, the tenant will be paying $147 a month rent for the house which he rented for $100 at the beginning of controls.

Mr. Abbott told the Commons Tuesday night that the increases effective Dec. 15 "will make a total of general over-all increases permitted since November, 1941—a period of eight years—of 30 per cent for unheated accommodation and 40 per cent for heated accommodation."

"While the present increases of 20 per cent and 25 per cent are in addition to the previous increase on 10 per cent and 15 per cent, the government has never intended to apply the one per centage increase to the other, which would of course, have resulted in more than an over-all general increase of 30 per cent and 40 per cent.

"In other words, the increases are not accumulative."

Not Explained

This policy of not allowing the "general" increases to pyramid was not contained in Mr. Abbott's rentals announcement in the Commons last Thursday, disclosing the 20 and 25 per cent boosts.

The spokesman said it was not certain at that time just how the increases would be worked out—whether on a straight addition or cumulative basis.

The government wanted to have the increases calculated on a straight addition basis but it was not certain that it could be done.

However, Tuesday, just before Mr. Abbott made his defence of the increases in the Commons, the government had arrived at the opinion that the increases could be worked out on a straight addition basis.

This would be clarified still further when the new rental regulations are made public tomorrow, the spokesman added.

Youth Is Injured Crossing Highway

A five-year-old Otonabee boy was slightly injured today when he ran across Highway 7 into the side of a car, a half mile east of Peterborough.

The injured boy is Douglas Truman of RR 8 Peterborough. While playing by the highway he decided to run across it and collided with a car pulling a trailer, driven by Louis Hokic of RR 8 Peterborough.

He was knocked down and suffered brush burns on his right hand and arm and on his right leg, and also slight concussion.

Provincial Constable Albert Poulter investigated.

Say 10 Premiers To Attend Parley

OTTAWA, Nov. 9—(CP)—The way has been cleared for the important Dominion - Provincial Constitutional Conference to be held here next Jan. 10.

Canada's 10 Provincial Premiers have agreed to attend the historic meeting.

They will confer with the government on ways to amend Canada's constitution on matters which have a direct relationship to the provinces. Prime Minister St. Laurent Tuesday tabled the Premier's letters of acceptance in the Commons.

Elected Mayor

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Nov. 9 (CP) —Harry G. Mews, Newfoundland leader of the Progressive Conservative party, Tuesday night was elected mayor of St. John's. Final returns in the civic elections gave Mr. Mews 3,838 votes, Andrew Carnell, the incumbent, 2,319 and W. J. Pear, 61. About three-fifths of the city's 10,300 eligible voters turned out for the first balloting since 1945.

Aerial Search Fails To Find Missing Priest

CHURCHILL, Man., Nov. 9 — (CP)—An aerial search of Hudson Bay shore country as far as the Severn River mouth, 260 miles southeast of here, Tuesday failed to produce any sign of an Arctic priest and two Eskimos missing for 18 days on a seal hunt.

RCAF headquarters said their Dakota aircraft, which took off Tuesday afternoon, will cover the area from the mouth of James Bay to the south end today. It will land at Kapuskasing, about 170 miles southwest.

Council Peaceful After Tirade Of Reeve Bowles

COBOURG, Nov. 9 (ENS) — Unless someone injects a yet unknown contentious matter into the agenda of counties' council like in the days when George Hootan had the habit of stirring up a grand old argument at the 11th hour of the dying session of the year's counties council, the current November session will be but routine. Even the shock administered when Reeve Bowles on Monday said that the counties council was a thing of the past, has subsided and Tuesday's session took the familiar pattern of a clean-up of odds and ends from the year's work.

By authority of a resolution passed at the June session, the difference of opinion between Haldimand and Percy townships regarding their two county roads was disposed of speedily. A resolution from Haldimand Township council advised the counties council that the township could not see its way clear to depart from the road that had been approved, running north from Burnley to the Haldimand and Percy township boundary. From Percy Township came a resolution recommending that the matter of the connecting link between these roads be left to the counties council.

However, at the June session the following resolution had been passed:

"Moved by Mr. George, seconded by Mr. Locke, that Haldimand and Percy townships endeavour to come to a peaceful settlement on the connection of their two county roads and report at the November session. If no settlement is agreed upon, we recommend that these two county road by-laws be rescinded and revert back to the townships and no more construction be done until a settlement is made, and that if a settlement in this matter is made, that a written report be sent to the counties council by these two municipalities.

Reeve Arthur Wartman of Percy township suggested that the matter go to the road and bridge committee but council decided to stick to the resolution passed at the June session.

Ask For Grants

A number of requests for grants were read. A request for an increase in salary from Mrs. May McGuire, secretary to the county judge, was referred to the finance committee.

Resolutions from various other counties were read and referred to the appropriate committees the report on Haldimand township's assessment appeal was presented to the counties council, the settlement affecting increases in the assessments of the urban municipalities.

A Fair Rental Increase

The announcement that rents may be increased next month has brought about many excited protests; some of these are from tenants who say that increases are unfair, and the remainder are from landlords who say that the increases are not enough. This variety of complaint suggests that the increase must be just about right; if either side in the argument had kept quiet there would have been something suspicious about it. Totday's re-interpretation of the order gives assurance that fantastic rent increases will not be permitted.

* * *

There is a shortage of rentable housing at present, and investors are not anxious to put their money in new projects of this sort. The return on rentable housing has not been good enough to make it an attractive, or possibly even a safe, investment. Undoubtedly this is one reason why permission has been given to raise rents; it is an indirect attack on the shortage of housing. And as more rentable housing comes into being it is reasonable to suppose that there will be a general levelling off of rents.

* * *

There seems to be a general assumption among tenants that all landlords will increase rents to the full extent permitted by law. Undoubtedly many landlords will do so, but we do not suppose that they will all grab at once for the last possible penny of rent. Landlords know that the housing shortage, though still bad, is not so bad as it was, and they know that if they treat their tenants badly they will lose them as soon as another house is available. There are many landlords who do not like to change tenants if it can be avoided, and no doubt they will weigh all the facts before they decide what increase in rent they will impose. But tenants must remember that they have had the best of the deal for several years, and many landlords feel that they have been unjustly used. Tenants must also remember that apartments and houses built since January 1, 1947, have been free from rent control for some time. Landlords will certainly consider these things, even if their tenants do not. The rents which exist in these cases will, in some degree, set the standard for the coming rental increases.

* * *

We do not suppose that it will salve anybody's wounds, but we must point out that the abandonment of controls always involves some measure of surprise and upset. People are quick to accustom themselves to any advantage which is gained by restricting somebody else's business. But we cannot return to a peace economy and continue rent controls, and if the change is a shock, the shock will have to be borne.

Why Favour Yugoslavia?

Tito and Stalin, Yugoslavia and Russia, are so much alike on ideological grounds that there is nothing to choose between them. Both countries are communistic, founded on Marxist doctrine. Tito is a "nationalist" communist; so is Stalin. Tito, like Stalin, was the real power in creating his new state. (Yugoslavia is the only European communist post-war state not created in the wake of the Red army, and supported by it.) The chief difference between the two countries is in size and power. One observer who knows eastern Europe well remarks that "Tito's Yugoslavia is a small-scale copy of Stalin's Russia, down to the most ridiculous details: the mock federalism, the mock-democracy, the constitution of the Party, the role of the political police, the machine-made propaganda, even the military title of the idolized head of the Government—it is all exactly the same." The Cominform tried to accuse Tito of "deviation" because he tolerated peasant proprietors. Yet he is collectivising the land at as fast a pace as Russia did twenty years ago. From the beginning of the year until last summer the number of "peasant co-operatives" increased from 1,300 to 4,500.

There is nothing in the Tito regime or its present tendencies to show that it is becoming more liberal. There is little hope of Yugoslavia's becoming democratic under Tito. Why then favour it over the U.S.S.R. in the developing conflict between the two countries.

The reason is that the conflict is raw power-politics, not a clash of ideologies, and Yugoslavia is the weaker power. Yugoslavia is now an independent country. It is a buffer state between the Russian empire and the Mediterranean. It relieves the pressure on Greece, and even now is keeping large Soviet forces away from other frontiers. It checks Russia's offensive tactics in western Europe. It is an example of independence which might encourage Russian satellites. It is a segment which helps to balance power in Europe.

When Britain allied herself with Russia after Hitler's attack in June, 1941, it did not do so out of sympathy for Russia. Russia was a power facing German aggression, and as such was worth supporting. If Russia had been suberged, what could have stopped the Germans? For the same reason Yugoslavia merits Western support. It is a check against the spread of U.S.S.R. power. Yugoslavia's continuing independence should be fostered by the West.

Ontario's Mental Health Plan

Premier Frost has announced a five-year program to improve the mental health services and extend mental hospitals in the province. It is an ambitious, $35,000,000 scheme, and related to the Federal Government's present large health program announced last year, under which the Dominion is co-operating with the provinces, and making large grants to them to extend hospital accommodation and medical services.

Two new mental hospitals will be built in Northern Ontario, and additions will be made to existing institutions in the south. There is great need all over the province for increased accommodation for the mentally ill and for better service and treatment. This was brought to the attention of Peterborough people a couple of months ago when Peterborough doctors and public welfare officials met with Provincial Government investigators making a survey of the requirements in this part of Ontario. Our own doctors pointed out the difficulty of getting their patients into such Provincial hospitals as Whitby, because of lack of accommodation, and of patients being discharged too soon. The need for making psychiatric advice and treatment more readily available to people in the area was urged.

It is expected that the new program announced by Premier Frost will remedy some of the conditions, and better meet the needs locally and provincially, even though Peterborough does not get a mental hospital. One of the basic requirements and greatest needs is an adequate number of trained psychiatrists, nurses, occupational therapists and attendants. We shall be interested in knowing if the new Ontario plan makes provision for more and better training facilities for mental hospital staffs.

Happy Russian Parties

The Russian embassy at Ottawa is said by connoisseurs of diplomatic receptions to provide the best parties in Canada's capital. Whatever guests may think of the host's politics, policies and international manners, they seem to approve their caviar and vodka and cakes. It is not a case of everybody going to the Russian household expecting the worst; they go expecting the best, and get it, and have a good time in the grab.

Everybody seems to have had a similar good time Monday night at the party given in the Soviet Embassy in Washington, in honour of Foreign Minister Vishinsky. A glittering, gay affair it was. Even newspaper men enjoyed the titbits from table and lips of Mr. Vishinsky. He smiled amiably, shook hands with a thousand guests, and talked placatingly of Russia's peaceful intentions. All work and no play make Jack, and even Ivan, a dull boy, we presume.

This reception on the anniversary of the 1917 Red Revolution occurred at about the same time that Comrade Malenkov, of the Soviet hierarchy, away across the seas in Moscow, announced by radio that U.S. dreams of a "world American empire" threatened the world with a third war, and boasted that it would dig capitalism's grave. Examined logically, this gives the breeze to M. Vishinsky's peace-loving talk, for if Russia is convinced that a third world war would destroy capitalism, it would seem that the fomenting of such a war would be Russia's chief aim, since her ultimate foreign goal is to destroy capitalism. But logic had no acknowledged place in the Vishinski party in Washington. All was merry as a marriage bell.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Discussing the 20-25 per cent. increase in rents which the Government will authorize, the judicious, high-toned Montreal Star says that if the Government's reasons are logical, they are not likely to appeal very much "to the householder who will have to pay, sap, $65 for accommodation for which he now pays $52". Say, say, what's that again?

From The Critic's Notebook

A WRITER'S NOTEBOOK, by Somerset Maugham (Wm. Heinemann).

MOST writers keep notebooks or journals of some sort; a writer's stock-in-trade is the impressions he forms of life, and he must take pains to prevent this valuable raw material from slipping through his fingers. And because our thoughts tend to become elusive in proportion to the importance which we attach to them, the writer must make notes of thoughts and impressions which may be of value, and he must do so quickly. Sometimes his notes are irregular and disjointed; sometimes they are beautifully entered in a diary. Sometimes, as in the case of Ibsen, they are contained under headings in a file; sometimes (as with a newspaper writer I once knew) they are actually scribbled in the writer's pocket. But however the notes are kept, they are the writer's raw material, and as such they are of interest to people who want to know more about the writer than his works reveal.

This book has been boiled down from the fifteen large volumes of notes made by Somerset Maugham during his fifty years as a writer. They are of deep interest, as a complement to his work, and in a few of these notes the germs of some of his stories are discernible; in a few cases he points them out himself. But let no one take up this book with the notion that he is going to find out anything more about Mr. Maugham than he has discovered from his other books, or with the belief that he is going to learn anything about being a writer of fiction. The secrets are not revealed here.

Somerset Maugham is a great literary craftsman, and in some of his best work (by which he must be judged, and got by his worst) he is a great writer. But he is a man of reserved and distant temperament, and he has selected nothing from his fifteen volumes of notes which reveals any genuine chink in his armour. Apparent chinks there are, but that is all. I, for one, do not regret this. Self-revelatory writers are welcome, but not always; I am glad that Maugham has tidied his kitchen before taking us into it. He has given us another book of his keen observation, his wit and his unfailing good sense. Are we to complain because he has not given his immortal soul and the secrets of his art, as well?

CLOCK WITHOUT HANDS, by Gerald Kersh (Heinemann).

THIS latest work of the hugely prolific Mr. Kersh is a book containing three longish short stories. That which gives the book its title tells of a pitiable little man who seeks notoriety by insisting that he has committed a murder. The second is a study of a little boy in a home for waifs and strays. The third of these short novels tells of a poor clerk who finds good fortune through a cruel practical joke which has been played on him.

The three short novels are all enlivened by Kersh's wonderful understanding of low life, and particularly by his understanding of poverty. To him the poor are neither romantic nor pitiable: they are poor, in most cases, because they have no training or ability. But he knows all their artifices and shifts, and though not sympathetic his is passionately interested.

It is this quality of absorbing interest in mankind, this gusto, which makes Gerald Kersh one of the best writers of our day. These short novels suit his style admirably, and this is one of his best books.

THE TABLE TALK OF SAMUEL MARCHBANKS by Robertson Davies (Clarke, Irwin).

CANADIAN humour began in the pioneer mould, and there are still those who seek to preserve that pioneer flavour, however artificially. Stephen Leacock did not do so, but much of Leacock's best work was written outside Canada, and except for "Sunshine Sketches" none of his work is particularly Canadian in scene. But to this day many Canadian humourists write as though the typical Canadian were a farmer or a woodsman, illiterate and shrewd in a peasant fashion. But in fact about half Canada's population today is urban, and the typical Canadian is not a country jake, but a sober townsman.

It was to this townsman that Samuel Marchbanks addressed his "Diary" in 1947; it is to the same public that he speaks in this companion volume of "Table Talk". And he speaks not as one addressing a backwoods moron (which has been the tone of many Canadian funnymen of the past) but as though he expected Canadians to be as intelligent and as well-read as other civilized peoples. The popularity of the "Diary" suggests that Canadians like this approach.

There are Canadians, of course, who do not. They admire stupidity, and like to think that Canada excells in this quality; they like to picture a typical Canadian as a tobacco-chewing wild man of the woods. But when Canadians like Mr. St. Laurent, Mr. L. B. Pearson, and Mr. King are in the world's eye, this national pose of illiterate idiocy becomes very hard to sustain. It is impossible to conceal from ourselves any longer that we are, as a nation, civilized, mildly educated and intelligent. And this is the Canada to which Marchbanks offers his opinions, his whims and his prejudices.

As always with sequels the question will arise: "Is it as funny as the 'Diary'?" I think it is just as funny and perhaps more so. It is humour for the New Canada — the Canada which has outgrown colonialism, either toward England or the U.S.A.

Buffalo Cattle For Northlands

A new type of animal has been developed after 25 years' experimentation by the Canadian Department of Agriculture which may eventually make Canada's vast northland self-sustaining in meat production.

The "cattale," a hybrid of the buffalo and the domestic cow, is hailed as the answer to the problem of finding an animal to stand up against a northern winter. This new cross-breed is as adept as the buffalo at foraging for feed through heavy snow and, at the same time, is as disease-resistant as ordinary cattle.

STILL "OVER THEIR HEADS"

Britain's Peanut Project

(NEW YORK HERALD-TRIBUNE)

THE plan to clear some three million African acres of wild bush and to plant the oil-yielding peanut was one of those projects which precisely suited Britain's post war mood. In a world of diminishing imperial power this seemed an occasion to extend British influence in a new and significant direction; at the same time, by the adoption of techniques comparable to those of the American Tennessee Valley Authority, it gave promise of carrying out Labour's humane goals. Not least, it could supply the most important deficiency in the British diet. The scheme seemed bold enough to challenge the energies of a victorious nation, and practical enough to insure success. It is regrettable, in view of all this, that the British government has had to announce the virtual failure of the scheme to date.

By March, 1948, only 7,500 acres had been planted in peanuts. At that time the government-financed Overseas Food Corporation took over from the private firm which had been intrusted with the work. Today close to 60,000 acres are planted in peanuts, corn and sunflowers, still an insigificant portion of the original goal. The corporation has drawn almost the entire sum that had been counted on to finance the completed scheme; its books are in confusion and it has only a vague idea of where the money has gone.

The causes of this setback are many, and a distant observer could scarcely pretend to weigh them accurately. Evidently there was vast over-optimism at the start, a failure to take into account the rugged and intractable nature of the African bushland.

There was an insufficiency of resources, causing the British to use surplus war tractors and bulldozers, many of them beyond repair. There was muddle and inefficiency in high places. Finally there was the unpredictability of nature itself, with late rains to delay the plantings and a late drought to kill the crops, and around all the tangled mass of thorn and trees and undergrowth, the immemorial fruitage of a stubborn land. In spite of all these, the British government announces that it will proceed with the venture. There have been other epochs in which British plantings—the plantings of colonies and not merely of peanuts—have faced disappointing beginnings and yet have yielded magnificent harvests. It remains to see whether the old faith can still conquer.

A BRITISH OPINION

Bible Message

(... the Authorized Version)

And Jesus went forth, and saw a great multitude, and was moved with compassion toward them, and he healed their sick. (Matt. 14: 14.)

And one of the Pharisees desired him that he would eat with him. And he went into the Pharisee's house, and sat down to meat. And, behold, a woman in the city, which was a sinner, when she knew that Jesus sat at meat in the Pharisee's house, brought an alabaster box of ointment, and stood at his feet behind him weeping, and began to wash his feet with tears, and did wipe them with the hairs of her head, and kissed his feet, and anointed them with the ointment. Now when the Pharisee which had bidden him saw it, he spake within himself, saying, This man, if he were a prophet, would have known who and what manner of woman this is that toucheth him: for she is a sinner.

And Jesus answering said unto him, Simon, I have somewhat to say unto thee. And he saith, Master, say on. There was a certain creditor which had two debtors: the one owed five hundred pence, and the other fifty. And when they had nothing to pay, he frankly forgave them both. Tell me therefore, which of them will love him most? Simon answered and said, I suppose that he, to whom he forgave most. And he said unto him, Thou hast rightly judged.

And he turned to the woman, and said unto Simon, Seest thou this woman? I entered into thine house, thou gavest me no water for my feet: but she hath washed my feet with tears, and wiped them with the hairs of her head.... Wherefore I say unto thee, Her sins, which are many, are forgiven; for she loved much: but to whom little is forgiven, the same loveth little. And he said unto her, Thy sins are forgiven. (Luke 7: 36-44, 47, 48.)

Oldest Dictionary

Scientists expect the world's oldest dictionary, now being compiled at the University of Pennsylvania Museum, to help clear up some of the mystery surrounding a civilization as ancient as any now known.

The early civilization, Sumer, flourished pre-Babylonian times between the Euphrates River and the mountain slopes east of the Tigris, in what is now Iraq.

Prof. Benno Landsberger, University of Chicago Assyriologist, is assembling the hundreds of pieces of hardened clay inscribed in cuneiform which make up the work. They were unearthed 50 years ago by a University of Pennsylvania expedition at Nippur, near Bagdad.

Red Cross Sends More Supplies To Great Britain

TORONTO, Nov. 9 — (CP). — Canadian Red Cross supplies continue to be shipped to Great Britain, Orian Warwick, national chairman of Red Cross Women's Work, announced today.

In a report prepared for delivery to delegates attending the semi-annual, three-day Central Council meeting here, Miss Warwick said it had been decided some time ago that an increased share of Red Cross goods should be sent to Europe—especially to those countries sheltering large numbers of displaced persons.

Miss Warwick said that in the hundreds of Red Cross rooms throughout Canada, the conviction that the society, as an international organization, must do its part in caring for refugees, had been maintained.

Col. A. L. Bishop, chairman of the Central Council, announced Tuesday that the society will seek $5,000,000 in its March, 1950, campaign.

Plasma Work

The main portion of the objective, he said, will go towards veterans' services, to supplying Canadians with free blood and plasma transfusions, and towards maintenance and establishment of outpost hospital and nursing stations and nursing services of the society.

Another delegate, Kathleen Russell, said that by January, 1950, the first two-year trial period of the demonstration school of nursing at Windsor will be completed. First class will be graduated next February.

H. H. Leather, chairman of the National Blood Donor Committee, said more than 46,000 bottles of blood were collected by Red Cross during the first six months of the year.

Takes Championship

NEW YORK, Nov. 9—(AP)—All Afire, ridden by Pat Dixon, won the open jumping championship of the National Horse Show, which finished an eight-day stand a Madison Square Garden Tuesday night. All Afire, owned by H. E. Millard, of Annville, Pa., took the title, which is equivalent to the jumping championship of the United States, in a jump-off with Atomic, owned by the Cardy Farms of Val David, Que. Both had been tied for first with an aggregate of 16 points.

Soldiers Paid Friday Said Broke On Monday

LONDON, Nov. 9 — (CP) — British soldiers in Hong Kong are paid Friday and go broke on Monday, the House of Commons was told.

Emrys Hughes, a Welsh pacifist who sits for the Scottish constituency of South Ayrshire, said pay doesn't last because beer cost so much.

"These men are charged 4s. 6d. (about 70 cents) a pint for their beer at all the canteens," he told Defence Minister Alexander.

The Labor member pleaded with Alexander to bring back those Scotsmen in Hong Kong who, Hughes said, did not want to stay so far away from home.

Amid cheers, Alexander replied he was sure that Scotsmen, like all British soldiers, would do their duty. No complaints about conditions in Hong Kong had reached his department.

No One Knows The Time Now In Bethany

BETHANY, Nov. 9 (ENS) — Confusion has reigned in Bethany since Sunday, when in Manvers Township the clock was officially put back to Standard Time.

The northern and western parts of the township found the arrangement highly suitable, for residents used Lindsay, also on Standard Time, as their shopping centre. But Bethany, on the eastern fringe of the township, is more closely related to Peterborough which remains on Daylight Saving Time until Nov. 27.

Business men, who had their supplies trucked from Peterborough, got busy Saturday evening circulating a petition and decided to observe Daylight Saving Time until Nov. 27. The telephone office also found it necessary to remain on Daylight Saving Time as times are governed in Toronto and Peterborough.

Confusion resulted Sunday. Most people had put their clocks back on Saturday night and enjoyed an extra hour in bed. Some moved it ahead an hour on Monday and there is now a dual system in Bethany.

The churches, as previously announced, held services according to Standard Time. The Post Office is on Standard Time. The banks, stores and garages are on Daylight. Pupils who travel to Peterborough Collegiate by bus are still on Daylight Time and so are others who travel back and forth to the city every day.

Plan $300,000 Drive

TORONTO, Nov. 9—(CP)—A four-week campaign to raise $300,000 for church work in Canada, India and Bolivia will be launched by the Baptist convention of Ontario and Quebec next Sunday, it was announced Tuesday night. Even before the campaign opened, 60 of the 450 Baptist churches in the union have pledged $100,000 towards the drive.

Will Stand Trial

SUDBURY, Nov. 9 (CP) — John P. Balazs, a hunter from West Lake, Ohio, Tuesday was committed for trial on a manslaughter charge arising from the fatal shooting of Albert Badgerow district guide, on a hunting trip north of here last week. Balazs, released on $3,000, will be tried next spring.

Ask Rent Curbs

TORONTO, Nov. 9—(CP)—The Toronto Board of Control Tuesday decided to ask the Federal Government to review the rental situation and to allow increases in rent only where a landlord can prove that a boost is justified. The Board expressed the view that the government should deal with each case on its merits, rather than permitting a general rental increase.

Consider Committee

OTTAWA, Nov. 9 (CP)—Senator Wishart Robertson, government leader in the Senate, said Tuesday night he was willing to consider setting up of a Senate committee on atomic matters. Such a committee, he said, could be appointed on the understanding that members might join at the next session of parliament with members of the Commons in a joint atomic committee.

Use Tear Gas

U.S. Army Men Reluctant To Change Pact

TORONTO, Nov. 9 — (CP).— Maclean's Magazine says in its current issue that "most of the United States military men concerned" seem "intensely reluctant" to permit any change in the agreements under whch the US holds military bases in Newfoundland. Chiefly at issue are questions of legal jurisdiction, customs and taxation.

In an article entitled "where the Yanks Rule a Part of Canada," Blar Firaser, the magazine's Ottawa editor, says that Defence Minister Claxton considers the situation "intolerable," that he talked frankly to Defence Secretary Louis Johnson of the US last July, and that when Johnson returned to Washington from his Ottawa visit "it seemed for a while that things were about to move."

The article says, however, that so far nothing has happened, that while the US State Department is entirely sympathetic, and some individuals in the armed services equally so, "most of the US military men concerned seem intensely reluctant to permit any change."

The sites concerned are Fort Pepperell, an army base just outside St. John's; Harmon Field, a military airport on St. George's Bay; and Argentia, an air force and navy base 65 miles southwest of St John's. All were leased by Britain to the US in 1941 in the destroyers-for-bases deal, eight years before Newfoundland became a Canadian province.

There, US courts have jurisdiction over any offence committed by a non-British subject; and even outside the leased area have jurisdiction when an offence of a military nature is committed anywhere in Newfoundland by a non-British subject.

Name Special Officer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9 (CP)— Canada is expected shortly to name a diplomatic officer to deal with continuing financial and economic consultations agreed upon during the September sterling-dollar talks with the United States and the United Kingdom. Informed sources here said Tuesday night they expect the appointment will be announced in Ottawa "within the next day or so."

Presents Bill To Canadianize 3 Armed Forces

OTTAWA, Nov 9 — (CP). — Defence Minister Claxton Tuesday night entered the Senate to sponsor a Government Bill to "Canadianize" and unify existing legislation relating to the three armed forces.

The minister sponsored the voluminous Bill "with leave of the Senate" under a procedure which is comparatively recent and designed to speed the business of Parliament while giving the Senate a greater share of its work.

The proposed Act cuts the 598 sections of existing legislation respecting the armed forces to 251 clauses and lays down one piece of legislation applicable to all three services.

Two Years' Work

The provisions, subject to two years' work, include these main points as outlined by Mr. Clarton:

1—To include in one statute all existing legislation relating to the Defence Department and the Canadian forces.

2—To provide a single code of service discipline making soldiers, sailors and airmen subject to the same law.

3—To make all legislation applicable to service personnel Canadian legislation. Previously the Army and Air Force were regulated by the Army and Air Force Acts of the United Kingdom.

4—To provide a right of appeal from the findings and sentences of courts-martial and for a new trial on the discovery of new evidence.

5—To authorize use of active and reserve forces to meet a national disaster, such as a flood.

The Bill, Mr. Claxton said, would make service uniform and make transaction of routine business more efficient and "expeditious."

PCVS Teams Play Belleville In The Cossa Semi-Finals

Peterborough and Belleville Collegiates clash this Friday afternoon in Nicholls Oval as the senior and junior grid squads meet in the semi-final games of the COSSA playdowns. The first game the junior game, will commence at 1 p.m. with the seniors kicking off immediately after the junior tilt.

Bev. Goulding's senior footballers will be without Al Northcott, out with a broken ankle sustained in the Oshawa-Peterborough playoff, and Hubert Knox, the first string middle, hurt in the first game with Belleville seniors last Saturday.

Coach Goulding hopes to have Grainger and Burns, his two first string insides back in the game. Due to knee injuries obtained in the Lakeshore District game with Oshawa, Mr. Goulding made the boys sit out the first game of the Belleville series last week. With these regulars back all the line will be regulars with the exception of the replacement for Knox.

Carl Sergeant will again be at the quarterback position with Armstrong and Galoska likely to do the booting.

If the seniors manage to hold their lead against the Belleville squad they will enter into the COSSA playdowns a week from Saturday at the Oval against the winners of the Niagara-Georgian Bay district. They will be the defending champs trying for their fourth straight COSSA title. Last year the finals were played in the Niagara district.

After a peculiar season Coach Alex Londry's juniors are heading down the COSSA trail. Beating the Oshawa Collegiate juniors last Saturday the locals won the opportunity to tackle the Belleville team, winners of the Bay of Quinte section.

Coach Londry has no players on the injured list. It is expected that Bryon Young who was the regular quarter until two weeks when forced out with a sprained ankle will be back in the line-up.

Slow-moving Bill Stewart made an excellent showing at the quarter position last game and Coach Londry remains mum about his starting lineup with Young back in.

Undefeated in the regular schedule the juniors have had trouble knocking off their opponents in the exhibition games. Riverdale edged them by two points while the Humberside juniors of Toronto who seem to be headed for their second straight Toronto championship, trimmed the PCI'ers 34-1. Grove School knocked them off two weeks ago.

Friday's game will be a sudden-death affair to see who will advance into the COSSA finals against the winners of the Georgian Bay-Niagara districts champion. The final COSSA junior game will either be played in the Niagara Peninsula winners' home field or in Georgian Bay winners' home field.

The PCVS juniors are trying for their second straight COSSA championship.

Confederation Wins Cup In School Loop

Confederation blanked Prince of Wales 2-0 yesterday at King Edward Park in the sudden-death final to win the senior Public School Soccer League championship and the Kinsmen Cup for this season. It was a fine game between two good clubs under ideal weather conditions, with all players on both sides turning in an excellent performance.

Positional play was evident, in the early stages, with the forwards concentrating on combination that met the close-checking of the half-backs, with the custodians being called upon to save their citadel repeatedly. Confederation quickly altered their style to long swinging passes that opened up the game. Dunstan returned the ball over to Scott Pearton who opened the scoring with an unsaveable drive. Dunstan, Confederation, broke out of the scrimmage to send Davis away on the wing to beat two men nicely, steadied himself to send a rocket drive that bulged the net behind Coit, goalie.

Prince of Wales, on resuming, aided with the wind, bombarded the Confederation goal from all angles to bring out the superb defensive tactics of Parry and Brooks, along with Miller E. Dunstan and B. Bryan made combination plays that Prince of Wales full backs, Bowes and Whitney, replied with an effective attack led by Faiers to gain a succession of dangerous flag kicks but the Confederation goalie punted clear from goal. At this point Confederation were on the defensive as Downer broke through in an attempt to shoot but Miller Confederation, had his number throughout the game as he hung on to Downer like a leach to blank him off the scoring column. Both goalies were called upon to save repeatedly but nothing further transpired.

Prince of Wales—D. Coit goal; H. Bowes and J Heron, full backs; B. Spiers, G Pagett, and C. Whitney, half backs; K Lowell, L. Barrie, P. Evans B. Faiers, and W. Downer, forwards Subs: D. Livingstone, H. Pullybank, B Dummitt.

Confederation—M. Bryan, goal; M. Parry and R Brooks, full backs; R. Miller E. Dunstan and By Bryan, half backs; B. Davis, D. Sloan, R. Holland, S. Pearton, and C. Simmons, forwards Subs: V. Hamilton, G. MvIntosh and T. Post.

Referees—Mr. J. Burns and Mr. McNeill.

Here And There In Sports . . .

By The Canadian Press

The word along Jacobs Beach, that sporting district contiguous to New York's Madison Square Garden, is that some of the bookmakers have been taking a beating—because many don't know that Toronto still is on daylight saving time.

National Hockey League games played in Toronto begin at 7:30 p.m. by New York clocks, due to the power-saving measure in effect in parts of Ontario till the end of the month.

Bookies customarily take bets up until 8:30 p.m., the NHL's normal game-beginning time. So customers in the know who find out how the Toronto games are going almost for an hour after they start have been placing their money more wisely than usual.

However, it's a safe bet that the bookies will hear all about it before long.

Hull Volants, touring Canadian hockey squad, Tuesday night suffered their third defeat in four games as they were outclassed 7-3 at London by Harringay Racers, British Ice Hockey Association champions.

The Volants showed speed and occasional clever team play but never really got going against the heavier, faster Racers, who are mostly made up of Canadians.

Hull manager Bob Guertin again pleaded unfamiliarity with the rink and British rules in explaining the Volants' defeat. He pointed out that Harringay's four-goal winning margin was established in the first period, and thereafter Hull matched the Racers goal for goal.

Postponement of the Lee Oma-Freddie Beshore heavyweight match scheduled for Thursday night was announced Tuesday night at Buffalo.

Matchmaker Charlie Pinto said he had received word from Oma's manager, Tex Sullivan, in New York City that Oma had a finger injury caused by a splinter and had been advised by a State Athletic Commission physician not to box for a week.

The bout probably will be staged Dec. 6.

The North American ski championships will be held at Banff's Mount Norquay course from Feb 15 to March 5, ski meet officials announced Tuesday at Calgary.

The North American Downhill and Slalom events will be held Feb. 25-26, North American and Canadian Cross Country (Combined) March 2 and the Canadian Downhill and Slalom events March 3-4. The Intercollegiate meet is scheduled for Feb. 4-5.

At Baltimore the Maryland Racing Commission Tuesday slapped a 10-year suspension on Salvatore J. Cicero after hearing that the owner-trainer doped a horse at Pimlico last month.

The 30-year-old Baltimore man was accused of administering a stimulant to Rough Ordy, winner of the second race at that track last Oct. 28. The horse paid $45 straight.

Frank Gnup, coach of Hamilton Wildcats of the Big Four, said on Tuesday at Brantford that professional jealousies among the players contributed to his team's poor showing this year.

"It was a sad state of affairs" he sad. "Some players did not put their heart into the game. . . They were good football players but failed to try a little harder."

The Wildcats failed to win any of their 12 games.

A company pamphlet arrives from Hamilton, possibly directed this way by Johnny Nameth. He came up here nearly two years ago from Hamilton, travelling for a firm, and tried to locate in the city. Offered his softball services to any club that would find him a place to live. But empty houses were scarcer than hen's molars and he finally settled in Hastings. Recently moved back to Hamilton. Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Jones throwing a farewell party for the Nameths. The pamphlet says: "Bob Greenlaw was voted most valuable player in the Peterborough City Softball League, this ace pitcher for Uniteds winning on a close vote over Howie Dalton. Johnny Nameth presented the trophy to Bob."

Collegiate football followers in noisy mood will be funnelled into Nicholls Oval from all over the city on Friday aft. On account of two COSSA semi-final frays are on tap there, commencing at one p.m. Football is by far the biggest sport at PCVS, and grid playoff time really touches off the old school spirit. Belleville Collegiate plays Alex Londry's local juniors in the first game, a sudden-deather to see which hits into the finals. Immediately after that is settled, the Quinte seniors clash with Bev Goulding's smart PCI-ers, in the second of their two-game semi-finals. The Garnet and Gray won the first, and we expect two PCVS victories after hard seraps Friday.

Meteors And Petes

Puck rooters no doubt will be out in force to see Lindsay Meteors (by way of Toronto) tangling at 8.30 tonight in Civic Arena with the Petes. An OHA senior "B" exhibition, following a previous one in Lindsay when Meteors won by a single goal. Two well-matched clubs, which will be in the same grouping this winter, and they turn it on all the way. Coach Ed Foley has quite a bit of new talent on the Petes' roster—including a senior "A" forward—and the team is definitely shaking down into a strong outfit. Goalie Ray Harding is in the pink again and starring betwixt the pipes, while Honey Tompkins has started to hit his oldtime stride.

They had their get-away day at Dufferin and caretakers are now busy cleaning up—something a lot of folks couldn't do at the mutuel windows—as the 146-day racing season ends in Toronto. Many from here visited Toronto tracks frequently during the spring, summer and fall, and did their part financially toward improving the breed of running horses. Some regulars at the rail said it was one of the most successful seasons in the history of Ontario racing, a Toronto writer remarks, while on the other hand, a chap whose business it is to sell hay and oats at the track said: "Not in quite a few years have I had so many unpaid bills on my books at the end of the season. Some of these horsemen haven't a buck." And, so they hit south, trying to get a stake to continue following the ponies around.

Champions In Soccer

Confederation beat Prince of Wales yester aft 2-0 at King Park to capture the Kinsmen Trophy and the Public School Soccer League senior crown for this year. The intermediate title and the G. N. Gordon Cup went to King Edward School, as the southend Grove team won the junior championship. In the three series this fall, more than 300 boys played, and the teachers who acted as coaches and referees deserve much credit for their extra-curricular efforts for the lads. Good bodies and characters are built in this school loop, and sportsmanship is stressed. Our congrats to the winners, and also to the other teams.

While the big wrestling question of the week is how Sky-Hi Lee, the larruping Ozark hillbilly matman, will stack up against that sturdy, bullet-like ring projectile, Seelie Samara, in the main bout at the Brock Arena on Thursday night, exceptional interest is also being displayed by the fans in the other matches. In the semi-final, Wladek Kowalski, the sensational, six-foot-seven, 265-pound, 23-year-old Polish giant, tackles Joe Christie, who is reported as hardy as they come. Kowalski is one of the chief contenders for the British Empire crown. Skiers Prepare Hill Sites For Big Snow

Snow flurries in the past week have inspired the members of the Peterborough Ski Club. Work at their Bethany tramping grounds has been completed on the two tow hills with both ropes being strung during the past two weekends. Even the tow tracks have been hacked level by picks and shovels, then blanketed with five loads of straw.

This coming weekend snow-fences will be put up around the grounds and the woodshed too will receive a new covering of tarpaper. When several other odd jobs are done everything will be ready for Mother Nature's white blanket.

Kemp's Hill has been receiving some attention with Art Long supervising the work. The tow rope there will be hung this weekend. The hill will have a new carrier and rigging this year.

As soon as the work is completed at the Bethany playground, preparation will shift to the ski-jump at Nassau. After several years of disuse its jump and hill are in dangerous condition. Some repair was started last year but the lack of snow discouraged workers.

The local ski club is planning to hold a ski night similar to last year's on Wednesday, December 7.

Curling Notes

By HERB MARTIN

We dropped into the curling rink last evening, just to look things over—see what's going on—no sooner had we taken up our position, looking through the glass, out on No. 6 ice than one of the old-timers walked up and said: "Say, did you hear the one about the"—right there and then we knew that the curling season was officially opened.

We saw many of the older curlers out, and many new ones. They all seemed to be anxious to get going and were just kind of feeling out the ice. Tonight should see a good crowd out.

This announcement is especially for the new members. Will all the new curlers please be at the rink on Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock. A number of the older and experienced curlers will be on hand to welcome them and to instruct them on the fine points of the game.

We have been advised that the ever popular mixed rink bonspiel held once a week, will commence this coming Saturday at 7:45 p.m. The committee with Mrs. M. McCartney, convener, is hoping for a good turnout.

Marlies Dump Mercurys As Tigers Blank Kitchener

By The Canadian Press.

Toronto's front-running Marlboros, old hands at coming from behind to lambast the opposition, have done it again.

Marlies, current leaders in the Senior A Ontario Hockey Association race, romped from behind in a fast-paced struggle at Owen Sound last night to chill Owen Sound Mercurys 5-4. The win widened the Toronto Club's lead over the Mercs to five points.

In the other senior contest, Hamilton's perked-up Tigers gladdened their home town supporters by blanking Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen 3-0. It was Tigers' second victory after dropping six consecutive games.

Meanwhile, in the Junior A division, Guelph Biltmores shouldered into the already crowded fourth place slot by defeating St Catharines Teepees 5-3 at St. Kitts. The win put Biltmores on the same level in the loop standing as Toronto St. Mike's, Galt Black Hawks and the Teepees.

Slow Down

After taking a two goal lead in the first period, Guelph slowed down to let Teepees go ahead 3-2 in the second stanza. Later in the frame, the Bilts came back to tie it up and rap in the only two goals of the final stanza.

Biltmores were paced by Andy Bathgate who bagged three goals. Ed Kulik and Herb Dickenson, who each scored once. Obie O'Brien counted two for the losers and Con Switzer picked up the odd one.

Young Bruce Dale scored his second shutout at Hamilton The Bengals took the lead halfway through the first frame and added two more in the second, but erratic passing on both sides kept the final frame scoreless.

Polly Miocinovich, Clare Shillington and Carl Smelle each fired once for Tigers.

Make Them Work

At Owen Sound, the Mercurys hed a 2-1 lead by the end of the first stanza after the Dukes had scored the final goal, but Mercs had to come from behind again to finish the second frame on even terms, 3-3. The Owen Sounders came through again early in the last frame to take the lead, but two goals in less than two minutes gave Merlies the game.

Alf Childs and Don Rope each scored twice for Marlboros and Johnny McCormack picked up the other goal. Pat McReavy scored twice for the Mercs, with Jack Ingoldsby and Fred Smith getting one apiece.

Burly Juzda Sports Plenty Of Scars

By JIM BASTABLE,
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

Burly Bill Juzda, a better than average rear-guard, is getting plenty of souvenirs while toiling for Toronto Maple Leafs. He's got 25 facial stitches to show for his work.

The 28-year-old defenceman, who tips the scale at 195 pounds, has been kicking around the National Hockey League for years, but it appears that he is in for a real carving-up this season. There's still 60 games of the 70-game schedule to go, too

But Juzda, a product of Winnipeg who spent most of his time with New York Rangers before he came to the Leafs last year, is familiar with those operations.

Although he escaped uncut last season, he received a total of 26 stitches the previous year while playing for the Rangers.

He'll get a brief respite tonight. The Leafs won't see action.

In the two scheduled games—Montreal Canadiens at New York and Chicago Black Hawks at Boston Bruins—a new leader cannot be produced although the leading Detroit Red Wings are idle.

If Dick Irvin's Canadiens gain a victory tonight it will give them 12 points, one point behind the second place Leafs and three behind the Red Wings. Chicago is in fourth place with eight points and Boston and New York are tied with seven points in the six-team loop.

Cry For Help

Meanwhile, there's a cry for help in the New York camp.

Manager Frank Boucher, at least half satisfied by seeing his boys halve a 3-3 contest with the Leafs last week, was thoroughly upset after the 7-0 shellacking they took from Detroit Sunday.

"Looks like we'll have to try to get some help—and fast—to improve our attack," he said.

As a result Johnny Denis of Montreal was called up from the Rangers' American League farm club, New Haven Ramblers Tuesday. Denis is tied for third place in the league's individual scoring race with 16 points on six goals and 10 assists.

Boucher also wants to fix up his defence. He said his boys were drawing too many penalties for rough and tough play, and the opposition was scoring too many goals while the Rangers were short-handed.

REMEMBER WHEN—

By The Canadian Press.

Winnipeg Blue Bombers smashed through to their fourth consecutive Western Interprovincial Football championship with a 23-2 win over the luckless Calgary Bronks nine years ago today. Bombers took the title in two straight, with the first win of 7-0 at Calgary and the second in their home town.

Dodgers After Raffensberger

BROOKLYN, Nov. 9 (AP) — Brooklyn Dodgers are going all out for the one man they believe will help them win not only the 1950 National League pennant but the world series as well. The man is southpaw pitcher Ken Raffensberger of Cincinnati Reds.

The hint that the Dodgers are hot after a "good, reliable" veteran pitcher, with no names mentioned, was dropped at a press conference conducted by president Branch Rickey Tuesday.

The conference was called to announce that 65-year-old Burt Shotton would be back as manager of the Dodgers next year.

Neither Rickey nor Shotton would come right out and say so but it was learned that Raffensberger is the pitcher both are eyeing.

"I think there might be a chance of getting the pitcher we're after before the season opens next April," Rickey said. He didn't identify players offered in exchange. At the same time he did not deny that the names of catcher Bruce Edwards, infielder Eddie Miksis and outfielder Luis Elmo and Tommy Brown were mentioned as possible bait.

"I think the club is good enough to win the pennant as it stands right now," Shotton said. "However we're after the world series. We have lots of good kid pitchers."

Raffensberger, 32, working both as a starter and reliever last season, won 18 games and lost 17 for the seventh-place Reds. Next season will be his 10th in the majors.

U.S. Football Claims 15 Lives

Football has claimed 15 lives in the United States thus far in the 1949 season, six of them in unsupervised sandlot games.

Dr. Floyd Eastwood, a professor at the Los Angeles State College and chairman of the injury and fatality committee of the American Football Coaches Association, gave the figures in his annual mid-season report.

The fatalities also include one colleg player, five in high school, and three in professional and semi-professional ranks.

For the same period last year, sandlot deaths totalled three, high schools seven three in pro or semi-pro and none in college ranks.

Savings Bonds Zoom Past 200 Million

OTTAWA, Nov. 9 (CP)—Sales of Canada savings bonds zoomed past the $200,000,000 mark this week as more Canadians continued to buy more bonds, the Bank of Canada reported today.

General sales climbed $46,000,000 in three days to spearhead the third week of the campaign period. General sales for the first 17 days of the campaign totalled $91,000,000. Bank officials were confident this upsurge would be continued to bring the final total of such sales well above last year's mark of $142,000,000.

Payroll savings sales already have shattered existing records. To date organized establishments and special groups have reported sales of $123,000,000, up $5,000,000 from the previous high.

Each of the five economic regions across Canada has exceeded its total payroll savings sales of a year ago. The Maritimes heads the list with 115 per cent, compared with last year, while Ontario is close behind with 112 per cent.

More Canadians are buying bonds this year and are buying more of them. The average payroll plan application this year is for $223, compared with $208 last year. A total of 728,165 applications have been received, compared with 532,819 at the same stage last year.

Minister To Moscow

LONDON, Nov. 9 (Reuters)—John W. Nicholls, 40-year-old former head of the German economic and German commercial relations departments of the foreign ofice, has been appointed British minister in Moscow, it was officially announced Tuesday night. He succeeds Geoffrey Harrison, who has returned to become head of the foreign office northern department in place of Robert M. A. Hankey, British charge d'affaires-designate to Spain.

Killed In Fall

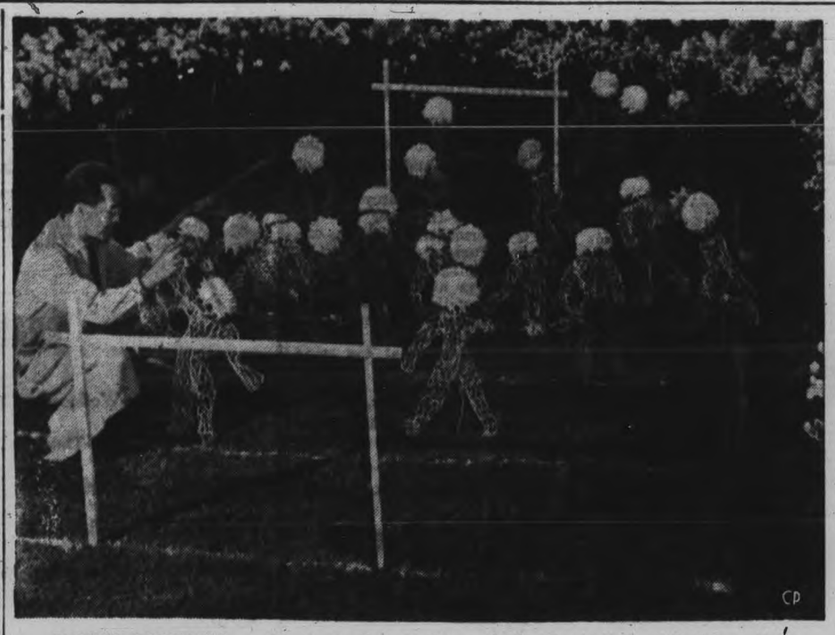
PARSONS, Kas., Nov. 9—(AP)—Senator Clyde M. Reed (Rep. Kas.) was killed Tuesday night in a fall downstairs at his home. He was 78. The senator, who returned to his home from a hospital only last week after an attack of influenza, apparently died instantly. His term was due to expire Jan. 3, 1951. Reed was the ranking member of the Senate's Interstate Commerce committee and a member of the Appropriations committee.

100 Act As Judges

TORONTO, Nov. 9 — (CP) — More than 100 young men from 30 Ontario counties are expected to take part in intercounty judging competitions at the Royal Winter Fair Nov. 15-23, the Ontario Agriculture Department said Tuesday. Main prize in the intercounty contests is the Jeffrey Bull Memorial Trophy, won last year by Middlesex County.

May Help Students

MONTREAL, Nov. 9—(CP)—Possibilities of assisting students affected by currency devaluation will be discussed at the fourth annual conference of the International Student Service opening here Friday at the University of Montreal. Some 70 students representing all Canadian universities will attend.



FLORAL FOOTBALL — Dr. A. P. Chan arranges a floral fotball display for the annual chrysanthemum show at the government's Central Experimental Farm at Ottawa. One team is of mauve "Orchid Queen" 'mums, the other of yellow "J. S. Symonds." The ball is a "Red Rust." Dr. Chan, chief of the farm's horticultural greenhouses, says you can do anything with mums but make them talk. Oh, the umpires? Well, naturally, they're "Peace" 'mums.

London Letter

Take Another 25 Years To Do Museum Catalogue

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

LONDON, Nov. 9—(CP)—Eighteen years ago 12 men started work on a new catalogue for the British museum. Today they are up to the letter C—and don't expect to reach Z for at least another 25 years. It will take 250 volumes to embrace all the thousands of objects housed in the museum. So far only 44 have been completed. Each volume represents a formidable task, for it contains upwards of 19,000 entries printed in small type on 500 quarto-size pages. Hundreds of hours of tabulating, checking and proof-reading are involved. And as fast as objects are listed, new ones are added to the museum shelves.

"You can't afford to be impatient at this job," laughed N. F. Sharp, genial middle-aged editor of the new catalogue, who joined the museum's staff in 1929. "I have 11 assistants and, believe me, we put in a full working week.

A Mile A Year

"Really we could do with more staff but we haven't the funds. You see, we are all paid by the government and the government is more interested in economy just now."

Sharp said the British Museum adds one mile of shelving to its exhibition rooms every year. It is now so crowded that before long the library may have to be housed in a separate building.

The process of producing a new catalogue consists of cutting up the old one into columns, mounting each column on a large sheet of paper and making marginal inserts between the lines of type.

ar Blitzed

The museum's gigantic collection of exhibits has taken nearly 200 years to complete. It represents a history of man's achievements, both mental and physical, through the ages.

The museum was seven times blitzed during the war, total damage being estimated at £500,000 ($15,500,000) in May 1941, 10 of the upper galleries were destroyed. Fire consumed a portion of the main book stack and 150,000 books.

"It will be some years before repairs on the whole building can be completed." an official said

Faces Six Charges

MONTREAL, Nov. 9—(CP) — Police said Tuesday Ernest Nesbitt, 30-year-old alleged accomplice of Gerard (Raffles) Dennis in a series of robberies in Montreal west-end homes in 1945 will face six charges of conspiracy, armed robbery and robbery with violence Thursday. Loot taken in the six alleged robberies amounted to more than $90,000, plice said. Dennis now is serving an 18-year sentence for robbery in New York State. Nesbitt now is serving a four-year sentence in penitentiary here.

Village To Erect Speed Warnings

MILLBROOK, Nov. 9 (ENS)—Signs announcing the 30 mph speed limit for motorists driving through the village of Millbrook are to be placed at the five roads leading to the village. The municipal council decided Monday to purchase five signs.

Norman True was granted permission to burn grass on his land and was assured of assistance, if it should be required from the Fire Department.

L. H. Winslow brought to the attention of the counucil the steep incline leading off King St. to his house caused by the raising of the street at this point. The matter was referred to the Streets and Sidewalks Committee.

Fire Chief Douglas Sheppard reported there had been a fire practice attended by nine members. Equipment was in good order.

Dies In Saskatchewan

INDIAN RIVER, Nov. 9 (ENS)—Word has been received here of the death of Alex Speirs, Shaunavon, Sask., in Regina on Nov. 6. He was formerly of Otonabee and leaves his widow Mary Steele, and two sons, Alex and Gordon of Shaunavon.

Britain To Aid Pensioners With Currency

LONDON, Nov. 9—(CP)—The government announced today that it will do what it can for British war pensioners living in hard-currency countries and suffering financial hardship as a result of devaluation.

Pensions Minister Hilary Marquand told the House of Commons the government had reached this decision in principle and that it would apply in cases of severe hardship.

Marquand was replying to Col. Alan Dower, Conservative member for Penrith and Cockermouth, When members pressed for details on what form the government assistance would take, Marquand said details still were being worked out.

An official of the Pensions Ministry said there were 11,000 United Kingdom war pensioners in Canada and 3,700 in the United States. The Canadian total includes 2,600 Canadian airmen who trained in Canada under the Commonwealth Air Training Plan and later flew with the RAF.

The British decision to grant relief in cases of hardship is understood to have been a painful one in view of the dollar shortage.

Traffic Deaths Jump

TORONTO, Nov. 9 — (CP) — Ontario traffic fatalities increased 17 per cent in the first 10 months of 1949 compared to the same 1948 period, a Department of Highways report showed Tuesday. Although October figures show a slight drop, the report said, 671 persons were killed in traffic accidents in the 10-month period compared with 574 during the same 10 months of 1948. In October, 79 persons were reported killed against 85 in October, 1948.

Jet Transports Will Require New Time Tables

By JAMES J. STREBIG

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9 (AP) —Time tables will be more of a law than a promise when jet transports fly the airways.

Aviation engineers say operations must be geared to schedules like cogwheels for the most safety and economy.

W. T. Dickinson, a Douglas Aircraft Engineer, summed up the situation after studies of an imaginary jet transport about 50 to 60 passengers in size. Investigation of the problems related to movement on the ground, near the airport and along the route indicate, he said, "that jet aircraft cannot develop to a state of common usage until the all-weather, all-plane traffic controls problems are adequately solved."

New Pattern

He concluded that the new air traffic control pattern must provide these conditions:

1. Jets must be permitted to operate at their best cruising altitude and to climb or descend along paths best suited to each type. This means the airplane designer rather than the airway traffic control office would select flight levels. However, jets will fly above 35,000 feet, so they will not interfere with other types of traffic.

2. Flight paths must be wide enough and spacing between planes must be great enough to permit the wide turns necessary at high speeds.

3. Ground operations must be planned to hold taxiing and manoeuvring time to a maximum of three to five minutes. For safety and economy, tow tractors probably will be used extensively in moving jets around airports. Ten minutes of taxiing would use up 700 pounds of fuel in a four-engine jet.

4. "Holding" and "stacking"—which means having aircraft wait over radio markers at assigned altitudes while traffic clears—must be cut out. If that isn't eliminated, Dickinson said, "it is plainly evident that the jet transport will be."

No Taft Law Here

VICTORIA, B.C., Nov. 9 (CP)—Labor Minister Mitchell said Monday night "there will never be a Taft-Hartley law in Canada while I am minister of labor." Speaking to the Laurier Club here, he said he was a firm supporter of the "middle-of-the-road" policy of conciliation and fair dealing.

Gives Himself Up

MONTREAL, Nov. 9—(CP) — A man identified as Henri Lambert and father of three children left on an east-end Montreal doorstep last week, gave himself to police Tuesday. A warrant had been issued against Lambert and Jeanne Cleroux, still missing, who are charged with non-support of their children.

Ava Gardner Definitely Through With Cheesecake

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 9 (AP)—This is Ava Gardner's own emancipation proclamation — she's through with cheesecake.

"I hate it," she said. "For eight years I did nothing else but leg art. Whenever the studio wanted someone to pose for organization, for a calendar or anything else, they would say 'get someone who isn't working.'

"Since I was never working at M.G.M., I spent all my time in the portrait gallery posing with practically nothing on.

"I've portrayed all the seasons all kinds of weather conditions; I've posed for every benefit I can think of. After eight years, I think I deserve a change."

U. N. For Myrna

Myrna Loy reports to Washington after she finishes playing the mother in "Cheaper by The Dozen." She will attend a U.N.E.S.C.O. conference "The organization is doing a wonderful job in Europe," says internationally-minded Myrna. "I wish more people knew about it. But, of course, constructive work is hard to publicize."

Arthur Kennedy returns to "Death of a Salesman" on Broadway after he does "The Glass Menagerie" here. He reports that Arthur Miller, prize-winning author of "Salesman," has written his first screen play. It's a New York waterfront story which Elia Kazan will direct and Kennedy may appear in.

Sin to Come

Howard Hughes has begun advertising "Ma'd Wednesday." formerly "The Sin of Harold Diddlebock." Does that mean he's he's finally going to release the Harold Lloyd film, made four years ago?

Bill Bendix doesn't envy the glamor boys. Without a pretty face to type him, he has played just about everything—"except a romantic lead." Bill, an avid baseball fan, is having the time of his life in "Kill the Umpire."

For Bad Winter Cough, Mix This Syrup Yourself

If you want a splendid cough medicine, mix it at home. It costs very little, yet the way it takes hold of distressing coughs, giving quick relief, is astonishing.

Any druggist can supply you with a 2½ ounce bottle of Pinex. Pour this into a 16 ounce bottle and fill up with granulated sugar syrup to make 16 ounces. To make syrup, use 2 cups of sugar and one cup of water and stir a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed. (Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup.) It's no trouble at all and gives you four times as much cough medicine for your money—a family supply. Keeps perfectly and tastes fine.

It is surprising how quickly this loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and helps to clear the air passages. This three-fold action explains why it relieves an annoying cough in a hurry.

Pinex is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, a very reliable soothing agent for winter coughs. Money refunded if not pleased in every way.
